The two golfers put on a close fight throughout today's 36 holes of play, first one and then the other leading.

The chunky professional from New York held a one-stroke advantage to start the opening round. His total of 141 after yesterday's first half play was one under Diegel's 142.

Diegel cut down the one stroke, and stepped out in front to lead by the same margin at the 54th hole of the match. At the 63rd Sarazen again was out in the lead, this time by two strokes. On the last nine holes Diegel made up the two but couldn't forge in front.

RANGERS SCORE HEAVILY TO BEAT THE QUAKERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Scoring four times in eight minutes of the second period in the biggest goal getting spree New York has seen in the current National Hockey league season, the Rangers trounced the Philadelphia Quakers tonight 5 to 2.

Except for brief intervals, the Quakers were outplayed in every department and after the halfway point of the second frame the Philadelphians did not have a chance.

Just 19 seconds after Sid Howe, young Philadelphia center, had evened the count at 1-1, Bun Cook and Frank Boucher broke through the weak Quaker defense to score. Gene Carrigan tallied in another two minutes and Murdoch and Bun Cook finished with a goal apiece. Paul Thompson scored the opening Ranger goal in the first period. Hib Milks tallied again for Philadelphia on a solo dash in the final frame.

RICHMOND RADIATOR CO. TO STOP MAKING BOILERS AT PLANT HERE

Rumors which have been in circulation for a week or more reached the realm of reality Saturday with official notice from President W. G. Langford of the Richmond Radiataor company, in New York, that the company's plant on Thames street is to be closed about the first of December. According to President Langford's official announcement, the manufacture of boilers at the Norwich plant is to cease, but the place will be kept as one of the warehouses of the company.

This information was conveyed to the employes when the following was posted late Saturday morning by Joseph W. Curtis, local manager:

ANNOUNCEMENT

It is with regret that we announce the closing of this plant on or about December 1st. We appreciate the goodwill of the community and the loyalty of our men who have been a valued part of our organization for these many years, but the existing conditions in our industry compel us to make our boilers in one of our other plants. We will continue this plant as a warehouse for New England territory.

Our boiler manufacturing will be carried on in Uniontown, Pa., where we have facilities to manufacture boilers as well as radiators and where by centralizing our manufacturing we will be able to effect lower costs on both radiators and boilers and obtain various other advantages and have a more central point for distribution.

A very kindly feeling for our men and for our other friends in Norwich will ever remain with us and we sincerely regret the necessity of the change.

RICHMOND RADIATOR COMPANY
By: W. G. Langford,
President.

In connection with the announcement, Manager Curtis said that he could not tell exactly when the closing would go into effect as the date had not definitely been determined and there was much machinery and equipment to be shipped from here to Uniontown, probably as much as 40 or 50 carloads. Mr. Curtis is to remain in Norwich but there are several from here who are to go to Uniontown, although it cannot be said yet who these are to be. The company has two factories in the Pennsylvania city, where all their manufacturing will be consolidated. Previously the Norwich factory has made the steam boilers and the Uniontown factories have had the manufacture of gas boilers, radiators, and enameled ware. The warehouses are in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark, N. J., Long Island City, N. Y., Norwich and Uniontown.

The closing order removes from the city's industrial life one of the concerns which for 63 years has been one of its most valued manufacturing plants, employing as many as 250 men at the peak of its business and disbursing several hundred thousand dollars in its payrolls annually. For the present year, however, there have been approximately 125 men employed.

The concern was organized Feb. 26, 1867, by Apollos Richmond, who purchased the property on Thames street along the Thames river. From time to time additions have been made until the present extensive property was built up with foundry and all the necessary equipment to carry on its extensive business. In the earlier times its product was the celebrated Richmond range, as well as boilers and steam heaters. In later years radiators were also made, but in more recent years its product has been confined to boilers.

A number of business changes in the concern have taken place through the years. In June, 1902, the Richmond company was incorporated and between 1904 and 1912 it did business as the Kellogg-Richmond company and McCrum-Howell company. In November, 1912, there was a reorganization under which the Richmond Radiator company was formed, which has been its title since that time.

MR. AND MRS. E. E. BROWN ARE DELAYED BY ILLNESS

Writing from Gainesville, Florida, under date of Nov. 20th, Everett E Brown, of Black Hill, Plainfield, has some rather disconcerting news to tell.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are motoring south and had planned to be well along their way by this date. A few days before reaching Gainesville, both Mr. and Mrs. Brown had sore throats. The second day in that university town, Mrs. Brown developed tonsilitis and laryngitis. Two doctors, one a specialist, with an extra good nurse have been attending her. For ten days she was obliged to remain in bed and for four days could not eat. They finish three weeks in Gainesville today (Monday) and are hoping to be able to go on, only one day's ride.

The unexpected illness is unfortunate, since Mr. and Mrs. Brown had planned so much during this trip and had been deriving such great pleasure from their visits to apple and other orchards, to plantations and to agricultural colleges. One of the orchards which they visited was the big one in the Shenandoah Valley owned by Governor Byrd, brother of Admiral Byrd, the explorer.

POSSIBLE FRACTURED SKULL WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Struck down by a machine operated by John Rosa of No. 123 Yorkshire street, Providence, at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning in the town of Plainfield, a 14 year old Voluntown young man, Raefael Roitomaa, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering from possible fractured skull, fractured ribs and fractured pelvis. An X-ray is to be taken to determine the exact extent of his injuries.

Details of the accident are lacking. It is understood that the young man was walking along the highway when hit. He was attended by Dr. Arthur A Chase of Plainfield and was then taken to the hospital in a private machine, arriving there at 3 o'clock, two and a half hours after the accident. There was no arrest, as far as could be learned.

TILSON SPENT $5,538 IN HIS ELECTION EXPENSES

A total of $5,538 was spent on behalf of Congressman John Q. Tilson in securing re-election in the third Connecticut district, according to a statement filed with the secretary of state, by Thomas A. Tully, the congressman's political agent. Collections in the congressman's behalf totaled $5,571.

Other statements filed included: Daniel J. Leary, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, $1,832; Edward N. Allen, republican candidate for senator in the first district, $298.

Congressman Tilson's principal expenses were: $1,500 a contribution to the New Haven republican town committee; $1,365, advertising; convention expense, $258; and canvassing, $20. The principal contributors to his campaign: F. H. Lee, $500; John G. Tilson, $500; A. Hewitt, $250; S. Z. Poli, $200; Lloyd K. Larson, $200; John Ulrich, $200; Joseph Koletsky, $200. There were 16 persons who gave $100 each toward his campaign fund.

TRYING TO GET BACK TAXES TO CONNECTICUT

A movement to recover taxes, said to total $2,518,411.14, and paid to the state of Connecticut by unincorporated mercantile and manufacturing businesses, has been started by A. F. Hall, manager of the Unincorporated Taxpayers' Protective association on the claim that taxes were collected illegally, as the law levying such a tax, chapter 293, public acts of 1921, was not signed until June 24, 1921, or 14 days after the constitutional limit, by the then Governor Everett J. Lake.

The association has issued a circular inviting proprietors of an unincorporated business to assign their individual claims to it so that a single action for the recovery of these taxes can be brought against the state.

SUGGESTS DEMOCRATS FOR APPOINTMENTS BY CROSS

John L. Purcell, twice chairman of the Hartford democratic town committee, is being advanced by friends there as a candidate for appointment by Governor Elect Cross to the post of assistant adjutant general, it is reported. The post pays $2,500 a year and is the best paying of the governor's staff places which Governor Elect Cross will have to fill. The adjutant general, whose salary is $6,000 a year, holds office during good behavior.

Hartford may also secure a major commissionship under the new regime, friends of Alderman Charles H. Miller of the seventh ward there having put him forward as a candidate for commissioner of labor and factory inspection.

General Edwin E. Lamb and Major Michael A. Owens of Hartford are also being mentioned as possible appointees of the staff of Governor Cross. Mayor Anthony Sunderland of Danbury, a first lieutenant in the national guard, and unsuccessful candidate for comptroller in the last election, also is viewed as a potential member of the new staff.

It is taken for granted in political circles that the present commissioner of labor and factory inspection, Harry E. Mackenzie of Bethel, will not be reappointed by Governor Cross, but Alderman Miller's name has not been advanced until very recently. There has been considerable suggestion of Joseph Tone of New Haven, secretary of the democratic state central committee, as a likely choice for the labor commissionership.

Colonel Purcell is a member of the democratic state central committee from the first district, and although he has been affiliated with the Spellacy wing of the party in Hartford, joined with the reorganization group last spring when the election of Archibald McNeil of Bridgeport as national committeeman signalized the first real weakening of old guard control of the state central committee. Colonel Purcell is a veteran of the old First Connecticut infantry and served on the Mexican border, during the World war at Camp Green and at Camp Wadsworth.

Alderman Miller was elected minority leader of the board of aldermen at the beginning of his first term a year ago, and this fall was elected to the state central committee from the third district, succeeding Senator Thomas J. Conroy.

Colonel Clarence Scarborough is now assistant adjutant general, having succeeded James L. Gilson last summer when Colonel Gilson resigned to accept appointment as acting postmaster at Hartford.

GIRLS IN CITY CLUB WILL START QUESTION BOX

There was a large attendance of members at the meeting of the Girls' City club under the auspices of the Woman's City club last Friday evening at their clubroom at No. 9 Washington street. A short business session was held, during which the girls discussed the matter of starting a question box. It was decided that the girls could submit a question of interest to them, unsigned, and the club director, Mrs. W. C. McKean, would answer it at the following meeting.

The girls also discussed some of the topics on which they would like to have speakers invited to their meetings and discuss for them during the year. Following the business session there was a social period, during which charades were played, the girls dividing into four groups. The sketch being rehearsed by the dramatic group at the Tuesday night meeting of the club is progressing nicely and will be presented before the club members soon. It was also decided that at the Tuesday night meetings, from now until Christmas, any member wanting to make Christmas gifts could bring her material to this meeting and receive help in the making of it from the club director.

BOY SCOUTS CUT TIMBER FOR BUILDING LEAN-TO

Almost two score Boy Scouts and Scout leaders spent Saturday on the new Boy Scout camp on the Quinebaug river clearing a road to the cabin which the men expect to start building this week, and cutting down trees for the building of a lean-to. Under the leadership of Scoutmasters Walter Weidman and Lloyd Rathbun and Reginauld Laubin, the Scouts first cut a road to the rear of the site for the proposed cabin, while a small group under the leadership of Eli Cramer cut the old road through to the river.

The password for attending the hike was an axe, scythe, cycle, or hoe, and with every Scout possessing a tool, the work of the day progressed in rapid fashion. About 12:30, the Scouts on observing a considerable fire on the opposite shore of the river decided to return to town and take the Jewett City road. They arrived, in time to prevent the fire from spreading to the underbrush in the grove of oaks on the opposite shore. Though the damage would have been negligible even if the fire had swept to the river. The Scouts had the thrill of fighting the fire and of protecting a small shore line which adds much to the beauty of the river at this point.

Returning to the camp, by 2 o'clock every Scout had cooked his dinner and was ready for fun. Scoutmaster Henry Sebastian led the Scouts in some games, following which they hiked along the river towards the tunnel plant. The Scouts returned by automobile at 5:30 p. m. Those present on the hike were: Scouts Robert Hoefner Allyn Bernard, Charles Peckham, Raymond Wheeler, Ralph Sinay and Bradford Spicer of Troop 1, Scouts R. Cliff and George Ring of Troop 5, Scouts R. Johnson, George Jones, Robert Haslett, Theopolis John, Frank Clark and Earl Johnson of Troop 7, Scout James Coughlin, James Conne, Frank Matri, John Sullivan, James Salvidor, John Salvidio, of Troop 6, Scout Neil Hoelk of Troop 8, Scouts Culver Floyd and Ed Manning of Troop 12, Kenneth Adams, L. Rathbun, Henry Sebastian, Walter Weidman, Reginauld Laubin, Eli Kramer and John L. Sellman.

According to the local Boy Scout headquarters the work of collecting the material for the cabin will start immediately. It is hoped that by the latter part of the week, actual construction work can begin. Surveyors will go out today or tomorrow to lay out the proposed field for tents and the exact location of the cabin in relation to this field.

According to the Scout executive, the fire on the opposite shore demonstrated the usefulness of having the boats brought to the new camp site and if possible the two large boats will be brought from Gardner lake this week. As soon as they are in condition an exploration trip up or down the river will be made by some of the older Scouts.

YEAR-ROUND THANKSGIVING REV. FR. DARGAN'S THEME

In his series of sermons on the ten commandments, Rev. James E. Dargan, of St. Patrick's church, had reached the third commandment Sunday, "Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day." Very aptly he made this text applicable to the Thanksgiving season, by emphasizing the worship and gratitude due to God, not alone on Thanksgiving day but on all days.

Graphically and very beautifully he sketched the circumstances leading up to and surrounding the first Thanksgiving of this nation. The little band of sturdy Pilgrims, actuated by the motive of finding a place where they could worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience, made themselves practical exiles, incurred the rigors of winter in a strange and distant land, the dangers of the wilderness, of wild beasts, risked everything, to secure freedom to worship Almighty God. Then when they had gathered in the first harvest at the end of their first season, their hearts naturally were elevated to God in a spirit of thanksgiving.

Such a spirit of gratitude appeals to all mankind. The preacher referred to the readiness and heartiness with which the Roman Catholic church always joins with the civic authorities in this annual custom of offering public worship and praise to God, as the year nears its end. He lauded the motives and sincerity of the old-fashioned Thanksgiving holiday in America—so worth while in its reunion of families, perhaps bringing back some negligent or erring child, the original devotional spirit which resulted in strengthening the national ideals of the value of religion, strengthening, too, the bonds of love between the individual and God and between members of the family.

The parable of the lepers, cleansed, cured, healed, yet only one of the ten taking the trouble to go back to give thanks to the Saviour, is typical of how much of ingratitude prevails in the world, the town, the parish, the family. But gratitude to Almighty God should be shown, not alone on one day in the year, but on all days. Thanksgiving day, Mother's day, the Catholic church observes them every day. The priest, who is the mediator between the people and their God, petitions every day in his offering of the holy sacrifice of the mass. "Let us give thanks to Almighty God in all things." and the duty of thanking God for blessings and favors is taught and stressed at all times.

The day was the 24th and last Sunday after Pentecost and Father Dargan read the gospel for the Sunday, Matthew 24:15-25, to a congregation crowding the church, at the third of the four masses of the day. The junior choir, directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, sang Jesus, Redeemer, Mother of Christ, What Shall I Ask of Thee? and their other hymns with great fervor. Rev. Father Dargan assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion to a great number of penitents, following confessions heard Saturday by the three priests of the parish.

DETROIT, Nov. 23— (AP) —Boston's Bruins and the Detroit Falcons battled through three periods and an over-time in their National league hockey contest here tonight and ended play with a 2-2 tie.

The game was nip and tuck throughout, although only nine penalties were called, none in the first period.

The Bruins made the Falcon defense look bad at the start of the game, Weiland scoring the lone first period goal for the Bruins, but in the second period the Falcons showed a fast skating offensive and a defense that the Boston team had trouble in beating.

Noble scored early in the second period for the Falcons, and Pratt put the Bruins ahead again late in the same period. Ebbie Goodfellow, Falcon center, tied up the game two all midway in the final period, when he teamed with Herbie Lewis in a triple pass that Thompson, Bruin goalie, couldn't beat. Neither team made any progress in the over-time period.

Blackhawks Beat Canadians

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 23—(AP)—Chicago's Blackhawks tonight defeated Les Canadiens of Montreal, 3 to 0. It was their first National Hockey league victory over the flying Frenchmen since December 1927.

The Hawks played the best hockey they had displayed on home ice, and it was good enough for a goal a period against the world champions.

Americans Win Tennis Match

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 23—(AP)—J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., and Alex Graven defeated Fred Perry and Eric Peters of England, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, in the doubles of the international tennis tournament here today.

HARVARD'S VICTORY AND WESTERN MARYLAND'S TIE ARE EAST'S UPSETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—On two leaders who did not take part in the traditional big games of the Saturday before Thanksgiving are pinned the few remaining hopes of the east for a team that can get through the season unbeaten and win the mythical sectional championship without dispute.

Yale's 13-0 defeat by Harvard yesterday in the leader of the day's big games, left Army and Dartmouth the only major college teams of the east which have not met defeat. The Cadets, using their second and third teams yesterday, beat Ursinus 18 to 0, in a "breather" game before next Saturday's clash with Notre Dame. Dartmouth was westward bound to meet Stanford.

A Harvard team which had been a constant disappointment to its followers all through the season, dropped Yale from a place among the sectional leaders. This traditionally important game led all the rest in a day of upsets. The Crimson completely outplayed its favored rival. Brilliant passing by Barry Wood with Art Huguley receiving brought both touchdowns, and an alert Crimson defense, led by Captain Ben Ticknor, kept Albie Booth and his mates from getting started.

Following the Yale-Harvard tradition and their own, Lafayette and Lehigh fought bitterly through their 64th game to an unexpected end. Held scoreless for three periods, Lafayette opened up in the fourth and, like Harvard, retrieved a poor season as Wilcox went across the goal twice in less than ten minutes to score a 16 to 6 triumph.

Western Maryland, the little college which had the only unbeaten and untied team in the east last week, was dropped from its pinnacle to a 7-7 tie with Albright. It was against Albright in 1928 that Western Maryland's string of 20 consecutive victories began.

New Hampshire provided one of the biggest surprises of the day by scoring a touchdown against Brown's substitutes in the first period and then holding the regulars even to win 7 to 0. It was the first time New Hampshire ever had beaten the Bruins.

Less disturbing to the followers of football form were the results of a group of important games that were decided by close scores. Navy triumphed over Maryland, 6 to 0, as Bullet Lou Kirn broke through the Old Liners on the second play of the game and sprinted 66 yards for a touchdown. Washington and Jefferson downed a traditional rival, West Virginia, by the slim margin of a goal after touchdown. The score was 7 to 6. Villanova's aerial game proved an important factor in beating Georgetown, 13 to 0, and Fordham's defense again functioned well as the Rams ended their season with a [illegible]-0 victory over Bucknell.

Carnegie Tech, although helping the unemployed by contributing a share of the receipts, did not extend charity to its opponent, Temple, and came from behind in a big second period to win 32-13. New York university displayed a new open game to defeat Rutgers, an old rival that has fallen into bad days, 33 to 0. Boston college had no trouble trouncing its neighbor, Boston university, 47 to 7, and Holy Cross had an equally easy task to defeat Loyola of Maryland, 32 to 0.

Drexel won the day's only intersectional game, beating Randolph Macon of Virginia, 26 to 2. Geneva captured the tri-state conference title by defeating Allegheny 27 to 13.

FIVE NAMED FOR 1931 RYDER GOLF CUP TEAM

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23—(AP)—Walter Hagen of Detroit, Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Cal., Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen of New York and Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., have been chosen for the Ryder cup team of American golf professionals who will play the British next year. Fourteen other stars will play 72 holes to qualify for the three remaining places.

George Sargent, veteran pro at the Scioto Country club here, scene of the international matches next June, made the announcement at the authority of A. R. Gates, head of the Professional Golfers association.

Golfers who will attempt to qualify for the last three places on the eight-man team will be Al Espinosa of Chicago, Ed Hilgendorf and Al Watrous of Detroit, Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, John Golden, Billy Burke, Joe Turnesa, Bill Klein and Whiffy Cox of New York; Olin Dutra of San Francisco, Henry Cuici of Bridgeport, Conn., Craig Wood of Newark, N. J., Frank Walsh of Wisconsin and Denny Shute of Columbus.

The selections were made by the directors of the P. G. A. at their Chicago meeting last week. Hagen will act as captain, as he led the successful invasion of England in 1928. He and the four others named were considered the only pros sufficiently outstanding to be chosen outright. The other 14 must attempt to qualify on the Monday and Tuesday preceding the Ryder cup matches which are to be held June 26 and 27.

In former years the eight team members and two alternates have been picked at one time by a committee of professionals. The new plan gives an advantage to Shute, the pro at Brookside Golf club here, who is thoroughly familiar with the Scioto layout and plays it particularly well.

FRISCO TEAM BEATS DEPAUL BY TWO FORWARD PASSES

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Completely outplayed on the ground, the University of San Francisco, with big Bob Kleckner doing the important work, passed to a 13 to 0 victory over DePaul on Soldier field today.

The Green Phantom could get nowhere against the strong DePaul land defense, but Kleckner fired a pass to Lindsey Warford to take the ball to the 15-yard line in the first period, and accomplished the remaining distance by throwing to Horgan over the goal line. The second score came on the most sensational play of the game. Kleckner shot another pass, a 20-yard heave, to Warford, who raced 35 more yards to count.

MACALUSO HAS LITTLE CHANCE OF BEING BEATEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—With many of the leaders idle yesterday, no changes were registered at or near the top of the eastern individual football scoring list last week. Jack Grossman of Rutgers and Jim Murphy of Fordham were the only ones of the first half dozen scorers to get into action and one touchdown by Murphy was the only score. It enabled him to take sole possession of sixth place.

Grossman remained in a tie for second place with Ken Goff of Rhode Island at 96 points, far behind the leader, Leonard Macaluso of Colgate, who has run up 135. Bart Viviano of Cornell remained in fourth place with 84 points, followed by Dubinsky of C. C. N. Y., with 79, and Murphy with 78.

Macaluso's big point total comes from 18 touchdowns, 24 points after touchdown and one field goal, giving him the lead in the first two respects. Grossman and Goff each have 16 touchdowns to their credit.

GIANTS TAKE LEAD IN LEAGUE BY DOWNING PACKERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The New York Giants took the leadership in the National Football league today, defeating the Green Bay Packers 13 to 6 before a crowd of 45,000 at the Polo grounds. Each team has lost two games but the Giants have won two more.

Chris Cagle, former Army star, made his professional debut but failed to get away for any long runs. He was injured in the first period but came back mid-way in the third session and finished the game.

The Giants counted first in the second quarter, Badgro taking the ball over on a long pass from Friedman. Moran got away for an 84-yard dash early in the third period, carrying the ball to the one-yard line from where Friedman plunged over, after the Packers had held for three downs, for the second touchdown.

Although set back frequently by penalties, the Packers scored late in the third quarter, Lewellen circling end for the last five yards after two passes had carried the champions from mid-field.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Ernie Nevers and the Chicago Cardinals defeated the Memphis Tigers, a non-league eleven, 20 to 7, today, in a professional football game.

As usual, Nevers was the works for the Cards. The former Stanford ace plunged and passed into position for the first two touchdowns and scored the last one himself, along with kicking a pair of extra points. Cobb Rooney plunged for the first Card score, Nevers passed to Boyd for the second, and plunged for the last one. Tony Holm and Moore hammered their way to the Card one-yard line with two minutes to play and Bemis sneaked over for the Tiger touchdown.

NEW GOLF BALL LACKS CARRYING POWER OF OLD

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Professional and amateur golfers competing in the Oregon open golf tournament here, have demonstrated the new larger and lighter ball does not have the carrying power of the old sphere.

Each golfer drove three old and three new balls. Gene Sarazen, professional, made the longest drive with the old ball, 255 yards. Sarazen, Eddie Hogan, Portland amateur, and Harold McFadden, Kansas City professional, tied for first place with the new ball at 242 yards.

EVASTON, Ill., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern cracked under the strain of watching his team battle Notre Dame yesterday and last night was sent to bed by his physician with orders to remain there for three or four days.

The game itself was only the terminal cause, for Hanley had fought off tonsilitis and lagrippe all last week so that he might direct his eleven against the Rough Riders from South Bend.

Seventh Straight For L. H. A. C.

In one of the fastest and roughest games this year the L. H. A. C. triumphed over the Trojans 6 to 0, Sunday afternoon.

The Trojans, who considered themselves far superior to L. H. A. C., proved to be just another football team. The L. H. A. C. scored early in the first half, playing superb football. The first half saw Bill Brush, star halfback, and Artie McMullen, fast guard, taken out from injuries received due to unnecessary roughing. Al Koziol, halfback, was instrumental in the L. H. A. C.'s victory as he made a brilliant 30 yard run.

L. H. A. C. completed three forward passes incidentally their first of the year. Wonderful teamwork, the wonderful tackling of Lizzo and a strong line stopped the Trojans in their tracks.

This is the seventh straight, no ties, none lost with the scoring 93 for L. H. A. C. and 18 for opposition. The line-up: J. Weise c, A. McMullen, E. Wiese, rg, R. Lizzio, rt, B. Marshall J. Perry re, H. Ennis, lg, Pinky Fowler lt, A. Ross le, Geo. Geoppfert, qb, Erwn Burdick fb, Brush, Koziol, lhb, E. Taber, rhb.

BOXING

The Academy closed the football season with a 6 to 0 defeat suffered at the hands of their ancient rival, Bulkeley. However, this was not unexpected for the Academy has shown poorer football this year than in many years past. The season's record is far from impressive, two wins and six defeats and 122 points scored against them to 25 scored by them. Nothing to brag about there. And now what's the reason?

Here is a school which 500 and some boys attend, the largest east of the Connecticut river, yet they cannot produce a football team that can trim school teams having a quarter of the number of boys attending. It would seem that there should be enough material in an institution of this size to get a football team that could at least beat a class B team from a school which has a total enrollment of around 150, boys and girls. Has the old school lost its spirit and have the boys taken up sports that can be played in parlors or on street corners? The Academy has produced some mighty fine baseball teams but football has been a decided flop.

Of course the answer will be that the Academy devotes its attention to learning rather than to developing football teams. That's a mighty fine ideal but it will be noticed that colleges and high schools everywhere else try to put a winning team on the field. They take some pride in their athletic as well as their scholastic standing.

Saturday's football games did little to establish an outstanding team in the east. The Yale-Harvard classic topped the list but even at that it was just one more football game. Harvard with a notably weak team rose to unexpected heights to trounce a one-man team that represents Yale. Yale had only one threat—Albie Booth—and he was completely smothered. Which goes to show that a one-star team is easier to beat than a well balanced team which has no real outstanding figure. With the one-star team the opposition can play two and three men against the star and forget about the rest of the team. But with a well balanced team it's a man-to-man proposition. This is shown by that super team, Notre Dame. Here no player exceeds another in brilliance. They are all good.

One of the secrets of Rockne's success is his ability to build plays to fit his team rather than try to drill the team in plays for which they are not suited. How many times do you see a coach drill a slow lumbering backfield in plays that require speed? Then again you will see teams that are noticeably light and fast trying the smashing line plays against teams that out-weigh them. But such is the game of football.

TAYLOR-LABARBA BOUT IS HEADLINER FOR THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Once more Madison Square Garden steps in to offer what looks like the best match on the current week's fistic schedule.

The garden's regular Friday night show will be headed by a ten rounder between Bud Taylor, Terre Haute puncher, and Fidel LaBarba, former flyweight champion and recent conqueror of Kid Chocolate. LaBarba should be installed a favorite but may not be, in view of the number of overwhelming favorites who have been beaten here recently—Chocolate, Al Singer and Jimmy McLarnin, to mention a few.

At the Chicago Coliseum Friday night, Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, takes on another heavyweight, K. O. Christner of Akron, O., in a ten rounder. Tomorrow night's show at the Philadelphia arena brings together two Quaker City stars, Benny Bass and Lew Massey, in the main go.

Other bouts on the national schedule:

Monday — At Philadelphia, Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, vs. Ralph Lenny, Union City, N. J., lightweights, 10. At Boston, Al Friedman, Boston, vs. Jack Gagnon, Boston, heavyweights, 10.

Tuesday—At St. Louis, Al Stillman, St. Louis vs. Joe Lohman, Toledo, O., light lightweights, 10. At Indianapolis, John Schwake, St. Louis, vs. Bud Doran, Chicago, heavyweights, 10. At Los Angeles, Cecil Payne, Ocean Park, Calif., vs. Eddie Mack Denver, lightweights, 10.

Friday—At New York, Madison Square Garden, Joe Scalfaro, New York, vs. Jimmy Slavin, New York, featherweights, 10.

MEXICO BEATS U. S. ARMY TEAM IN POLO GAME

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Mexico defeated the Eight Corps area polo team of the United States army, 6 to 2, today to win the series here with two straight victories. The Mexican team, composed of both army and civilian players, had won the first game Friday. The Mexicans again excelled in teamwork and their horses again were superior to the American mounts, which were troubled by the altitude in both games. The third game of the series will be played Tuesday as an exhibition.

GUS MOORE WINS HIS SECOND CROSS-COUNTRY TITLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.— (AP)— Gus Moore of the Brooklyn Harriers successfully defended his Metropolitan A. A. U. cross-country championship today, covering the six-mile grind in 33 minutes, three seconds to win by 130 yards from George H. Barker of New York university, but competing unattached. The Millrose A. A.'s team "A" won the team title with 44 points. The New York A. C. was second with 51 and the Finnish-American A. C. third with 65.

SHYMA SPORT FLASHES

Volleyball.

Titi Peltier and his Harvard team, although weak itself, should be able to win a game from Tommy Donohue's tail-enders.

Manager Tato of the Columbia team made an important announcement on Thursday evening. He stated that owing to the strong opposition they are meeting in Notre Dame, he will positively appear in the lineup himself to strengthen the back court.

The Yale team should be stronger Monday night. Zike, the lightweight janitor, has put in many stiff practice sessions during the week, and should be in top form for the Army game.

Yale vs. Army.
Notre Dame vs. Columbia.
Harvard vs. Princeton.

First game to start at 7 p. m. sharp!

NOTRE DAME NEEDS TWO MORE WINS TO GRAB NATIONAL FOOTBALL TITLE

By HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)— That mythical national football championship situation, more and more a nightmare for the experts in recent years, had resolved itself today into a duel between Notre Dame, on the one hand, and the rest of the field on the other.

If Rockne's Rough Riders can hurdle their two remaining obstacles, Army and Southern California, there will be little or no dispute over the award of the mythical title, for no other college eleven in the country has played so representative and difficult a schedule. If either Army or Southern California can stop Rockne's men then the title will have to go begging with one expert's nomination as good as another's.

Notre Dame has won most of its games this year by getting the jump on the opposition, but it took a last period assault for the Rough Riders to knock over Northwestern yesterday, 14-0. The Wildcats, co-holders with Michigan of the Big Ten championship, entered the battle unbeaten and untied and were not minded to surrender without a struggle. For three periods—or a major part of them—Notre Dame was on the defensive, Northwestern losing two excellent chances to score through costly fumbles within the Irishmen's ten-yard line. In the fourth period, Northwestern's defense crumbled and Marchmont Schwartz raced 29 yards to one touchdown and put the other in a position to score with a pass to Conley that took the ball to the one-yard line. Dan Hanley crashed through for the second score.

In the excitement over this fray, other mid-west classics suffered some neglect. Only 45,000 persons, smallest of the season, saw Michigan down Chicago, 16-0, to end the Big Ten race in a tie with Northwestern. Indiana's Hoosiers, distinct underdogs, flashed a fourth period offensive that turned back Purdue, 7-6, while Wesley Fesler closed a brilliant college football career by leading Ohio State to a 12-9 triumph over Illinois, Wisconsin vanquished Minnesota, 14-0, but the big kick of the game came when some one fired a pistol toward the close of the final period and both teams ran off the field, thinking the battle was over. After a 15-minute delay, Wisconsin's team came back to the field but Minnesota failed to show up and officials declared the game over. Iowa checked in with a 12-7 victory over Nebraska to add to Big Ten prestige.

In the east, Harvard's well-earned victory over Yale, 13-0, with 78,000 persons looking on, furnished the high spot of the day. The Crimson outplayed the Elis all the way and flashed a great passing combination, Barry Wood and Art Huguley, which gave Harvard its touchdowns in the first and third periods. Lou Kirn's 65-yard off tackle dash gave Navy a 6-0 triumph at Maryland's expense, and Army, taking a "breather," brushed aside Ursinus, 18-0, with second and third string players doing the work.

The biggest upset of the day saw New Hampshire's fighting Wildcats break through for a touchdown in the first period and then hold off all of Brown's scoring threats to win, 7-0. Western Maryland, after 20 straight victories, was held to a 7-7 tie by Albright.

Kansas assured itself of no worse than a tie in the Big Six conference race by whipping Missouri, 31-0, in the only conference game of the day. Iowa State and Oklahoma lost to rivals from the Missouri Valley conference, Drake and the Oklahoma Aggies, respectively. Bob McMillan's Kansas Aggies turned back Centre college, where McMillan made his football name, 27-0.

In the southwest conference, Texas Christian was dethroned as titleholder when Baylor ripped through for a 35-14 verdict. Christian's defeat left Texas university with an excellent chance to win the championship by defeating Texas A. and M. on Thanksgiving day. Southern Methodist easily whipped Rice, 31-0.

Eighty thousand saw Stanford's Cardinals flash an unbeatable offensive in the second half to trounce California, 41-0, the most decisive victory in the 38-year history of this rivalry. Held to one touchdown in the first half, Stanford crashed through for five touchdowns and a safety in the final half with Harlow Rothert accounting for three of the scores. This game had no effect on the Pacific coast conference title, which already has been won by Washington State.

Vanderbilt beat Auburn, 27-0, and South Carolina conquered North Carolina State, 19-0, in the only games in the southern conference, but Wake Forest surprised by holding Duke to a 13-13 tie while Southwestern of Tennessee was engineering another upset by trouncing Sewanee, 26-6.

In the only outstanding game in the Rock Mountain conference, the Colorado Aggies and Colorado college batted to a scoreless tie.

ONLY THREE TEAMS IN EAST REMAIN UNBEATEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The east could boast not one college football team neither beaten nor tied today. The last to surrender was Western Maryland which could get no better than a tie with Albright yesterday and was a bit lucky not to meet defeat.

With Western Maryland's fall, the Army went into the eastern lead with eight victories and one tie so far, but with Notre Dame just ahead. Dartmouth and Western Maryland were in a deadlock for runner-up position with seven victories and a tie. All other eastern teams have suffered at least one defeat.

In total points, Colgate, although idle, easily retained its lead with 349 points. Dartmouth was second with 294 and Cornell third with 260. Defensively Western Maryland led the list with 14 points against and the Army was just behind with 15. On the other side of the picture was Bethany, which has accepted eight straight defeats and allowed the opposition 351 points.

Saturday night Barney Gunshinan, professional at the Willimantic Country club, paired with Dow Ahern, champion of the Willimantic club, won the first indoor pro-amateur match held in the city from Massie B. Miller, local professional, and Edward G. McKay, 6 up, at the Castle Garden indoor golf course. Gunshinan was low scorer with a 45. Ahern had a 49, McKay 51 and Miller 54. A crowd of several hundred saw the match. Gunshinan scored a hole-in-one on the 13th.

Following the match Miller gave a very entertaining exhibition of driving using both right and left-handed clubs. In a two-some later in the evening Mr. McKay hung up a new course record, shooting a 43, one over par for the course.

CITIZENS OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON ON DEC. 4TH

According to an announcement Sunday evening by Manager George Bizinsky, the Polish Citizens basketball team will open its season on Thursday evening, Dec. 4, at Pulaski hall, opposing the Ockfords of New London. Interest this week centers about the two clashes that the Reds will have with the also undefeated Springfield Indians.

The league standing, including games of November 22, follows:

Club	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Providence	3	0	1	7
Springfield	2	0	0	4
Boston	2	2	0	4
Philadelphia	1	3	0	2
New Haven	0	3	1	1

STAPLETON WINS HARD GAME FROM BROOKLYN

Held scoreless for three periods, Stapleton finally crashed through to a touchdown in the closing minutes, Doug Wycoff going through the line for the score. A 25 yard forward pass from Wycoff to Ken Strong had put the ball in scoring position.

Basketball Notes.

Eccleston, the star server for the big blue aggregation was the official overseer at the Shyma-Oxford game Tuesday and did a No. 1 job of it.

Manager Sullivan at an interview with the Sport Flash reporter stated that there will be a slight change in the lineup on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Girls' Basketball.

The Shyma-Girls' basketball league should open about Christmas. The girls under the able coaching of Emile Raymond, practiced Thursday evening and showed much improvement.

The Powder Puffs wore their new uniforms of blue and orange and looked very flashy in them. The rest of the teams are expected to wear their new uniforms soon.

Pocket Billiards.

The Recreation Juniors will play the fast Jewett City All Stars Monday evening at the Recreation parlors. The Jewett City All Stars claim that they have a better class of cue artists than the Lucky Strike boys have. The Recreation Juniors are confident that they will take over the All Stars as they have taken the Lucky Strike Five of Jewett City.

NEW HAVEN WINS FIRST GAME IN CAN.-AM. PLAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23—(AP)—New Haven rung up the first victory of the season in a fast game here tonight, leaving the Philadelphia Owls on the short end of a 2 to 0 score.

The playing of Burmeister featured the match. He scored both counters, and played a sensational game throughout. Philadelphia's attack likewise faced a stone wall in the playing of Forbes at guard.

Cleman Wins Walking Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Henry Cleman of Toronto, American national walking champion at 50,000 meters, today won the National A. A. U. seven mile title in 53 minutes, 10 2-5 minutes.

Cleman overhauled the defending champion, William Carlson of Larchmont, in the last mile and won by 200 yards. Carlson was second in 53:51 and Max Beutel, New York, third in 55:23 3-5.

Mack Weiss of Los Angeles, 1929 metropolitan and national 50,000 meter champion, was forced to drop out at the end of the fourth mile.

Heavy Passenger Traffic.

Without a mishap ten special trains on the New Haven railroad, besides the regular expresses, passed through Westerly en route to and from the Harvard-Yale football game in New Haven on Saturday. At the Westerly station preparations were made by having extra trainmen on duty in preparedness for any mishap which would delay the train schedules. Extra and spare locomotives, which were distributed at various available points to the number of three returned coupled together to New Haven Sunday morning. Spare material such as extra steam pipe, coupling hose and air brake hose, new bearing metal, oil, etc., stored at Westerly for emergency use was also returned to the company storehouse on Sunday. There did not appear to be as many train commuters from Westerly to the New Haven game as in many former years.

Manu automobilists bound to and from the football game in New Haven passed through Westerly on Saturday and Sunday to take the Boston Post road or federal route No. 1. The weather was of much more favorable nature than at many previous and similar occasions and there were no auto mishaps of greater or less seriousness reported by police authorities. Many motorists, who did not pass through Westerly from various parts of Massachusetts and other northern New England states were reported to have parked their autos in Providence and then proceeded by train to avoid road congestion.

On Saturday afternoon and Saturday night a New Haven railroad police officer was kept very busy in warning autoists, not New Haven railroad patrons, that the Westerly station grounds were not public auto parking grounds.

On Sunday morning at the Calvary Baptist church was read the resignation of its pastor, Rev. Lewis A. Walker, who has been in ill health for some time and at the present time is in the Westerly hospital under observation.

Rev. and Mrs. Shepler arrived in town Saturday and were met by members of the committee of the church. He preached at the service of the church Sunday morning and it was at that time that he announced his acceptance of the call. Rev. and Mrs. Shepler are expected to leave town Sunday, but they will spend some time in the vicinity of Westerly, as they will visit with relatives in Mystic.

YOUTH ESCAPES FROM CELL IN WESTERLY POLICE HEADQUARTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 23.—Joseph Alfred Bourbeau, 20, of several addresses, proved himself a veritable "Houdini" to Westerly police authorities on Sunday morning when he departed his cell in the Westerly police station without the formality of "signing off."

Joseph and his brother, Joseph Abelon, 19, were apprehended on Saturday by Rhode Island state troopers of the Wickford, R. I. state police barracks when they were arrested at the Hartley farm, so-called, at their retreat in the barn, where they had made their headquarters in the rafters for several weeks.

They have been definitely connected with Connecticut and Rhode Island breaks in North Stonington, Richmond, Exeter and West Greenwich R. I. They specialized in unoccupied summer homes and hesitated not in moving out furniture and even stoves which they disposed of at "private sale."

Before being taken to the Westerly police station to pass Saturday night they were grilled at the Hope Valley barracks and are reported to have admitted their complicity in several breaks. On Sunday, at 11 a. m., in the Westerly police station cell-room, they were visited by Westerly Police Officer George L. Madison, who was on duty in Dixon square. In an adjoining cell to the young men, peacefully sleeping at the time, was the suspect in the Burdick murder case, exhausted after a grilling at the Hope Valley barracks.

With the departure of Officer Madison from the cellroom, Joseph Alfred apparently lost no time in proceeding to get busy. Upon the top of the metal cells, the busy fingers of the industrious youth found a thick stick and this he fished down into the cell. Using this as a lever he broke off an iron bar in the cell-door, bent the broken end outward and upward and an opening eight by twelve inches resulted, through which he squirmed to freedom.

Then he gave attention to the cell-door behind which his brother was locked. At twenty minutes of twelve Officer Frank E. Knight, coming into the patrolmen's room, adjoining the cell-room, was heard by the youth and he then gave up work on the door of his brother's cell. In the cell-room was a wire coat-hanger and this was twisted and pushed through the cracks in the double doors leading to the outer hallway and the lock-bolt was forced, the door opened and the outer hall gained. At this juncture, Police Officer Knight glanced into the hallway from the patrolman's room and the youth loomed up before him.

With a leap and a bound, the outer door of the station was opened and he jumped from the stairway wall and dashed away in a successful getaway to freedom.

Patrolman Knight got in touch with Police Officer Robert Kessell and the town was fruitlessly combed after the state police at the Groton and Hope Valley barracks were notified. The young man wore a cap but left a dirty blue sweater in the cell. He was described as being five feet seven inches tall, weight 140 pounds, brown hair, fair complexion with prominent teeth.

The youths were reported to have broken into one place at least three times in Arctic, R. I., together with three other places in the village. At one time they lived in a log cabin in Exeter, R. I. and another time resided in Wickford, Pawtucket and Woonsocket. At Centerville, R. I., on Sunday, George St. George was picked up by state police officers and has been connected with the two brothers in the Arctic breaks. They were all to have been arraigned Monday morning in fourth district court at Wickford, R. I.

NEW LONDON TAXPAYERS AWAIT BUDGET HEARING TUESDAY EVE.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 23—It is anticipated that there will be a large attendance at the hearing on the tentative budget for city expenses during the ensuing year when it is held Tuesday evening. The budget is expected to represent a much smaller amount than did the budget of 1929-30 because there were sums appropriated in that budget that will not be required in the budget now under consideration. The expense necessary for the city's share of the cost of the new county home will not be asked for this year, nor will trucks be bought which it was anticipated would be needed. Autos for the police department which were bought last year will not be needed this year [illegible] the budget will be some [illegible] less than a year ago. But the city council has voted unanimously that the expense of the city would be [illegible] less in the current year than it was in the year just passed and there is much anticipation where the reductions are to be made that will cut the budget as promised. Salaries were raised during the latter part of the past year, and rumor has it that the Taxpayers' league will ask that these increases be abolished and the salaries [illegible] back to the amounts that were paid prior to the increases. The management of the public library of New London will insist that the city shall be more generous in providing for that institution than it has been intended to be, and the restoration of an appropriation for the prevention of diseases will be asked for. The leaders in the city council will, it is said, point out that the library was for many years conducted without cost to the city and there appears no good reason why it should not be so managed the ensuing year. The trustees of the library acquired real estate that has been a burden to the library since it was bought, because it was not needed, in the opinion of the leaders in the council. The Spaulding house on State street, next east of the library, has not been made use of since it was bought by the library association, and the city is asked to provide for the interest on the amount paid for it. That proposed appropriation will be the bone of contention, it is believed, so that hearing will be interesting from more than one angle and the attendance of interested parties is expected to be large. The opinion is that the interests alluded to will be represented by attorneys while the members of the city council will look after the affairs of the city.

SALEM DRIVER HELD FOR THREE VIOLATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 23—Arthur Day of Salem, driver of an automobile, will have much explaining to do in the Salem justice court Monday for he was arrested this evening by state police on three charges, driving without a license, driving without markers and driving a motor vehicle that is not registered. Day was brought to New London and in default of a surety on his bond was locked up at police headquarters.

Asked For Bed, Got Cell

Andrew Pedro, who has a police record, went to police headquarters this evening and was intoxicated. He sought lodging and instead of being assigned to a berth in the tramp room, was given a wooden bank in a cell. Pedro will be in the police court tomorrow.

Mrs. Patrick Murphy, wife of Police Sergeant Murphy, is seriously ill at her home, on Ledyard street. Mrs. Murphy has been in poor health for some time and recently her heart has become affected, with the result that she is in an extremely weakened condition causing her family and relatives much alarm.

The big addition to the Savings Bank of New London, work upon which was started several weeks ago, is rapidly nearing completion, so that it is anticipated the structure will be occupied within another fortnight. The work has so far advanced that the building is now practically ready to receive the elaborate furnishings that it is planned to be installed and this work will be started without delay. The addition will provide added facilities for the conduct of the increasing business of the bank and the property [illegible] entirely occupied by the main building and the addition.

Dr. Woodruff Gaining

The condition of Dr. Thomas A. Woodruff, 41 Mott avenue, Neptune [illegible], who has been a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital for three weeks, is improving gradually and it is believed that he will be able to return home within a short time.

Niagara Engine company will have [illegible] Thanksgiving eve banquet. A committee is arranging for after dinner exercises and a turkey feast [illegible]. Members of the city council [illegible] with officers of the fire department will be guests of the company.

WHEN A HOUSE WAS MOVED, TENANTS UNDISTURBED

New London residents who were in [illegible] this week are aware that the [illegible] and town still permits buildings to be moved through the streets from one location to another. [illegible] Perry house is being hauled [illegible] the principal streets to a site [illegible] street. The house is a large [illegible] of 15 rooms and is 60 [illegible] lots.

[illegible] a time when New London permitted the same procedure, the [illegible] going through the business [illegible] of the city. The Brandegee residence which now occupies a site on [illegible] and Fremont streets, was removed from the site of the Crocker house on State street by the late Isaac Burch. The building is a very large one and occupied half the site of the present Crocker house. A building, corner of State and Union streets, was moved in the same way—with a snatch block and cable. There was one instance of house removal in New London that was unique. When the Thames river bridge was constructed the New Haven road wanted a passageway that would be clear from the Crystal avenue bridge to the river. A small house owned by the late Sebastian Lawrence, donor of Lawrence hospital to the city, rested nicely on a foundation on Winthrop street, just east of the Crystal avenue bridge. It was in the direct path wanted by the railroad company for its tracks. Mr. Lawrence was offered a price for the building, and a good price too, but he would not sell it. The house was occupied by a family. The railroad and its attorney concluded that there was a way of getting what was wanted, so set about accomplishing its purpose. At midnight the Lawrence house was lifted from its foundation and in the morning, with tenants still occupying it, the building was removed from the path of the railroad. Mr. Lawrence was mad, but he was also powerless. He could then sell his house at the price offered, and he did just that. But the railroad company secured the right of way it wanted without recourse to the method of right of eminent domain.

Mr. Burch moved more buildings probably than any man in the state. Such work for years was his principal business, and he did a lot of it.

WM. GANDY, WANTED HERE, ARRESTED IN GEORGIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 23.— William Gandy, former member of the U. S. coast guard and long sought by the New London police for theft and conversion, is under arrest in Georgia. He will not be returned here for trial, as Gandy was arrested in the southern state for the same offense committed in New London, so that he is to be tried in the federal court in the south. Gandy was arrested recently following his stealing an automobile and driving from one state to another, finally winding up in Georgia. The department of justice is making a check-up on Gandy's career and Saturday an agent was in New London to obtain facts relating to Gandy's operations in this city. Gandy was employed as cashier at Fern's restaurant, State street, and on May 18 last, he vanished, taking with him $20 of the funds of his employer. He kept in hiding a few days and obtaining a counter check of the issue of the National Bank of Commerce, Gandy negotiated it with George Young, proprietor of the New London parking station. The check was made out for $235 and was tendered Young as part payment for a Graham Paige sedan. Gandy drove away in the automobile and a few days later the check was returned from the bank with the information that Gandy did not have an account there. Complaint was made to the police and Gandy was traced to Staten Island, where he had sold the machine to a municipal fireman. The auto was recovered and returned to New London, but from that time all trace of Gandy was lost until he was arrested in Georgia this month.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY BIDS ARE TO BE OPENED DEC. 19

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 23.—The date of the opening of bids for the construction of the new U. S. Coast Guard academy, Mohegan avenue, has been postponed from Dec. 5 to Dec. 19. The postponement was the result of several of the bidding contractors making a request for deferment of filing bids, inasmuch as the plans and specifications recently supplied the builders were of such volume that more time was needed in order to thoroughly study them and reach a compilation of figures and estimates. The bids will be filed on the new date and it is expected that work on the project will be started in the spring or early summer. The buildings will be erected at a cost of $2,500,000 and of this amount $850,000 is now available.

The mild weather that prevailed throughout today moved a large crowd to visit Ocean Beach. During the entire afternoon crowds that went to the shore either by automobile or trolley car enjoyed exercise by parading on the boardwalk.

Whitefish have started biting and as a result fishermen go to the municipal pier nightly. Many catches have been made there during the past week.

Fleet Of Cars From Game

With a continued line of automobiles passing through New London today after its occupants had witnessed the annual gridiron battle between Yale and Harvard at New Haven Saturday, state police continued to patrol the Boston Post road throughout the day. Although thousands of automobiles passed over the highway, not a single accident of seriousness was reported.

The revocation of the auctioneer's license of Joseph Gordon, Providence auctioneer, who is disposing of the jewelry stock of Sol Ockooneff, who is retiring from business, is not going to stop the sale. The act of Superintendent of State Police Hurley in ordering Gordon's license delivered to his office, which order was carried out Saturday by State Police Officer Eric Swanson and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey of the New London department, only temporarily interrupted the disposal of the stock.

THE SERENADE MECHANISTIC
NOW the troubadour had a great advantage over the Robot, for the Robot can't be gay any more than he can be sad or sentimental.

RECENTLY a master of inventors took a load off the minds of most of us with the assurance that "no one will ever invent a mechanical man who can think."

He might have added that no Robot will ever feel, either. And where there is no feeling, no emotional capacity, there can be no music.

Millions, realizing this truth, have joined the Music Defense League in protest against substitution of Canned Music for Living Music in theatres. If you feel the same way you can serve your own, as well as the public's, interest by signing the coupon at the right.

WOMEN TO 'RUN' CALIF. PRISON TO TEST CORRECTIVE PENOLOGY

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(AP)—An Alpine village, 4,000 feet high in the Tehachapi mountains, soon will materialize feminine ideas of how a prison for women should be designed and run.

There will be no "grim, grey walls," no watchtowers, no heavy barred windows, cell blocks or armed guards.

The superintendent and all other employes, so far as practicable, will be women—yet it will house at the outset 120 inmates now confined in San Quentin penitentiary and ultimately will have accommodations for a maximum of 500.

The new experiment in penology starts out with the idea in mind that the best penitentiary for women is the one which looks the least like one, and which has a "corrective" rather than a punitive atmosphere.

Under plans formulated by a special prison commission appointed by Gov. C. C. Young, the physical characteristics of the institution will be that of a summer resort. Its official name will be "California Institute for Women."

While there will be a unit for detaining inmates whose behavior is not considered good, the majority of women sent there will be housed in cottages, each of which will have its own dining room and kitchen.

Bedrooms are to be escape-proof through use of a special steel sash window in which angle cross grills of sturdy but ornate construction substitute for the usual heavy bars.

Completed, the mountain village will be a group of architecturally attractive structures on a site of 1,682 acres surrounding a pretentious administration building.

PARIS SEES COTTON NEXT YEAR'S FABRIC

PARIS, Nov. 23—(AP)—It appears that last summer's flare for cotton dresses was a mere foretaste of what's coming.

Nearly all fashion experts here agreed that cotton is going to rule the fabric output for next spring and summer.

Wool tweeds will be imitated in cotton; prints, heretofore edited in silk, will be put forth in cotton and linen.

There will be printed organdies, pique and voiles, fabric makers say.

All kinds of eyelet and embroidered cotton materials are on the increase. Paris used a few late last summer for garden party dresses, but there are many more to come.

Pique offered for next spring is apt to be fine in texture rather than course ribbed as it was used last spring.

Paris also prophesies that fancy weave linens will be launched here by the haute couture in spring collections.

Lisle Hose Favored

PARIS, Nov. 23—(AP)—Stockings of lisle fancy weave are smart wear for the country and golf course. They have the sanction of one of the most exclusive women makers of sport styles.

NORTH CAROLINA HAS FIRST WOMAN IN STATE SENATE

SYLVA, N. C., Nov. 23—(AP)—A woman can be a politician and still be a good mother, contends Mrs. E. L. McKee, first woman state senator ever elected in North Carolina.

Unopposed for the democratic nomination, Mrs. McKee was elected over her republican opponent with little difficulty. She will sit in the next general assembly, victorious in politics after years of service in public life.

Mrs. McKee has been a leader of North Carolina women since girlhood and has served on various state commissions by appointments made by several governors.

She now is president of the Southeastern council of Women's clubs, a trustee of Peace Institute, Raleigh; and president of the state United Daughters of the Confederacy organization. She has held many other important offices in women's and civic activities.

It's a Woman's WORLD

FRAU SOPHIE THOMAS

After a year's apprenticeship Frau Sophie Thomas of Berlin has become the first and thus far Germany's only woman to receive a license permitting her to act as "helmsman" on dirigibles.

She was allowed to take examinations of the German ministry of transportation after she had studied the building of a blimp, had been a member of its landing crew and had taken part in 10 flights.

"This is only the first step in my program," she said. "I am out for a captain's certificate enabling me to run a dirigible on my own responsibility."

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To keep books on shelves or in cases in good condition, sprinkle them occasionally with powdered camphor.

If the ticking of the bedroom clock is annoying, cover it with a glass bowl of some kind. It can be seen without being heard.

To prevent a gas stove from rusting, rub the entire inside with a flannel cloth which has been saturated with sweet oil.

When placing a dish directly on the ice, place a fruit jar rubber under the dish. The rubber will stick to both the ice and the dish and prevent slipping.

When frying ham or bacon always place it in the pan before putting the pan on the fire. It cooks and browns quicker and better than if put in warm.

To avoid book mold, which often occurs during damp weather, scatter a few drops of oil of lavender in the bookcases, or wipe over the shelves with oil of cedar.

A lemon meringue pie probably is the most difficult to serve neatly, but if the knife is dipped in cold water before cutting, the meringue will not stick and pull away from the slice.

To remove grease spots from wall paper, mix pipe clay and water to the consistency of cream, apply it to the grease spots, and allow it to remain for 24 hours.

To prevent the disagreeable odor when cooking cauliflower, after preparing it for boiling in the usual manner, place a piece of stale bread on top of it. Don't cover it. When cooked remove the bread.

Boiled linseed oil applied to the kitchen floor several times a year will give a finish that is easily cleaned. It may also be painted over the draining board of the sink; this does away with hard scrubbing.

To remove the feathers from wild ducks dip them in boiling water, then wrap in a thick cloth. The feathers are steamed loose in a very few minutes and the "pins" will give little or no trouble.

JELLY EXCELLENT ON ALL CEREALS

While fresh fruits and berries are abundant there is no difficulty in deciding how to garnish the breakfast cereal. To prevent the problem from becoming acute when winter comes, it is wise to put up now those sparkling jellies, which are every bit as delicious with the cereal as fresh fruit, and which will persuade many a child to eat with relish his bowl of porridge which he is otherwise likely to finish only under protest.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Blisters caused by perspiration may be relieved by the application of spirits of camphor on a piece of cheesecloth.

It is claimed that almost any cold can be cured quickly by a ten-minute leg and arm exercise, then a dose of quinine, followed by a hot lemonade.

An excellent formula for cracked lips is one-half teaspoonful of borax to one tablespoonful of honey. Mix the borax and honey thoroughly before applying.

When flies are troublesome in the sick room try placing sweet peas in the room. The odor of them is so offensive to the flies they will not remain where it is.

A dry shampoo may be resorted to between shampoos when oily hair needs it. Use powdered orris root or corn meal. Brush it into the scalp and then brush it out thoroughly.

ROLL YOUR OWN

In this instance hats are the subject, for debutantes are taking felt hoods—(as the unblocked hats are called)—and rolling their edges to suit their faces. One may wear these little hats a different way each day—and their cost is practically nil.

EVENING CAPS COPY COIFFURES

It will be hard to tell whether a young woman is hatless or wearing one of the new evening caps. The newest thing in evening headgear is the little cap that simulates the coiffure. Shirring is made to copy the waves of the hair or a part, braids of fabric are wound about the head as braids of hair were wont to do in the coronet type of coiffure.

DANCING FEET

Dancing feet will dance all the more lightly when shod with such adorable slippers as those with vamps of pale blue brocade and quarters of silver kid.

PUTTY

Many housewives never realize the value of putty or they would never be without this useful article. It saves not only pence, but oftentimes shillings. If the lining of the coal-box or the ashpan gets a bit thin, so that the dust comes through, there is no need to throw it away. A piece of putty smoothed and pressed over the place will soon remedy this. If the pail, the bath or the kettle leaks, a piece of putty put on the outside and allowed to dry will restore these, and even be used over the gas afterwards. If there is a crack in the grate, putty can be applied when cold at night and blacked over in the morning, all smooth again. It should be stored in a covered jar of cold water, when it is always ready for use, and what is not needed can be put back for future use.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Use hot water for sprinkling clothes. If it is too hot use a new whisk broom.

If the inside of the wash boiler is rubbed with soap while it is still warm it will not rust. The soap will help to make suds when the boiler is again filled with water.

When ironing linens cover a piece of beeswax with flannel and rub it over the surface of the iron. Linens ironed with an iron treated in this manner will have a fine gloss.

HOME MADE.

The ambitious girl who likes to make her own, will be interested in printed crepe de chine for lingerie. One of the shops is showing patterns for step-ins and night gowns to be developed in silk, with a tiny floral design stamped over the surface.

TO MAKE PILLOWS GOOD AS NEW

If your pillows seem dark and flat, you might try washing the feathers. First transfer the feathers, preferably with a vacuum cleaner, from the pillow to a cheesecloth bag of about the same size as the pillow casing. Swishing and squeezing them through several tubs of warm suds is the next step. Rinse well and hang on the line to dry. The feathers will come out as clean and fluffy as when new—and all ready for new, or clean, casings.

SOAP BAGS HAVE MANY USES.

Soap bags are well worth the little time it takes to make them.

Sew your scraps of household soaps into bags made of small pieces of cotton or the remnants of torn dish towels or cloths, and use them for washing dishes, cleaning out the sink, and other odd jobs about the house. Encase the leftover slivers of toilet soaps in small pieces of Turkish toweling. The children especially will enjoy using them in the bath.

DISH-WIPING.

Swear off dish-wiping and reduce the time spent in the hot kitchen. Experts advise rinsing dishes once or twice with boiling water and leaving them to drain dry.

DUST PROOF.

Flat envelope bags of various sizes made of Argentine cloth are a welcome addition to the modern closet, for they keep exquisite lingerie handkerchiefs, &c., free from dust.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Bronze kid shoes are again in fashion.

The two-piece knitted and boucle costume returns to favor.

Both lace and beading are now recognized as important dress trimmings.

Smart hats have their good points and so they are either bicornes or tricornes.

There is a great deal of the contrasting sleeve from the elbow to wrist with an inserted yoke to match, the latter often draped in cowl fashion.

Short puff sleeves of laces, nets or lingerie type are well liked on dinner frocks, suggesting to women that they convert an evening gown into a dinner or formal afternoon frock. Beaded net is especially interesting.

ERMINE SLEEVES

By their sleeves are they known—the fashion successes of 1930-1931—for not in many decades has there been such originality displayed as in the sleeves of the present season. On one strikingly beautiful wrap of black velvet the lower part of the wide flaring sleeves are of ermine, which appears nowhere else on the model. It reaches almost to the floor.

VELVET AND SEQUINS

Although the newest evening wraps are very long, young things continue to choose those becoming little short affairs. And for the new season black velvet wraps add a band of sequins around the neck and down the front.

FACONNE CREPE

The new faconne crepes are utterly delightful with their tiny polka dotted designs woven in metal against a white or colored ground. Some are new versions of the pin dots which had such a vogue all summer.

HEMLINES DIP DOWN TO TOES

Whether the frock is completely formal or formally informal, its hemline is apt to approach the ankle or the toe. And more likely than not it will be given a graceful swing by means of a stiffened border of horsehair braid on skirt or underskirt. The Sunday night frock with diminutive sleeves or long drapery ones makes its hemline swirl in this ingenious manner.

PRINTED VELVETS

Printed velvets appear once more but in new and different versions. Among the most beautiful are those with pastel-toned leaf motifs printed to give an indistinct effect that is unusually beautiful. For Sunday night frocks and hostess gowns they are perfect.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Dr. Mildred Rogers, of New Castle, Pa., who has specialized as an obstetrician, has a record of having officiated at the birth of more than 400 babies.

Writing news for out-of-town papers without pay for the past 48 years has been the work of Mrs. Frank Mochal, an ardent prohibitionist and suffragette, of Traer, Ia. She says she served without pay because she wanted to help free mankind.

FOR THE CLOSET

Hangers covered with velvet are an excellent choice for the boarding school or college girl, since frocks do not clip off them very easily. These come in lovely colors and can be matched by hat stands and shoe pads.

FLOWERS STAY FRESH

To preserve cut flowers, place as much of the stems of flowers in water as there is above water. If vase isn't deep enough for this, cut the stems.

RECIPES

Frozen Orange Whip—Boil one cup of sugar with two-thirds cup of water until a syrup will thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Add the grated rind and orange juice from two juicy oranges, cover, and keep warm for an hour, then cool. Beat one pint of heavy cream until stiff and gradually add the orange sirup. Cut two oranges in halves crosswise, remove the pulp and separate it into small pieces. Pour the juice from these two oranges into a mold, then add alternate layers of cream and orange pulp until the mold is filled to overflowing. Adjust the cover, pack in salt and ice, using equal parts of each, and let stand for two hours. This is a delicious dessert.

Banana Pudding—Sprinkle half a cup of sugar over three sliced bananas. Beat two whole eggs and two yolks with three-fourths cup of dry cake crumbs and one cup of milk for two minutes. Add three tablespoons of lemon juice and stir into the bananas. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Make a meringue with two egg whites and half a cup of sugar. Serve hot or cold. It is best served with sauce.

PEWTER BRINGS SMARTNESS TO DINING ROOM

By HOPE HAMMOND

Pewter, as a factor in decoration, doubtless reaches its highest value in a dining room.

The star-patterned modern machine-hooked rug is a covering of practical strength of mixture, from which all the color elements of the room was selected—green for curtains, blue lining for cupboards, turquoise chair seats and henna bench pad.

The rug sets the decorative rhythm. Its six-pointed stars are of five colors—cedar, blue, green, taupe and seal brown. They are set on fields of dark brown alternating with blocks of mixed brown in a continuous connection of soft colors.

Pewter adapts itself to any informal practical arrangement in a room which obviously should be furnished and decorated to withstand hard wear. It adds to the charm of old oak and is almost a necessity on a refectory table.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Learning About Work.

In some public schools the child's need to know about the work of the world has been recognized. Courses have been arranged which endeavor to give to children in the upper elementary school grades and in high school definite instruction in this field.

These courses have been very successful in arousing the children's interest, in satisfying their very natural desire to know something of this realm of work in which within only a few years' time they realize they must find a place for themselves.

That growing children need information about the kinds of work there are to do must be clear both from the immediate interest shown in this information when it is offered, and from a consideration of the concrete situations which they will be called upon to face.

Yet perhaps the most important aspect of learning about work is the development of proper attitudes toward it—and this task belongs primarily to the parent.

But parents, especially mothers, are likely to lose sight of the fact that their children cannot forever remain children—lovable, tractable dependents to whom one gives everything and gets in return complete, dependent love.

They refuse to look forward only a few years to the time when it will be necessary for these same dear children to think about the kind of work they are to pursue in a complicated and highly specialized world.

The reception given the child's first efforts to help in the work of the home, to do little chores for his parents, or for the neighbors for which he may be paid, his endeavors to find vacation work—is vitally important in creating in him the right sort of ambition.

RANKS OF WOMEN DWINDLE TO SIX IN NEW CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—The wavering ranks of congresswomen will be bolstered to nine for the short session of the 71st congress which opens December 1—but they will dwindle to six with the opening of the 72nd congress.

One woman in whom a chair and desk beneath the capitol dome aroused no enthusiasm will not return. Neither will a sparkling-eyed one for whom not only a seat in the house of representatives but even one in the senate held allure.

Both relinquished their seats, one to go back home, the other to try for new honors.

The desks of Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield of Arkansas and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois will be turned over to men when the 72nd congress opens.

The sad widow from the south and the energetic widow from Illinois represented opposite reasons why women enter politics. Mrs. Oldfield took the oath of office to finish out her husband's unexpired term.

But gavels and gowns, domes and dinners could not make her forget. She did her best, but she finally decided she would find more peace and comfort amid old home surroundings.

Mrs. McCormick, on the other hand, threw herself into politics and the battle for a senatorship with zest.

She was a bundle of ambition, intent on still greater political achievement, yet keeping an alert eye on her home and children.

WORKING GIRL OF TODAY HAS COMFORTS OF HOME

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Literature soon may lose a prized asset—the "poor working girl" who cooks over a gas jet and uses her window sill for a refrigerator.

Only 1.9 per cent of 14,000 business women interviewed in a nation-wide survey report that they keep tomatoes and celery in the window. The rest live in comfortable rooms and have their meals prepared for them or maintain apartments or homes.

Sequin Frocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—With the return of glittering effects to the evening vogue sequin frocks are back in style. One of the gayest dinner costumes displayed at the recent style show in Central Park casino was a gown of bright red embroidered in sequins, worn with long black gloves and a black felt hat, the trailing black feather of which touched the shoulder.

Silver And White Bridal Dress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—A wedding dress of white satin trimmed with bands of silver was worn by Miss Eppes Hawes, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis, when she became the bride of Lewis Thompson Preston of New York.

Silver trimming also was on the long train. Her tulle veil was held by a wreath of silver leaves. The gown had no sleeves and she wore long white gloves.

Bracelets Move Up

18 Million Unmarried

BERLIN, Nov. 23—(AP)—There are 1[illegible] million unmarried women in Europe, according to German statistics. Germany has 3 million "surplus" women; France 2 million, Great Britain also 2 million, and Russia 4 million.

Smart For Gloves

PARIS, Nov. 23—(AP)—Jambon pink is a new shade here. Jambon is French for ham, and the new shade is the color of the pale variety of smoked pork that Paris calls York.

PRIMO MAY BE NO BARGAIN AS FRENCH CANNON FODDER

PARIS—(AP)—Experts here aren't so sure that France will get a bargain soldier when and if, Primo Carnera, finally is called into military service under the tri-color.

Though Primo, a naturalized Frenchman, has been declared "good" for military duty in the French army, there are many who believe that he couldn't pass the physical tests.

The Milan Mastodon is said to have varicose veins, one lung that is not as strong as it should be, and a flat surface to his immense feet.

Any one of the deficiencies, if proved before military doctors, would relegate Primo to the reserves to be called only in time of war.

BRIGHT GREEN IS NEW FOR SPORT SWEATERS

PARIS, Nov. 23—(AP)—Sweaters of bright pea green in combination with tobacco brown ensembles are among the newest models of one sports house here.

Some have deep yokes of pea green and sleeves and body of brown. Lace-like round collars and shallow cavalier cuffs are crocheted even though sweaters may be hand knitted.

POOR HEATING MAY BE DUE TO FAULTY RADIATION

Remodeling operations may include the installation of oil heating equipment as a means of eliminating much of the manuel labor connected with keeping the house warm. If such is the case home owner will realize that an oil burner is not a pancea for all heating ills if it is installed in a faulty or rundown furnace. Neither can it banish the chill from the house if the radiation or heat-distributing system is choked up. Some cases of unsatisfctory heating equipment have been traced to ineadequate radiation. Obviously no heating system can produce satisfactory results if the hannel is not clear for it to deliver sufficient heat to all of the rooms.

Before automatic heat is installed the home owner should have his heating plant checked to see, first, if it is in good repair with no leaks or other faults, and, second, if his radiation system is adequate to deliver the required amount of heat. An oil burner in most cases can produce in full operation far more heat than is actually required. If it is called upon to overcome the loss of heat from a faulty furnace, however, the added burden is likely to be reflected in full costs. On the other hand, if the heating system is in good shape the fuel costs will be low.

PAINTING A HOUSE REQUIRES MUCH THOUGHT

If the house is constructed principally of wood, or even if its trim only is made of wood, expose to repeated changes in moisture content causes the wood to swell and shrink. This process known as "weathering," opens cracks in the wood and fungus pores lodge and germinate there. Eventually rot sets in because the wood-destroying fungi send their threads throughout the wood.

Protection is necessary to prevent the wood from cracking, warping, roughening and becoming dirty and unattractive. Paint affords this protection. Deterioration can be prevented not alone by the proper priming and initial coatings, but by repainting at reasonable intervals as the old coatings wear out. The question of how often repainting is necessary must be determined principally by climatic conditions. The paint coating of a frame house, for instance, should protect the surface adequately for from three to five years or longer.

As winter arrives, the house that has long been unpainted appears especially shabby. As each day finds the foliage growing thinner, the neglected condition of the exterior becames more and more apparent. Later, when snow covers the ground, its fresh whiteness will also put to shame the house that appears discolored and dingy.

If repainting is planned, one of the first steps is to determine if the house could be made more attractive by changing the color scheme. A new color effect may enable the house to fit more gracefully into its surroundings or to harmonize better with the neighboring houses. Little touches of color may rejuvenate the old, drab house in a surprising fashion. For example, a buff colored house that completely lacked distinction in its monotonous coloring may appear entirely different if the shutters are painted a blue-green. Or the shade of the roof may be changed to give a more interesting result.

A house that is out-of-date or ill-proportioned architectually appears at its worst without the aid of foliage. Correct coloring may also overcome these faults. If unattractive and overly elaborate carvings announce the Victorian origin of a house, the ornateness will not be so evident if these unnecessary appendages are painted in an unobstrusive coloring that blends with the body of the house.

Where no painting has been done for some time, the exterior should be examined carefully before real winter weather settles down. Roofs especially need protection from heavy snows and their subsequent thawing. Tin roofs generally require renewed protection every two years. Places greatly exposed to the weather, such as steps, and porches, should be carefully inspected even though the entire house is not to be painted.

One point in favor of painting at this time of year is that the spring rush will be avoided. Painters will be able to give more of their time to each job that is done in the fall than they will in thes pring when a majority of home owners will be busying themselves with paint plans.

FIXTURES OF TODAY SURPASS OLD TYPE

Lighting fixtures today are architectual units in themselves. Ornate lighting devices, hitherto made by hand craftsmanship and considered too expensive, can now be purchased at moderate cost having the same or even better workmanship than the old handwrought pieces.

A wide variety of choice is available and the finish and design of each piece may be selected to harmonize with the setting and decoration of the room in which it is to be installed. Fixtures are now designed to appear with equal attractiveness both illuminated and otherwise, such as little porch lanterns which are constructed with stained glass sides, and living room wall lights set off by colored bulbs.

It is no longer necessary for lighting fixtures to withstand frequent handling and intense heat. They are seldom touched, and when they are, it is but lightly. In view of this fact, parchment, silk, pottery and other delicate materials are in use today and even more decorative and modern designing is made possible.

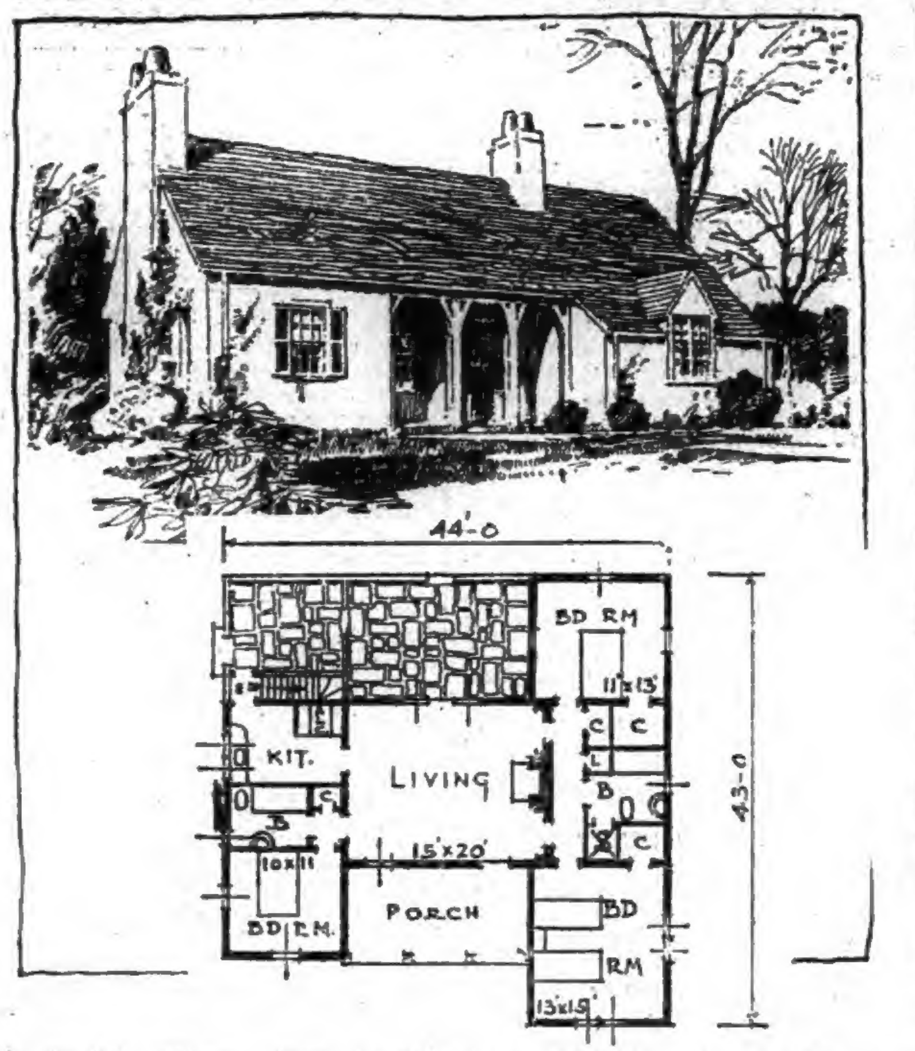
SPACIOUS HOUSE EMBODIES FRENCH IDEA



This English cottage type house has a plan that makes it adaptable to any climate found in the United States. It is attractive in design and finds favor in all localities, east, west, north and south.

The large living room may be lengthened at the desire and discretion of the owner when he builds. The living room has service quarters at one end and family sleeping quarters at the other. It also may be thrown open from the street side and garden side to take advantage of breeze and sunshine. A porch in front and a terrace in the rear add to the attractiveness of the living room.

Two well proportioned, cross ventilated bedrooms to the right of the porch are connected by a passage which also serves the bathroom. The bath is equipped with a shower compartment.

The bedroom at the left of the porch may be used either as a guest room or maid's room. It has a separate bath and may be connected to the kitchen through the small hall closet.

Dining may take place either in the end of the living room nearest the kitchen or at least formal times in the kitchen dining alcove.

Flagging covers the terrace and the porch floor. The exterior walls are whitewashed brick and the woodwork is weathered French gray. The shutters could be the same or a light blue green.

This house would be best on a lot 75 to 150 although it could be adapted to a smaller plot. The cost is estimated at approximately $8,000 to $10,000.

LETTER BOX IS NOW CALLED A "MAILTAINER"

If you are not already aware of the fact you might be interested to know that it is the proper things these days to speak of the family mailbox as a "mailtainer." It sounds smarter, even though it may be the same old mailbox, or a modern adaption of it.

It happens ,however, that the old mailbox, or "mailtainer," as you will, recently has undergone some startling changes, much the same as alarm clocks, builders' hardware and all that sort of thing. The "mailtainer" bears but a slight resemblance to the conventional, unadorned metal affair we formerly screwed securely to the veranda post, or the frame of the front door. Nor is it the thing any more to incorporate a metal-lined slot in the front door carefully, labeled "Letters." One always did marvel a bit that the manufacturer of those old door chutes should find it necessary to label the things. It would seem as if anyone would know, without being told, that such a contrivance was designed for but one purpose—to allow the family mail to hide safely in upon the front hall floor.

In recent years, when everything in the home building line has become much more artistic, and when at least a trifle less hysteria results each time a new home is built or an old one modernized, such details as letter boxes—or "mailtainers"—are given quite serious thought. Georgian architecture calls for a "mailtainer" which also is Georgian or closely akin to it. An early American colonial calls for its distince type, and so does the house of English, Spanish, French or Dutch design.

All this attention to detail is a good thing, because it means fewer inconsistencies than was the case with those we put up with more or less helplessly, or thoughtlessly, a few years ago. It means that virtually every detail in the construction of a house is given careful and proper attention to make sure that it goes well with its neighbors.

SEEK TO PREVENT ELECTRICAL MISHAPS

One of the accident problems on which an organized group of more than one thousand safety engineers of the country are at work is the reduction of electrical hazards in homes and in industrial places. This group composes a special committee of the National Safety council which was organized for the purpose of discovering ways of eliminating the possibility of accidents from the use of electricity.

Some of the hazards which the committee is seeking to overcome are those from over-heated irons, faulty installation of electric fixtures, bathroom heaters, burned out electric fuses which are often supplemented by the practice of inserting a penny to complete the circuit, screw type of wall plugs, improper method of grounding non-current parts of low voltage equipment in damp places and worn cords on lamps.

Electricity, when properly handled, does not represent an accident hazard. It is from the old make-shift installations that trouble is apt to spring up. In a directed system of electric wiring installed when the house is constructed or later by reputable electricians there is practically no chance for trouble to develop.

Nothing reveals the age of a home more quickly than plumbing fixtures. If these fixtures are old-fashioned, the home is more or less definitely "dated." Modernizing of the plumbing fixtures is one way to bring old properties back into the list of desirable places.

LINOLEUM RUGS HANDY

Style in rugs has become just as important as style in wearing apparel. For floors of kitchens, bathrooms, hallways and solarius linoleum covering is suggested. Rugs of this material are available in many attractive designs and colorings and are especially desirable because of the ease with which they may be cleaned.

BLUE-GRAY SLATE BEST

Blue-gray slate offers more than beauty as roofing material. It is a natural rock, but unlike many rocks, it is neither porous nor spongy. Slate is so compact and fine-grained that even when completely immersed in water for forty-eight hours it absorbs less than one-half of one per cent of moisture.

The water to be impounded by Hoover dam would cover the state of Connecticut to a depth of 10 feet.

BOOK SHELVES ADD TO OLD OR NEW ROOM

In practically every home there is some nook which might happily be converted into an attractive book corner by merely installing a few shelves. This is a task which the home handy man or local carpenter can undertake with ease. Perhaps the desired nook will be found alongside the fireplace, or in a hallway or even in one or more of the bedrooms.

If built into a small room, book shelves should be kept low to the floor, thereby making the exterior appear larger. For the large room, shelving will add dignity if it extends from floor to cornice or ceiling. A space of three or four inches should be left beneath the lowest shelf to facilitate cleaning.

Most books will fit into shelves nine inches apart but by allowing ten inches for the lowest shelf, extra sized volumes will be accommodated. Adjustable shelves held up by metal pegs stuck into holes in the woodwork offer great advantages.

GAY PAPER SHOWS SPIRIT OF SUNROOM

If questioned on the subject, most families would admit that their leisure time is spent largely in the sunroom. The brightness and gay color usually found there offer an invitation and cheer that makes it the most popular place to read or sew or to rest fora few moments in the midst of a busy day.

It isn't alone the sunshine that streams through the many windows that gives the sunroom this charm. It is also the habit of most decorators to fill the sunroom with gay color, grass rugs, and painted furniture, gay upholstery material and brilliant hues in the lamp shades.

However, the most vital feature in the decorative scheme is the wallpaper that brings all the flowers of a summer garden indoors for your pleasure. The walls give a splendid opportunity to use gay color attractively and wall paper designers, realizing the popularity of color, have offered to the public a bewildering number of lovely floral patterns of alltypes and shades.

Gay wallpaper strikes the keynote of cheer and warmth in many sunrooms and it adds so much to the charm of the room that the other furnishings may be comparatively simple.

Yosemite valley was visited this year by 485,566 persons.

OPEN BOOKCASES ARE MUCH MORE INVITING

Open bookcases may cause dust to collect and invite the casual tucking away of all manner of miscellaneous matter, but there are few but who will agree that these same open bookcases are much more friendly and inviting than the closed varieties. Somehow or other an enclosed bookcase suggests an exclusiveness which does not inspire visitors to open them and browse around among the contents; and books, to serve their real purpose, must invite this form of browsing.

The open bookcase suggests that the books it contains are old and familiar friends. They can be dusted occasionally without breaking the heart of the housekeeper, whatever she may say on the subject in private. Ask her casually what books she finds interesting in her spare moments and in a majority of instances her favorites will be found on the open bookshelves rather than in those enclosed behind glass.

Many a man and woman prefers to fashion bookcases with their own hands. It is not the most difficult task in the world, even though such efforts deprive cabinet makers of work which otherwise would be theirs. Naturally, cases which are designed to be a part of a livingroom call for the hand of an expert, but there are spaces about the house where somewhat cruder workmanship is permissible without ruining the appearance of things. Up in Amherst lives a professor who actually produces bookcases fully as finished and artistic as those fashioned by the most skilled cabinet maker. It has been his hobby for years and his home is a delight to visitors in consequence. Moreover, all of his cases, without exception, are of the open variety. He refuses to consider enclosing them behind glass doors, claiming that he likes his books too well to imprison them in this manner.

The writer has devised a type of homemade bookcase which may or may not be original. It is of the double-section variety—that is, two sections divided in the middle by an upright piece. The end boards are notched slightly to permit the ends of the shelves to fit in, following which the shelves are screwed securely into place. The upright center board which separates the two sections of the bookcase, is cut halfway through at the points where the shelves come, while the shelves themselves are notched on the opposite sides to correspond. When the center upright is slipped into place these notches, which are cut to match the thickness of the shelves permit each shelf to slip into place. Small angle irons may be screwed into the side of the upright and the under side of the shelves to lend more strength.

When the entire thing is put together and each shelf is screwed securely into place, additional end pieces should be screwed into place, thus giving each end a double thickness. This adds material strength, for it eliminates all tendency to sag under the considerable weight of a full quota of books. Thin molding can be used to dress up the double edge of the ends, with a plain molding used for the center upright and for the edges of the shelves. The writer has left his unadorned, contenting himself with enamel on the plain wood surface.

In finishing such cases a coat or two of shellac should be put on first, followed by one or two coats of flat white with finishing coats of glossy enamel. The writer put on two coats of each, allowing ample time for drying between each coat. The result is an enamel surface which washes without the least danger of damaging the enamel and a surface which shows no signs of the original grain or knots.

REAL TILE IN A CLASS BY ITSELF

With all due respect to the excellence of certain substitutes, one glance at an attractive tiled wall or floor is sufficient to convince the average man or woman that real tile is the only thing to use, provided the price to pay for it is available. There is something so thoroughly finished about real tile, something so neat, attractive and geometric in its perfection, that even the most faithful of reproductions suffers by comparison.

The writer is not thoroughly versed in costs of materials of this nature. It is true, of course, that certain imitation tiling comes in wide strips which can be installed in one-tenth the time it takes to install real tile and at a fraction of the cost for labor. There are other types, however, whose original cost is fully as much if not more than tile, the only saving being represented in cost of installation.

However, if one is willing to pay a bit more, real tile is the thing which should give the greatest satisfaction. Once installed, it usually lasts as long as the house itself and it is the testimony of everyone who has been privileged to make use of kitchens and bathrooms of real tile that nothing retains its neatness and nothing can be cleaned with as little effort as this same real tile.

USE OF GERMICIDE

The use of a germicide in the paste has eliminated one of the objections against the use of wallpaper. Thus the presence of wallpaper is not only sanitary but beneficial as well. Nowadays walls are carefully prepared, too, the cracks being filled with plaster of paris rather than old newspapers.

Sizing is used first so that the paper sticks tightly. Thus there are no hiding places for unwelcome pests, even if the germicide in the paste did not make their existence impossible.

MODERNIZERS VALUE BUILT-IN CABINETS

The housewife is ever searching for extra closet room in her domain, the kitchen, and by the use of appropriately placed built-in metal cabinets small appliances can always be in a handy place, saving her many unnecessary steps.

Cabinets for a waffle iron or an egg-beater could be built in near the preparing table of the kitchen and perhaps the electric iron cabinet near the built-in ironing board. An electric toaster would be exceptionally well-placed in a cabinet in the wall of the breakfast nook.

Metal cabinet can be made to harmonize with the metal fittings of the kitchen, such as door handles and hinges, and also give the room a pleasing look of cleanliness and compactness.

HORSEMEN FLOCK TO WINTER MEET AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—The thud of hoofs may again be heard in New Orleans as horsemen put their racers through the training grind at local tracks preparatory to the opening of the six months' racing season at Jefferson Park on Thanksgiving day.

New Orleans tracks present scenes of confusion and bustle since special trains have brought in around 200 race horses from northern and eastern tracks that have closed for the winter.

From Thanksgiving to Easter this city will be a mecca for horsemen, trainers, jockeys, touts and bettors. The vanguard of this nomad tribe has arrived and by Thanksgiving the thoroughbred will take its place in the sun before its thousands of followers.

The season will open with the Thanksgiving handicap, carrying $3,000 added money and the great horse Paul Bunyan, is now here getting ready to defend his title as last year's winner of the event.

HIDE AND SEEK RESULTS WHEN 'GATOR GRABS BALL

Standing six feet, three inches, with 195 pounds of well-packed muscle, the big alligator star has little chance to carry the ball in his capacity as a tackle. But when he does grab it it's a game of hide and seek to find the oval.

He's a senior and is having his biggest year. Many observers pick him as one of the two best tackles in Dixie.

TOBACCO FIELDS IN CITY HELP BEAT 'HARD TIMES'

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—Fields of tobacco growing in the heart of Asheville is one way some citizens have found for combating unfavorable economic conditions.

The urge to grow tobacco on all vacant lots was given impetus by the revival of a tobacco market here this year, where the burley crop grown in mountain counties could be sold.

Burley tobacco does not require heat for curing, and many "city crops" of the weed hanging out in the air gave Asheville a new appearance this fall.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT GIVES ADVICE ABOUT CHRISTMAS MAILING

With Christmas a little more than a month away, the postoffice department is taking early steps to advise citizens to do their Christmas mailing early, and Postmaster Casper K. Bailey has received and posted the following official directions from the department at Washington:

Wrapping and Packing

All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Special Packing

Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, should be reinforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied or otherwise sufficiently wrapped to withstand transportation.

Hats: Pack in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat-boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "fragile."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candles: Inclose in strong outside boxes or containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted maps, etc.: Pack or wrap in strong material to avoid damage. When not flat, roll around a wooden core and then wrap and tie carefully or place in strong pasteboard tube.

Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments or tools must have points and edges fully guarded to prevent injury to clerks in handling or damage to other mail. Crate suitably or thoroughly wrap so that they cannot cut through the wrapping.

Fragile Objects

Articles easily broken or crushed must be crated or securely wrapped. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Glassware, fragile toys, crockery must be packed so as to prevent the escape of particles or pieces if broken in transit.

Cigars: Ordinary boxes of cigars wrapped in paper only will not be accepted. Pack in a manner to prevent damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material. Cigars must be in good shipping condition.

All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "fragile."

Perishable Matter

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "perishable." Use special delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Addresses

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street postoffice box or rural route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Postage

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. Affix the required amount of postage in the upper right corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the parcel post or stamp window.

Weight and Size Limit

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first, second and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Early Mailing

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of their Christmas presents, cards and letters by Christmas day the public should shop and mail early. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings and letters to relatives, friends and loved ones at least a week or ten days before Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas day, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employes and enable them to spend Christmas day with their families.

Special Delivery Service

The use of a special delivery stamp will assure delivery on Christmas day, if mailed at the proper time. Special delivery service means the handling and transportation of parcels with the same expedition as first-class letter mail, as well as the immediate delivery at office of address. It is obtained by affixing a special delivery stamp of the proper denomination, or its equivalent in ordinary stamps, in addition to the regular postage. When ordinary stamps are used, the words, "special delivery," must be written or printed on the envelope or wrapper immediately above the address. It is urged that all mailers desiring immediate delivery of any matter mailed by them affix special delivery stamps thereto. Special delivery is for speed and not for safety. Valuable mail should be registered or insured.

Where to Mail Parcels

Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes at all classified stations and branches and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces cannot be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main postoffice or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main postoffice or one of the large classified stations.

Matter Not Mailable at Parcel Post Rates

Written matter in the nature of personal correspondence cannot be inclosed in parcels.

Communications attached to parcels: A letter placed in an envelope, addressed to correspond with the address on the parcel and fully prepaid at the first-class rate, may be tied or otherwise securely attached to the outside of the parcel in such a manner as to prevent separation therefrom and not obscure the address on the parcel.

Insure or Register Valuable Mail

Valuable domestic third and fourth-class mail should be insured.

Insurance fees: Value not exceeding $5, 5 cents; not exceeding $25, 8 cents; not exceeding $50, 10 cents; not exceeding $100, 25 cents; not exceeding $150, 30 cents; and not exceeding $200, 35 cents.

Coin, currency, jewelry and articles of considerable value should be sent as sealed first-class, registered mail. Indemnity up to not exceeding $1,000 is now paid in connection with domestic registered mail and registered C. O. D. mail. (Consult postmaster as to fees and limits of indemnity for registered mail.)

Domestic C. O. D. Service

Domestic third and fourth-class matter may be sent C. O. D. from one money order postoffice to another. Sealed domestic mail of any class prepaid at first-class rate of postage may also be sent C. O. D. either as registered or unregistered mail.

Fees for all unregistered C. O. D. mail (in addition to regular postage): 12 cents, when amount to be collected does not exceed $10; 15 cents, when the amount does not exceed $50; 25 cents, when the amount does not exceed $100; 35 cents, when the amount does not exceed $150; and 45 cents, when the amount does not exceed $200. The C. O. D. fee also covers insurance for actual value against loss or damage up to $10 for a 12-cent fee; up to $50 for a 15-cent fee; up to $100 for a 25-cent fee; up to $150 for a 35-cent fee; and $200 for a 45-cent fee. (Consult postmaster as to fees and limits of indemnity for registered C. O. D. mail.)

Parcels for Foreign Countries

Parcels of mailable merchandise may be sent (subject to certain limitations and conditions) by international parcel post to all foreign countries except Tristan Da Cunha, Mongolia, and Andorra. Foreign parcel post packages should be mailed at the main office or large classified stations.

Owing to the long sea travel involved as a rule and to customs inspections abroad, foreign parcels should be very carefully packed and should be mailed in November.

Information

For further information on any of the above subjects or concerning any other postal matter, inquire at the proper window—stamp, parcel post, money order, registry, etc.—or see the postmaster or one of his assistants.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Muskrat Is Disturbed

Suspicious must be always rife
With those who daily fight for life.
—Old Mother Nature.

All the smaller people of the green forest and the green meadows, and some of the larger ones for that matter, fight for life every day. I do not mean by this that they fight with teeth and claws every day. Goodness, no! I mean that in order to live they have to be everlastingly on the watch for enemies, that they have to be constantly hunting for food, and that they never can afford to be forgetful, careless or too confident. Otherwise they are not likely to live long. Is it any wonder that they are naturally suspicious?

Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat had had a very pleasant and comfortable summer. They had been busy, very busy. You see, they had reared no fewer than three large families of children since last spring. Most of these children, excepting the last ones, had gone out by way of the laughing brook and the big river to make their own way in the great world. The youngest children were still living around in the smiling pool or along the laughing brook. Two or three of them might spend the winter with their parents in the big comfortable house Jerry and Mrs. Jerry had built in the smiling pool. Now that the children no longer needed care, Jerry and Mrs. Jerry were preparing for winter, but at the same time getting a well earned rest.

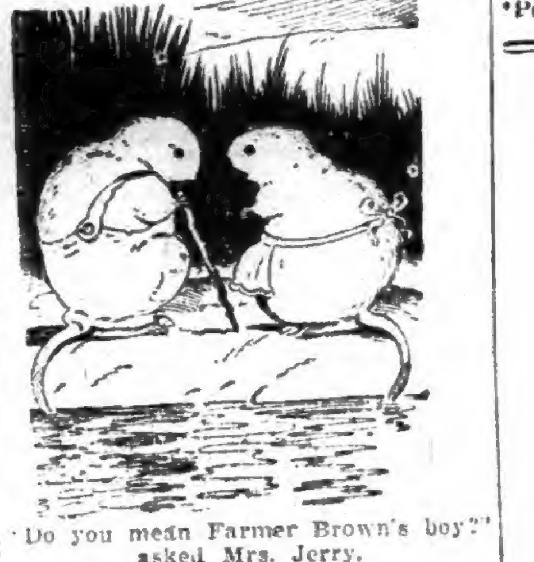
"My dear," said Jerry one day as he and Mrs. Jerry were looking over the roof of their house to see if it needed strengthening, "have you noticed that lately one of those two-legged creatures has been around here quite often?"

"Do you mean Farmer Brown's boy?" asked Mrs. Jerry.

Jerry shook his head. "No," said he. "I don't care how often Farmer Brown's boy comes around. This is a stranger, and I don't like it. No, sir, I don't like it."

"Now you speak of the matter, I have noticed this stranger," replied Mrs. Jerry, "but I haven't paid much attention to him. What harm can he do?"

"That is what I want to know," replied Jerry. "Perhaps he doesn't mean any harm at all. However, I have noticed that he never visits the smiling pool or the laughing brook when Farmer Brown's boy is about, and I don't like the looks of that."



"Do you mean Farmer Brown's boy?" asked Mrs. Jerry.

"Are you afraid of him?" asked Mrs. Jerry with a sly look, for she likes to tease Jerry.

"No, I'm not afraid of him! Certainly not!" retorted Jerry. "I mean I am not afraid of him for myself. I'm thinking of the children. They have a lot to learn yet, and they have had no experience with these two-legged creatures as you and I have. I wish this one would stay away from here. I believe I see him now down the laughing brook."

Mrs. Jerry looked in that direction and sure enough there was a boy, the stranger she had seen before. He appeared to be very busy searching for something along the bank of the laughing brook. He examined every log that lay partly in the water and every low place along the bank. Jerry Muskrat grew more disturbed as he watched.

"He hasn't a terrible gun," said Mrs. Jerry.

"If he had you and I wouldn't be sitting here," replied Jerry dryly.

"Well, as long as he doesn't bring a gun, I don't see why we should worry," declared Mrs. Jerry.

"What about traps?" asked Jerry.

"Traps!" exclaimed Mrs. Jerry in a startled tone. "Traps! What under the sun put traps into your head?"

"As long as they are in my head and not along the laughing brook or around the smiling pool it is all right," grinned Jerry. Then his face grew sober again. "Perhaps there is nothing to worry about, but just the same I wish that fellow would stay away from here," he added.

Vitamins In Sweet Potatoes

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sweet potatoes contain as much vitamin A as leafy vegetables, more vitamin B than many other root crops and about one-half as much vitamin C as orange juice or peach and pineapple juice.

Southern Dairy Profits

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—Profits from southern dairy cattle have been proved in Stanley county, where one farmer alone reports an income of $38 to $40 a month from five cows fed entirely on grass and legume.

Record Wheat Cargo

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(AP)—Carrying 440,000 bushels of wheat from Vancouver to Shanghai, the "Chief Capilano," chartered by the Canadian wheat pool, has set a wheat cargo record for Canada. It was sufficient wheat to feed 100,000 persons for a year.

Enrollment in high school agricultural courses in South Dakota increased 20 per cent this year over 1929.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The coming of Thanksgiving is daily showing its effects upon the market to a greater degree. Both supply and demand are reflecting this condition. Owners of fancy apples were bringing them out while wholesalers were stocking up more heavily on such holiday fruits as oranges, grapes and cranberries. Buyers, both those for retail stores and consumers, were showing more activity in getting supplies on hand previous to the main rush. Cranberries, mostly from Cape Cod, were liberal. Florida oranges were also liberal and low priced while a few cars of California new crop Navels have been received. As usual these forerunners of the main orange crop are not of as high grade as later kinds, but mark the end of the high priced, lightly supplied period until next summer. Small sizes are selling at sharply lower prices than the large ones due to the smaller proportion than normal of the large sizes.

The poultry situation was rather unsettled, due to the fact that quotations at primary markets were extremely low for such holiday specialties as live turkeys, ducks and geese, while fowl and chickens continued to sell at prices even with earlier in the month.

Cut Black Stem Rust Loss

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The annual loss from black stem rust of wheat, oats, rye and barley in the barberry eradication area has declined from approximately 67,000,000 bushels for the period 1915 to 1919 to about 41,000,000 bushels for 1925 to 1929.

Iowa's popcorn crop for this season is estimated at 50,000,000 pounds, 30,000,000 pounds less than the expectation on July 1.

ENCOURAGING DEVELOPMENTS IN THE BUSINESS WORLD LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Checking of the decline in steel production, and stabilization of the domestic wheat market in the face of acute unsettlement in foreign grain marts, were encouraging developments of the past week in business.

There were so many cross currents in the course of affairs, however, that a definite trend was lacking. The weekly mercantile reviews failed to indicate any appreciable change in wholesale or retail trade. The latest weekly reports of electric power production and freight car loadings showed further recessions.

Some cheer was derived from the fact that automobile production picked up a little more although most of the gain was recorded in the plants of one manufacturer. Nevertheless, it was apparent that production of new models was beginning earlier than usual, with a mildly stimulating effect upon steel and related industries.

Furthermore, the steel industry found the railroads indicating a little more interest in rail and equipment purchases, which may tend to stabilize operations over the normally slack period of the latter weeks of the year.

"Iron Age" estimated steel mill operations at 43 per cent. of capacity, or virtually unchanged from the 44 per cent rate a week previously. A fortnight ago, the rate was estimated at 48 per cent. It was notable, also, that this publication's composite price of finished steel was unchanged, although there was a further recession in pig iron.

Stabilization of commodity prices above production costs remained one of the outstanding problems to be dealt with. The recent efforts of the copper producers to raise prices failed to attract new business. On the contrary, consumers have been skeptical of the industry's ability to maintain the advance from 9 1-2 to 12 cents a pound, and very little metal has been sold at the top figure during the past few days. Custom smelters have been forced to reduce their quotations to 10 1-2 cents to establish an intake price.

The recent withdrawal of the export petroleum association's price schedule has been followed by lower quotations for export gasoline, and domestic crude and refined prices have been under further pressure. The weekly production figures showed another substantial gain in gasoline stocks on hand, and crude oil output again turned upward. Crude producers in some areas, however, are showing a greater willingness to tighten up conservation programs.

Although the grain markets improved, food products generally sagged further. Declines in eggs, butter, and meats carried Bradstreet's weekly food price index to $2.61, a decline for the week of 6 cents. Hides and leather also declined.

The textile industry was apparently maintaining the improved status noted this autumn. While primary textile markets were said to be a little quieter, prices held comparatively steady, presumably reflecting the progress in keeping production closer to demand.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Awards of new municipal bond issues scheduled for this week amount to $13,151,036, compared with offerings of $48,696,442 in that group last week, the Bond Buyer reports. Issues above $1,000,000, include Bergen county, N. J., $1,608,000; Springfield, Mass., $1,500,000; Halifax, N. S., $1,334,050; Rye, N. Y., $1,350,000; Asbury Park, N. J., $1,000,000, all to be awarded on Tuesday.

The Guaranty Survey, in its monthly review of business conditions, says there is an increased feeling in business circles that the country is at or near the "bottom" of the economic depression and that some progress may be expected to appear at any time. "While not much can be cited by way of concrete evidence to support this view," the review says, "the very fact of reviving confidence is a factor of no small influence, which may prove to mark the turn."

The board of directors of Associated Telephone Utilities Co. has extended the time for exercise of common stock purchase warrants issued with $6 convertible preferred stock. The series "A" warrants, entitling the holder to purchase common stock until Dec. 31 next, have been extended until Dec. 31, 1931. The series "B" warrants, entitling the holder to purchase common stock until Dec. 31, 1931, have been extended until Dec. 31, 1932. The board of directors plans later to submit to stockholders a proposal for an amendment to the charter extending the period during which conversion privileges of the stock may be exercised.

Stanley Co., of America, more than 99 per cent of the capital stock of which is owned by Warner Bros. Pictures, reported for the year ended Aug. 30, net profit of $1,366,992. In addition there was an intercompany profit of $5,926,138 arising from the sale by Stanley Co. of its holdings in First National Pictures, Inc., common stock to Warner Bros. Pictures.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Romance, an ageless love that overcame menacing influences and culminated in the valley of dreams—at the end of the trail.

Menace, that knew no end by the bull whacker, the brutal and treacherous leader of the mad half-breeds.

Thrills, the start of the caravan, the mud hole, the Indian attacks, the fording of the treacherous river, the snow-covered mountain passes, the burning desert, the buffalo hunt: Drama, the hardships of the original lived again in the new trek over The Big Trail; courage, nowhere in the American history is there a more striking example of bravery than shown by the hardy pioneers of a century ago; faith, that spiritual faith, lovely to behold, which inspired the pioneers to carry on, God-loving, God-fearing, God-believing people; scenic beauty, far more beautiful than anything ever attempted in the history of the screen. The leading roles in this feature are played by John Wayne, Marguerite Churchill, El Brendel, Tully Marshall, Tyrone Powers, David Rollins, with 90 other principal players as well as 20,000 pioneer men, women and children, bull whackers, scouts, traders, plainsmen, Araphahoe, Blackfoot, Cheyenne, Crow and Shoshone Indians, which go to make up the greatest of all screen classics.

Starting Wednesday for three days, a special holiday double feature, Big Money, with Eddie Quilan and Robert Armstrong and Jimmie Gleason, and The Dancers, with Lois Moran.

Broadway Theatre

Those who saw "Africa Speaks," now playing at Warner Bros. Broadway theatre, will never forget the dramatic emotional conflict of the picture, or the breath-taking beauty of the Congo backgrounds. Added to these are the startling effects of the sounds of the jungle, the symphony of the African wastes are transmitted to the screen.

In the half blackness of the theatre, one could close one's eyes for a moment and feel one's self in a little clearing in the deep African wastes. The roar of a hungry lion sends a shudder down the spine, the answering whimper of the monkeys—all are there in their primitive terror.

When the story takes itself to the French Congo—the magnificent women—with their huge, duck-billed lips, are unforgettable. These women, the result of numerous Arab raids that swept down time after time to depopulate the villages of females, deliberately disfigure themselves to escape the lust of the desert marauders.

We recommend "Africa Speaks" for a new thrill and a new experience in motion pictures. It is undoubtedly one of the most interesting features ever made.

Something new in collegiate pictures is offered in "College Lovers," co-feature on this great double feature program. "College Lovers," First National and Vitaphone production, is one of the most entertaining pictures that has come to the screen for some time. It is not a conventional college picture, with the hero winning the game in the last minute of play.

In fact, the hero of the story isn't a football player at all, which in itself is a novelty, although there is one of the most thrilling games seen on the screen as a conclusion to the story. But even at that, the hero's college doesn't win it. The play has a climax all its own, which it wouldn't be fair to divulge. This double-feature program will be repeated today and Tuesday, matinee and night.

SAY JEWISH COMMUNISTS WERE IN ANTI-STALIN PLOT

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A dispatch tonight from Moscow to the Jewish telegraphic agency said that five leading Jewish communists were involved in a plot against Joseph Stalin, head of the communist party.

They were listed as assistants to M. Syrfov, who the correspondent said had contemplated the overthrow of Stalin, and their names were given as M. Shatzkin, leader of the komsomol or communist youth organization, Ch. Nusinov, V. Kavraisky, Helperin and Rezuik.

The correspondent said the men were charged with conducting illegal activities intended to harm the authority of the party leaders among the masses and also were accused of attempting to destroy the work of the soviets.

POETRY

One Gave Thanks
Luke 17: 11-19

Lepers they were with foul disease unclean,
And exiled from the homes and haunts of man,
On whom the law pronounced the dreadful ban
To dwell apart, accursed, in caves unseen,
Hopeless their days, with scarce a go-between
To bring them bread. Oft stoned by ruffian,
With wearied eyes the highways far they scan;
When comes to them the mighty Nazarene.
Frantic, with hands uplifted to the sky,
They scream, "Have mercy, Jesus; hear us pray."
He speaks to them. In answer to their cry
He bids them to the temple go that day,
And healed—behold! they rush their friends to greet,
But one comes back to worship at His feet.

—By Henry Felton Huse

The Clouds

I can not look above and see
Yon high-piled pillowy mass
Of evening clouds, so swimmingly
In gold and purple pass
And think not, Lord, how thou was seen
On Israel's desert way,
Before them, in thy shadowy screen,
Pavillioned all the day.

Or, of those robes of gorgeous hue
Which the Redeemer wore,
When, ravished from his followers' view
Aloft his flight he bore:
When lifted, as on mighty wing,
He curtained his ascent,
And wrapt in clouds, went triumphing

Is it a trail of that same pall
Of many-colored dyes,
That high above, o'ermantling all,
Hangs midway down the skies—
Or borders of those sweeping folds
Which shall be all unfurled
About the Saviour, when he holds
His judgment on the world?

For in like manner as he went—
My soul, has thou forgot?—
Shall be his terrible descent,
When man expecteth not!
Strength, Son of Man, against that hour,
Be to our spirits given,
When thou shalt come again with power
Upon the clouds of heaven!

—William Croswell.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Adam: "Eve! You've gone and put my dress suit in the salad again."—Mugwump.

An advertisement states that "it took 12,000 workers to put that bottle of milk at your door." Yes, it sounded as if it did.—London Opinion.

"Why is he so sad?"

"Didn't you know he had gone bankrupt?"

"Yes, but I didn't know he had lost money over it."—Dorfbarbier.

"William, what are the two genders?"

"Masculine and feminine. The feminines are divided into frigid and torrid, and masculines into temperate and intemperate."—Longhorn-Ranger.

C. O.—You are on report for knocking this man unconscious. What have you to say?

Boatswain's Mate—Sir, I hit him, but he was unconscious before he joined this man's navy.—Army & Navy Journal.

Leading man—"Don't you think we should have real food in the banquet scene?"

The obliging pianist had rendered several selections, when one of the admiring group of listeners suggested that he play "The Twelfth Mass." Several people echoed the request and one lady in particular cried out enthusiastically, "Oh, do play it. My husband belonged to that very regiment."—Exchange.

The editor of a city poultry journal received a letter from a woman reader. It read: "How long should a hen remain on the eggs?"

The editor replied: "Three weeks for chickens and four weeks for ducks."

Three weeks passed and the editor again received a letter from the reader. "Thank you very much for the kind advice," it read. "The hen remained on the eggs for three weeks and there were no chickens hatched, and as I did not care for ducks, I took her off the nest and sold the eggs."—Montreal Star.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Florida nurseries produced approximately 100,000,000 narcissus bulbs last season.

At the Kimberley diamond mine in Africa, diamonds have been brought from a depth of 2,000 feet.

The life histories of most animal parasites are still not known to science, declares a well-known zoologist.

Cave men who lived in Europe 20,000 years ago collected heavy meteorites, but made no attempt to work the iron into tools or weapons.

A twenty-pound catfish was hooked by Max Gordon in South bay at Whitehall, N. Y. In the catfish's stomach was a silver-plated corkscrew.

The amount of land swept by fires in the national forests this year has been very much less than last year: 181,889 acres as compared with 978,107 in 1929.

The popular notion that women's hair is silkier and finer than men's is not upheld by scientific measurement: no significant sex difference was found.

Just retribution came to a chicken thief in Newport Center, Vt. He made a successful getaway with the loot, but lost his pocketbook in the henhouse. In it was enough money to pay for the poultry stolen, leaving a substantial deposit besides. His name was on papers in the purse, so the intended victim knows the thief.

While blasting out a lodge at Moose River, Me., a road commissioner blew out a large fragment of rock which had in the center the well-defined remains of an ancient stump that had become almost wholly petrified, small pieces of the wood being easily picked out of the stone. The wood appeared to be a knot, which in some remote age had solidified as the sandstone formation in which it was found, gradually hardened into a concrete mass.

On the eve of his marriage to a pretty girl he met at Brighton, England, Kenneth Hay, of Portsmouth England, has discovered she is his sister, adopted by a London family twenty years ago. He had bought and furnished a house when a letter from an old family friend disclosed the relationship. "It is a terrific shock," Hay said. "Both my parents died when I was a youngster and I had always understood that my sister had died when I was two years old. I shall never marry."

In Loving Memory of Our Wife and Mother, Who Passed Away One Year Ago, Nov. 23, 1929

Today recalls the memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those that think of her today
Are the ones that loved her best.
Some may think she is forgotten
When at times they see us smile;
But they little know the sorrow
That is hidden all the while.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWKAES

A Tribute To Our Dumb Animals

It's sad to never know the joy
Of saying, when a little boy,
"This is my own, my faithful dog.
When I am sad he comforts me;
When I am glad he barks with glee;
His very mood is as my own;
What love this faithful friend hath shown!"

I have the greatest sympathy
For anyone, where'er he be,
Who has not owned a purring cat.
When friendships fail and fortunes frown
And fondest hopes are all cast down,
Your cat will come, bring comfort, too
And show he still believes in you.

To never know and love a horse,
Would be a tragedy, of course,
A trusty steed gives service true.
When in the battle's thickest fray,
Our dumb friends always led the way.
Be kind to horses, when you can,
For they are God's best gift to man.

To these dumb friends we owe a debt,
And 'twould be heartless to forget
That they need simple comforts, too.
Supply their little wants each day,
And try not to forget that they Belong to Him who rules Above—
And so deserve our care and love.
—Rosemary Rothschild.

An Old-Fashioned Girl

I know a little maiden who can knit and who can sew,
Who can tuck her little petticoat, and tie a pretty bow;
She can give the thirsty window-plants a cooling drink each day;
And dust the pretty sitting-room, and drive the flies away.
And lay the plates, and knives and forks, and ring the supper bell;
She can learn her lessons carefully, and say them with a smile,
Then put away her books and slate and atlas in a pile;
And soothe her little brother when he flies into a rage;
She can dress and tend her dollies like a mother, day and night—
Indeed, one-half the good she does, I cannot now recite;
And yet there are some things, I'm told, this maiden cannot do.
She cannot say an ugly word, or one that is not true—
Who can this little maiden be? I wonder if it's you?
—St. Nicholas, 1879.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The horned lark is decidedly a friend of the farmer. The family to which he belongs is a small one, with not over a hundred species. They are found over all of America, Canada, and Alaska. Most abundantly are they found in Africa. They are small, handsome birds, the characteristic feature being the small, horn-like tufts of black feathers on each side of the top of the head. The general color is brown with many streaks.

Food consists of worms, insects, grains and seeds. Weed seeds are perhaps the greatest single element. Some grain is eaten but much of this is waste left in the fields. Many pests such as May beetle, leaf beetle, clover beetle, many weevils, chinch-bugs, and others are eaten. Grasshoppers and cut worms are favorite foods.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Story of Corn

Dear Uncle Jed: As we are all interested in corn, I will try to tell you a few facts about it. The best ground to raise corn in is in fertile, medium loam. New lands are preferable. The best time to plant corn in the south is late March; in northern regions, May and June. Amount of seed to an acre needed is about 4 to 8 quarts, while for silage 9 to 11 quarts is needed. The normal yield an acre for sweet corn is about 25.4 bushels. The normal yield for silage is 8-12 tons.

The history and origin of corn is interesting. It probably originated in Mexico. It was found in use of the Mexicans when the Spanish exploration was being carried on. It is related botanically to the Mexican grass called teosinte.

Corn is the most valuable grain as the records of corn growers show. It has many important uses such as food for human beings. Corn fodder is used to feed cattle and fatten swine. Cracked corn and whole corn make an important feed for poultry.

It has many uses which include the manufacture of glucose, dextrine, alcohol, starches, hominies, grits, etc. Effective fertilizers are important to get good yields. Two or three good ones are 10-20 tons farm manure every year or two, phosphoric acid, nitrogen, and potash. Plow under large quantities of vegetable matter, preferably legumes and grasses.

Corn, like all living things, has enemies. Rootworm and webworm are pests that have to be destroyed by plowing under. Cut worm and clinch bug have to be killed with kerosene and a mixture of bran, Paris green and molasses.

WALTER L. G. BURDICK.
Danielson.

An Unselfish Girl

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't been able to write for some time, but am at it again. Thank you for printing my other stories, and hope you like this one. Once there lived a lonely old lady who thought how nice it would be if she had a little girl to brighten her old age. But she wanted a little girl who would be unselfish and kind. Going to an orphanage she said to the children, "If I gave you some money what would you buy with it." "A ribbon for my hair," said one, "candy" said another. But a little girl named Susan hung shyly back. The old lady called to her kindly. "What would you buy, my dear." "I would buy a ball of yarn to knit a shawl for you, grandmother," she said. The old lady was delighted at the thoughtfulness of this little one, and took little Susan away with her.

ALMA LAROCK, age 12.
Moosup.

In New York

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about my trip to New York. I left Jewett City going by train to New London arriving there just in time to go abroad the night boat to New York. Before retiring in my stateroom I explored some of the ship most of which was new to me. I awoke the next morning to hear ed my grips as I knew it was nearly time for the boat to dock. I then went on deck to enjoy the scenery the most beautiful of all was the Statue of Liberty standing in the harbor. I then boarded a train to Troy, N. Y., arriving safe at my grandfather's home.

DOROTHY GRENIER.
Voluntown.

Likes Her Book

Dear Uncle Jed: Again I thank you kindly for that wonderful book. The title of my story is The Sham.

One dark, windy night, my friend, Janet and I, were all alone in the house. We suggested telling stories to pass time until mother arrived. As I was first I decided on telling a ghost story. I was in the midst of the story and Janet was listening attentively when we heard a soft groan which seemed to come from our dining room. At that groan we shuddered and sat there unable to move. However, Janet trying to be the braver, decided to tiptoe to the door and peek in. At first she did not dare look in for fear of seeing a dreadful scene. She caught sight of a moving object hurrying along. She entered. She beckoned for me to come, too frightened to utter a word. Tiptoeing unsteadily towards her, she pointed toward a form. It had an old black hat, a veil covering its face with just enough space to show a pale, weary, half-starved face.

Janet gasped, "Maybe she has fainted, let's lift her head." I volunteered to do all I could in helping her. "You put your hands under her arms," I whispered. Under instructions, Janet did so and, lo and behold! the hair (which was a wig) fell off. Next the feet (which were sticks) rolled away. The form was that of a dummy!

There seemed to be sounds just behind my back and turning around, who do you think was there? No one else but my sister, Anna. We demanded explanations. To our inquiries, Anna responded, "Well, I heard you telling spooky stories, so I thought it would be fun to see what you would do if you came in contact with what you thought to be a real live spook."

Moosup.

My Pets

Dear Uncle Jed: I have two dogs, two bantams, and two pigeons. The dogs names are Jumbo and Poodle. Every morning when I first go out of the house, Jumbo will shake hands with me. But when I go to shake hands with Poodle, he wants to shake hands with his left foot.

I live on a farm and we have cattle, hogs, horses, sheep, chickens, geese, and guineas. We've got a pet lamb. One old sheep had triplets and we had to feed one on the bottle. It was so small that we called it "Tiny." It sure did know its name when we called it. It was not tiny very long. It grew as fast as any of the lambs. Now it is as large as any of them.

I have been reading the book, "Frank Armstrong, Captain Of The Nine." I sure do like it. Frank Armstrong is my Dad's name. I guess that is why I like it. I am a little boy nine years old. I will be ten the 25th of January.

HOWARD ARMSTRONG.
Hepler, Kansas.

Armistice Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope everyone had as good a time Armistice day as I did. In the morning I saw the parade. There was one horse in the parade which got quite frisky. I heard the driver say that the horse always got quite frisky when he heard music. My brother was in the parade carrying a flag. There were eight bands in the parade. My brother said that he wanted to take drum lessons after he saw all the drums. I hope there will never be another war. Nobody in America wants it, I don't think. Wars are very terrible. Many people get killed who have nothing to do with the quarrels between countries.

MARJORIE FLOYD, age 9.
Norwich Town.

Thanksgiving

Dear Uncle Jed: I am so glad that Thanksgiving time is near, but I don't think I would be so glad if I was a turkey. A turkey doesn't have to work. He doesn't have to go to school; no lessons to learn. All he has to do is to grow nice and fat.

We have fed him well all summer long, and now he is nice and fat. Oh! what a fine Thanksgiving dinner he will make.

NATALIE PALMER, age 10.
Norwich Town.

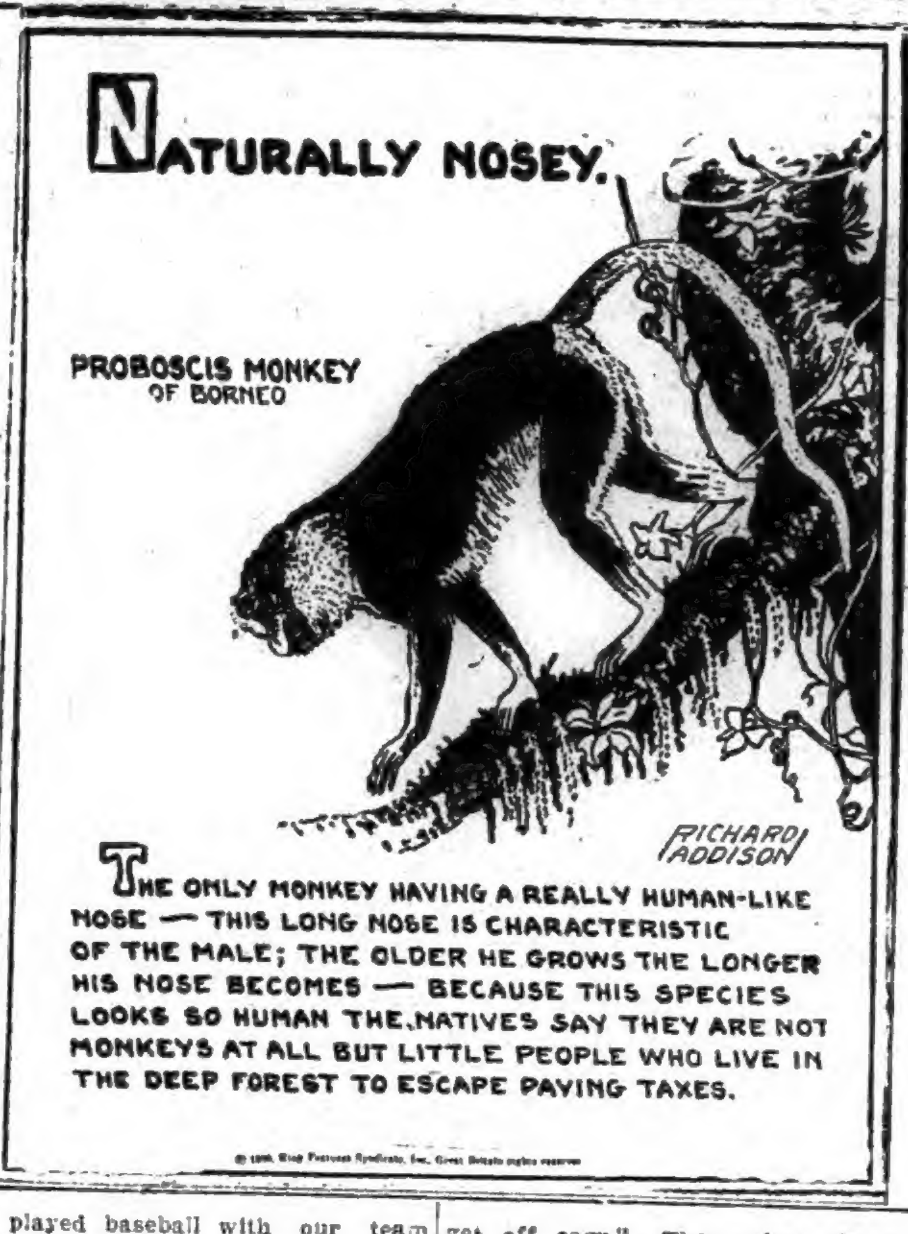
A Sad Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about a sad accident that happened not far from here last week. Two boys went to a small lake to look at a new rowboat. One of the boys took a shotgun with him. He got in the boat to try it out and when he got out he dragged the gun over the edge of the boat. It went off and killed him. If the other boy had been a foot closer it would have killed him, too. This boy played baseball with our team not long ago.

Nobody should be careless with guns. They are too dangerous. I hope the Wide Awakes will all be careful when they go hunting.

JAMES SNEED, age 12.
Hiattville, Kansas.

CURIOUS CREATURES By Richard A. Addison



THE ONLY MONKEY HAVING A REALLY HUMAN-LIKE NOSE — THIS LONG NOSE IS CHARACTERISTIC OF THE MALE; THE OLDER HE GROWS THE LONGER HIS NOSE BECOMES — BECAUSE THIS SPECIES LOOKS SO HUMAN THE NATIVES SAY THEY ARE NOT MONKEYS AT ALL BUT LITTLE PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN THE DEEP FOREST TO ESCAPE PAYING TAXES.

Dog Saved A Man

Dear Uncle Jed: The man was in a forest looking for a tree. The man went too deep in the forest with his dog. In the forest was a bear. The bear was coming towards the man. The man was frightened. The man's name was Mr. Jackson. The dog jumped on the bear. The bear was frightened and ran away. The dog's name was Buster. He was brown and black. The man thanked his dog and gave him a new collar. The man took him home and gave him a bone. The dog was a hunting dog. The man found him in the woods. The man lived on the farm. It was a very big farm. He was living with a man. He liked the man very much.

The Apples

Dear Uncle Jed: A man was walking through the woods by the name of Mr. Smith. He was carrying a peck of apples over his shoulder. He lived far away from the store where he got them. He was very tired, so he fell asleep. Mr. Smith put his apples beside him and slept. When he fell asleep he forgot he had to hurry home because he had company. When he got up he saw his apples were gone. Mr. Smith didn't know what to do. He looked all around but he didn't see the apples. He got tired of looking for the apples, so Mr. Smith walked home. On his way he saw Mr. Jones carrying a peck of apples. Mr. Smith said, "I will carry them for you if you will give me half of them." Mr. Jones said alright. Mr. Jones forgot about the apples and went into the house and said goodbye to Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith was so glad that he forgot about the apples. And now Mr. Smith has the peck of apples and went home.

Bad Chee Chee

Dear Uncle Jed: I have often read the Wide Awake Circle and have enjoyed it very much. This being my first letter. I wish to tell you about our bad rooster, whose name is Chee Chee. Chee Chee is a very pretty red rooster, but very naughty. The minute we let him out to the other end of the street he runs. There he joins the neighbor's flock of hens. They have a red rooster, which you might think was his twin; makes it difficult for us to tell the difference when bedtime comes. Now we keep him locked up in the chicken coop because he is to be our Christmas dinner.

Italy.

Dear Uncle Jed: In school we are studying Italy. It is a very interesting country to visit. While we are studying Italy we are trying to learn why we and all the world love Italy. Italy raises many olives. It raises more olives than any other country in Europe. Italians love art and music. In Rome is a great church. The name of this church is St. Peter's cathedral. It is the most beautiful church in the world. It is also the largest. If you were to go to Europe would you visit Italy?

Mr. Bob's Bad Luck.

Dear Uncle Uncle Jed: One warm afternoon my brother and I decided to go on a hike. We took the dog, Bob, along with us. We noticed many nice things such as the leaves with so many bright colors.

We didn't get very far, when all of a sudden, Bob sprang up and ran as fast as his legs could carry him. At first we did not know what he was running after, when until we saw something of a rusty color which was moving. We came nearer and found that it was a woodchuck. Bob tried very hard to get him. He ran around a bush after him and somehow got a hold of his fur on the back. He opened his mouth to bark with delight and the wodchuck got away and ran into a hole nearby. Bob was very disappointed.

A Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: My teacher read a story to us in school and I'm going to write about it. I will call it The Gossiper. There was once an old lady, who was always gossiping, she would tell all her business and everybody else's business to every one she met. At last every one was getting tired of it and every day there were more people that would go and report her to the judge. At last the judge sent for her. He said to her, "I will give you two tasks to do. Your first task will be to take a bag of feathers out to an open field and let all the feathers blow out and then bring the empty bag to me." The old woman laughed and said to every one, "Oh, that is easy. If my second task is like that I will get off easy." Then when she returned with the empty bag the judge said, "come back tomorrow, I will give you your other task." The next day when she returned he said, "Now take the empty bag and go to the field and gather up every single feather that you let blow yesterday." The old lady replied, "Oh, but I cannot do that; it is impossible." So the judge said, "Well, your stories are like that; you tell things about people and they fly everywhere and can never be gathered back." So after giving her some advice, he said, "If you will promise me to never gossip about people again I will let you go this time." The old lady said, "Oh, yes, I promise."

My Kitten.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you a letter about my kitten. One day a truck drove into the yard. I heard something mewing; it sounded like a kitten. I put on my coat and hat and went out to see what was the matter.

I thought the truck had run over one of our cats. I looked all around but I could not see anything. Then I looked under the corn crib and saw a little kitten.

I got it and took it in the house and showed it to my mother and put it under the stove. It was all wet and muddy. It was a maltese kitten. It was very playful and affectionate. It liked to get in my lap and roll around and purr. We call it Malta.

Coffee

Dear Uncle Jed and The Wide Awakes: Coffee is the seed of a small tree. The world's supply of coffee is produced chiefly by the species of tree which was originally a native of Abbyssinia and cultivated in Arabia. The Liberian coffee tree is cultivated to a certain extent. The different varieties of coffee are named according to the region where it is grown and to a very large extent indicate the flavor. Important places and kinds include Mocha, Java, La Guayra, Santos, Rio, etc.

Names, as Mocha or Java have been applied to inferior coffee, but this has been stopped by the United States government.

A coffee extract is also used but is not as important as the coffee bean is. The popularity of coffee is due largely to the fact that, like tea, it contains a mild stimulant.

Coffee is cultivated extensively in the tropics, Brazil being the greatest producer. States in Brazil producing much coffee include, Sao Paulo, Rio de Janiero, Minos Geraes, and Espirito Santo. Much coffee is grown in the mountains of northwestern South America, Central America, and the West Indies. Coffee is grown in Java and other parts of East Indies as well as parts of Arabia, Africa and Australia.

Two beans are usually combined in each red coffee berry. In the dry method the berries are dried, separated, and cleaned. In the wet method the berries are soaked and removed by machinery and cleaned. Coffee is roasted before use. (Some people like it roasted more than others). Coffee is little adulterated, but there are many substitutes such as roasted barley, chickory, etc.

Coffee should not be taken by young people as it is harmful to our system.

At Beach Pond

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story hoping you and the Wide Awake circle will enjoy it. Four years ago my mother, three sisters, one brother, his friends, my aunty, her sons and I went camping at Beach pond. We rented a cottage down near the water. As soon as I got there I asked my brother to take me for a boat ride and he said that he would. We came back about half an hour later. We made my mother and aunty go for a boat ride, too. When we came back my mother said she would never ride again in a boat cause she was frightened.

We went to a store right near us at least four times a day. When we would go they would all ask me what I'd want. I would get a couple of boxes of crackerjack and candy. They all called me crackerjack and still do.

We would go in swimming every morning and then go blueberrying later in the day. Sometimes we would go in a boat and fish. I caught many a fish but they were so small I had to throw them back in the water.

We took many a picture while we were there, and now when we look at them it makes us laugh and say, "Those were the good old days."

My Dream

My Dear Uncle Jed: One night, after an unusually hard day's work, I went to bed very tired. This is what I thought I did: I was running along a little brook in the woods. It was spring and everything was green and pleasant to look at. Flowers were blooming and as I followed the bubbling little brook, I was as happy as could be. After a few minutes I thought I would sit down at a small curve in the brook. Suddenly I saw two tiny little pretty goldfish. I took off my shoes and stockings and went in and caught them, both with no trouble at all. I wondered how to get them home, so I wouldn't hurt them any. Then I had an idea. I took my shoe and filled it with water. In it I put the two fish. Soon I started for home, carefully carrying the shoe. I had gone a short distance when I happened to look back and saw a terrible looking genii coming towards me! "How dare you take my fish!" he yelled at me. I started to scream as he raised his hand to strike me when—my alarm clock went off.

A Narrow Escape

Dear Uncle Jed: My friends and I were out looking for nuts when we came to a field where there was a bull, but luckily he was tied up. On our way back the bull was untied near the fence. We stopped near the farmer's house and started planning another way home. One of my friends, older then the rest of us, said "Let's take this path to the well and through the woods," which came out on the state road. When we were on the state road a little way farther we saw a cow which we thought was a bull. We started running through the woods again and came out in a field not very far from my home. We promised my father we'd never go alone again and I guess we won't.

My Baby Sister

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a baby sister. She is one year old. She has brown curly hair and her name is Bernice. She knows how to say kitty. She likes to bury her face in its fur. We call it Mittens because of its paws. It is gray and white. It likes to play on my sister's and my back. We love her very much.

My Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: As I have not written for a long time, I hope you will enjoy this story. One day while I was walking in the woods, I came upon a cave under some tall briers. On the top of this cave was a small bird. Picking him up carefully I put him in a tree nearby. Finding the opening, which was very narrow, between two ragged stones, I forced myself through. Crawling slowly and cautiously I approached an opening. Coming closer I saw there was a table out of stone, and chairs also. A very queer thing was that there were many books here. Upon closer inspection, I saw that they were written in curious code. In the book cover was a small paper telling the meanings of these codes. I found out that the first word was Beware. Before getting further, I woke up and found it was only a dream. I was wishing I could have finished this exciting adventure.

Thanksgiving

Dear Uncle Jed: Thanksgiving day will be here soon. I am very glad because we are learning a lot of pretty songs and poems at school. The story of Thanksgiving is very interesting and I love to hear the teacher tell us about the Pilgrims and Indians. I think it is such a lovely holiday for we all have so much to be thankful for.

This is my second letter and I hope you will like it.

My First Buttonhole

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you another story, and I hope you will enjoy reading it.

My sister wished me to learn to make buttonholes and set me to work on the task. The buttonhole was large and the needle too fine for the thread. The longer I worked, the larger the buttonhole seemed to grow. My needle stuck in the cloth and would not come through. The thread came out of the needle, and the tears rolled down my cheeks. My hand shook but at last I threaded the needle. Still I sat there trying to see the stitches through my tears. When I had finished the buttonhole, sister said it looked like a "pig's eye."

I shall never forget my misery when I made my first buttonhole.

Crossing Lights Again Fail

The autoists were fooled again by the signal lights at the Eighth street crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad Saturday evening. Since the installing of this new electric signalling system nearly a year ago these lights have given the motorists a considerable amount of trouble for on several occasions the light would flash without a train in sight. On one occasion last winter, boys coasting down Fifth street hill on a piece of corrugated iron made a contact so that it would flash the lights, confusing the autoists. Saturday night the police were notified and they in turn sent word to the officials of the railroad company who had the signals repaired but it went wrong again during the night. Again they were repaired and are working smoothly once more.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Coscoran

The life of Mrs. Mary Murphy Coscoran came to a peaceful close Sunday afternoon at 1:50 o'clock at her home, 33 Prospect street, after failing health for nearly a year which became serious Wednesday of the past week. Mrs. Coscoran was born in County Cork, Ireland, and came to this country about 60 years ago, and most of her life was spent as a resident of Greeneville. She was united in marriage at St. Mary's church by the Rev. Daniel Mullen. She was a devoted member of St. Mary's Memorial church. Mrs. Coscoran is the last member of her immediate family. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James McGarity and one son, Michael Coscoran, both of this city, and several nephews and nieces of which Brother Pacomias, an Xavarian brother who is stationed at Baltimore, Md., is one. Mrs. Coscoran was a kind and loving mother, a very kind neighbor and was always ready to assist and aid anyone in time of trouble. She possessed a kind and lovable disposition and was admired by all with whom she came in contact. Her place will be deeply missed by the members of her family. TWO SUMMONED TO COURT AFTER SMASH ON BRIDGE

Harry Smith of No. 44 Church street was slightly injured about 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, when two machines were in collision on the bridge over the Yantic river on the old New London Turnpike west of the Norwich Town green. He has cuts on the forehead and cheek.

Charles J. Stecewicz, 22, of this city and Robert W. Sterry, 32, of Norwich Town, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, were the drivers of the machines. The bridge on which the accident occurred is a narrow one, there being just enough room for two machines to pass with some difficulty.

The running boards and fenders on the left sides of both machines, which were travelling in opposite directions, were considerably damaged, but with the exception of Smith the occupants were not injured, only receiving a shaking up. Riding with Sterry besides Smith was Alexander Kaminsky of Uncas-on-Thames.

The collision was checked up by State Police Officer Arthur Kathe of Groton barracks, who arrested both drivers on a charge of failure to grant the right of way. The two men are to appear in the city court this (Monday) morning.

MURDERED JEWELRY SALESMAN FORMERLY NORWICH BOY

Nathan A. Sachs, 45, a diamond salesman of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose body was found Saturday in his room in a Springfield, Mass., hotel, where he had been shot by thieves, was a former Norwich boy and the family was known here as Sachnowitz, according to information given Sunday by his local acquaintances.

He was the son of Rabbi and Mrs. Benjamin Sachnowitz, who lived at 18 North Thames street and his father was rabbi of the Brothers of Joseph synagogue. The slain man at one time had a jewelry store on Franklin street and also on Main street, where the Kies Company shoe store is now, but left here for Brooklyn, N. Y., about 25 years ago, and went into business on Maiden lane, New York.

Sachs came to the Hotel Charles late Friday night and had a room on the tenth floor, where he was found late Saturday afternoon. He had been shot twice through the abdomen with a .38 calibre revolver and had also been slugged over the right temple. Robbery was indicated as the motive when a jewelry pouch which he carried inside his clothing by a chain around his neck was found slit open and empty. Two watches and about $25 in money in his pockets had not been taken.

An elevator operator reported that Sachs went to his room about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Fifteen minutes later, two men took the elevator from the same floor, and reaching the lobby, rushed out the exit into Main street. A short time later, a maid walking through the corridor of the 10th floor observed that the door to Sachs' room was slightly ajar. Looking in, she saw bloodstains on the bathroom walls and notified officials of the hotel. John F. Kelly, assistant manager, investigated and found Sachs slumped over a chair in the bathroom. He had been shot twice at close quarters.

At their home 228 Beach 149th street, Brooklyn, Mrs. Sachs said that her husband left on a trip Monday and was carrying jewelry valued at more than $10,000 with him. She had expected him home Friday. His business address was 9-13 Maiden lane, New York.

It was understood here that Nathen was the youngest of three brothers in the family. Neither of his parents is living.

DISCOVER ATTEMPTED BURGLARY AT PRINTING SHOP ON BATH STREET

Thieves apparently failed in an attempt to secure loot in what appears to have been an attempted break into the building occupied by The House of Corey, printers, No. 15 Bath street, either Saturday or Sunday evening. A pane of glass in a door in the rear was broken in, but when Officer Patterson discovered it Sunday evening the door was locked. Sergeant Matthew Delaney, who was on duty at the desk at police headquarters, notified Herbert H. Corey, the proprietor, of the break.

According to Mr. Corey, who took an inventory of the stock, it is his opinion that the thief might have entered the building through the door by putting his hand through the break in the pane of glass and then releasing the lock. As far as he knew, Mr. Corey told the police that nothing had been taken from the printing rooms. There is a possibility, however, that a quantity of casting metal used in linotype machines, may have been stolen, but this fact will not be ascertained until today (Monday) when the employe who handles it is interrogated.

A filing case in the building, according to Mr. Corey, was found tipped over. It contained papers and other material. Whether this was done by the thieves or employes just before closing time is also a matter of conjecture. Mr. Corey reported that the building was closed Saturday afternoon at the close of business, and that no cash was left there.

Three other breaks took place Saturday evening, one at the home of Andrew J. Young, No. 36 Williams street, which was reported unsuccessful by the police, and another at the Eliza Huntington Home, 99 Washington street, where $12 in cash was secured. At both places the thieves entered the buildings through windows in the second story, a ladder which had been left outside the building being used at the Huntington home.

A third break was at the home of Charles Jacobson, 105 Washington street, near the Huntington home, and it is believed the same thief was responsible for both. Here the thief got about $1.50 in cash. Mr. Jacobson was at home listening to the radio at the time, it is understood, and heard a noise, but thought it was static from the radio set.

All three of the Saturday night breaks took place between 6:30 and 9 o'clock and it is believed by the police that the thief started at the Young house on Williams street and then shifted his activities to the lower end of Washington street.

LECTURER SHOWED LIFE UNDER BERMUDA WATERS

Students of Connecticut college were led under Bermuda waters Friday afternoon by Miss Gloria Hollister when she delivered an informal lecture in the gymnasium of Connecticut college at New London, and showed slides and motion pictures of the work which she has been doing. Miss Hollister, an alumna of Connecticut college, is one of the 11 members of the staff of the New York Geographical society which has been exploring underwater forms of life for the past two years under the direction of the noted scientist, Dr. William Beebe.

To introduce her subject, With Beebe in Bermuda, Miss Hollister showed the location of Nonsuch island, off the coast of Bermuda, where the staff has been carrying on its explorations and discoveries. Nonsuch has been granted to the society and Dr. Beebe by the parliament of England.

In order to catch specimens for study, large nets are spread in the waters to catch the fish. Certain of the catch are placed in glass aquariums where they are closely watched and studied. By careful observation day and night, many important discoveries have been made. Certain of the highly colored fish which are caught, are drawn by the artists of the staff, then handed over to other members who describe them in writing. Next they are dissected in order to find, in many cases, the type of food the fish feed upon. Last of all, they are handed over to Miss Hollister to be put through her own particular invention, which makes the fish transparent, and thus shows the skeletal system. Last summer a red dye was discovered which affected only the bony part of the fish, and thus made the skeletal system even more easy to study.

Miss Hollister's slides showed varied types of fish and plants which are found under the Bermuda waters. To a northern audience, all these fish were strange, and seemed odd because of their remarkably high coloring. The lecturer also showed a motion picture of the diving process by which members of the staff can observe under water.

Miss Hollister was introduced by Dr. Pauline Dederer, head of the zoology department. In the course of her lecture, Miss Hollister stated that it was Dr. Dederer who was responsible for the work she had done under Dr. Beebe. For it was she who advised Miss Hollister to take up such zoological work as she is now doing, when the lecturer was still a student at Connecticut college, and Dr. Dederer was her faculty adviser.

ESCAPED CONVICT TELLS OF SOVIET PRISON CAMP LIFE

Alexander Grube Says That 20,000 Political Prisoners Perished in Penal Colonies During His Nine-Month Incarceration—Overwork, Insufficient Food and Ill Treatment Were Blamed For the Heavy Death Toll—Convicts Who Refused to Work Were Executed—The Treasury Yesterday Issued Regulations Against the Importation of Convict Made Goods

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—The treasury promulgated regulations against the importation of convict made goods today while a witness was telling the house communist investigating committee how prisoners fare in soviet camps.

The regulations require importers and shippers to show that importations from all countries are not produced by convict labor.

Russian goods have figured in several recent hearings at which the treasury was asked to bar certain products, but in announcing the regulations today Assistant Secretary Lowman said they were "not directed against Russia but against everybody." They were issued under a law which requires importers to post bond and submit a certificate of origin showing unpaid convicts did not manufacture the articles.

Speaking in broken English, Alexander Grube, who served two years in a soviet prison camp and escaped nine months ago, said 20,000 political prisoners perished in penal colonies during his incarceration. Overwork, insufficient food and ill treatment were blamed by him for the heavy death toll.

From long before dawn until hours after night had fallen, he said, the convicts worked without compensation in the hope of cutting three cubic meters of lumber so they might receive an extra half loaf of black bread. Those who refused to work, he said, were executed.

Grube, who has taken out American citizenship papers, was followed by Professor Thomas S. McWilliams of Western Reserve university.

McWilliams said the "red army" of 735,000 men was the finest trained in Europe and that it was being increased as fast as revenues would permit.

On his recent tour of Russia, the professor said he frequently was asked when the "revolution would break out in America."

Representatives of the Baltimore and Philadelphia police are among the witnesses slated for Tuesday's hearings.

BODY OF SLAIN MAN WAS DISMEMBERED AFTER DEATH

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—The dismembered legs and the torso of a man who probably was slain early yesterday were found today in widely separated parts of the city, providing police with a gruesome murder mystery.

The torso, severed from the head, was found in a trunk floating on the flood tide of the Hudson river at the foot of West 58th street. The legs were found in a cheap and battered suitcase in front of a vacant store on the lower East Side, a short block from the East river.

A suitcase containing various articles of clothing with a few identifying marks was reclaimed at a laborers' hotel by detectives with a baggage check found with the torso, and a shirt with a laundry mark inked in the collarband was found stuffed in the suitcase wit hthe legs. No other clues to the dead man's identity were discovered.

An autopsy showed the man had been drinking heavily before he died and established that the body was dismembered after death. No bullet wounds or other marks of violence were found.

MERGER TO CREATE NEW YORK'S 4TH LARGEST BANK

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Plans for New York's fourth largest bank—a billion dollar institution to be formed by the merger of four units—went forward today with the announcement that details of the consolidation were being worked out and that J. Herbert Case, now chairman of the New York Federal Reserve bank, would head the new financial giant.

The banks to be merged are the Manufacturers Trust Co., Bank of the United States, Public National Bank and Trust Co., and International Trust Co. Their latest statements show total resources of roughly $993,000,000 and deposits of $700,000,000, so that the new bank will be exceeded in size only by the Chase National bank, the National City bank and the Guaranty Trust Co.

STRIKING TEXTILE WORKERS HUNGRY AND SUFFERING

"There are hunger and suffering existing among the textile workers and their families at Danville, Va.," he said. "Men, women and children are without food, adequate clothing and shelter.

"This is the sacrifice they are making for the cause of trade unionism, for decent wages, the exercise of an American right to join a union and to bargain collectively.

"Shall they be starved into submission? Shall children suffer and perhaps die from hunger and lack of clothing?"

SENDS BILL OF $1,987 FOR "SHADOWING" HUSBAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—A bill of $1,987 for "shadowing" was placed before City Court Justice Wendel today by John J. McIntyre, against Leonie Kruse, Chicago Civic Opera company singer, and Dudley Field Malone, her counsel.

McIntyre said the money was due him for shadowing Miss Kruse's husband, Lawrence Wolf, tenor in the Chicago company, in the spring of 1929. The couple later were reconciled, he said.

The detective said the shadowing took place in Hartford and New Haven, Conn., and in Boston.

Miss Kruse, the court papers said, is the daughter of the Rev. C. J. Kruse of Petoskey, Mich.

MAY BE SHAKE-UP IN THE SPANISH MINISTRY

MADRID, Nov. 24—(AP)—Reports were current tonight that the cabinet meeting tomorrow would discuss the possibility of a shake-up in the ministry as an aftermath to the recent strike disorders over Spain.

It is said that General Enrique Marzo, minister of the interior whose handling of the strike troubles was criticized in the press, would be one of those resigning. Elopoldo Motos, now minister of public improvements, was considered his likely successor, with Motos himself being succeeded by the minister of commerce, Luis Rodriguez Viguri.

SPAIN SEEKING RECAPTURE OF MAJOR RAMON FRANCO

MADRID, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Civil guards along all the roads leading out of Madrid were peering into every automobile, poking bayonets into every load of hay—for Major Ramon Franco, the idol of Spain, had escaped from his cell in an old prison on the outskirts of Madrid.

Ramon Franco is Spain's most famed aviator. He flew to Brazil in 1926, and last year he tried it again, came down in the ocean, and was lost for a week off the Azores.

A few weeks ago they threw him into jail because he had written for the newspapers certain political articles of which the government did not approve. Even from his cell, it was charged, he continued the objectionable writings and on Friday he was sentenced to serve eight months in prison for alleged seditious utterances.

Today, while police were watching the homes of his relatives and friends and guarding all airports to prevent Franco's escape from the country by airplane, Premier Berenguer himself talked about the escape.

"I can't understand it," the premier said. "We had to punish him but we didn't really consider his offenses so very terrible and his punishment would have been light. Now he throws all that away by breaking his word of honor not to escape. I'm awfully sorry he was so foolish, but now of course it is our duty to recapture him."

PROCEEDINGS AT THE INDIAN ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—After a week of speeches, the Indian round table conference today began the task of translating into the realities of a federal India the hopes and aspirations voiced by all shades of Indian opinion represented.

The federal relations committee upon which the brunt of work falls met today for the first time and its first decision was that the 32 members originally named were insufficient. The membership was increased to 49, including all members of the British government delegation.

All the British members of the original committee were from the house of lords. As legislation resulting from the conference must be approved by the house of commons, it was decided Prime Minister MacDonald's conservative and liberal colleagues at the round table should sit at all sessions of the committee.

LADY INVERCLYDE LOSES HER CLAIM FOR ALIMONY

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Lord Inverclyde today won the first round of court litigation brought by Lady Inverclyde for annulment of their marriage. Lady Inverclyde was formerly June Howard Tripp, an actress known on the stage as "June."

The hearing today involved temporary alimony and was contested by the husband on the ground the English courts were without jurisdiction. His contention was upheld by the court, which dismissed the petitions for the decree and alimony.

Counsel for Lord Inverclyde advanced a purported prenuptial agreement which specified the marriage was to be governed under the laws of Scotland where the couple lived.

They were married March 21, 1929. Before leaving for Paris recently, Lady Inverclyde said she planned to return to the American stage.

DISCUSSION AT GENEVA DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A discussion of the wartime potentialities of peacetime commercial aircraft, with pointed reference by France to German prowess in the air, disturbed the calm of the preparatory disarmament commission today.

The discussion arose over a proposal to insert in the draft convention a provision for an annual report by the contracting governments on the number of commercial planes and dirigibles in their territory. The proposal was finally adopted without a negative vote, the United States and Germany abstaining.

Rene Massigli, French delegate, announced his country considered civil vaiation as a most important factor in offensive power, asserting civil aviation has been developing widely in an offensive direction and military aviation in a defensive direction.

CONSERVATIVES OBSTRUCTIVE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Obstructive tactics not unlike the filibuster which sometimes blocks progress at Washington are to be employed by the conservative party in the house of commons, it appeared today.

Prime Minister MacDonald announced that a vote would be taken Thursday on a conservative motion of censure for the government in regard to its imperial conference policy, but before that the game of blocking had begun.

The obstructionists succeeded in wasting a lot of time in technical argument with the speaker on trivial matters.

STAMFORD MOVIE MANAGER ARRESTED FOR GRAND LARCENY

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 24.—(AP)—William Brooker, 38, of 346 Summer street, manager of one of the city's largest movie houses, was arrested tonight for New York police on a charge of grand larceny.

Brooker, who has been sought since he disappeared from his home in New York city last April, had been indicted in the Bronx on a specific charge of misappropriating $600 on real estate transactions. He waived extradition and returned to New York tonight with police from that city.

After disappearing from his home in the Bronx, police say, Brooker went to Texas where he engaged in the theatre business. He has been in Stamford since last July.

WOMAN HAD PEELED 19,175 BUSHELS POTATOES

ADEL, Iowa, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Thirty-five years ago Samantha Burns came to the Dallas county home and was given a job peeling potatoes.

She peeled a bushel and a half every day until her death, never missing a day, the home officials said. For the 12,784 days that would make 19,175 1-2 bushels, or enough to fill 32 freight cars.

Incapacitated and with death drawing nigh, the aged woman worried about her task, asking:

"Are the potatoes being peeled as well as I did them?"

Death Toll From The European Storms 35

Hundreds Injured and Many Thousands Are Homeless—Enormous Property Damage

LONDON, Nov. 24—(AP)—A gale still howled across Europe tonight and driving rains pelted a region already stricken by floods and hurricanes which had taken at least thirty-five lives, injured hundreds, made thousands homeless and wrought enormous property damage.

Thirty-one men were lost when the steamer Louise Leonhardt went down in the Elbe esutary in Germany. Three were killed as a hurricane swept through Vienna. At least one person was drowned as the rivers of France poured over the countryside.

In England—or off its coast—vessels scurried to the assistance of two Greek steamers driven inshore by the gale, but both ships, the Triton and the Taxiarchis, worked themselves out of danger under their own power.

In Spain the storm was less severe but bad weather held the German seaplane, DO-X, at anchor, preventing a flight to Lisbon.

Railroads were halted in Bavaria and many other regions because trees and telephone poles were flung across the tracks. Telegraph wires were down in several places. Crops were ruined and cattle and horses drowned by hundreds.

The ninety-mile gale was bitter cold and the homeless suffered also from lack of food. The Red Cross was in the field early starting its relief campaign.

Paris put its emergency pumps to work early as the Seine crept closer to the tops of the flood walls which run the length of the ocity. Tug boats and barges in the Seine piled one upon another as the torrent swept under and past them.

In the Lake Constance region where Switzerland looks across at Germany, the Dornier plant, where the DO-X was built, and the hangar at Friedrichshafen, where the Graf Zeppelin lay, the wind caused heavy damage.

PTOMAINE POISONING FATAL TO MRS. ALICE HARRIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Harris, 42, wife of Sam H. Harris, theatrical producer, and sister-in-law of George M. Cohan, died today in a sanitarium of a cerebral hemorrhage following an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

Mrs. Harris was taken ill last week and apparently had recovered when she suddenly became unconscious Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Harris was born in Brookline, Mass., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Nolan. With two sisters, Agnes and Lola, she started her stage career at an early age, appearing in musical comedies produced by Cohan and Harris. The last of these were "Little Johnny Jones," "George Washington Junior" and "Honeymooners." During the run of the last named show she became the bride of Harris, while her sister Agnes was married to Cohan.

ARCHERY FEAT WITH RABBITS AS TARGETS

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Two arrows from the bow of Paul Sparks of Toledo had found their mark in two rabbits.

"Let some smart shotgun artist try to tie that," or words to that effect, mused Paul as he strode homeward with his bag and medieval arms.

"Here, you can't hunt without a license, even with those Indian howitzers," said an authoritative voice. "Come with me."

"Not much left," mused Paul as he left. "But I hit 'em. Let some gun shooter try to tie that."

WOMAN CLAIMS $250,000 FOR BEATING BY WEALTHY MAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—A jury in supreme court late today was unable to decide whether Miss Buehla Troy, 27, had received a $250,000 beating at the hands of John A. Hoagland, wealthy powder magnate and was locked up for the night with orders to deliver a sealed verdict in the morning.

Miss Troy charges Hoagland beat her during a party starting in an Atlantic City night club in 1928. She admitted she took a few drinks, while Hoagland charges her injuries were caused by herself while she was intoxicated

T[illegible]y by John Ç. Wes-[illegible] Process Server, at Magistrates' Investigation in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—A process server who acted as assistant district attorney for eight years in the women's division of magistrates courts today testified that he accepted $20,000 in bribes during that time for aiding in having some 600 cases thrown out of court.

The process server, John C. Weston, gave his testimony at the first day of open hearings in the investigation of the magistrates courts ordered by the appellate division of the supreme court and which has been proceeding behind closed doors for two months.

Weston said he got from $25 to $175 for every case he allowed to be dismissed, receiving the money from some 21 attorneys who practice in women's court where case involving prostitution, petty larceny (generally shoplifting), and wayward minors are tried, and from two policemen who frequently brought cases into that court.

Existence of a so-called vice ring which exacted tribute from prostitutes became public some time ago, bringing into public notice such figures as "The Dove," who allegedly enticed the women into traps set by police and shyster lawyers. Weston today explained the procedure.

He said the practice in the court was confined largely to six lawyers one of them now dead.

Five weeks after he was assigned as acting district attorney, which was in 1921, he said he was approached by Alexander Lang, the deceased lawyer, and offered $25 for every case of Lang's he would be lenient in prosecuting. He accepted.

The price set by Lang was standard for all his eight years there, he said, although sometimes it ran as high as $175 where there were several co-defendants. The other lawyers with whom he "did business" he named as Emanuel Busch, Abraham Karp, Mark Alter, and Philip Rusgo and Joseph Aronstein, the latter two partners. The policemen from whom he accepted money for dismissing cases in which they were the complaining witnesses he named as James Quinlinan and William O'Connell.

Weston said he made out but one report to the district attorney's office during his eight years in women's courts, that his work was never supervised, that he went to the office only to get his pay checks and for two or three staff conferences, at all of which he was late. And that when he finally decided to resign in May, 1929, after Magistrate Norris had told him complaints had been made as to his work, he was carried on the payroll for six months without doing any work.

TO RID WATERWAYS OF N. Y., N. J. AND CONN. OF POLLUTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A committee headed by State Senator John Knight today agreed upon the terms of a bill for creation of a tri-state commission to rid the waterways of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut of pollution.

The bill provides for a four-member body to represent New York. It will be introduced in the assembly early in January. The proposed act will be considered at a meeting in Connecticut tomorrow and New Jersey next week.

Under its terms the three states would prepare a treaty for ratification in the legislature of each and by the federal government. The New York bill will ask $50,000 for its share in the work of the commission.

DECISION ADVERSE TO PICTURE DISTRIBUTORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Ten of the largest motion picture distributors and 32 film boards of trade which distribute 98 per cent of the country's motion picture films were held by the supreme court today guilty of violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

In two cases attacking the uniform contract and credit system enforced by them, the court, in opinions by Justice McReynolds, to which no dissent was announced, said corporations which normally should be competitors had entered into unlawful agreement to act jointly in dealing with exhibitors.

STATE PRISON TESTIMONY OPENS AT SPECIAL COMMISION HEARING

ETHERSFIELD, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Testimony ranging from a general criticism of the Connecticut penal system to a detailed description of conditions as observed by former employes at the institution, was heard by a special commission which today began an inquiry into the administration of the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield.

The commission, of which Homer S. Cummings, former national democratic chairman, is head, today heard the prison administration criticized by a former employe and defended by another. It received a series of statements, totaling 35 typewritten pages, from Miss Genevieve Cowles, New York and Farmington artist, describing her observations and experiences at the institution while she was engaged in painting a mural in the prison chapel.

In addition the commission received from Rev. Dr. Edwin Knox Mitchell, president of the Hartford Council of Churches, and Rev. Dr. Fletcher D. Parker, a member of the council, a statement containing several recommendations for improving the prison administration.

Besides Miss Cowles and the two representatives of the Hartford Council of Churches the commission today heard Benton McIntyre, a former guard at the prison, and George M. Patterson, former deputy warden. McIntyre was summarily discharged November 13 by Warden Charles S. Reed for alleged disloyalty to the administration. Patterson, an employe at the prison since 1920, was also discharged last January following the escape from the institution of Leo Landry, Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, who were later captured in Florida, following the fatal shooting of a detective in that state.

Rev. Dr. William H. Smith, pastor of Christ church, of Schenectady, N. Y., whose charges against the prison administration contained in a recent newspaper article, resulted in a demand by the prison board of directors for an inquiry, is scheduled to appear before the commission at 10

BANKING CONDITIONS SOUND THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

Satisfactory Reports Are Being Telegraphed Daily to the United States By State Commissioners of Banking—Recent Failures Have Strengthened the General Position By Elimination of Weak Spots—Many of the Suspended Banks Closed Temporarily As a Protection of Depositors and Were At No Time Insolvent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Sound and satisfactory banking conditions throughout the country generally were reported today in statements telegraphed to the United States daily by state commissioners of banking.

Recent failures were attributed to local causes and were said by the banking officials to have strengthened the general position by elimination of weak spots.

The situation in North Carolina, where there were several recent failures was said by John Mitchell, chief bank examiner, to have resulted from a purely local situation, made acute by the investment banking house failure.

Out of the situation there, he predicted, "should come considerable impetus to the strong tendency already existent in the state toward sounder and more conservative banking."

There have been a few small failures in Tennessee, said D. D. Robertson, superintendent of banks, "due largely to heavy withdrawals occasioned by failure of large banks in this and adjoining states affiliated with Caldwell interests."

No further bank trouble is expected in Kentucky, Banking Commissioner O. S. Denny said. Most all of the state banks there are in good healthy condition, he announced, and conditions in Louisville are wonderfully improved.

That several of the banks which closed in Arkansas have already reopened, and most of the others except those connected with one chain, will do so, was the statement of Walter E. Taylor, banking commissioner.

"Many of the suspended banks," he continued, "closed temporarily as a protection of depositors, and were at no time insolvent."

"Banking as a whole in Illinois is on a sound foundation," said the state auditor, Oscar Nelson, "and depositors have no cause for alarm." Bank depositors should continue their banking business as usual, he continued, as suspensions there have come about mainly from alarm caused by false rumors rather than from weakened banks.

The general banking situation in Alabama "appears to be improving." In California it was reported "fundamentally sound" and "moving forward with confidence in the future." There have been no failures in Connecticut, and there are "few weak spots" in that state.

"Florida state banking conditions are improved and gradually returning to normalcy," the state comptroller, Ernest Amos, said.

The general feeling among the business men and bankers of Georgia is "that we have our troubles behind us and not in front of us."

Nearly all of the banks in Iowa are "in better condition at this time than any period for the past ten years," the superintendent of banking, L. A. Andrew, wrote.

There has "not been a single failure in nearly four years" in Maine. They "do not look for much bank trouble in the future" in Minnesota. "No special cause for apprehension" was the word from Mississippi.

The banking situation in Nebraska was reported "vastly improved." Nevada "has had no actual bank failures for twenty years." From Oklahoma came word the banks were "never on a more sound and satisfactory basis than at this time." Conditions were reported "very nearly normal" in Virginia. The position of state banks in Washington was announced as "very sound."

DECISION COSTS GOVT. OVER $100,000,000 IN TAXES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A controversy rooted in ancient Spanish law was settled by the supreme court today with a consequent loss to the government of more than $100,000,000 in taxes.

The higest tribunal ruled that income from community property in Arizona, Louisiana, Texas and Washington may be reported for federal taxation by the husband wife separately.

It was a sweeping defeat for the government, which had contended such income must be reported in a single return by the husband alone.

It had pointed out that with the tax rate increasing in proportion to the extent of income its revenue would be much greater under the single return.

If it had won, government attorneys said, the treasury would be more than $100,000,000 richer through the collection of back taxes, filed in previous years by husband and wife separately.

The Loring mills employ several hundred operatives at Langley, Bath and Clearwater. The Clearwater Manufacturing company, at Clearwater, a bleaching and dyeing plant, will get business as the result of the resumption of operations, the Augusta Herald said, and several hundred persons there will be put to work.

NO CHANCE FOR THIS WAITER TO BECOME MOVIE DIRECTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—All his life Albert Richards had been a waiter. But at 30 years of age he became convinced that what the world really needed was a good motion picture director, and that he was it.

Five days in succession he visited the door of a movie magnate to fulfill his mission. Five times he was escorted from the premises.

"I sentence you to be a waiter and keep on being one," said the court. "The world needs good waiters much more than it does good motion picture directors."

SEN. BINGHAM TO DEMAND SHOW DOWN ON PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Two old-timers—proposals for beer and juryless trials—claimed the prohibition spotlight today for return engagements.

They came back today in three proposals to amend the Volstead act and a supreme court refusal to pass upon the constitutionality of trials without jury.

Two of the moves to permit the manufacture of beer were brewing within the ranks of organized labor. One will be sponsored by the American Federation of Labor itself, while a second will come from representatives of affiliated organizations, to be known as the National Labor Legislative Committee for Modification of the Volstead Act.

The third proposal came from Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut. He said he would demand a show down at the coming session on various prohibition modification measures and at the same time would sponsor a measure to permit the manufacture of four per cent beer.

As Blue stepped out and commanded the men in several cars and trucks to surrender, one of the automobiles bore down upon him and shot rang out from another.

Free Teeth Extraction to Poor

First Selectman Albert L. French, who has been busy since taking office studying the best methods of aiding the needy and unemployed, today announced a definite move to protect the general health of the more unfortunate by offering free teeth extractions. Dr. W. Blaine Oliver, a local dentist has generously offered his assistance in this work which will begin Monday, December 1, from 11 a. m. until noon and continue on Mondays until further notice. Persons seeking to take advantage of this service must first secure a signed slip from the selectmen for presentation to Dr. Oliver. A recent report to the school committee disclosed that there are many children in need of extractions whose parents apparently cannot afford to have this done at present, and a casual survey indicates that many adults are also in need of similar treatment. The action of the selectmen comes in noting the many ailments of the human body resulting from poor teeth. Dr. Oliver was connected with the U. S. Veterans' bureau in doing dental work for a number of years prior to about one year ago when he established an office here.

A delightful and well attended concert was given in the Model school auditorium this evening by the Willimantic Symphony orchestra, Robert C. Fletcher director and his son, Norman C. Bottomley and several of the passengers in his car testified that in turning into a driveway to the left of the street the woman failed to give a signal and that they were under the impression that she was about to make a right turn into Lewiston avenue. Police Officers Roderick Lariviere and Pierre Marrotte testified for the state. In the case of Leopold Rock of this city, charged with failure to record a change of residence with the state motor vehicle department, a fine of $2 and costs was imposed. Police Officer Ralph Burchnall made the arrest after the accused had been warned to notify the department of his removal from Broad to Church street a few weeks ago, according to testimony presented during the trial.

A harvest festival in observance of the Thanksgiving season is to be held in the Model school auditorium Tuesday forenoon under the auspices of the school assembly committee of the Willimantic State Normal school. (Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 24—An annual city budget for the ensuing fiscal year amounting to $213,155, a reduction of $45,450.14 from last year's budget was adopted, at the adjourned alderman's meeting held tonight. Drastic reductions ranging from $100 to $5,000 were made in various major departments and some items were omitted entirely, including the annual appropriation of $2,000 for the Visiting Nurse association, and two appropriations for $3.480 covering election and voting machine expenses. Three new items were added amounting to $2,500. These were $1,000 for spraying trees, $500 for the Veterans of Foreign wars annual state encampment to be held here next June and $1,000 for the fire pension fund. This last item represents a one-half division of the former police pension fund which was $2,000 in years past.

Major reductions are shown in the police, fire, streets and street lighting departments which have been cut $5,000 respectively. The sidewalks and gutters appropriation which was given as a total of $20,000 last year has been sub-divided into $12,000 for sidewalks and $5,000 for gutters, a net reduction of $3,000. W., appeared before the board of aldermen tonight to petition for the inclusion of a $500 item in the budget for the Veterans of Foreign Wars encampment to be held here next June. Mr. Lee said that on the day when the Trumbull trophy for safe flying would be awarded there would be about 100 airplanes in the city and a probable attendance for that event and the parade of 35,000 people. The post he said planned to raise about $3.000 toward the expenses.

The budget as presented was drawn up by the appropriations committee comprising Aldermen William E. Webber, chairman, John P. Carlsen and Louis C. Vegiard, who worked in conjunction with Mayor Walter R. King. During the business meeting Alderman C. A. Lamoreux called attention to a resolution specifying that all purchases of over $50 must be made with the approval of the purchasing committee and he went on record as voting against the paying of certain bills. The city treasurer was authorized to borrow $10,000 to defray current expenses. On motion of Alderman Eugene B. Lewis the council voted to accept ownership of a small strip of land on the Courtney estate at Hope and Ann streets over which a line of sewer pipes have been run.

Noted Newspaper Correspondent

"Winning the public's favor is no longer a matter of shouting from the housetops—today you must offer them something concrete. When I visited Reidsville and went through the LUCKY STRIKE plant, I found one explanation for the growth of LUCKY STRIKE. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the tobaccos is a splendid example of achievement. It is the new order of the day."

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Robert H. DANIELSON

OVER 400 PLAY PIED PIPER FOR WINDHAM CT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 24.— Throughout Windham county 430 persons cooperated with the County Farmers' association in putting out rat bait last Friday night in an effort to free the county of these pests insofar as may be possible. County Agent Raymond Wing said today that those who set out the bait have been requested to report on the results achieved within ten days. Early reports indicate that the bait was as effective as it was forecasted it would be. The poison the bait contains works with comparative slowness, two to four days elapsing before the rat that has banqueted dies. The great majority of rats die out of doors, seldom seeking to return to buildings where they have been in the habit of making their homes, though they do go back in some cases.

Fined For Improper Lamps

Fines of $5 and costs were imposed in the town court of Plainfield today on two men who were found driving cars in that town at the week end with faulty lighting equipment. They are the first to be caught in the campaign that state officers of the Danielson barracks have inaugurated to make it an expensive proposition for those who carelessly go about operating cars with only one headlight in working order, or with tail-lights not functioning. From garage men comes information to the effect that light bulbs for cars have been selling quite rapidly of late. It does seem that the objective of the campaign is being attained. What the state officers want is prope[illegible] [illegible] not a host of [illegible]

[illegible] were continued to straggle through Danielson today from the general direction of New Haven. Numbers of them proudly displayed Harvard pennants. It was regarded as an interesting fact in police circles that only one comparatively minor accident occurred in this territory, notwithstanding the exceptionally heavy traffic over the week end. Most of the drivers were stepping their cars along, too, out on the state highways, but driving with good judgment.

Just ahead of its final game of the season—with Putnam high school on the Quinebaug grounds Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock—Killingly high school's football squad is larger than it has been at any time during the season. Twenty-one names now appear on the squad roster. That holiday dinners may not be delayed for those who attend the holiday game has been advanced to 10 o'clock. It was originally scheduled for 10:30.

The early days of December will bring a trio of meetings for members interested in various phases of the work the Windham County Farmers' association is carrying on. December 2, in the evening at the school house, there is to be a dairymen's meeting at Windham. On the evening of Dec. 3 there is to be a similar meeting for dairymen hereabouts at Grange hall in Brooklyn. A. R. Merrill, of Storrs, will address these meetings, speaking on The New Dairy Program. County Agent Raymond Wing also will speak at these meetings, discussing the formation and carrying out of the plan. Dec. 4, there is to be a poultrymen's meeting in the evening at Warrenville. Roy Jones, extension poultryman from Storrs, will give two talks, one on Factors in Making a Poultry Farm Pay, the other, illustrated with slides, having to do with poultry activities in Europe, where Mr. Jones studied plants and methods the past summer.

Miss Emma F. Pilling voices the warning that is going out through Travelers' Aid organizations in various parts of the country that the unemployed should not drift from small communities like these into the large centers of population, and add to the burdens relief organizations in the city already are facing in feeding and sheltering those who are out of work. Difficulties are greater in urban centers than they will be in eastern Connecticut the coming winter, and the good advice of those who would fare forth to look for work to try nearer to home.

The suggestion is again received that something be said about the wisdom of making application for the renewal of automobile registrations as early as possible in December. Experiences of the last few years have demonstrated that it is difficult to get a registration promptly in the last few days of the year, so great is the rush. Last year numbers of cars in this town were out of service for several days because of delayed applications for registration renewals. The same situation is forecasted to arise this year.

Danielson people are greatly interested in the announcement that the wonderful new viaduct at Jewett City is due to be opened to traffic this week, possibly and appropriately on Thanksgiving day. The many of this community that so frequently drive through Jewett City have watched the construction of this viaduct with great interest, and are anxious to drive their cars over it.

The great bulk of the ample quantities of food that will go into the preparation of the fine Thanksgiving dinner to be served at the town farm Thanksgiving day will be the product of that farm. Poultry is kept there, quantities of vegetables are raised there each summer, and there is a herd of cows to furnish an abundant supply of milk and cream.

Pre-holiday shoppers went into action in Danielson today. Purveyors of foodstuffs benefitted most by this buying. Not in many years has it been possible to buy things for a Thanksgiving dinner, at such low prices as prevail this year on the more important things needed for the feast, and the supply of everything is abundant and of good quality.

Will sell at public auction at the public sign-post on the town hall building, in Danielson, Saturday, Nov. 29, at 2 o'clock p. m., one 1929 seven-passenger air-cooled Franklin sedan; one extra fine pair of team horses, weight about 2700 lbs., and three Oriental (Chinese) rugs, two of oval shape, about two feet by six feet, ane one parallelogram about eight feet by ten feet. Terms cash. Charles E. Ayer.—adv.

Having attended the Yale-Harvard football game at New Haven, Miss Harriet Airey and M. Durwood Morgan of New York came here to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Crosby.

The usual arrangements are going forward to make Thanksgiving a happy and bountiful holiday in institutions here and in nearby territory, the inmates being assured of good food and good cheer.

$5500 buys new 7-room house and garage; select neighborhood; $1,000 cash, balance on monthly payment plan. J. C. Witter, Tel. 659 or 311.—adv.

Eli J. Dagenais and a few friends with whom he hunts have taken three gray foxes to date this season. They will continue to hunt foxes throughout the winter season.

Schools throughout the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn will close Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving recess.

For one thing, the new sidewalks in number of streets in Danielson have been the means of causing numbers of persons to renew the beneficial practice of walking, now that they can do it more comfortably.

Charles Geer, chef at the state police barracks for a number of years, but who resigned some time ago, is to make his home in Danielson during the winter season.

PUTNAM

State and national officers of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and representative delegations from Webster and New London lodges were present Sunday at a good-fellowship session and meeting of the Putnam aerie of the order which was held at the Eagles' hall on Providence street. During the meeting plans for an intensive membership campaign were formulated together with plans for winter social activities. Among the state officials present were James A. Hickey of Ansonia, state president; John J. McGarry, of Putnam, state vice president and John L. Moran, state secretary. Representing the national body was William F. Kelly of Hartford, deputy auditor.

Aeronautics Course Soon

Director H. H. Ellis of the local trade school and E. S. Boynton, director of the bureau of vocational training of the state board of education were in Boston Saturday, where they visited the Boston trade school and visited the institution's aircraft department. During their survey and inspection of the equipment and methods of instruction employed in the aeronautics department of the Boston school, the Connecticut officials gleaned considerable information that will be useful to them in the establishment of the proposed aircraft department for the Putnam school. Director Ellis said this afternoon that plans for the institution of the new course are going forward rapidly. The state board of finance and control at a recent meeting favored the recommendation with its approval and all that remains for the present is the accumulation of the technical details that are necessary before the department can be opened.

James B. Colburn, well known resident of Phoenixville, died Sunday at the Day Kimball hospital following a brief illness. He was in his 42nd year. Mr. Colburn was born in Pomfret and had spent the greater part of his life in that town and in Eastford.

J. Dyer Potter, treasurer of the Cargill Trust company and chairman of the veterans' state aid fund of the Anslem Mayotte post, American Legion, was in Essex, Conn., yesterday attending a meeting of the American Legion state aid chairmen for the department of Connecticut. The meeting was called to order by State Chairman E. P. Armstrong and during the session many important measures concerning the fund were discussed. They were not made public however. Mr. Potter said today that the number of officials attending was unusually high and clearly depicted the state-wide interest being manifest at the present time in the disbursement of the veterans' relief fund.

Mrs. Doris Davies Lis, of Hartford was released last night in bonds of $50 for her appearance in justice court in Chaplin next Monday afternoon to answer to a charge of trespassing and breach of peace. She was arrested Sunday by state officers of Danielson barracks upon a complaint of Christopher Everett of Chaplin, who charged that the woman forcibly entered his home in an effort to possess furnishings which she claimed. Mrs. Lis and Everett, according to state police, have been legal opponents for some time, they appearing against one another in civil law suits tried in superior court on several occasions.

Only the installation of television apparatus at the state police barracks in Danielson can further enhance the efficiency standards of the department's system of communication at the present time. Since the station was wired with a tel-type printer, linking it with all other barracks in the state and with the motor vehicle department at Hartford, the number of minutes required to flash police news to cooperating points has been reduced by a great margin. The system was completed last week when telephone wires from the switchboard in the barracks office were cut through to the Putnam division. Sunday, an important message was filed with the police at Danielson. While it was being forwarded to other stations over the tel-type machine, two officers simultaneously relayed the information to police at Putnam and at Willimantic with the result that less than three minutes were required to complete the entire broadcast.

Conjecture caused last week when a Worcester newspaper announced that a prominent Webster, Mass. couple had filed intentions of marriage with Town Clerk Charles V. Chase of Thompson, was put at an end today when banns of marriage between James B. Bergin, Webster town clerk and prominent citizen, and Miss Lillian McGuinness were published. Town Clerk Chase of Thompson, when questioned concerning the filing of marriage intentions of the Webster couple, emphatically refused to disclose the contents of his records under any circumstances, stating that he had promised the principals he would regard the matter as strictly confidential and would not divulge it until those immediately concerned saw fit to do so.

DANIELSON'S NEW MASONIC TEMPLE WILL BE DEDICATED THIS EVENING

DANIELSON, Nov. 24.— An outstanding event of the week in Danielson will be the formal dedication of the new Masonic temple, Broad street, on Tuesday evening. The ceremonies will follow a supper to be served in the newly completed banquet hall at seven o'clock.

It is particularly pleasing to the members of Moriah lodge, one of the oldest in this section of New England, that the dedication of the building should come during the term of office of Attorney E. L. Darbie, grand master of the grand lodge of Masons in Connecticut. Attorney Darbie is a resident of Danielson and a member of the lodge. He will conduct the dedication ceremony, assisted by other grand officers who will come here from various parts of the state. A large number of visitors from other lodges will attend.

The Masonic temple formerly was the Westfield Congregational parsonage. It has been the property of Masonic bodies here for a considerable time past. For months past additions, changes, all in the way of improvements, have been underway. In the large new addition at the rear of what was the original structure are the lodge rooms and banquet hall. The lodge rooms were first used in September, but were really completed only recently.

The neighbors in the vicinity of the house formerly used as the Girls' club room had heard the cat for two days but failed to locate it. It was found under the building and Mr. Gagnon had some difficulty in crawling to it. It was caught in a steel trap somewhere and no one knows how far it had come caught in the trap or how long it had been there. There was no name stamped on the trap.

LOW FLYING AVIATORS GIVE POLICE GREATEST PROBLEM

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The pilot who flies "with one foot on the ground" is the greatest problem in federal policing of the airways.

During the third quarter of 1930 most violations of air regulations dealt with the department of commerce were in the low-flying class.

There were 73 offenders, while the second highest total were violators of acrobatic regulations with 51 cases. In all, 278 violations were delt with, an increase of 101 over the previous quarter.

Fines were collected for a total of $1,175, and in 16 cases penalties were remitted. There were 27 reprimands, 80 suspensions of federal licenses, 10 revocations and three denials of licenses. Seventy-three cases were dismissed.

JEWETT CITY

VIADUCT OPENING SET FOR THURSDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 24.—A largely attended meeting called by Warden Edmond J. Jodoin of those interested in the celebration on the opening of the new Quinebaug viaduct, Nov. 27, was held tonight at the town hall. The following committees were appointed: Automobiles, A. McNicol, P. W. Chase U. E. Jodoin, L. E. Boucher, Oscar Shaw, Peter Osga; committee on horsemen, William McGovern, Edward Blake, Louis Latham; on speakers, Warden Jodoin, Louis M. Carpenter, James Q. Dolan; on police regulations Burgesses John McDermott and Thomas McBroome; on school children, Burgesses Guillette and Henry E. Olson; societies, Charles Ruszenas, Arba Browning, Benjamin Kolbus, Elphage Tetreault, Alex McNicol, Edgar Knox and Joseph Malek. Late Monday evening Division Engineer John Smith, of Norwich, and the M. A. Gammino Construction Co., agreed that the big Quinebaug viaduct would be formally opened at 10 o'clock Thanksgiving day morning. Plans are well under way for a celebration. Everybody is being asked to lend a hand, for with its big new bidge and great white way, this burg is surely in the limelight right now.

A still alarm at 5:20 Monday afternoon brought the firemen and engine No. 1 to Dime street for a threatening chimney fire. The chemical tank on the big pumper did the trick without the use of the hydrant pressure.

Turkeys 35 and 34 cents in the local markets, makes this the record low price for prime birds. A five spot is going to be enough to furnish a Thanksgiving dinner for the whole family.

Following the illuminating of the borough's great white way, the sun didn't show his face for a full week, and since that event took place there have been but three days of sunshine. Some think that the weather man is possibly a bit peeved, and is saying "If you guys down there in Jewett City are furnishing your own light, you surely don't need mine."

TWO ARE BOUND OVER FOR THEFT OF MACHINE

In a court room crowded to the doors Monday morning, William Howeson, Jr., and Ernest Lamarine, pleaded guilty to the charge of the theft of a Chevrolet automobile from the local salesroom, Saturday morning, Nov. 15. Judge John T. Barry bound the men over to the next term of the superior court. Bonds of $1,500 each were furnished by the fathers of the two accused men, both of whom are minors. Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Dudkowski presented the cases for the state.

The Young People's class of the First Congregational church of Griswold, Rev. Harold L. Arnold, leader, has elected the following officers: President, Donald Roode; vice-president, Marion Edmond; secretary and treasurer, Lucille Holden; chairman of recreational committee, Robert Elgood.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Campbell were Mrs. William Jones of Wequetequock, and Mrs. Margaret Leets, of Westerly.

A regular Jewett City column is being carried in the Sunday edition of The Norwich Record.

Strong Man's Feats Recalled

One evening recently the members of the borough Stove Pipe club were discussing the merits and exploits of the several strong men that have lived in Griswold. The late Daniel (Pet) Geer was a colored man, who lived in Griswold many years ago and whom everyone knew and thought well of. Far from being a giant in stature, yet he was possessed of the strength of an ox. In the freight yard at the railroad station on a bet with the late Philip Kahn, in the presence of several witnesses, some of whom are alive today, Pet lifted five barrels of kerosene out of a cart onto the ground, then put them all back into the wagon. While working as a butcher for the late George A. Haskell, he slaughtered a hog for Elias Lord that weighed 380 pounds. Pet loaded the pig into a market wagon without help. It required heculear strength to lift the limp carcas of the animal. Two men were digging a cesspool off Main street where the Beauregard block stands. Reaching the depth of about six feet, they came upon a partially round boulder as big as a parlor stove. The diggers worked all one day trying to roll it up a pair of skids which they set up in the hole. The second day John Larkie, a blacksmith, fixed up two drills and preparations were being made to blast the stone into smaller sections when along came Pet. After looking at what seemed to him the needless preparations for drilling, he asked Tom what they wanted to do with the rock, adding, "Why don't you get down in there and throw it out?" Upon promise of a quart of Pekil's best, the colored giant allowed as how "you got to freeze to 'em," which he surely did, and lifting the great stone to his waist, he actually rolled it up against his breast and pushed it over the edge of the pit, to the rim of which his head just reached. The stone was placed on W. A. Slater's one-time hay scales and Charles Fanning pushed the pea out to 252 pounds before the bar came down to balance. The last eight inches of this lift was done with the weight above Pet's shoulders.

LeClair—Goulet

A marriage of interest to Jewett City people was that Nov. 23 in Spencer, Mass. Mrs. Marie Rose Goulet became the bride of Alphonse LeClair, of Attleboro, Mass. She was well known in Jewett City as Marie Rose Casavant, the daughter of F. X. Casavant. She has married the son of her step-mother, who is a teacher of music in Attleboro and vicinity in several schools. He is also director and manager of LeClair's band. Mr. and Mrs. LeClair expect to spend Thanksgiving with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Pollock recently entertained Mr. Pollock's sister, Mrs. Alice C. Cobb, of Quincy, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Casavant, their son Clovis and Miss Marie Roy, were the guests of Council Ste. Cecile, of Willimantic, Sunday, at a banquet and social meeting. Guests were present from Putnam, North Grosvenordale Danielson, Moosup, Norwich, Taftville Stafford Springs and Jewett City.

BRUECHU GOES TO JAIL WHEN LEFT "HOLDING THE BAG" IN LIQUOR CASE

PUTNAM, Nov. 24.— Because the owner of 16 one-gallon cans of alcohol, which were seized Saturday evening in a liquor raid conducted by Patrolmen Joseph Page and Harry Wallen of the local police, failed to appear in city court this morning and file an ownership claim, Joseph Bruechu, of this city, familiarly known under the sobriquet of "Joe, the lineman," is tonight serving the first of a 100-day sentence at the county jail in Brooklyn. Although cleared of a charge of owning and keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell Bruechu pleaded guilty to charges of breach of the peace and intoxication which were also placed against him after his arrest. Evidence prevented against the former lineman to substantiate his guilt in connection with the liquor law violation was circumstantial, but not conclusive enough to warrant conviction. However, Joe took the "rap" when Judge M. H. Geissler meted out a fine of $100 and costs when his pleas of guilty to the remaining charges were entered. He was unable to meet the stiff demands of the court and consequently was remanded to jail.

According to the tale unfolded by Patrolman Page, the officer's attention was attracted to the Bridge street liquor warehouse late Saturday evening when unusually loud verbal tones emanated from an alleyway between the garages. Investigating, Officer Page came upon two men who were seriously debating whether or not they would run their automobile into the stall ahead. Glancing into the garage the policeman sighted a row of cans which brilliantly reflected the rays of the automobile headlamps. When the contents of the containers was ascertained, Page inquired of the debaters the name of the proprietors of the alcohol stock. The driver of the automobile stated that the stall was rented by him, but he had no previous knowledge of what the chamber housed. "Joe the lineman" informed Officer Page that he had been retained as a watchman and had been using the garage for his sleeping quarters. He refused to disclose the name of his employer, and emphatically denied ownership of the cans, although he admitted they had been his bedmates for some few nights past. Where they came from, he said he did not know, and he assured the officer he had no knowledge, whatsoever, of what was in them. The autoist, thinking quickly, said he had no intentions of driving his car into the stall and drove away. "Joe the linmean" as the saying goes, was left "holding the bag," and consequently was detained until a warrant to enter the stall had been procured. Following the act of confiscating the canned stock, he was placed under arrest.

Who owned the stock, and who rented the garage in which it was found remains an unsolved mystery, but, as Prosecuting Attorney Johnson explained in court this morning, after inhaling the aroma of the spirits, "It's strength is so great that it apparently walked into those quarters of its own accord. Therefore the alcohol alone is guilty of these violations."

ROMAN RUINS ARE HAZARD OF SPANISH GOLF COURSE

RIO TINTO MINES, Spain—(AP)— Perhaps the world's toughest golf course has been placed here by English engineers of the oldest continuously operated mine on earth.

The nine-hole course runs over Roman ruins, dodges a graveyard that was old when the Christian era began, has hazards over mining gulches that look like miniature Grand Canyons, plays around with Phoenician slag heaps and skirts columns said to have been placed by the Carthaginians.

A couple of hundred Englishmen experts in the now English owned mines where about 10,000 workers are employed, play on the course.

TWO CLASSES OF PLANTS RESULT FROM DESERT RAINS

TUCSON, Ariz. —(AP)— In the two rainy seasons in the desert, says Dr. Forrest Shreve, head of the desert laboratory of the Carnegie institution, two entirely distinct classes of short-lived plants spring up.

One grows after the late winter rains, the other after the summer rains. Their seeds lie dormant through whichever rainy season is not of the temperature they favor

COCKFIGHTS "FIXED" LONG AGO IN CHINA

CHICAGO—(AP)—Even twelfth century China had its sports, and not always on the "up and up" either, an ancient Chinese painting at the Field museum here discloses.

The crowd has removed its attention from the fight, momentarily, to watch a bird being brought down from the air by an arrow shot by an official of the match.

With the watchers thus off guard, the owner of the faint-hearted rooster is trying frantically to put his bird back into the fight.

Balloons Measure Cloud Heights

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Weighed balloons are used by the weather bureau airport observers to determine the height of overhanging clouds in daytime. For each reading, a small balloon is placed on a scale and inflated until its weight indicates a definite rate of ascension. It is then liberated and timed until it disappears in the clouds and the altitude calculated.

NEED FOR NEW INDUSTRIES

Industrial development is one of the things which Norwich greatly needs. It has long prided itself on the fact that it has such a diversity of manufacturing plants that anything outside of a general depression has the minimum of effect upon its employment situation.

For a variety of reasons it has experienced the closing of certain mills and the loss of certain industries. There are always possibilities of replacing such industries with others or having those temporarily down revived. There is always a need for more industries, small ones that will grow, or large ones that will give employment to many and also increase. It is through increased industrial activity that growth can be expected.

When the city, or town, experiences the loss of manufacturing plants and an increase in its idle factories, there is need for greater effort in getting others to take their places, to fill up the vacancies and to start and keep the wheels turning. Even though there may be a feeling when all the plants are active and all buildings occupied that there is little in the way of inducements to offer others without going into the question of new construction, that situation doesn't exist at the present time. Then the importance of keeping industries, the need of getting others and the advisability of standing by those which are ready to do more business deserves most serious consideration.

New industries and more industries furnish a problem which cannot be overlooked. Just what efforts should be put forth deserve real study and action. Norwich regretted the closing of the Yantic mill and now regrets greatly the going of the Richmond Radiator company, plants where one company or another has given employment to many hands over a long period of years. When economic conditions force such changes the question of replacement becomes uppermost.

In those, or other, plants the importance of seeing that new industrial activity be secured and that employment is offered by new companies is of vital concern to the community. Conditions of that kind call for greater activity than ever.

HELPING UNEMPLOYMENT

It is only a matter of a few days now before congress will assemble and hear the president's address. In that statement of the country's conditions it is to be expected that there will be recommendations as to its needs and suggestions for legislation during the session.

In view of the unemployment situation it may logically be expected that some reference will be made to measures for additional relief. Already the president has been the instigator of much activity in the way of building and construction work for a number of months by cities, states and federal agencies. The need for the continuance of such is being urged by the organization of highway officials, who feel that the government should appropriate as much as a quarter of a billion for immediate work. Further than that, there is pointed out the need of providing for those who have suffered because of the drought. Then there will be a chance for stimulating activities in the shipyards, government and private, through warship construction and the encouragement of the building of merchant vessels.

How much ought to be done and how much can be done by the government rests with the congress to decide. Highway construction for the next few months will be restricted to certain of the states, except where grading and rough work can be carried on during the cold weather. States have been developing fine results in that direction and making large expenditures. Road construction calls for heavy outlays from coast to coast in the course of a year, and just now the southern states are manifesting special interest through large bond issues for such work. Louisiana has recently taken action which makes its bond issues total nearly $100,000,000 for better roads. South Carolina has authorized an issue of $63,000,000 and Texas is considering a $350,000,000 bond issue for road building, and in all of them such construction can go on through the winter.

Such represents only part of the public work that will contribute to the relief of unemployment. State projects as well as federal will contribute greatly to keeping various lines of employment active and mean the finishing of jobs somewhat earlier than would otherwise be the case.

JERSEY BULL FIGHTING

Just how much of a demand there is for the bull fighting that was proposed for the city of Newark is a question. As in the case of those who go to Spain, it is probable that curiosity rather than a real interest in such sport would attract many for the first time.

That there would be a difference between the exhibition proposed in Newark and the real thing is probable, but the protests that have been registered against the modified form of bull fighting indicate that the feeling exists that there are enough forms of sports and diversion on Sunday without resorting to the introduction of bull fighting in this country in any form.

If public sentiment supports such an atttitude and accomplishes its suppression it will not be surprising. It isn't necessary, of course, for anyone who does not approve of such a sport or who does not like it to grace the occasion by his presence. He can stay away, voice his objection and influence others to do likewise, but those who know what bull fighting is, the torture, the gruesome features, can see nothing in it that is elevating or deserving of approval, even though it is claimed that there will be no bloodshed.

When such an exhibition is looked upon as a step backward, a return to practices of other days, with dumb beasts being terrorized and made crazy, only to have the bull killed in the ring or possibly the toreador or his horse gored to death, there is nothing that appeals to good sportsmanship. It harks back to days of cruelty and bloodshed, days which ought not to be introduced here and those who are making the protests realize that the best time to put a stop to it is before it is started.

Even though the claim is made that no cruelty is intended or planned in the proposed exhibition, there is still objection on the ground of the character of the whole affair. Those who raise their voices in opposition maintain that it should have no place, modified or unmodified, in a civilized country, and New Jersey is finding that such a view represents more than the expression of one organization or group of people, and comes from without as well as from within the state.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND ODD JOBS

In the proclamation which he recently issued, Mayor Robbins urged upon the citizens the desirability of having those odd jobs, which they have been contemplating for some time, done now when there are many out of work and seeking something to do.

The importance of bringing the jobs and the unemployed together has also been recognized in Washington, where the Federation of Citizens' Associations is endeavoring to find home repair work, cleaning and painting for idle hands to do. In that city the difficulty of bringing the two together is greater than here and the task is being carried out by means of a questionnaire which discloses the jobs to be done and by another which indicates the men out of work and leaving it to the organization to bring the jobs and those wanting work together.

That there should be hearty cooperation in this effort is to be expected. Some people have considerable difficulty in finding workmen to do odd jobs. Even when they know those who do such work, there is often a long delay in getting them to respond, either through lack of interest in doing that particular job or because they are busy with something else at the time. This means a delay which is not always pleasant. It is accepted because they know of no one else to do it, but with some sort of an agency which can serve as a clearing house for matters of this kind, and which can give some assurance that the person who wants work is competent and trustworthy, the situation can be easily and satisfactorily met.

Odd jobs are not as satisfactory as steady work, but they furnish a chance to earn money, and that is what the person out of work is seeking at the present time in order to tide over these days of little work.

REGULATION FOR ALL

The regulation of busses which travel through this state has been recently brought to attention in order that there may be the same observance by them as is expected of state registered busses.

The regulation of motor busses has frequently been discussed, but a different phase of the situation was brought out at the sixth New England conference at Boston last week by President Pelley of the New Haven road. That the motor bus has been eating into the business of the railroads for some time has been recognized. Railroads have been obliged to operate busses and trucks in order to retain their business. But how the unregulated trucks get a distinct advantage over the railroad was the point emphasized by the railroad head, when he showed that it was entirely possible for those seeking the transportation of goods from one New England city to another to get special rates from motor truck companies while it is impossible for the railroad to furnish any different rates than those fixed for such a distance. In other words, the railroad is restricted as to what it can charge, while the motor truck is not, yet their business may be highly competitive.

This is a situation against which there appears to be ground for complaint. It can hardly be regarded as fair treatment when the hands of the railroad officials are tied and those of the trucking companies are not. Regulation was adopted for the purpose of insuring fair treatment for shippers. That was desirable and that was before the coming of the motor trucks. But with changed conditions, if rates are going to be fixed for the railroad in interstate commerce, it is only proper that similar action should be taken in regard to the trucks.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—Which will be speaker of the house when the next congress convenes one year hence? Will it be Mr. Longworth or Mr. Garner? Which will ride in the big automobile provided for the speaker by the congress? If the party line-up remains as now, dependent on a vote, its practically a 50-50 guess. But it will in fact, be the western independents, or insurgents who will determine who's who in that matter.

Perhaps the democrats do not want the responsibility of carrying on with that scant majority, should they win it; perhaps they would prefer to heckle the president, refuse to offer "aid and succor" to their political enemies, with a presidential election in the offing.

Both Longworth and Garner are able leaders; both capable of holding the speakership; friendly personally one to the other, and nothing they like better than to just now, each claim the "speaker's car" as his own and twit the other about riding in it.

Then will it be John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the present republican floor leader, or Representative Collier of Mississippi, who will stand guard over the party policies as they come before the house in form of bills to be passed or rejected? It is the floor leader who marks out the details of the program for the season, and wields tremendous power, both over republicans and democrats when the session is in full swing. Tilson has made a marvelously capable, efficient and tactful leader. He is admired by every member of the house regardless of partisanship—Collier is also a prime favorite and the opposite of Garner in temperament. Garner is fiery; Collier is placid—but firm. It will be a race worth following when the election of house officers is due.

No accurate prediction can be made as to whether republicans or democrats will mark out the program for the 72nd congress, for it does not come into being until the 4th of March 1931, and it does not function, so far as the house is concerned, unless an extra session is called, until the first Monday in December, 1931. So with a majority of not more than one for either party at the present time, by the death, resignation or enforced absence by illness of a single member, one year hence, the entire situation might be changed in the twinkle of an eye.

In some states, special elections are called, in others the filling of vacancies is permitted to be made by appointment of the governor. That means where republican or democratic seats are now held under the recent election, in several states the power of appointment rests in the hands of a governor of the opposite party. Moreover when filling such vacancy is by election, it often happens that the personal popularity of a candidate, or his stand on some one specific question, gained him the election and another man of the same party might lose under similar circumstances. So after all, it's mere guess work to predict.

Senator Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury under Wilson, is holding fast to democratic supremacy and no compromise with anybody else, to secure amicable adjustment of vexed questions before the country. Glass is claiming everything in sight and giving more credit to President Wilson and his administration than could be accomplished in a half century. But naturally Senator Glass, who held the second highest office in the Wilson cabinet, can't see much to approve in Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who succeeded him in office.

When John H. Bankhead of Alabama, democrat, takes the seat in the senate, which he overwhelmingly won away from Heflin, the tradition of the Bankhead family will again be brought to mind. You see there have been Bankheads of Alabama in senate and house many years, always occupying positions of influence. But more than that, there have been several instances where father and son, or brother and brother were serving at the same time, one as senator and the other as a member of the house. That will be the case this time. For John H. Bankhead will take his oath as United States senator on the fourth of next March, and his brother, William B. Bankhead, will enter on his eighth term as a member of the house on the same date.

Their father was Senator John H. Bankhead, who served till his death as one of the most distinguished of southern democratic senators. No one who saw the old senator walk into the senate one day when there was a Confederate reunion in Washington, dressed in his uniform of a Confederate colonel, will forget the scene. Would somebody wave the bloody shirt? Would a stiff fight follow? But nothing of the sort happened. Everybody liked the old senator, and understood the situation, and it passed without apparent notice, so far as the moment went.

There was a John H. Bankhead in congress as far back as 1865, and from that time scarcely a congress has passed without family representation. The Bankheads say they were "fed bellies in their cradle." It was served them hot morning, noon and night, and they still believe it is the choicest bit of a meal.

Two men as "right hand man to the president," still spend most of each year in Washington. They are Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, and Joe Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. Both are lawyers of repute, but Slemp doesn't practice over diligently, though capable of carrying on big cases. Slemp is very wealthy, as are all the Slemps of Virginia and spends much time down at his big place there. On the other hand, Tumulty wasted no time in establishing himself as a practicing attorney, with Washington his headquarters, opening a law office almost as soon as he shut the white house door.

Slemp keeps a weather eye out on the republican politics of state and nation, and has been urged to the limit, to run for congress, where he served with great prestige until he became secretary to the president, in Mr. Coolidge's term of service. Tumulty keeps both of his sharp eyes turned toward the democratic end of national political life. During President Wilson's long illness, it was Tumulty who ran the visible end of the administration, Mrs. Wilson standing guard over what went on behind the throne. Rumor didn't hesitate to say that while things ran smooth enough on the surface, the wheels of state creaked and groaned at every turn, owing to the friction and conflicting ideas of what policy should be adopted to meet the emergency of the president's entirely helpless condition, and not tell the world too many details of what was going on behind the great iron gates of the white horse enclosure, which were tightly shut, barred and locked during the entire period.

Word comes to Washington by returning London visitors that there is a little shop opened there, which serves American food cooked in the most approved American fashion. But that is not all, it is said that Ambassador Dawes drops in for home-made waffles, and all the fixin's whenever he can. The American lunch seems to be winning favor. You get coffee with real cream, waffles and sweet jellies, instead of the rather bitter orange marmalade so dear to the heart of the British, and the price is said to be about 60 cents.

Speaking of Gen. Dawes and the informal dropping in for an American luncheon of hot waffles, reminds me again of what young Peggy Tilson, daughter of the republican floor leader of the house wrote her father, when she was spending a week end at the embassy, as a guest of the Dawes while tripping through Europe a year or so ago.

Peggy described the splendor of London and of the mansion in which the Dawes dwell. Then added, "It was wonderful, but I wasn't half as afraid of Gen. Dawes, as I was of their big British butlers."

CONNIE'S SATIN SLIPPERS

First, there was Connie. Connie was 20 and ambitious. The fact that the ink on her diploma was hardly dry accounted for her optimistic belief that the world in general and Chicago in particular had crying need of her services. It was with this comforting thought in mind that she took stock of her worldly possessions one morning, rode gayly to the loop and spent much more money than she could afford upon a pair of satin slippers.

Second, there was Bill. Bill had received a long-deserved promotion. This fact accounted for his serene outlook upon the future, manifested by an unwanted interest in an intriguing profile which teased his imagination all the way out from the loop. Were her eyes blue or brown, gray or black?

"Excuse me, please," murmured Connie, the owner of the profile. Upon which Bill, catching a glimpse of curling eyelashes as he rose to let her pass, felt recklessly sure that it did not matter a whit to him what color eyes lay behind them. All that mattered was that the girl who possessed them was at that moment disappearing through the door of the car. Moving over to the window in hopes of seeing her on the platform, he felt something hard and knobby dig into the small of his back.

"Hey!" called Bill, struggling with a window which stubbornly refused to open until after the train had started and the slim figure had vanished down the elevated stairs. Bill then proceeded to finger the package, which he had removed from the vicinity of his spinal column.

"Why don't you try a want-ad?" asked the girl in the next room sympathetically after the pros and cons of Connie's unfortunate shopping trip had been discussed.

"I believe I will!" exclaimed Connie hopefully. "Write one out, that's a dear, while I figure up how much I've got left for a reward. Let me see—$12.50 from—"

"Connie Shaw! Do you mean to say you spent $12.50 today?"

"Oh, but they were the darlingest slippers!" enthused Connie. "Now, if the man who sat in the seat with me has the right size heart for his physique I'm sure he'll take them to the trains' lost and found department."

"Diogenes couldn't find that kind of man even with a lantern," declared her friend, busily scribbling a sample want ad, in which a reward was prominently mentioned.

Just as she foresaw, Bill did not leave the knobby package at the lost and found department. It was, however, for reasons of his own that he tucked it under his arm and took it to his room. There every night for a while Connie's shoes decorated the top of his dresser; every day they were thrust into a drawer beneath various masculine belongings.

In the meanwhile Bill advertised his "find" and one evening at 7 he was rewarded by a summons to answer his landlady's telephone.

"Are you the gentleman who found my package on the 'L' train?" asked some one with the sweetest voice he had ever heard.

"I hope so" replied Bill fervently "in fact, I'm sure of it, for your voice is exactly what I thought it would be."

"My voice!" exclaimed Connie, "how in the world could you guess what my voice was like?"

"If you'll give me your address I'll tell you when I bring your package over," said Bill a trifle too eagerly.

"Oh, thank you," replied Connie, "I can send for it tomorrow."

"That wouldn't do at all," declared Bill decisively "I might not be here and things might get mixed up or something."

"You're awfully kind," said Connie, a gurgle of laughter in her voice, "mine are black satin with cut steel buckles, No. 5, triple A. If you collection contains a pair of that description you may bring them over this evening."

"I'm going to bring my whole collection," declared Bill exultantly; "since No. 5, triple A is the only size I ever have or ever intend to collect."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—With nine million folks planning Christmas on the strength of "Christmas funds" salted away at banks during the year that aspect of American life looms importantly around December 1.

And it reminds the Bystander that Jesse Metcalf, that quiet little senator and senator-elect from Rhode Island owes his political start to a Christmas fund incident.

As the Bystander has heard it—not from Senator Metcalf—an Italian bank in Rhode Island got into difficulties in the winter of 1923. Its many Italian depositors of Christmas funds, aggregating around $50,000, bade fair to have a lean holiday season.

Among many other activities, Jesse Metcalf is a banker. His bank had nothing to do with the institution in distress. But Metcalf was, and still is, noted for his philanthropies.

Anyway he caused notices to appear in the press that holders of Christmas deposits in the Italian bank might learn something to their interest by presenting such claims at his bank. They did.

Just how it was done or what it cost Metcalf personally the Bystander does not know.

No Politician

A year later the late Senator Colt of Rhode Island died. A clamor came at once from Italian voters for Metcalf as Colt's successor.

He was no politician. One long ago term in the legislature was all the experience he could boast. But the Italian voters wanted him—and they got him.

Metcalf was sent to fill out Colt's term with a six-year hitch in his own right to follow. And now he's to do still another six years.

When Peter Gerry went a-gunning for the Metcalf senatorial scalp this year to recoup his own defeat two years ago by Felix Hebert, most Rhode Islanders the Bystander talked with thought Peter was going to get away with it. Now they admit they underrated Metcalf's standing with the folks back home.

For when the voting in Providence was over, it seemed that about 2,500 folks who otherwise voted democratic scratched Gerry for Metcalf. That did the trick. Metcalf's state majority was around 2,700.

Bowler

Metcalf at 70 is slim in figure but brown and leathery of face as any old salt, perhaps because he favors a yacht anchored in the Potomac as a Washington residence.

Also, while he's a G. O. P. regular of the regulars when he votes, that ends partisanship. He likes bowling as an on-shore sport.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Though warnings may be sadly needed,
You'll find them very seldom heeded.
—Old Mother Nature.

The more Jerry Muskrat thought about that strange boy he had seen around the Smiling Pool and along the Laughing Brook, the more disturbed he became. After the boy had gone Jerry went to see what the boy had been doing. It didn't take Jerry long to discover that the stranger had been chiefly interested in such places as he and Mrs. Jerry and their children were in the habit of using as places of rest or on which to eat. This didn't make him feel any more comfortable.

Jerry went home and at the first opportunity when the children were gathered about he warned them "Perhaps you have noticed," said he "a strange two-legged creature around here of late."

Several of the young Muskrats admitted that they had, but said that he was harmless.

"How do you know?" demanded Jerry.

"Because," said one young Muskrat, "the other day I climbed out on a log right in front of him before I saw him sitting on the bank, and nothing happened. He didn't even try to catch me."

"He wouldn't," replied Jerry, "as long as he didn't have a terrible gun. But he may try to catch you later in a different way."

"In what different way?" asked the young Muskrat.

"In a trap," replied Jerry.

"What is a trap?" demanded all the young Muskrats together.

"It is a terrible pair of jaws that spring up and seize you by a leg and won't let you go no matter what you do," replied Jerry. "Then the two-legged creature who put the trap there comes to kill you while the trap holds you fast."

"You seem to know a lot about it," said one of the young Muskrats.

"I do," replied Jerry. He pulled his tail, that queer tail flattened on the sides, around where they could all see it. "Do you all see that little white line on my tail?" he asked.

All nodded. "That is where one of those terrible traps caught me when I was young and heedless," said he. "I managed to pull free, but I was lucky. Yes, sir, I was lucky. I have seen a Muskrat caught by a foot gnaw that foot off because he couldn't get free any other way. I have seen another twist a foot off."

The young Muskrats shuddered. "I have seen a Muskrat caught so that he could neither gnaw his foot off nor twist it off. I have seen him so held for two days and nights before the trapper came and killed him, and every minute of that time he was suffering." Again the young Muskrats shuddered.

"These terrible traps, the most awful thing in all the Great World, spring at you from the very places that you have always found safe and where you are not looking for danger," continued Jerry. "Sometimes they are just under water. Sometimes they are hidden by dead grass or leaves. Sometimes something good to eat, something very tempting, is placed so that to reach it you will be certain to step where these terrible jaws can jump up and catch you. Beware my children, of traps. Beware. Beware."

The young Muskrats looked at each other and some of them grinned, but took care that Jerry should not see them doing it. "He's getting old and scary," whispered one to another.

"He's living in the past. I haven't seen any of these dreadful tarps he tells about," whispered a second.

"He's in his second childhood," chuckled a third.

But none of these whispers reached Jerry and he hoped his warning would not be in vain. Nevertheless he continued to be worried.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Depression

Mr. Editor: Mr. Andrew's well written, logical letter on depression makes me feel that there are other points of view which should be expressed. I cannot afford the time, nor would I dare ask you to give the space necessary either to take up all the points which he brings out, some of them most excellent, nor present much more than in outline my argument or point of view.

He says that depression is caused not by overproduction but by overexpansion caused by the demands of the war. That is we are not producing too much but we could produce too much and therefore we must go without what we need because we can produce too much.

I say that our depression is caused by our lack of a sensible, human, scientific system of production and distribution of wealth, or the necessities and luxuries of life. We are producing for profit and not for service.

He gives figures of the increase in production of wheat, wool, sugar, etc. Would he say that the people of the world could not use, have no need of this wheat, wool, sugar, etc. Certainly not. Why cannot they get them? Because those who manage our crazy system have so much profit tied up in machinery and the necessities of life that they cannot use and cannot sell because those who have made them have not received enough wages to buy what they have made; because they, who manage, refuse to make more and millions willing and anxious to work must wait until this surplus is used up before they will be allowed to produce more. The profit system for the present has broken down. Those who produce wealth must now suffer until those who get it want some more.

Fifteen thousand, seven hundred and eighty persons or about 7-100 of one per cent of the people of the United States receive over $100,000 income per year, or about 18 per cent of the whole. These few people get about one-fourth of the dividends paid on the common and preferred stocks of the country. About 1 1-2 per cent of the people receive incomes of over $10,000 per year and these 1 1-2 per cent receive 16 per cent of the whole. Most of these people could not possibly use that amount of the necessities of life and those who produce wealth must wait while the surplus is used up before they will be allowed to make more.

About 71 per cent or nearly three-fourths of the people are gainfully employed and they only receive about one third of the wealth which they create.

The war: During the war every man and woman who could and would work was found employment at something which they could do. Even the lilies which toil not nor spin for their fineries wound bandages. Thus, while we had meatless days and breadless days, or bran bread with little or no sugar in our coffee there was general welfare and content; besides we kept between two and three million men more or less well supplied with the necessities of life. For probably the first time in the world's history every one was supplied with the necessities and many of the luxuries of life. And this increased production as a result of the war's demands shows that there should be no need of want in this world.

When the war ceased of course the ammunition and kindred war supply factories closed and left thousands of people without the means to purchase. Millions of men returned from the war and could get no jobs. Most of these men were able and willing to produce but could find no opportunity. The people out of work could not buy and factories began to shut down rather than cut prices and profits. The more factories shut down the less purchasing power there was and so more factories shut down. Where is the end?

Overexpansion: For years the New England Cotton Manufacturers' association has met and agreed to keep from overproduction by closing the mills six weeks in the year. At the same time many of these same men have been starting mills in the south where particularly cheap labor made possible greater profits. In the same way English and American capital has started mills in India and China though it stopped mills in England and New England.

Western and eastern efficiency: Of course, we of the east have lost our trade in rum and black ivory, and have not the auto industry of the west which has built up plants worth billions on an original investment of a few thousand. One man is known to have put in but a few thousand and sold out for $23,000,000. But we of the east are not so slow. The Norwich Bulletin, April 30, 1930, published the report of the president of a local company, who says, during the year authorization was given to change the 40,000 shares to 200,000 shares giving three for one to the holders of the 40,000 shares, 80,000 shares plus (?). He says, "We have reason to congratulate ourselves on the results for the year. The consolidated net earnings of the company and its subsidiaries in 1929, after deducting bond interest ($68,000) federal income taxes, and preferred dividends was equal to $4.51 per share on the 121,200 shares." $13.55 on the 40,000 shares.

Int. on bonded indebtedness	68,000
Int. on pref. shares	22,222
Earned dividend on shares	546,612
Profit on 4,000,000 (more or less water)	1,207,612

Over 25 per cent net profit.

It seems to me that I remember when the capitalization was made one million, three million, four million and now ten million. All out of profits above dividends. This same company by efficiency made most of the help do two and three times the amount of work that they formerly did and has worked this reduced force but two and three days a week. I suppose if they ran full time they would make 100 per cent profit.

I could show much the same efficient management by other concerns in the town.

Profit: This is the incentive to present business. This is, I presume, where Mr. Andrews and I fundamentally differ. He probably considers business for profit as fair, righteous and socially necessary. I consider it as natural, under the circumstances, but unethical, barbarous and socially unfair and wasteful and like all previous barbarous systems will in the end do more harm than good and have to be superceded by a more social method or motive. Service rather than profit.

The incentive of profit is held out to all, but nine-tenths of the people die in the poor house or next door to it. The 70 per cent of actual wealth producers of course cannot make any profit except, by denying themselves of all luxuries and perhaps even the necessities of life in order to save for investment. They work for the profit makers. Everybody cannot put 50 or 60 cents into the bag and draw out one dollar. Even a few cannot do it indefinitely and as the number increases the times when the bag refuses to yield become closer and closer together and last longer.

The profit system was in bad straits all over the world prior to the war. The war gave it a new lease of life but it is in even worse condition now.

Tekel-Tekel. Its days are numbered.

YOUR HEALTH

The New Dentistry

By GEORGE D. WILLIAMS, D. D. S., Spokane, Wash.

From Gorgas Memorial Institute

In the last ten years, the dentist and the physician have been drawing closer and closer together and they find this cooperation is very necessary in consideration of matters of public and personal health. More and more space has been given to dentistry in medical journals and periodicals, and medical men of note are freely recognizing the importance of the mouth and the part it plays in general health. Realizing his responsibilities, the dentist of today is working hard to be better able to serve. He feels that improvement, in every way, must be based on a better and greater service to the patient. This can be done only by giving a service that is sound and soulful, eradicating commercialism and tradesmanship from the field.

If he is to be a faithful guardian of health, he dentist must be very careful about examinations. In former years, many dentists frequently permitted necessary dentistry to pass out the door without one word of admonition or warning. Now, the dentist feels that he should give his patient a sincere health talk. This is where the cooperation of the dentist, patient and physician come in.

Last winter, in our city, the dentist attended as many as six medical and dental meetings in one week which shows the increased interest they are taking in their work. For years, the county dental society has been taking care of the teeth of the children at one of our non-sectarian settlement homes for orphans, and the results from this work alone point out the great value of frequent dental inspection. In the beginning, many cases of broken down teeth and mouth infection were found. Now, the new cavities are smaller and less infection is found.

In our state we have an organization of physicians, surgeons, dentists, nurses, and representative men and women that works to prevent disease and to protect the health of the people. They disseminate information, popularizing health facts, and promoting appreciation of scientific research and high standards of practice. They arrange for public meetings, supplying information to teachers and clubs. This sort of thing is now being done in almost every state of the union. This health education work, in which the new dentistry is assisting, is going on all over the country, and with visible results of better personal health and longer life.

Taking up its share of the burden of this campaign for longevity the new dentistry has also taken on new service ideals—to love heartily, to build bravely, to think fairly to, witness humbly, and to realize that service is a form of rent that you pay in the room of life.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Pond's Extract Company, Clinton.

The Pond's Extract company was first established in the Mohawk valley, New York state. The company about 1878 moved to Chester, and in 1888 to Clinton, where the main plant is still located.

The building acquired at Clinton had previously been used by a Baptist minister named Whitemore as a soap factory. On Sundays Mr. Whitmore preached in the Clinton Baptist church and during the week made "Baby Glycerine soap." The company still uses part of this same old building, many additions to which have been made during the last forty years. In 1929 a large, modern, fire-resistant building was erected to become the main manufacturing plant of the company, being connected to the old building by fireproof bridges and a tunnel.

The new laboratories where Pond's creams are manufactured are as immaculate as a model dairy and the most modern of machinery and devices are used for filling, labeling and packaging the creams. Hands do not come in contact with the creams during their preparation or packaging.

Until 1906 Pond's extract was the only important product manufactured by the company. During that year, however, Pond's vanishing cream and cold cream were introduced in this country. Since that time the business on these two toilet articles has grown rapidly until now, it is believed, Pond's creams have the biggest sale of any brand of face creams in the world.

The company canvasses the world's markets to obtain the highest grade of raw materials for use in the manufacture of its products.

In 1927 the Pond's Extract company introduced two new products to be associated with the creams — Pond's cleansing tissues and Pond's skin freshener. To manufacture the former product, the company acquired a paper mill located at Seymour.

The company has a branch factory at Toronto, Canada, and one at Buenos Aires, Argentina republic.

Pond's creams are sold and extensively advertised in approximately forty different countries. Either a branch office or an agency has charge of the company's business in each foreign territory.

Two subsidiary companies—Pond's Extract International, Ltd., and Pond's Extract Co. of Canada, Ltd., conduct the business of the company outside of the United States.

AUTO STOLEN FROM HERE CRASHES INTO TROLLEY ON HILL, 3 HURT

One coast guardsman was badly injured and two others were slightly hurt when a stolen car in which they were riding towards New London crashed head-on into a north-bound New London trolley car, on Derry hill shortly after 12:15 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. Michael Barniak is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital suffering from an injury to his back and a deep and jagged gash on the right side of his face, near the ear. The other coast guardsmen injured in the wreck were Kenneth H. Whitlock and George Dixon. All three are stationed at the Coast Guard academy at New London.

Arthur Sylvia's Automobile

The machine, a Chrysler coupe, with rumble seat, is owned by Arthur Sylvia of No. 246 Main street, and was stolen late Monday night from the alley at the Dolco garage in Thamesville. The coupe was practically demolished, the entire right side being torn off. The front end of the trolley car also sustained considerable damage.

Immediately after the crash, word of the accident was telephoned to police headquarters in this city and Captain Thomas P. Murphy summoned the ambulance. While the ambulance was en route, a Norwich driver who happened by, picked up the three men, intending to bring them to the W. W. Backus hospital in this city. They, however, wanted to be taken to a New London hospital.

As the driver was about to start for the Norwich hospital, the three men got out of the machine, and started to walk south along the highway, Dixon and Whitlock supporting Barniak between them.

Decline Ambulance Help

The ambulance arrived just after the men got out of the machine, but they declined to go in the ambulance. Another Norwich driver picked the three men up a few minutes later. Recognizing the wrecked machine as belonging to Mr. Sylvia and realizing that it must have been stolen, he drove the trio to police headquarters in this city, where they were questioned by the local and state police.

At the police station it was apparent that Barniak was badly injured and he was sent to the hospital in the ambulance. The local and state police immediately started an investigation into the theft of the machine.

According to the story Dixon told at police headquarters, he and the other two coast guardsmen, attended a wedding reception in Thamesville, during the evening. They missed the last trolley car for New London, and started walking along the highway, towards New London. They had walked a short distance when the Chrysler overtook them. Hailing the driver, the latter stopped and took the three of them into the machine. The three of them crowded into the driver's seat, although there was a rumble seat, and the driver started towards New London.

Dixon said the driver drove in an erratic manner and on the way down the southerly slope of Derry Hill the machine ran into the front of the trolley car, which was on the way to Norwich.

Dixon said that the driver got out of the wreckage and immediately left the scene. He said that neither he nor his companions knew the driver. Dixon and Whitlock stated that neither of them was driving the car, and also stated that Barniak was not driving the machine.

Mr. Sylvia, called to police headquarters, stated that he had left the machine in the alley at the Dolco garage in Thamesville, where it was to have been inspected Tuesday morning. He left the machine in the garage alley about 11 o'clock Monday night.

WOMAN SUES BARBER FOR BURNS TO SCALP

Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court at New London Monday heard trial and reserved decision in the $2,000 damage suit of Mrs. Rose Jackson of New London against John Eno, a barber of that city.

OVER 2,000 POISON PORTIONS FOR RATS

Farmers in every one of the 21 towns of New London county will today (Tuesday) spread a poison feast for the rats around their barns and other buildings with the hope of exterminating a large proportion of these pests. At the end of a week those who have used the poison food will be asked to fill out a card to be returned to the New London County Farm bureau office with a report on results.

County Agent Walter T. Clark had seven men working Monday, mixing the lethal dose for the Thanksgiving feast of the rats, and by the end of the day they had 2,010 half-pint cartons prepared, which will fill the 670 orders for the red squills poison preparation which had been turned in to the bureau. The poison preparation is mixed with hamburg steak, fish or cereal, and is spread out in dabs on the ground in the vicinity where rats frequent. While fatal to rats, it will not affect cats or dogs and other small animals except in the case where an animal in a debilitated state might get hold of it. However, it should not be exposed too openly where children might get at it, as it would produce extreme nausea if eaten by them.

The fatal effect for the rat comes in about about four hours after the animal has eaten his dose. It is not expected that dead rats will be found lying around in the open, as they usually crawl away out of sight to die, but the reports on the follow-up cards will be made from observation of conditions around the farm or place where the squills have been distributed.

FRANKLIN CONG. CHURCH CROWDED SUNDAY EVENING

The community of Franklin gave a cordial welcome to Miss Betty Cushman, missionary from China, who addressed a union meeting of young people at Franklin Congregational church Sunday evening. In the afternoon from 4 to 6, a reception in compliment to Miss Cushman was held at the home of Mrs. George Beckwith, over 60 attending. In the receiving line were Miss Florence Rockwood, Mrs. Stanley Armstrong, Miss Mary Lyon Waldron of Middletown and Miss Elsie Gleason, from Maine. Mrs. Arthur Smith and Mrs. Ernest Smith poured tea. Several very pleasing violin selections were given by Theodore Sterry of Norwich Town.

For the meeting at the church Sunday evening over 350 assembled, representing young people's societies from Park and the United Congregational churches, Norwich, from Willimantic, Ledyard, Taftville and other surrounding places. The chairman of the meeting was Mrs. John D. Waldron, wife of the local pastor. Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, of Willimantic and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich led the spirited singing. Miss Mary Lyon Waldron of Middletown gave an interesting address emphasizing the need of friendship here at home. Miss Cushman, who was in costume, was heard in an address on The Challenge of Friendship for China. Both addresses were of special interest to the audience, which completely filled the church.

The broken glass in the door was discovered Sunday evening by Officer Patterson.

CONTINUANCE IN CASE OF RHODE ISLAND DRIVER

At the Monday morning session of the city court Rusille Michael of Newport, R. I., was presented on a charge of operating a Connecticut machine without a proper license. He did have a New York license but that does not give him the privilege of operating a Connecticut car in this state. Trial of the case was continued for one month. Accused was arrested Sunday evening.

CONNECTICUT TURKEY BUSINESS IS GROWING

In discussing the situation in the Connecticut turkey market, S. McLean Buckingham, state commissioner of agriculture, pointed out that poultry meats have been found to be one of the meats most susceptible to quality change in storage, so that they are best when prepared for the table soon after killing. For that reason Connecticut turkeys lend themselves particularly well to the use of Connecticut people.

The state department of agriculture points out that the Connecticut turkey industry is growing because the producers are endeavoring to build their business on a sound foundation. The number of turkeys increased approximately 12 per cent in Connecticut this year. Connecticut growers are desirous of placing on the market a high quality product properly graded and tagged so that it can be identified as a genuine native bird. The consumer is the final judge and the turkey growers last year started grading their birds and placing their individual or farm names upon the yellow tag so that any cause for complaint could be traced direct to the grower. They are building a business on consumer satisfaction, the value of which was demonstrated last year.

SAYS DEVICE MORE HINDRANCE THAN HELP

Exchange Manager H. S. Lyon of the Southern New England Telephone company stated Monday that in some sections of the state a device is being sold which, it is claimed by its makers, will result in an improvement in the transmitting and reception of telephone conversations, while, as a matter of fact, the device is more a hindrance than a help.

Moreover, it is officially stated by the telephone company that this device is likely to cause serious service difficulty. This attachment to the ordinary telephone is equipped with a device which muffles transmission when a button is depressed. This button actuates a lever which causes a pressure against the telephone's transmitter diaphragm, thus preventing the diaphragm from vibrating. It is quite certain that the repeated operation of this lever on the diaphragm will cause service difficulty to subscribers and it is for that reason that the company advises against the attachment of this device to its instruments.

In speaking of the matter the local exchange manager stated that telephone men have been instructed to remove the device from all telephones to which it is attached, explaining to subscribers the good service reasons why this is done. It is believed that those who have purchased the device will consent to its removal when they are officially informed that transmission and reception are likely to be adversely affected by a continued use of the device.

SAMPLE-SEEKING FAN EVEN ASKS RADIO SET

NEW YORK—(AP)—There is a certain type of radio fan who writes sponsors by the dozen, relating how much the program was appreciated, but always requesting a free sample of the manufacturer's product.

In most cases the request is granted. One sponsor, however, has a different idea. He received one of the request letters, saying, "Please send me a free sample of your product." This sponsor manufacturers radio sets.

LEO DIEGEL BEATS SARAZEN WITH SUB PAR GOLF IN OREGON PLAYOFF

PORTLAND, ORE., Nov. 24—(AP)—Shooting par shattering golf, Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional, won the Oregon open golf championship here today, defeating Gene Sarazen, New York, in an 18-hole playoff.

Diegel had to go below par to win. He posted a card of 69, three under par, while Sarazen shot 72, even par, to cover the difficult Columbia Country club course. The two professionals were tied at 287 at the end of the regular 72 holes Sunday.

Diegel went into the lead with a birdie on the first hole. Sarazen three-putted and lost his chance for a half. On the second hole Sarazen sank a 20-foot putt and evened the match.

The next four holes were negotiated in par by both men. At the fifth Diegel's second shot went into the rough, but a remarkable recovery enabled him to half it with Sarazen in par five.

Diegel again took the lead on the seventh when Sarazen needed three putts. Sarazen, however, sent his ball dead to the pin on the 145-yard eighth and halved the hole. Sarazen missed his approach shot going to the ninth and it cost him five. Diegel got his par four and was leading by one stroke at the turn.

Diegel's deadly approaches and steady putts gave him birdies on the tenth and twelfth holes and when they teed off for the fourteenth Sarazen was trailing by three strokes. They halved the 11th and 13th.

The fourteenth was the only hole where Diegel slipped over par. He missed a five foot putt to lose to Sarazen's par four. Diegel regained his lead on the 15th by dropping a seven foot putt for a birdie three.

The final three holes were halved. Sarazen was unable to reduce Diegel's lead.

Diegel's 69 for the 18 holes was equalled only twice in the tournament. Craig Wood, New Jersey, shot 69 the first day of the tournament and Frank Walsh, Appleton, Wis., repeated the feat the second day.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Freeland, rated as one of the best of the 1929 three-year-olds, returned to his best racing form today to win the Glen Echo purse for Walter J. Salmon at the Bowie track.

Five others opposed the Salmon four-year-old over the mile and one-sixteenth route but the chief contention came from J. H. Loucheim's Grey Coat, famous for his defeat of Blue Larkspur last year. At the end of the journey, Dr. Freeland was a head in front of Grey Coat, while W. E. Caskey, Jr.'s William T., the favorite, took down the short end of the purse.

Coming on top of his poor showing in the Southern Maryland handicap Saturday, Dr. Freeland received little support in the mutuels. As the result he paid $11.70 for a $2 straight ticket after covering the route in 1:43.

BOOTH AND BARRES ARE CANDIDATES FOR YALE CAPTAIN

Choice is generally believed narrowed down to two candidates. Albie Booth, diminutive backfield star, and Herster Barres, regular left end, are considered the outstanding possibilities. Both have played with the first string for two successive years, and both have been mentioned as All-American possibilities.

Those men who took part in the Princeton and Harvard games will cast ballots. The banquet will officially end the football season.

VELVETMEN WIN EASILY FROM BALTIC SOCCER TEAM

Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin field, the J. B. Martin team won from the Baltic team 6 to 0 before one of the largest crowds of the present soccer season. Baltic worked hard but the superior footwork of the Velvetmen was too much for them to combat. Edmonds right halfback for the J. B. Martin team played a brilliant game as did Erickson who scored three goals. Baltic's goalie also assisted in the Martin scoring by bouncing in a kick from Houston. Roehead and Archibald scored the remaining two goals. Next Sunday the Velvetmen play in Baltic.

RANGERS TAKE REVENGE BY 3-2 WIN OVER PUTNAM

The New London Rangers evened things up Sunday afternoon when they defeated Putnam 3-2 before one of the largest crowds of the season. The game was fast and both teams were evenly matched. Ballentine opened the scoring midway in the first half and Schaffer followed with another shortly after. With only a few minutes to go before the close of the half, Fenton scored a fine goal when Costa bobbed a high one toward the Rangers' goal and Fenton dashed past the backs and nodded the leather well out of the Ranger goalies' reach. The score ended 2-1 at half time.

Upon resuming play, Putnam began to press and on a fine cross by Austin, Higgins rushed one through. With the count now 2-2, the Rangers began to threaten and forced a corner. Lawless sent in a perfect flag-kick which landed in the far corner of the goal. The New London fans were crying for Putnam to even the game up once again but the Ranger defense held up to the end.

Yates in goal played a sensational game and made a great save when he dived across the goal mouth and touched the ball around the post.

"OLD GLORY" SALE OPENS IN NEW YORK TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Rich in the traditions of harness horse racing, the 36th annual "Old Glory" auction sale opens tomorrow with more than 400 future and proved trotters and pacers slated to go on the block before the last horse is knocked down to the highest bidder late on Thanksgiving day.

In years past, the sale of aged horses predominated the Old Glory arena but of late years the pendulum has swung to yearlings. This year one-half of the 409 horses listed in the catalogue have yet to prove their worth in the harness. As in former years most of the yearling colts come from the great breeding farms in the Blue Grass district of Kentucky.

Although the number of horses up for sale this year is less than last year, followers of the harness racing game are predicting that the average of $714 obtained in 1929 will be bettered. The top price of last year was for Hazelton, which was bought by a German for $15,000.

The Calumet farm, which placed 65 head in the sales arena last year for a total price of $38,696, has consigned 87 to the current sale. The famous Walnut Hall farm of Kentucky has entered 76. Once again the Goodtime stable of Goshen, N. Y., is disposing of every horse in the stable over three years of age in addition to a smart group of yearlings. The majority of the Goodtime stable offerings are sired by Guy Axworthy.

Leading the nearly 200 older horses into the arena will be Legality, a three-year-old bred at the Midway farm, Kearney, Neb., and consigned to the sale by W. T. Deatherage. Legality won the Horsemen Futurity this year, was second in the Kentucky Futurity and third in the Horse Review Futurity. Trampunion, foaled in 1923 and a winner of the Horse Review purse, also will be placed on the auction block.

PLAINFIELD AND FITCH PLAY AT NEW LONDON TODAY

This afternoon promptly at 2.30 the Plainfield high school team will meet the Fitch team at Mercer field, New London to decide the championship of the B league of Eastern Connecticut high schools. The game will no doubt furnish plenty of exciting spots, since these two teams battled to a scoreless tie in Groton, earlier in the season. Since that meeting, however, both teams have completed schedules calling for engagements with much sterner opponents than their Connecticut standings warrant. Plainfield has been into both Massachusetts and Rhode Island, winning one game and losing a close game to Warwick by the same score that Warwick won from Westerly, an A league leader in the Connecticut conference.

Fitch has come along with impressive showings against larger outfits winning their share as well in the competition.

A great deal of preporation has taken place on the part of both teams in the way of preparing for this all important game. The Fitch team will have a decided advantage in weight, but Plainfield rooters are placing a world of confidence in the fast backfield which they will use, and a diversified running attack

Groton and New London cohorts of Fitch are confident and pledged to turn out to back the team from their section. It is hoped that Plainfield will be likewise followed by some football fans, as this game has already taken a decided look of a real intersectional tilt

Starting lineup for Plainfield:

S. Loty le. V. Hill lt. subsittute, Collin, lg. Messier c. Le Clair or Beck rg. La Mothe or Gronman rt. Pepin re. P. Koss qb. Lang or Burdick rhb. Liasso or Burby fb. Williams lhb.

NORWICH TOWN WILDCATS WIN SIXTH STRAIGHT GAME

By defeating the Mohegans by the score of 6 to 0 the Norwich Town Wildcats won their sixth straight game on Sunday, Albie Mathews intercepted a Mohegan pass and ran 40 yards for a touchdown. LaVarge and Mullins were the backbone of the defense while the Milan brothers played a nice defensive game for the Wildcats. The undefeated Wildcats would like to play the famed Laurel Hill A. C. on Thanksgiving day for the city football championship. The Norwich Town team won last year's game 12 to 6 and would like to repeat again this year.

A PRINCETON-DARTMOUTH GAME IS SUGGESTED

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 24.—(AP)—The "Daily Princetonian," undergraduate publication at Princeton university, suggests that Princeton meet Dartmouth in an annual football game in its leading editorial today.

The editorial urges the "opening of negotiations with Dartmouth now so that as soon as the home-and-home series with Michigan is completed, a late October or early November date be arranged."

MASSIE B. MILLER

Last night the board of governors of the Norwich Golf club accepted the resignation of Massie B. Miller, professional at the local golf club for the past four years. In accepting his resignation the governors expressed their regret at losing Mr. Miller, who besides being an exceptionally fine golfer, had a charming personality and was well liked by members of the club and others who knew him.

During his four years as professional at the local club Massie Miller has done more to keep the name of Norwich before the public than any other single person. He has carried the name of Norwich to the four corners of the United States and into Canada. Two winters ago he played in all the large winter tournaments in Florida finishing well up among the leaders. Last winter he toured the tournaments on the Pacific coast, Mexico and Texas. Then in the past summer he played in the national open at Interlachen. During the summer of 1929 he played in the national open at Winged Foot club at Mamaroneck, N. Y., finishing in a tie for 19th place. It was during his winter tournaments in Florida that he began to attract attention for here he showed his uncanny ability with his niblick shots. A Miami golf writer said of Miller: "Massie B. Miller of Norwich, Conn., is one of the greatest masters of the niblick that it has been our good fortune to see. This slight youth with his niblick is to golf what Hoppe is to billiards." In the late summer of 1929 Miller tured the windswept course of Salisbury Plains to land in a tie for first place in the first annual Lannin Memorial golf tournament. He tied with Joe Turnesa in this tournament but was beaten in the playoff. Last year his playing was not up to his usual standard and he did not show as well in the big tournaments.

Miller in resigning from the local club is doing the best thing for himself. He is too good a golf player to be tied down to a teaching job in a small club. Massie is capable of brilliant golf and if given the opportunity will rise to great heights in the golfing world but he cannot do it if he is confined to teaching and club making. He must play and he must practice, something that he did not have an opportunity to do here in Norwich. Massie loves the golf game, he loves to play, but teaching is irksome to him and it tends to throw him off his game.

What Miller should do is to make connections with some large club that is in need of a playing professional where he can devote his time to perfecting his game and gaining experience in tournament play. Wherever Miller has played he has attracted much favorable attention, the gallery marveling at the terrific driving power found in one who weighs less than 125 pounds. His playing has always been brilliant but with a chance to play frequently he should be even more brilliant in the next few years.

Norwich is sorry to see Massie Miller leave but with him goes the best wishes of the city as a whole. Good luck to you, Massie.

Bliss Elected Exeter Leader

PLAINFIELD PROS OPEN FRIDAY WITH ENTIRELY NEW QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 24—Manager Lester Saulsbury announced that the Plainfield professional basketball team will open its season Friday evening against the Long Island Pros, one of the fastest teams in the country, champions of Greater New York and captained by one of the greatest basketball players in the country, Baldy Yerkes. Yerkes has gathered around him one of the best basketball players ever to represent him team, including McElwain, formerly of the New York Celtics and who played with Plainfield in several games last season. McElwain also played with the Fort Wayne club in the American league for the three seasons before joining the Celtics.

For a running mate McElwain will have one of New York's greatest basketball players in Joe Carey. Carey has played here many times and the basketball fans have a lot of respect for his work. Carey played baseball the past season in the Piedmont league in the southern states. Opposite Yerkes at guard will be old reliable Pourey, who stands six feet and weighs 210 pounds. Pourey is without question one of the greatest long-shot artists in the game today. Last season be kept the Long Island boys in the running with his clever guarding and spectacular long shots. At center will probably be no other than Ripley, coach and player of exceptional ability. Ripley has played a lot of basketball and will round out one of the fastest teams ever seen against the Pros

Plainfield will present several new players in their lineup Friday night. One is Marchak, formerly of the Cleveland Rosenblooms, Bristol Endees and Springfield Pros; Crowley, formerly of Passaic, N. J., New Britain Guards and Meriden Endees and Cap Bissell, who formerly played with the Plainfield Pros, Meriden Endees and later Trinity college, where he was a star for the past four years. With Conway, Pop Williams and Roy Dissinger making up the balance of the team, Plainfield will be represented by one of the greatest teams ever to step upon the Plainfield Community house floor. Dave Harper will again officiate and the Plainfield Buddies will participate in the preliminaries. Either Danielson or Willimantic of the Southern New England Basketball league will furnish the opposition Friday. Dancing will follow the games as usual. The hall can accommodate 1,200 people.

Sets New Putting Record

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. J. D. Hathaway, of Montreal, playing an 18-hole round of golf today, made what was believed here to be a putting record for women.

Mrs. Hathaway had 14 one-putt greens in the holes. She sank her first putt on all the last nine holes.

Rosenbloom Outpoints Perroni

ROCKNE GIVES HIS FIGHTING IRISH REST BEFORE ARMY DRILL

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—Convinced at last that he has another exceptional football team, Knute Rockne today refused to get much excited over Notre Dame's 17th annual football argument with the undefeated Army eleven at Soldier field Saturday.

He gave his regulars a day for rest, took the day off himself for a visit with Chicago friends and for about the first time in many seasons, he failed to sing the blues as a training overture for the traditional gridiron duel.

"The boys are pretty badly bruised as a result of that tough game with Northwestern Saturday," Coach Rockne said, "but we'll be ready to take on the Cadets Saturday. We should win that game although don't think I haven't the profoundest regard for the Army. They always give us a 60-minute fight.

"It may be necessary to employ a lot of second string men for the Army game because we've got another tough one for the following Saturday against Southern California. Most of my regulars played almost the entire game against Northwestern and it is too much to expect that even from a great football team, you know."

Although the game was five days away, Chicago already was excited about the battle tonight. There was a general scurrying about for tickets and they were so scarce that a record football crowd of 125,000 was almost assured. Wagers were not heavy, however, as all the money was reported by betting brokers to be on Notre Dame with few takers even at odds of five to one. Since the Army-Notre Dame series started at West Point way back in 1913, Notre Dame has been returned a winner 11 times to the Army's four one game resulting in a scoreless tie in 1922. With a great record behind them this season and a recorded habit of stopping the Army's football march, the "Ramblers" naturally stacked up as top-heavy favorites for Saturday's game.

Despite the battering received in the gruelling fight with Northwestern, all of the Notre Dame regulars were expected to be ready for action Saturday. Marty Brill, the pivotal point in the Rambler blocking system, had a sore side and a lame hip today; Fullback Larry Mullins came back with multiple hurts and bruises; Bert Metzger, Rockne's 154 pound watch charm guard who starred in the Northwestern game also had a bruised side.

The fullback problem was expected to be Rockne's main study this week in preparation for the Army as well as the Southern California games. Mullins, who replaced "Jumping Joe" Savoldi at that position, may be supplanted by Dan Hanley in an effort to give the line attack more power and to speed up the running and blocking plays.

Heavy drill for the engagement will open tomorrow or Wednesday—it all depends on Rockne's frame of mind and the recovery of his bruised regulars—and the fourth, fifth and sixth teams were scheduled to scrimmage against the Ramblers with Army plays. Army has been scouted thoroughly by Rockne's aides and, in fact, his team has drilled secretly for the Army for the past three weeks.

S. N. E. LEAGUE PLAYS 4TH ROUND TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 24.—The fourth round of the southern New England basketball league will get underway at the Plainfield Community house Tuesday evening with four good games in store for the spectators. All teams are evenly matched with Jewett City and Westerly starting the evening off promptly at 7:30. Plainfield and the New London Telephone team will battle in the second game with the New London boys strengthened by Simmons, a former Dartmouth athlete. The third game should be a great battle between Willimantic and the New London Boys' club. Last Wednesday evening the New London Boys' club defeated Willimantic at the Thread City by the score of 18 to 13 and Willimantic will have to play their best to stop the fast team that the New London Boys are developing.

The last game brings together the fast-traveling Danielson team and Stafford Springs. At present the Danielson team shapes up as one of the best in the league but Stafford Springs is coming along nicely and it should be a great contest. Pop Williams and Paul Bilgood will again officiate.

The league standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Willimantic	3	0	1.000
Danielson	2	0	1.000
Plainfield	2	0	1.000
Putnam	1	1	.500
Stafford Springs	1	2	.333
N. L. Boys' Club	1	2	.333
Westerly	1	2	.333
N. L. Tel. and Tel.	0	1	.000
Jewett City	0	3	.000

Danielson and Plainfield played a 27-27 tie game.

BASS GAINS DECISION IN BRUISING BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24. — (AP)—Benny Bass, junior lightweight champion, won the decision over Lew Massey, fellow Philadelphian, in a bruising 10-round main event bout at the arena tonight. The title was not at stake, Bass weighing in at 129 1-2 and Massey 130 1-2.

The bout was fast and furious throughout, with Bass early going into the lead through sheer punching ability. His jarring left hook to the head and body inflicted severe punishment on the game and ever-trying Massey, and his heavy right on the few occasions it did land cleanly, shook the young Italian from head to heels.

The only semblance of a knockdown came in the seventh when a left to the stomach and a right cross to the chin sent the badly hurt Massey to his haunches against the ropes, but he fell into a clinch and survived the round.

In other six-round bouts Tony Morgano, Philadelphia, 124, won the decision over Matty White, Philadelphia, 128, and Al Gordon, Philadelphia, 138, won the verdict over Emory Cabana, Philadelphia, 139.

TWO MORE BOUTS SIGNED FOR SHYMA BOXING SHOW

Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn signed two more bouts for the last card of the Shyma Boxing club before the holidays. The feature bout as announced a week ago is between Vic Darr and Al Koziol a bout that is attracting widespread interest. For another star bout on the card Rene Peloquin of Danielson has been rematched with Tony Caprico of Providence. These boys met in a six rounder a month ago with Peloquin winning a close verdict over the Providence lad in a gruelling bout. For one of the preliminaries Al Rodman of Goodyear scrappy little blond haired boxer, clashes with Pat James, Brown university student and boxing instructor of Providence. Rodman will have his work cut out for him as James is quite some little boxer.

Rec. Jrs. Beat Burn's All Stars

Gaska, of the All Stars beat Erie by the score 100 to 75. Gaska started off like a whirlwind, piling up a lead on Erie, having him 67 to 17 and then running out on him with the score 92 to 75.

The game of games was Vulgaras vs. Burns, Vulgaras beating Burns 100 to 88. Burns had the spectators in high spirits by his wise cracks and by his trick shots, making crosses and three bank shots like a professional. Vulgaras played a marvelous game although matched against a wizard, but undoubtedly the better man finally beat Burns in the final game.

Coach Arremony of the All Stars is hoping for revenge next Monday night in Jewett City, in the second game. The scores:

All Stars

Liberty	84
Maranella	53
Gaska	100
Jarvis	71
Burns	88
Total	396

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Eureka Vacuum Cleaner

Newspaper influence, in the opinion of Fred Wardell, president of the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company, has been one of the largest facters in placing business upon the up-grade with every indication of continued improvement.

Mr Wardell, a business leader nationally known for his courageous optimism, constructive thinking, and aggressive merchandising, said in a recent interview;

"Our company, in the firm belief that buyers are rapidly losing the timidity which kept them out of the commodity market for so long, is launching a vigorous sales campaign for November and December, for the success of which we are depending largely upon the newspapers of the country. The consistent efforts of newspapers everywhere to restore public confidence and direct consumer's attention to the favorable buying conditions which have been prevalent for some time, have had a very important influence in improving general conditions to a point which justifies the effort which we are now putting forth. In addition to this splendid service to business upon the part of the press, we have found the varied services which the modern newspaper offers to be of inestimable value. Not only is our story carried directly into millions of homes, but we rely greatly upon market surveys, knowledge of consumer habits and local conditions, and analysis of our customers' desires, to determine what our story shall be. We have found that we can rely upon the newspaper to furnish this information inusable form."

"It is small wonder then, that the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company has long been a large user of newspaper space and that of an advestising appropriation of $100,000.00 for the last two months of this year, will expend more than half in newspaper advertising. This is concrete evidence of our faith in the power of the press, and our belief that increased business will follow constructive efforts at this time."

120 PERMITS TO CUT WOOD IN STATE FORESTS

Many a Connecticut home will be made warm and cheery the coming winter by stove and open grate fires in which burn wood from the state forests. The offer of State Forester Austin F. Hawes to place 50,000 cords of wood in the forests at disposal of those who will cut it, for their own use has already resulted in the issuance of 120 permits to cut wood.

Many of these permits have gone to men who are out of work and others to men who are on part time employment. A permit is good for cutting ten cords of wood. None is issued to any person who would try to dispose of the wood for revenue.

Among the permits issued were 38 on Mattatuck forest, 18 on Paugnut, two on People's, one on Mohawk, 20 on Meshomasic and the rest scattered among other forests.

G. W. Turner, ranger for the Cockaponset forest at Haddam, said he has issued permits in Ivoryton, Deep River, Chester and Middletown. Three of the five men have five to seven children each and have only small or intermittent wages.

One man with seven children had been given his wood free and he has been cutting it and his wife has been helping. In another case turned in by Ranger Turner a man of 60, who said he had earned but $7 since June is getting out wood. He said that he and his wife had been living on insurance compensation money received upon loss of his wife's eye.

Mr. Turner, in his comment to Forester Hawes said that the policy of giving wood to the needy is proving of "inestimable value not only as a material aid but also as moral and mental support to those whose outlook is dark at these times. In addition, the state forest is being brought closer home to the people."

INVENTOR SAYS HE CAN TRIPLE RADIO CHANNELS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Good program reception on a channel one-third the width of the present broadcasting channel of 10 kilocycles is claimed by Dr. James Robinson of London, inventor of the Stenode radiostat.

The British inventor, who is demonstrating his system of reception to American radio engineers, says he can narrow the paths of transmission so as to triple usable space in the ether and thus speed development of television which requires wide channels

In a demonstration of his system before radio scientists here, Dr. Robinson used a standard receiver of high selectivity. He introduced a beat note which was audible as an annoying whistle in a program being received from a Washington station. He then hooked up the receiver with his radiostat and the program came in clearly, with the whistle eliminated.

He says the purpose of his visit to America is to show "what we already have been able to prove to the satisfaction of European scientists, namely, that super-selectivity can be accomplished with complete retention of all tones."

Dr. Robinson declines to describe his apparatus in detail because "pending patents."

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve bank of New York yesterday showed exports of $5,000,000 to Canada. Imports of $5,975,000 from Argentina, of which $3,000,000 was consigned to the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, and $2,975,000 to the Chase National bank.

PRICES FLUCTUATED IN QUIETEST MARKET SESSION IN THREE WEEKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A tepid stock market today showed sufficient recuperative power to get back early losses of 1 to 5 points and close a little higher. It was the quietest session in three weeks, with sales of only 1,630,820 shares.

Nevertheless, the fact that a dull market had been able to recover from a creeping decline was something of an innovation, for in recent months the tendency has been in the direction of steadily lower prices during periods of inertia. Bears had little success in their sallies against the pivotal industrials. They met with slightly better luck in the utilities and rails, but all the day's drives ran into the stone walls of dullness.

When the market finally turned definitely in the last half hour it again moved with the merchandising and chain store stocks. These are the groups that seem to harbor the most cheerful Christmas prospects; and just now the professional traders are overjoyed to find a group which can be said to have possibilities for short term trading purposes.

The federal reserve report that October retail sales by department stores had shown a larger than seasonal increase stimulated further activity in shares which had shown strength last Saturday, with the result that net gains of 1 to more than 3 points came out in Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, F. G. Shattuck, Abraham & Straus, Kroger Grocery, R. H. Macy and May Department Stores.

The market had to get along with little or no news from business. October railroad earnings, beginning to filter in, disclose slight changes. So far, they are somewhat higher than October, just as September's were higher than August's, but the proportionate decrease from October, 1929, is about the same as a month ago. Earnings statements from other corporations presented a rather even balance between losses and gains. The most prominent dividend action of the day was the halving of the Sinclair rate, but the stock paid almost no attention to the action and closed unchanged. Considerable attention was attracted to the decision to cut the Texas oil proration to 680,200 barrels daily from the present maximum output of 750,000 barrels, which has been in effect since late August.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Word that Russian exports of wheat had ceased, as Russian home supplies were exhausted, led to a sharp rally in wheat prices late today. The rally was aided by announcement of 1,058,000 bushels falling off in the Canadian wheat visible supply total and also by 487,000 bushels decrease of the United States visible. Besides, primary arrivals of domestic wheat today were much smaller, and export purchases of North American wheat aggregated upward of 750,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1-8a1c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed at 1-8a3-4c advance, oats unchanged to 1-2c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Curb stocks fluctuated uncertainly today and in the main were lower at the close, although the rally on the big board caused some sympathetic recovery in this market. The day's transactions totaled 401,400 shares.

Electric Bond & Share rallied to close at 50 1-4, a net gain of 1-2 point, after declining to 48 1-8. American Gas & Electric sold off more than 3, and closed off 2, net. United Light & Power A ended the day with a fractional gain, after easing during the early hours of trading.

Reduction of the Sinclair quarterly dividend from 50 to 25 cents caused no surprise. Gulf closed up 3-4, and Vacuum up 3-8. Cities Service and Indiana closed about steady, off 1-8 to 1-4, respectively. Standard of Kentucky lost a full point.

The industrials were inclined to work lower, although Niles Bement Pond and Northwest Engineering gained about a point. Cooper Bessemer lost 2 points in fairly active trading for this issue. Deere, Glen Alden Coal, Silica Gel and Technicolor lost a point or two. Sidney Blumenthal dropped nearly 3 to a new low. American Cyanamid B lost 5-8.

In the investment trust and holding company group, Goldman Sachs rallied 1-2 point to 11, and United Founders closed steady. Goldman Sachs was helped by news that the plan to merge Manufacturers' Trust, in which it has a large interest, with three smaller banks, was about completed.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—The bond market began a new week with a very dull session in which prices drifted irregularly lower.

High priced domestic corporate obligations maintained their upward trend in very quiet activity but a heavy tone dominated bonds ranking under the best. Buying of U. S. governments was not as brisk as last week. Liberties, which were a strong feature last week, held their ground, while Treasury issues—the 3 3-8s of 1940 and the 3 3-4s—reached new peaks for the year.

German International 5 1-2s were bolstered by buying encouraged by the record low reached last week and the bond advanced 2 points on a turnover that was the bright spot in the foreign list. Otherwise there was no change over the week end.

Latin-Americans were heavy. More than a dozen were sharply depressed by light selling. Bolivian 7s of 1958 reacted 2 points and the 8s declined 3. Buenos Aires 6 1-2s, Cauca Valley 7 1-2s, Bogota City 8s, Minas Geraes 6 1-2s, Peru 7s, Rio De Janeiro 8s and Sao Paulo State 8s and 7s dropped a point or more.

The listless trading carried most of the railroad issues slightly lower. There was pronounced weakness in Spokane International 5s, Wabash 5s D, Wilkesbarre & Eastern 5s, Cotton Belt first 5s, and Erie general 4s, all of which sank to new 1930 minimums. St. Louis-San Francisco 4 1-2s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, M. K. & T. 5s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, and Denver and Rio Grande and Western 5s eased.

In the industrial group, liquidation in several oil company bonds was conspicuous. Skelly Oil 5 1-2s and Shell Union 5s dipped to their low level of the year. Stock privilege issues were under some pressure and generally lower, although showing no marked weakness.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Construction of additional public service facilities by subsidiaries of North American Co. has proceeded rapidly, with the result that expenditures for materials and labor in the first nine months this year were greater than during the entire year of 1929, F. L. Dame, president, said in a letter to stockholders.

Dow, Jones & Co. says that the Illinois Central railroad for October will show a slight increase in net, which is estimated at $3,470,000, against $3,433,065 for the like month last year. October gross is estimated at an indicated decrease of about $4,350,000, but a "continued grip on operating expenses, combined with lower tax accruals, will enable the road to show the increase in net.

Stockholders of Middlewest Utilities Co., Nov. 20, totaled 84,042, an increase of 29.9 per cent over the number of record Jan. 1, last, Martin J. Insull, president, announced.

The Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co., in a special interim report today, reported premium for the first ten months of the year of $10,459,408 against $10,374,889 for the comparable period of 1930. President T. J. Falvey said the special report was issued because several shareholders had been approached by salesmen to trade their holdings for other securities on a basis far below the value of its stock.

SHEEP SENT BY AIRPLANE TO PROVIDE MEAT SUPPLY

RABAUL, New Guinea—(AP)—Many strange cargoes have been carried by airplanes operating between the coast and the goldfields in the mountainous jungles of New Guinea, but the latest and strangest aerial achievement is the transport of sheep.

At Wau grazing paddocks have been hacked out of the jungle, the land has been tilled and sweet grasses from Australia have been planted, and now airplanes have carried a flock of sheep to the spot. In no other way could the sheep have been transported to supply fresh meat.

LEDYARD MAN TO BE QUESTIONED TODAY IN BURDICK MURDER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 24.—William H. Coon, Ledyard farmhand, held for questioning in the murder of the late Senator Charles Burdick at his Charlestown home on Oct. 24, remained all day Monday at Westerly police headquarters without arraignment. It was understood that he was to be arraigned at 9 a. m., Monday, but Judge Oliver H. Williams was at Wood River Junction on court business.

About 1:45 p. m., Judge Williams arrived at the courthouse, where Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Prosecutor John Ferguson and Sergeant Ernest F. Stenhouse had been awaiting the judge all the morning. Judge Williams was closeted with the police authorities in chambers until nearly 3:30 p. m., and upon the conclusion of the conference Judge Williams left the courthouse and Prosecutor Ferguson said that the arraignment would not be made until Tuesday morning at 9:30 a. m. Meanwhile, the suspect remained in cell No. 6 on the rear tier of cells, and the adjoining one to cell No. 5 from which Bourbeau made his short-lived escape on Sunday noon. The man, apprehended on a sheep farm in Connecticut three days ago, was not brought to the Westerly station from a grilling at the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police until about 4 a. m., on Saturday, and declared that he was asleep when the cell escape was made and did not know about it until he was questioned by Westerly Police Officer Frank E. Knight on Sunday noon.

It is understood that the non-arraignment was due to a desire on the part of the police authorities to have the Rhode Island attorney-general's department thoroughly acquainted with the situation and have the accused held under a different warrant than the technical one of operating an automobile without a license. The death of Coroner George C. Cross of Charlestown, R. I., having complicated the situation to the extent that the defendant could not be held under a special Rhode Island statute under bonds as a coroner's witness but that Prosecutor John Ferguson, representing the attorney general's department, might ask for his being held as a material witness under bonds.

JAIL-BREAKING YOUTH IS RECAPTURED BY TROOPERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 24.—While Joseph Adelor Bourbeau, of Exeter, R. I., who was born in Putnam, Conn., was awaiting the representative of the Rhode Island state bureau of criminal investigation at the Westerly police station to be "mugged" and fingerprinted, word was received of the capture of his brother Joseph Alfred Bourbeau, who made his get-away Sunday noon from Westerly police headquarters. The troopers of the Wickford barracks went to their residing place on the Hartley farm, in Hell's Half Acre, near the junction of the Old Turnpike road with the Ten Rod road, and at 2 a. m., Joseph Alfred walked in upon the troopers hidden in the brush. The Westerly cellbreaker was reported to have taken to the tracks of the New Haven railroad and gone to Wood River Junction and then to have hitch hiked to the place where they were first apprehended, as he claimed, to get an automobile left there.

About noon on Monday Joseph Adelor was taken by troopers of the Rhode Island state police department back to Wickford, R. I., from Westerly police headquarters to again join his brother, who was locked up by the troopers in the jail at Apponaug, R. I. They will be arraigned in the fourth district court. A search of the public laws of Rhode Island showed on Monday that there was no penalty attached to the breaking out of a town jail as the statutes cover only county and state prisons. There is a public law penalty for assisting or attempting to assist anyone to break out of any jail, and Joseph Alfred Bourbeau could have been returned to Westerly to face such charges, in his unsuccessful attempt to liberate his brother. Members of the police committee of the Westerly town council on Monday admitted that the cells and layout of the Westerly police station is not one of the securest imaginable and one member even opened the door from the hallway to the cell room with his penknife, the dry atmosphere in the cell room having shrunk the door to such an extent.

CAT CAUSES AUTO TO HIT POLE; TOWN DARK

WESTERLY, Nov. 24.—About 4 a. m. Monday Stonington was plunged into darkness as the result of a black and white "cat" crossing the road of an automobilist returning from a New York football game to his Providence home. Near the Pawcatuck World war memorial on Moss hill on the Westerly-Stonington highway, an electric light pole carrying an 11,000 volt electric current was snapped off and the circuit broken to an accompaniment of fireworks when the sedan car driven by William Egan, 32, of 3 Palmer street, Providence, was reported to have swerved to avoid hitting "kittie."

Operator Egan was given a Stonington court summons by Police Officer Simeon Shortman for reckless driving. The occupants of the car, which was badly smashed, were all injured and were brought to the Westerly police station by a passing New York-Boston bus and were attended by Dr. Michael H. Scanlon. An emergency crew had a new pole to replace the damaged one in operation before sunrise. Superintendent Saunders reported that the break in the circuit automatically threw out a switch in the Westerly sub-station. A secondary circuit was cut in from Mystic and electric service continued.

DISPOSITION OF TRIAL CALENDAR IS MADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 24.—The first day's superior court sitting of the Westerly adjournment of Washington county superior court with Judge Jeremiah O'Connell on the bench proved a short session on Monday, due to several circumstances. The Thanksgiving day holiday and the Friday following are taken as legal holidays by Rhode Island courts so that only Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are available this week and Judge O'Connell was averse to starting any case to go before a jury which could not be finished by Wednesday night. Another reason was the fact that the jurymen summoned only had two more days' service before them when their two-week tour of duty would be completed. The attorneys present, and who were especially queried by the court, in view of their belief that the jury cases prevented timely hearing of equity matters, apparently had no cases to be heard without jurymen and Judge O'Connell adjourned the court until Monday of next week. The jurymen were directed to report to Mrs. Edna Treat, deputy court clerk, to be paid off, and were thanked by the judge for their services, both in the September and November terms during which they had served.

The following disposition was made of the Westerly trial calendar: Nelson Wunder vs. Russell L. Slocum; placed at foot of calendar, as a settlement would probably be agreed upon. Florence T. Jennings vs. Ernest Panciera, et al.; marked end of calendar. Charles G. Simpson, Jr., vs. Russell L. Slocum; end of calendar. W. F. Schoonman vs. Louise Leone, alias; marked ready, and later made the first case to be tried with jury next Monday morning. Woods Young Co. vs. Edward J. Fenelon, Jr.; ready. Elisha R. Bitgood vs. Harry O. Williams; ready. Elisha R. Bitgood vs. Edith C. Williams; ready, requiring three or four days' trial. Mathilda M. S. Swenson vs. Horace E. Litchfield; ready. Conrad Andrekson vs. Peter Kemppil; marked ready if bill of particulars requested is filed. Greta Smith vs. Edwin H. Tompkins; ready. Cecilia Smith vs. Edwin H. Tompkins; ready. Hannah Sullivan vs. Edwin H. Tompkins; ready. James McMillan vs. Edwin H. Tompkins; ready. Isaac T. Prosser vs. Effie Simmons, alias; ready at end of next week. Wilfred A. Maine vs. Murray G. Penn; ready. Peter Kemppil vs. Conrad Andrekson; ready. Edwin D. Vennard vs. Harold Lihme; marked passed at request of Attorney Ferguson. Gavitt Furniture Co. vs. Sullivan J. Bookataub; ready. John S. Fenner vs. Henry H. Crandall, Admr.; ready. Mary Dotolo vs. Westerly hospital; ready. John R. Sherman vs. Reuben W. Brown, town treasurer; ready in two or three days. Lillian Unkurl vs. George P. Metcalf; ready. Charles S. Maxson vs. William L. Hoyt; ready with jury trial waived. Adelaide A. Maxson vs. William L. Hoyt; ready. Florence Maxson vs. William L. Hoyt; ready. Agnes Seifried vs. William L. Hoyt; ready. Robert Seifried vs. William L. Hoyt; ready. Ella Drysdale, appt., vs. Robert Drysdale, Jr., et al.; ready. Lovina J. Crandall, appt., vs. Emily K. Browning; ready. Elina Piipari vs. John Piipari; ready. Nathan Newton, et al., vs. Joseph I. Girard; to be heard without jury. Harry J. Leon vs. Elizabeth Leon; ready. John S. Fenner, et al., vs. Bessie M. Moore; announcement made that decree for sale had been entered. John S. Fenner vs. James H. Fenner, et al.; passed.

When the motion calendar was reached in the continued divorce case Ida Minaude vs. Emory E. Minaude, permission was given to the filing of marriage certificate and a decree was then entered for the petitioner on the grounds of neglect to provide and alimony ordered, $6 weekly. It also developed that a child had been born since the petition was started and the parents separated and on petition the custody of Theodore and the infant Ida was awarded the mother.

In the case of John S. Fenner and James H. Fenner, plaintiffs, a motion to dismiss suit will be heard on next Monday at 10:45 a. m. In the case of Bitgood vs. Williams, a jury visit to scene of auto accident some 12 miles out on the Nooseneck hill road will take some time for a view and at least seven witnesses are to be heard. This will be the second case to be called next Monday.

In the contested will case, in an action other than criminal, in which a request has been made for a jury trial, attorneys represented that the case would be a long one and might take a week for trial.

Court adjourned at 11:30 a. m., until Monday, Dec. 1, when the new jurors will be present for two weeks and at the conclusion on the third Monday in December the judge will be due back in Providence.

John Bogan, 70, of 11 Benefit street, was painfully injured about 9:30 a. m. Monday, when he slipped and fell at the elastic webbing plant of the George C. Moore Co. on Beach street. In the fall he struck a machine and sustained a broken nose and severe cuts about the face. He was taken to the Westerly hospital, where he was attended by Dr. John Ruisi.

STATE PRISON TESTIMONY OPENS AT SPECIAL HEARING

a. m. tomorrow when the hearing of testimony is continued.

Dr. Smith, who resigned as chaplain of the Connecticut prison October 1, charged in the article that prisoners in solitary confinement were subjected to brutal treatment. He specifically charged that prisoners in solitary confinement had been partly disrobed and shackled to the bars of the cell with their hands above their heads so that they were forced to stand on the tips of their toes.

No evidence substantiating Dr. Smith's charge concerning the shackling and disrobing of prisoners in solitary confinement was introduced today. Patterson said during his ten years at the prison he had known cases where prisoners had been handcuffed to the gates of their cells, but in no instance, he said, had a prisoner been partly disrobed or his arms extended above his head so that he was forced to stand on tip toes.

Asked by Cummings if he had ever witnessed any form of unusual treatment at the prison or any abuse by guards of prisoners, Patterson said he had not. The former deputy warden told the commission that in his opinion the prison was well conducted.

McIntyre, who served in the U. S navy for 20 years before he entered the employ of the prison last May, criticized sanitary conditions in the insane ward of the prison where, he said, no toilets were available to prisoners from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 6 o'clock the next morning. He charged that several of the cell blocks were infested with vermin and related several episodes dealing with the treatment accorded prisoners by guards.

On one occasion, McIntyre said, a prisoner was seized with a fit in a cell in the insane ward, fell and cut his head. Upon the request of another guard, McIntyre, according to his testimony, reported the incident to the captain of the guard. The captain, McIntyre said, was reading a paper at the time and took no steps to secure medical attention for the injured prisoner until 55 minutes after the incident had been reported to him.

McIntyre also quoted a prisoner as telling him that on two occasions Chief Engineer Starr of the prison had used profane and abusive language in addressing the prisoner.

"Starr has been very free with names," McIntyre quoted the prisoner as saying to him. "The next time I'm going to get a monkey wrench and hit him over the head."

The alleged use by Starr of abusive language, McIntyre said, was reported to the warden by the prisoner.

Both Patterson and McIntyre, criticized Warden Reed for dismissing them. The latter also criticized Col. N. G. Osborn, president of the prison directors, for refusing to grant his request for a hearing of his case.

In one of her series of statements which she filed with the commission, Miss Cowles criticized the shirt shop at the prison.

"Shirts, not future good citizens," the statement said, "seem to be the most valued product of Wethersfield prison."

Miss Cowles said that in the shirt factory there is "the suspicion of dishonor to the state."

"Who benefits by the prison shirt shop?" her statement said. "Not the prisoner, not the prisoners' relatives, not the prisoners' victims; x x x. The labor of the prisoner, as slave, is exploited for nobody except the contractors and possibly—the officials?

"Here is the suspicion of dishonor to the state—does Connecticut allow human beings to be exploited as slaves in the name of justice for the benefit of state officials in graft with outside contractors?

"I was informed that the contract prison shoe shop was overthrown because it was proved that prison officials shared in the gains. What happened once might happen again.

"Why do we have such outrageously long prison sentences? Why is it made so difficult for able bodied productive prisoners to win parole? Is it because the prison contractor and whoever else shares his gains—possibly the directors or the officials — hold the prisoners in bondage as long as possible to exploit them and make money off their pains?"

Miss Cowles' other statements in general told of her experiences with prisoners and the effect that prison life had had on them morally, physically and mentally. She also charged that no attempt was made to improve a prisoner while confined.

At the outset of today's session, Cummings announced that the commission, which also included James T. Moran of New Haven, and Probate Judge Walter H. Clark, of Hartford, would announce in a few days the appointment of a "certain expert" to aid the committee in the investigation.

While the commission would not disclose the identity of the expert, the name of Dr. George W. Kirchwey, educator and criminologist and former acting warden at the Sing Sing prison, was mentioned by persons at the hearing as a probable candidate. His appointment was recently recommended by the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

Although public, the hearing was attended by only a few persons besides the witnesses, Warden Reed, Col. Osborn, and newspapermen. Among those present were Julius J. Hadley, secretary of the state department of welfare and William G Baxter, secretary of the Connecticut Prison association.

POETRY

Indian Summer

November days! when gardens sleep
  And harvesting is o'er,
When birds have winged their southern flight
  And wood folk gather store.

November days! when gracefully
  Entwines the bittersweet,
Reminding us both joy and grief
  May make our lives complete.

When dreamy, hazy shadows creep
  And trees have lost their leaves,
And each brown branch is listening
  To whispering winds and grieves
To see the havoc of the frost
  On hill and valley, too,
And when the "Ghost of Summer" comes
  And throws her mantle blue
O'er all the landscape round about,
  We look 'neath autumn skies,
At nature's panorama grand
  With soul as well as eyes

—M. Maude Mitchell, in Cincinnati Inquirer.

The Source And The Sea

Behind the Loaf, broad fields of waving wheat;
  Behind the Grain, a firmly kneading hand;
And far behind them both, with wealth replete—
      The Land, the Land!

Behind the Garment, shuttle and shaft and wheel;
  Behind the weft and woof, a world at strife;
And far behind, with joy to move and feel—
      Life!

Behind Mankind, saurian and gibbering ape;
  Behind each act no gift of thought-control;
But far behind, in rudimentary shape—
      The Soul, the Soul!

Behind Intelligence, desire and doubt and ruth;
  Love's wistful dream that scourges
    like a rod;
  But far behind in immemorial Truth—
    GOD!

Brenner and Salega were on the sidewalk near the corner of Bank and Howard streets at 7:30 o'clock and were staging a fight that would have done justice to a preliminary bout at the Thames arena. NEW LONDON, Nov. 24.—William Williams, chief petty officer of the U. S. Coast Guard was arrested tonight charged with being a deserter and with his arrest it was also revealed that he is wanted on a charge of jumping his bond. Williams is locked up and will be taken charge of tomorrow by the Coast Guard officials or held for trial on the charge of jumping his bond.

August 21, last, Williams was residing at 163 North Bank street out of wedlock and the woman with whom he was living attempted suicide. When the police were summoned to the house and caused the woman's removal to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, an inspection of the apartment revealed about 25 cases of home brew beer. Williams was sought and arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law and in the police court the following day he was fined $400 and costs, from which penalty he gave notice of an appeal. Louis Elfenbein qualified as surety on Williams' bond, but when the case was called in the court of common pleas at its recent session, Williams failed to appear for trial with the result that the bond was declared forfeited. Williams could not be found for he had deserted the Coast Guard service and was in Texas.

Recently he returned to New London and tonight when a shore patrol officer of the Coast Guard observed Williams, in a sailor's uniform, enter a Bank street dance hall, he followed him and took Williams into custody.

CIDER PROVES THE UNDOING OF DRIVER F. M. LAPIERRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 24.—Floyd H. LaPierre, R. F. D., Groton, was arrested this evening in Salem charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving while under the influence of liquor. He was brought to New London and locked up and will be presented in the Salem justice court tomorrow. LaPierre was driving on the Hartford turnpike and at the four corners the course taken by the auto attracted the attention of State Police Officer William E. MacKenzie. LaPierre was signaled to stop and when he did so his condition was clearly such as to indicate his stupefied condition. The driver, however, insisted that he was not drunk, declared that he had been to New London on a shopping mission and that he was driving back to Groton when he was arrested, although he was many miles from his home and headed towards Hartford. He was emphatic in his statement that he had not partaken of liquor, but did admit that he had drunk several glasses of cider.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"The Cat Creeps," described as one the greatest mystery stories in history of stage or motion pictures, and adopted for the talking screen from John Willard's famous play, "The Cat and the Canary," is the feature attraction at Warner Bros., Broadway theatre, starting Wednesday for an engagement of three days. This thrilling production presents an all-star cast, headed by Helen Twelvetrees, and including such well-known screen artists as Raymond Hackett, Neil Hamilton, Lilyan Tashman, Jean Hersholt and Montagu Love. "The Cat Creeps" abounds with mystery and suspense, and its entire action deals with the hair-raising events of a single night in a great mansion which has not been occupied for twenty years. Here a group of relatives gather at midnight to listen to the reading of a will, and thus begins a story which brings to the audience a swift succession of laughs and thrills. Breathless terror grips the characters, and the unexplainable death of one of them adds horror to a mystery which is finally brought to a surprising solution just before daylight.

Palace Theatre

A bill of unusual merit is offered at the Palace theatre for three days, starting tomorrow, a fine double bill headed by The Dancers, a story of swift-stepping youth. This very fast moving picture is now playing at the Roxy theatre, New York, the largest theatre in the world at a much higher admission. The story deals with dancing, moonlight, kisses, youth, and youth must dance.

Their struggle over this girl, temporarily blinded by the pleasures of gay night life and dancing, is brought to vivid contrast by the pathetic plight of Mae Clarke who, as a professional dancer, is forced to look on while the boy she loves is made a fool of by Lois' selfish behavior.

The story deals with a Wall street messenger boy whose passion for crap shooting and cards involves him in considerable trouble. In the most dramatic moments in the picture, he jests and laughs and carries his audience with him to the finish which, happily, finds him in the arms of his charming bride. While in no sense a preachment, "Big Money" teaches valuable lessons on the folly of gambling.

Last times today to see The Big Trail, the epic of the west, the greatest of all dramas of America in the making, featuring John Wayne and Margaret Churchill.

New Radio To Be Given Away

If a lot of folks had their way about it, Thanksgiving day would be dropped out of the calendar this year.

Stock market crashes and business depressions aren't conducive to a spirit of Thanksgiving, but, at that, the average citizen has plenty to be thankful for compared to those whom poverty and ill health have driven into the old folks home, the poor farm, and other charitable institutions.

However, some charitable institution in Norwich is going to have reason to feel thankful this coming Thanksgiving and every citizen of Norwich is going to have the opportunity to vote for which one it will be.

November 23rd to 29th has been set aside as "Brunswick Week". On and between those dates, everyone buying admission to the Palace or Broadway theatres, will be given a ballot entitling him to vote for the charitable institution which, in his opinion, should receive the Brunswick radio which will be given away to some local charity at the end of that week.

The instrument which will be donated is on display in the lobby of the theatre and can also be seen in the windows of the Ferguson radio store.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood with their guarantee of money back if it does not end all Pile misery.

LOSING TEAM ENTERTAINS IN BOSTON STORE SALES CONTEST

The staff of employes in the Boston store of the Reid & Hughes company enjoyed an evening crowded with fun and good fellowship Monday at Odd Fellows hall when the Blue team paid its forfeit for losing to the Red team in a sales contest during the month of October. The entire staff of the store was enlisted on one team or the other, the Reds, with Miss Evelyn Eccleston as captain, and the Blues, with James J. Dutton as captain, so that there were covers laid for close to 100 for the banquet which began the festivities at 6:30 o'clock. This was served by Hope Rebekah lodge of the Odd Fellows, arrangements having been made by the menu committee, consisting of Miss Viola Cousins, chairman, Mrs. Ora Spencer and Miss Florence Tilly. The attractive decorations were appropriately enough in blue and red as arranged by the committee consisting of Mrs. Irene Stuart, chairman, Morgan Cronin, James J. Harrington and Max Zief.

CONG. BROTHERHOOD. OPENS SEASON MEETINGS

With nearly 100 present the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church opened its fall and winter activities Monday evening at a supper meeting at the church. A bean supper menu was served at 6:15 o'clock after which the president, Dr. Robert G Urquhart, called the business meeting to order. The reports of the secretary, Donald Bullard, and treasurer, Earl Whiteface, were heard and accepted. Rev. Alexander H. Abbot, pastor of the church, addressed the gathering on the activities of the young people of the church. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent at Uncas-on-Thames, spoke on the tubercular situation in the state. He told of there being 542 patients on the waiting list for admission to state sanatoria. Dr Campbell said it was false economy on the part of the state to without needed beds from the sanatoria. Patients can be cared for right here in our state sanatoria as well as they can be cared for in the Adirondacks or out west, the speaker said. Patients receive special treatment in our state sanatoria that is extremely hard to get in private sanatoria, Dr. Campbell told his audience. In closing he expressed the hope that the incoming legislature will give the sanatoria the additional beds and facilities which are so badly needed.

E. A. Rich, vice president of the Brotherhood, briefly addressed the gathering, after which President Urquhart announced the appointment of Arthur L. Peale, Dr Hugh B. Campbell, Archibald Mitchell, 4th and Marcus Leith as a committee on committees to report at the next meeting. Adjournment was taken shortly after 8.15 o'clock.

NEW HAVEN DEMOCRATS IN POLITICAL MIX-UP

New Haven, home town of Governor-elect Wilbur L. Cross, is the scene of something of a democratic mix-up at the present moment, according to a political writer in a state paper. For years there have been factional differences among the New Haven democrats and at the state convention this year Ex-Mayor David E. FitzGerald was with the Old Guard faction of the state organization which gave way to the McNeil-Cornell-Dolan group. Cross was nominated and his one open attempt to formulate party policy after the convention, the pronouncement issued over the names of National Committeeman McNeil and Chairman O'Sullivan, with the approval of Cross, against the endorsement of republican candidates for probate judges, was beaten badly in New Haven as the result of FitzGerald's activity.

Election day brought the surprise victory for Dr. Cross, and the anti-FitzGerald group of New Haven confidently counted on the disappearance of the Little Giant's political prestige. Then came the announcement of the first appointment by Cross, that of Kenneth Wynne to be executive secretary. Ex-Mayor FitzGerald's friends have not been slow to announce to all and sundry, particularly the members of the other party faction, that Mr. Wynne and Mr. FitzGerald are very close, and the Wynne appointment is proof positive that FitzGerald has been a Cross supporter from the first and is so recognized by the governor-elect.

The appointment of Mr. Wynne, viewed generally as a very smart political maneuver which will bring to the governor's service a man trained in the procedure of the executive office, has not been without its disappointing aspects to some of the democrats. There have been fears expressed openly that as governor, Dr. Cross would be "another Baldwin," the implication being that Baldwin did not give enough recognition to the democrats when it came to making appointments. Mr. Wynne is one of the survivors of the Baldwin administration and is viewed by democratic patronage seekers as a potentially bad influence upon the governor-elect.

EXPECT SAME CLERKS IN 1931 LEGISLATURE

Not much serious attention will be given to the organization of the 1931 general assembly until after the first of December, but it appears now that the clerkships will remain unchanged from the 1929 session. This would make J. Frederick Baker of New Haven clerk of the senate, Albert S. Bill of West Hartford clerk of the house, Stahley J. Traceski of New Britain assistant clerk of the house and Charles P. Roraback of Torrington assistant clerk of the senate.

Senate organization is likely to make either Fuller F. Barnes of Bristol or Albert E. Lavery of Fairfield president pro tempore, with Senator Leete of the seventh district a strong possibility for majority floor leader. Senator Bergin of New Haven is expected to be minority leader again. In the house, the majority leadership probably will go again to Judge Raymond A. Johnson of Manchester, although there is also some sentiment in favor of elevating him to the speakership. The presence of a stronger minority than the house has had in years and the possibility of an experienced minority leader in the person of William M. Citron of Middletown both weigh heavily with those who believe Judge Johnson can be of more service leading the majority on the floor than in being presiding officer of the house.

NORWICH TOWN

Twenty-five Endeavorers and other members of Norwich Town Congregational church attended the Sunday evening rally of Young People at Franklin Congregational church, to hear Miss Betty Cushman, who prior to the service was entertained at an informal reception at four o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Beckwith on Lebanon road. Attending the reception from Norwich Town were Mrs. Wilfrid M. Wilton, Miss Alma Wilton and Misses Jessie E. Hyde and Elizabeth Avery who were motor guests of Theodore Sterry, violin soloist during the evening's programme. Last minute arrangements caused a change on the programme, Mr. Sterry being accompanied by his cousin, Miss Louise Sterry instead of Mrs. George Beckwith as expected. The remainder of the Norwich Town party at the evening service, occupying seats in a body were: Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, Miss May Wilton, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber, Frank and Arthur Avery, Misses Eleanor Moore, Ruth Hyde, Helen Schwenk, Rose Durr, May Beebe, Elaine Norris, Elizabeth Browning, Doris Seagraves, Edith Seaman, Ruth and Rachel Avery, also Luther Whaley. The Norwich Town Endeavorers assembled at the chapel at seven o'clock. Those who provided cars were Rev. Dr. Wilton, Arthur Avery, Theodore Sterry and Miss Rose Durr.

Frank C. Durr of Belefourche, S. D., who is passing a few weeks with Norwich Town relatives, he having formerly resided here, in company with Arthur J. Mullen of Norwich Town, motored Monday to Hartford to call on the latter's brother, Francis Mullen.

From Mystic Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jull Gremley and Mrs. Gremley's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainard, motored to Norwich Town to call on relatives. Mrs. Brainard had a motor party from Norwich Town, as her supper guests Saturday evening.

New London Twenty-five Years Ago was the headline in a New London paper last week taken from its files of November 1905. It read: Dr. Charles H. Lamb, Humane society representative, was called to investigate complaint that teams hauling bluestone from Water street to Broad street for the city were being overworked on the upgrade in Federal street. Dr. Lamb cautioned the drivers to let their horses rest at intervals going up Federal street. Dr. Lamb a resident of Norwich Town since January 1908, has been an agent for the Connecticut Humane society with power to act any where in this state, since December 30th, 1889, covering a period of almost forty-one years, in serving this society. Although not actively engaged the past few years, his services when residing in Groton and his early years in Norwich are dully recorded on the files of the society at its Hartford office.

Methodist Thanksgiving Service

Sunday morning, in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter preached his Thanksgiving sermon from the text St. John 4:35, "Say not ye there are yet four months and then cometh the harvest? Behold I say unto you lift up your eyes and look on the field for they are white already to harvest." He took for his theme, "Be Thankful for Opportunities." Mrs. Lewis Irish and Miss Florence M. Bennett sang the duet, "He Knows It All."

The C. E. meeting considered the topic, "Thinks for Which We Should be Thankful" with Virginia Ward leader. "Japan Faces Christward" was the title of the stereopticon lecture given by the pastor at the evening service. Over sixty beautiful hand-colored slides were shown of most interesting scenes in new and old Japan. Doris Rose the assistant organist played at both services of the church. The stereopticon machine was operated by Ralph Smith. The attendance was 65.

Visits Former Parish

During the past week Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor of the Methodist church visited his former parish at Portland Rev. Marion J. Creeger, pastor of the Middletown Methodist church invited the local pastor to visit his home and see the plans for the new church. Rev. Mr. Creeger is teaching weekly at a School of Religious Education at New London and last week he went home by the way of Norwich Town and was accompanied by Rev. Mr. Potter. The following day the local pastor went over to Portland where he called on many of his former parishioners. He was entertained overnight in the home of Daniel Stevens, one of the owners of the Middletown Press. CLOCK PRINTS TIME OF TOLL LINE CALLS

Between 65,000 and 70,000 toll calls are placed through the 86 central offices of the Southern New England Telephone company in Connecticut every day, and, in order that the proper charge may be levied for the calls, the time consumed for each one must be accurately measured. All toll call charges are based upon a fixed price for a specified length of time with an extra charge for overtime periods.

Since the time measurement in the interest both of the subscriber and the company must be absolutely accurate, all chance of human error is eliminated by the use of a mechanical timing device known as a calculagraph. This instrument, in lay language, is a printing clock equipped with carbon ribbon attachments by which the exact time at the beginning and at the end of each toll line conversation is printed on the toll ticket. All calculagraphs are tested at frequent intervals every day for accuracy in timing and legibility of printing.

When a subscriber places a toll call, the operator writes in the spaces provided on the toll ticket the calling and called numbers, the time the call is placed, and in case of person to person calls the name of the person called. Toll charges do not begin, however, until the connection is established. At this point, the operator inserts the ticket in the calculagraph, presses a lever which stamps the exact time. At the instant the call is finished, the operation is repeated, the instrument printing the exact number of minutes and seconds which have elapsed since the connection was completed. In person to person calls, the toll ticket is not stamped until the person called is actually speaking.

The writ gives June 5, 1926, as the date of the note and mortgage held by the plaintiffs.

NORTH WINDHAM YOUTH PENALIZED AT WOR. TECH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 24—Pleading guilty to smoking on the campus, refusing to wear his freshman cap at specified hours and failing to greet upperclassmen when passing Walter C. Phillips, of North Windham, Conn., together with 14 other members of his class at Worcester Tech, spent today in serving various sentences for their infractions of the rules. Phillips was obliged to carry a pail of water with him whenever on the campus and between classes had to stand on the steps of the administration building and pretend to fish in the pail.

The recalcitrant first year men were tried by the entire sophomore class one night last week in a deserted building on the outskirts of the city. Their classmates tried to find the scene of the trial, but were unable to aid their helpless mates. Frank F. Dodge, of Norwich, Conn., and Alden H. Fuller, of Hampton, Conn., were among the sophomores who tried the luckless freshmen.

For Hard Coughs That
Call For Super-Help

Creomulsion is made for coughs from colds that hang on. For coughs deep and difficult—coughs where you dare not risk a less effective help.

But careful people use it for coughs which seem milder—use it to do the utmost and be safe. For nobody knows where a cough may lead.

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. Some coughs yield best to one help, some to another. Doctors often differ on the best help, for coughs are not alike. So here we combine all the best—to be sure.

Creosote stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and made palatable. For soothing membranes and combating germs, it is considered the supreme help in this type of cough.

But other helps are sometimes needed—pine tar, wild cherry, menthol ipecac and others. Nobody can tell to which help your cough will soonest yield. So experts have combined in Creomulsion all best helps in one. No narcotic, nothing harmful to a child, but a seven-way help to deal with all conditions.

The price is $1.25—a little higher than a lesser help. But your druggist guarantees it. Your money is returned if it fails to bring the quick, complete help you desire. Don't you think it worth that little extra to be sure that you are doing the utmost for a cough?

APPROVAL OF CONDITIONS AT THE CONN. STATE PRISON

Voiced By Five Witnesses at Hearing Before Special Committee—Robert B. Newell, Sunday School Teacher at the Prison for 20 Years, and Rev. George M. Grady, Catholic Chaplain, Describe the Prison as Humanely Administered—Three Prison Employes Deny Statements Concerning Them Made By Dr. Smith and Benton McIntyre—Witnesses Had Never Seen Any Prisoner Subjected to Punishment Which They Regarded as Harsh or Unusual

WETHERSFIELD, Nov. 25. —(AP)— Welfare workers and prison employes, appearing as witnesses before a special committee inquiring into conditions at the Connecticut state prison, at Wethersfield, testified today that during their association with the institution they had never seen any prisoner subjected to punishment which they regarded as harsh or unusual.

The testimony of these witnesses followed a reiteration by Rev. Dr. William H. Smith, former chaplain of the prison, of his criticism of several phases of prison life and of his charges that prisoners have been subjected to "heartless and brutal" punishment.

Dr. Smith, now pastor of Christ church, of Schenectady, N. Y., originally made his charges in recent newspaper articles which served as the immediate cause for the demand by the prison board of directors of a thorough investigation into the prison administration by a special committee named by Gov. John H. Trumbull.

Five witnesses appeared before the committee, of which Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, is chairman, besides Dr. Smith, whose testimony required two hours. They were Robert B. Newell, president of the Hartford National Bank and Trust company, who said he had been identified with the prison for 20 years as a Sunday school teacher; Rev. George M. Grady, Catholic chaplain at the prison;

HEALY CASE WILL BE GIVEN TO THE JURY TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Opposing counsel concluded their summations today in the trial of Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, and Thomas T. Tommaney, his political aide, on charges of having sold a magistrate's appointment to George F. Ewald for $10,000. The case will be given to the jury tomorrow.

Healy and Tommaney were characterized as "political racketeers" by Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd Sydney A. Shyme, defense counsel, contended his clients were "political footballs" in the recent republican gubernatorial campaign of former United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

Mayor James J. Walker appeared briefly on the stand as the last defense witness. He testified he appointed Ewald to the bench in 1927 on the sole recommendation of Victor Ridder, a publisher, and the Steuben society.

U. S. BORDER PATROLMEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

DETROIT, Nov. 25—(AP)—The Free Press says "approximately a score" of United States customs border patrolmen were taken into custody this afternoon by special treasury agents for questioning about Detroit river rum graft.

The paper says that warrants for several of them are held by the investigating agents and will be used if the patrolmen cannot explain actions the agents claim to have uncovered.

The investigation is in charge of Elmer J. Lewis, customs department investigator, the Free Press says, the same man who directed the investigation two years ago which resulted in the indictment of 23 customs border patrolmen and 19 liquor smugglers many of whom now are serving prison sentences.

The paper says the present investigation is expected to result in a greater expose than that of 1928.

TREASURY REGULATIONS NOT AIMED AT SOVIET RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—Additional assurance that new treasury regulations to bar goods made by convict labor from this country were not aimed at Soviet Russia was given yesterday by President Hoover.

In approving the regulations yesterday, Secretary Mellon said they were not aimed at any particular country and were of general application, but it was said in treasury circles that experience gained from controversies over goods produced by the soviet was used in framing the rules.

The regulations, made in compliance with provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, were general, the president said, and were in the ordinary course of making more effective the enforcement of laws against convict made goods.

FORMER SEC'Y OF SCREEN STAR CLARA BOW INDICTED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25—(AP)—Daisy Devoe, former secretary of Clara Bow, screen star, was indicted by the county grand jury late today on 37 counts of grand theft involving approximately $16,000 of Miss Bow's money.

The indictment was returned immediately after the erstwhile secretary had spent an hour before the jury considering accusations made against her by the actress.

Miss Devoe was accused of having written unauthorized checks for thousands of dollars on Miss Bow's bank account, to which she had access.

The grand jury fixed bond at $1,000. Attorney Nathan Freedman, representing Miss Devoe, said he would surrender his client tomorrow.

GREEN TO OPPOSE DOAK AS SECRETARY OF LABOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.— (AP) — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today after a call at the white house that he was opposed to the appointment of William N. Doak as secretary of labor to succeed James J. Davis.

Green said he told the president he was opposed to the appointment of Doak because the latter's organization was not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Doak is legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Green said he would oppose the appointment of Robe Carl White, assistant secretary of labor, because he also was not a member of the federation.

Green emphasized that his opposition to Doak and White was not based on personal grounds and added that he would oppose any candidate who is not a member of the federation.

NEARLY ARRESTED FOR STEALING HIS OWN CAR

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 25—(AP)—Fenton Thompson thought it was a bit rough today to be detained by a state officer and put in danger of arrest for stealing his own car.

Thompson parked his sedan yesterday and someone stole it. It was recovered at Pike's ravine and returned to Thompson. The latter today used it for a trip to Meriden and was on the road when overhauled by a state officer who knew about the theft of the car. Thompson could not identify himself but his good angel was a young woman, employed in a garage, who drove along and told the officer that Thompson was in his own car.

Another Cold Wave In Central States

CHICAGO, Nov. 25— (AP) —One storm crowding at the heels of another gave the middle west a biting dose of winter today and the prospects of a white, cold Thanksgiving day.

The central states had not yet recovered from the cold snap that headed for the Atlantic coast when another one swept in from the northwest to outdo its predecessor with lower temperatures and a more general snowfall.

Temperatures considerably below normal and a steady snowfall spread over most of the region, including the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys and the Great Lakes. High winds in the western portion of the area made up for any lack of snow.

The weather bureau expected the cold to last until after the Thanksgiving holiday but predicted the snow would stop some time tomorrow.

Chicago and northern Illinois were blanketed by snow that fell nearly all day. In the metropolitan area thousands of homeless unemployed sought shelter as the mercury dipped to 16, the lowest of the season. Warnings were issued to Lake Michigan navigators during the afternoon telling of a snow and wind storm due over the lake.

In Iowa the weather was described as "crazy" with a blizzard apparently on the way one moment and clearing skies the next. South Dakota telephone companies, warned of a new cold wave, rushed work of repairing telephone lines torn down in last week's storm. Aberdeen was still without long distance lines, six days after the previous storm. Unconfirmed reports from the Scatterwood Lake region in South Dakota said thousands of pheasants, killed by sleet last week, were being picked up by the wagonloads.

A strong northwest wind swept Nebraska, reaching a maximum velocity of 51 miles at Lincoln. Roofs were blown off, telephone lines torn down, signs and windows wrecked and snow piled into large drifts to delay train and motor travel.

It snowed steadily in North Dakota and Minnesota and a strong wind in the former state started drifts that threatened to isolate many communities.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY HONORS J. P. MORGAN

OXFORD, England, Nov. 25.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan, with a blue velvet hat in his hand and a scarlet gown falling from his broad shoulders, stood on a dais in the consultation hall here today and listened to the university orator reading a long speech in latin which made him a doctor of civil laws.

He was solemn and attentive during this ceremony, but immediately afterward he broke into broad smile as the audience applauded enthusiastically. Then he posed for photographers—an unusual concession from this man who seldom permits his picture to be made—and gave the reporters one of his typical "interviews."

"Will you give us some message for America?" they asked him.

"I have nothing to say," he said. He smiled and turned away.

COMMERCIAL RELATIONS BETWEEN ITALY AND RUSSIA

ROME, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Fascist Italy and communist Russia marching hand in hand to new international commercial heights by a combination of vast supplies of raw materials with modern manufacturing machinery, was seen by observers today as a probable outcome of the conference at Milan yesterday between Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and Maxim Litvinoff, Russian commissar of foreign relations.

These observers held Italy is not afraid of dumping: in fact that she is anxious for cheap materials. Russia, which last August entered into an agreement with Italy for the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of Italian manufactured goods in 1930-31, was now seen as preparing to use Italy as an outlet for raw materials.

"MOTHER" JONES UNABLE TO RECOGNIZE "HER BOYS"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.— (AP) — Mary ("Mother") Jones could not recognize her "boys" from the ranks of labor leaders who came to her bedside today "to stay until the end."

The 100-year-old crusader for organized labor lay silent, with death expected at any time. She has been unable to take nourishment for several days.

John Walker, of Chicago, former president of the United Mine Workers, and Edward Knuckles, also of Chicago, found their friend too weak to open her eyes.

BRITISH CONSERVATIVES BECOME HARMONIOUS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Delegates to the central council of Conservative and Unionist associations, forming in effect a full "party meeting" today buried the hatchet of party civil war and gave former Premier Stanley Baldwin an overwhelming vote of confidence as the conservative leader.

Racke[illegible]rs Preying On [illegible]. Water Front

[illegible]emen Have to Resort to Gunfire to Protect Their Property and Their Families

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)— The district attorney's drive on rackets today brought revelations of terrorism, illegal tribute and gang menace among bargemen on the East river.

Two representatives of the Independent Tidewater Boatmen's union told the district attorney and the police they were frequently forced to resort to gunfire to protect their property and their families.

Gangsters board the boats and steal everything they can carry, the bargemen said, and even levy on the poor who pick coal from the docks, making them pay 25 cents a sack for carrying it away.

Another bargeman fired at hoodlums last Saturday night after they robbed him of $40, they said. The bargeman, Philip Osborn, sought a policeman and they caught up with the assailants in time to see a man being placed in a taxicab. The man, wounded, died in the hospital and Osborn was held for manslaughter.

The district attorney also was told today that a charge of three cents a hundredweight, with a maximum charge of eight cents, is levied by gangsters against freight loaded and unloaded at the docks, the total graft running to an estimated $5,000,000 annually.

Other complaints under investigation come from musicians who said $1 a night was demanded from them by gangsters for permitting them to work and from merchants who had been approached in what was called the night patrol racket.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND DROUGHT RELIEF PARAMOUNT MEASURES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.— (AP) — Unemployment and drought relief measures were put at the top of the proposed public welfare cooperation program today by senate democratic leaders.

In talking over their plans for the session, the democratic leaders said their aim was "to reverse the economic depression" and they gave notice to the administration that they expected the same cooperation for their policies in this direction as President Hoover has asked of the minority party.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, in initiating the informal party conferences upon his return to the capitol, said he would seek to avoid an extra session in the spring.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT BY NEW HAVEN ROAD

BOSTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, today reported a surplus for October, 1930, of $1,536,698, after all charges including preferred dividends and guarantees. This is a decrease of $1,258,284 under the previous year.

Surplus for the 10 months ended October 31, was $9,220,227 or equivalent to $5.57 per share of common. This is a decrease of $4,952,289 compared with the previous year. Total operating revenues for the month were $10,363,356 as compared with $13,853,545, in 1929, while for the ten months operating revenue was $100,494,315 as compared with $118,103,310.

Operating expenses decreased $2,806,256 for the month and $10,562,711 for the ten months.

ROWBOATS IN STREETS OF SUBURBS OF PARIS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Rowboats splashed through the streets of Parisian suburbs tonight, men worked long hours to repair the broken dikes along the rivers of Belgium, and the rain still pounded down on a Europe already suffering heavily from disastrous floods.

Belgium felt the heaviest blow. Her crops were ruined, her livestock drowned in great numbers, her fields were under water and thousands of her people temporarily homeless.

The big hospital at Namur was flooded and the sick were carried to the topmost floors. The old battlefields around Nieuport were inundated, and the dunes protecting the lowlands from the French to the Dutch borders were broken in many places.

WARBURTON LOCATED AT WHITE HALL, VA.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 25. — (AP) — Barclay H. Warburton, Jr., who started out from Camden, N. J. Sunday, on a flight to Norfolk, the first leg of a proposed world journey, was located today at the home of Harry Hall, a flier friend, at White Hall, Gloucester county, Va.

Fear was felt for the safety of Mr. Warburton, a grandson of the late John Wanamaker, when a check of airports in this vicinity failed to reveal his whereabouts even after he had telephoned his family in Philadelphia that he had landed here safely. It was thought possible that he might have met with disaster en route to Palm Beach, the next leg of his flight itinerary.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKES IN JAPAN; CASUALTIES MAY REACH 900 TOTAL

TOKYO, Nov. 26—(Wednesday)—(AP)—An earthquake stretched a belt of death and destruction across the northern part of the beautiful Izu peninsula early today with a toll of dead and injured mounting steadily as fragments of the disaster story emerged from the stricken area.

The chief of Police of Shizuoka prefecture, which includes the Izu peninsula, estimated the quake dead at between 100 and 150. The injured list was likely to bring the total casualties to 900.

The fate of a large portion of southern Izu was still undetermined, and reports from such important centers as Atami, Ito, Nagaoko and Shuzenji were meager.

Although first reports designated Mishima as the center of the quake zone, that railway junction appeared to have suffered less than resorts to the southward.

At many places fires followed shocks, greatly increasing material losses.

LIBERTY AIRPLANE MOTORS SHIPPED TO SOVIET RUSSIA

Were Purchased From the War Department and Turned Over to the Amtorg—Illegally Forwarded as "Other Machinery," With "Secret Papers" From the War Department Files—Basile W. Delgass, a Former President of the Amtorg Trading Corp., So Informs House Communist Investigating Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—A special house committee heard today that American army airplane motors had been shipped to Russia although the state department "looks with disfavor" on the practice.

Basile W. Delgass, a former vice president of the Amtorg Trading corporation, made the charge before the house communist investigating committee. He said 400 Liberty motors, accompanied by "secret plans" for which "bribes" might have been paid, were sent to Russia as "other machinery."

The motors, he added, were bought from the war department by American citizens whom he did not name and resold to Amtorg.

The exportation of war materials to Russia is not forbidden, but manufacturers usually consult with the state department before they make sales. Recently the department said it looked with disfavor on a proposal by a Baltimore firm to sell airplanes to the soviet.

Delgass testified the department had made a similar ruling on the request of a western manufacturer who wished to sell powder making machinery to Russia.

After Delgass had testified, Chairman Fish of the committee said additional hearings would be held in a week or ten days, and that a report and recommendations for legislation would be ready for congress the latter part of December. He added he planned to subpoena William Z. Foster, a former communist candidate for president, Boris E. Skvirsky of the soviet information bureau of Washington, and a representative of the Daily Worker.

Delgass also charged that:

Passports were obtained illegally for 39 Russians who entered the United States, some of them joining Amtorg's cipher and secret service department.

Andrew W. Petroff, his successor, obtained valuable information on a tour in the summer of 1929 of middle west and west coast federal flying fields.

There are in the United States representatives of the Ogpu, soviet secret police, who are called "close neighbors" because of their closeness to the powers in Russia.

TRIAL IN MOSCOW OF EIGHT INDUSTRIAL PARTY LEADERS

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.— (AP) — While the trial of eight leaders of "the industrial party," the Moscow Trade union, more than half a million unionist workers paraded past the building tonight with numerous banners demanding their execution.

The parade was one of the greatest demonstrations of its kind in the history of Moscow. It proceeded through the principal streets of the capital and as the marchers passed the "house of columns" they shouted: "Death to agents of imperialism."

Banners in the huge parade read "We demand supreme punishment for counter-revolutionists and order of Lenin for Ogpu (secret police)"; "Death to initiators of intervention"; "Death to agents of our class enemies"; "Plotters against government must be shot"; No mercy to class enemies"; and similar slogans.

The opening of the trial was occupied principally with the reading of indictments which included portions of "confessions" of the accused. Two lawyers were appointed to represent the defendants.

The courtroom seemed like a theatre with the judges, prisoners, clerks and lawyers on a stage and the audience crowding the orchestra and galleries. Many women and girls were scattered throughout the courtroom. Most of them wore some article of red in their costumes.

DARING HOLD-UP OF STORE IN MID-DISTRICT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Robbers invaded the mid-town silk district late today and staged a daring hold-up, binding the proprietor of a large store and six employes, including two women and making off with a truck-load of silk valued at $20,000.

The robbers, said to have been six in number, backed a truck up to the curb at the establishment of Harry Meirowitz, in 29th street near Madison avenue and invaded the wholesale house, the leader going in first and asking to see merchandise.

At a signal the other five entered. They drew revolvers and forced the store workers to the rear.

Pauline Goodwax, one of the women employes, protested but was handled so roughly she gave up the effort to attract help.

Four of the intruders then bound all of the store occupants with rope, while their companions began to load bolts of silk into the truck, which stood only half a block from the corner where a policeman was directing traffic.

Selecting the choicest pieces in the Meirowitz stock the hold-up band cut the alarm and telephone wires, and drove away. The robbery had taken 15 minutes during a period of traffic congestion in the neighborhood while hundreds of persons passed the store.

SPECIAL COMMITTEEMEN IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

HARTFORD, Nov. 25—(AP)—The three members and clerk of Gov. Trumbull's special committee investigating conditions at the state prison at Wethersfield, riding in the car of Judge Walter H. Clark, were involved in an automobile accident here this afternoon on their way back to the prison following the noon recess.

Nearing the Hartford-Wethersfield town line a truck skidded while trying to pass Judge Clark's car and bumped into the rear of the machine. There was no damage, but the accident, coupled with another delay due to a fire in Hartford held up the hearing 15 minutes. In the car with the judge were James T. Moran, of New Haven, Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, and Raymond Smith, clerk of the commission.

WOMAN FLEECED OUT OF $29 BY FAKE FEDERAL OFFCERS

NEW BRITAIN, Nov. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Peter Brau, of 518 Allen street, lost $29 this afternoon in a way that made it easy money for the two men who got it. These latter called, said they were federal officers, showed badges, and told her they would take her to New Haven to "serve ten months jail sentence for violation of the prohibition law."

The men took a look through the house and offered to let her go for $500. All she had was $29 which she gave up.

Later, Mrs. Brau told Thomas B Fay, a neighbor, and he told the police who started out to find the men and the money.

DRAGGING RIVER FOR HEAD OF SLAIN MAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Police searched at the bottom of the East river today for a valise believed to contain the head of a slain man, whose dismembered legs and torso were found yesterday in a suitcase and a trunk five miles apart. The man's identity remained a complete mystery.

A Negro janitor told of having tossed the heavy valise into the river Sunday night at the behest of a man who gave him some money and rode away in an automobile.

The janitor, Levi Bacon, led police to the foot of East 23rd street, where he said he had met the man. Police started grappling operations there.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT ASKS RULING ON FRUIT JUICES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, counsel for a grape by-products corporation, has filed a brief with the justice department which the Washington Star said today asked for a restatement of the enforcement principle concerning the manufacture of fruit juices.

Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, in charge of prohibition, with whom such a request might normally be filed, would not talk with newspaper men, but sent word from his office that he had nothing to say about the matter.

The principle was laid down in 192[illegible] by Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, who, at that time was director of prohibition. The statement was based on section 29 of the Volstead act, and called attention to the provision allowing the manufacture of fruit juices in the home under certain conditions, and warning agents not to interfere unless evidence of "intent to violate the law is evident."

Mrs. Willebrandt would not disclose the subject matter of the brief.

CHICAGO LOTTERY BEGINS TO TAKE TANGIBLE SHAPE

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson's million dollar "lottery" to lure the shoppers of the central states began to take tangible shape today while Chicago still regarded his scheme with varied reactions.

On the eve of his departure for a fortnight's rest at a down-state rest resort the mayor disclosed his preliminary plans for the offering of $1,000,000 worth of prize coupons to patrons of Chicago stores and asked railroads of the central and western passenger associations to cooperate in enticing buyers to the city with week-end excursion fares.

Mayor Thompson proposed that tradesmen buy coupons and give one with each 25 cents worth of merchandise sold during the three or four months of his "prosperity drive." Each coupon would represent a chance to win awards of $100,000, $50,000, $25,000 or one of the 16,500 prizes of $50 each. The "lottery" was scheduled to begin on Dec. 1.

The closing days of the open season brought out many sportsmen for a last day afield. The many days of rainy weather recently dampened the spirits of the most enthusiastic devotees of the sport.

DOCTOR GOT NO GAME— BUT THERE WAS A REASON

A humorous episode of the last week of the hunting season is one in which Dr. Arthur Chaise, of Plainfield, figured. The doctor is an enthusiast, every spare hour spent away from his professional duties finds him afield in hunting togs, with dog and gun. The other day, having a patient to visit out this way, the doctor called up a couple of friends and made an appointment to meet them for an afternoon in the woods. The professional call made, the doctor drove his Hudson as near the rendezvous as possible and parked it. Just then one of those intermittent showers of late began, and the doctor settled himself in the tonneau of the Hudson with a cigar, to wait for the shower to pass. It lasted only about 15 minutes but in the interval the ripples of a nearby brook with the patter of the rain had lolled the doctor into dreamland. It may have been the whirr of a partridge or the start of a returning hunter or any number of things which finally awakened him; but he says it was a very prosaic kink in the back of the neck, to find darkness enveloping him. A hurried consultation of his watch showed him that he was due at his office in Plainfield in a very few minutes. He failed to keep his appointment, also to get any game, but his alibi held water.

Seasoned Hunter Surprised

Another last minute hunting story has to do with three young men who came over one hundred miles to enjoy a few days' hunting. Two of the trio were amateur, the other a crack shot. The first day out one of the novice hunters bagged a rabbit and a partridge, while the experienced hunter got one squirrel and, believe it or not, two days later the other beginner repeated, while the crack shot of the crowd did no better than another squirrel. However, he broke the jinx later in the week and retrieved his reputation as a go-get-'em!

PUTNAM

LATE THUNDER STORM CRIPPLES PHONE SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 25—The crippling of more than 150 telephone stations in the local exchange, the burning of a transformer and high tension lines of the Connecticut Light and Power company and the short circuiting of the fire alarm system was the toll left in the wake of a post season thunderstorm that struck the city shortly before one o'clock today. Late this afternoon W. T. Jones, telephone wire chief reported that practically all telephones in the villages of West and South Woodstock and phones in the area extending from South Woodstock to Pomfret Center suffered service disruptions that practically severed the district's communication with the exchange office. The number of crippled stations will increase considerably during the night, a report from Chief Jones' office said this evening.

Although only one bolt of lightning streaked across the skies during the freak storm, its effects were of sufficient intensity to hamper the public utility lines once contact had been made. The telephone company reported that damage incurred to its network of cables and wires during the storm's brief tenure was greater than that sustained during any thunder shower of the past season.

A single blow recorded on the alarm tape at the Central fire station a few seconds after the solitary flash of lightning was seen, indicated that a fuse somewhere in the system had been blown. The situation created was a serious one but it was immediately eliminated when trouble shooters working under the direction of Acting Chief Dumas, ferretted out the source of trouble and made repairs that restored the alarm system to functioning order again.

WOODSTOCK SHEEP KILLED BY STRAY DOGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 25—The flocks of sheep raisers in the towns of Woodstock and Pomfret are still being harrassed by stray dogs which have been on sheep killing rampages for more than a month. This week the elusive killers raided a farm in Woodstock and killed one of the flock before they were finally frightened off by a shepherd whose timely appearance undoubtedly saved a large number of his flock from a similar death. Every effort is being made by town officials to capture the animals, but as yet their efforts have met with only little success. Last week when the killers were discovered on another Woodstock farm, the matter was reported to the state department of domestic animals, with the result that Deputy Commissioner Chauncey E. Genung of Hartford was assigned to investigate. One dog was captured and killed but it is apparent that the animal had other bloodthirsty mates who yet remain to be run down.

In cases where sheep are killed by prowling dogs, the farmer sustaining the loss files a reimbursement claim with the state and in most cases receives partial compensation for his loss which is paid through the state aid fund.

THIRTY-THREE TO SEEK CITIZENSHIP ON DEC. 5

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 25—The citizenship petitions of 33 aliens will be presented to Judge Newell Jennings, who will preside at a naturalization session of superior court to be held in this city on Friday morning, December 5, at 10 o'clock. The list was published yesterday by Curtis N. Dean, clerk of courts. Thirteen continued cases and twenty new cases comprise the list. The largest group of applicants are subjects of Great Britain, they being nine in number. Seven are subjects of Poland and the remaining number are representative of the smaller countries of southern Europe.

Clerk Dean said this afternoon the list is one of the smallest to be presented at a naturalization session in several years. Those seeking admittance to citizenship in the United States at the forthcoming naturalization session are:

Officers elected at the annual meeting of the Putnam grange No. 97, which was held Monday evening at the Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street, were: Byron Howard, master; Clarence W. Myers, overseer; Mrs. Mae Willis, lecturer; John Myers, steward; Walter Davis, assistant steward; Mrs. Josie Warren, chaplain; Harvey Marcy, treasurer; William Converse, secretary; Miss Marguerite Sherlock, Ceres; Miss Marion Spencer, Pomona; Miss Dorothy Woodis, Flora; Miss Lillian Shaw, lady assistant steward; Jerome Tourtellotte, gate keeper. Mrs. Victoria Durand, the retiring master was appointed to serve a three year term on the executive committee. The installation of officers will take place at a meeting to be held on January 26, 1931. Refreshments were served and a social programme was presented at the close of the meeting.

Announcement was made this morning by Curtis N. Dean, clerk, of the opening of the December criminal and civil session of the superior court scheduled to take place at Willimantic on Tuesday, December 2, at 10 o'clock. Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol will preside. The criminal term is expected to be short, since the docket contains only a small number of cases, the majority of which are actions continued from the September term held in Putnam, or cases of a minor nature. According to the notice given today by Clerk Dean, each accused person who has not pleaded must appear at the Willimantic court room on the opening day prepared to plea and if the plea is not guilty, must elect trial by court or jury.

Another notice pertaining to the reconvening of superior court is the one concerning the short calendar session and assignment of cases for trial, which will be held at Willimantic on Tuesday, December 2, at 2 o'clock.

The balmy temperatures of Indian summer which have prevailed for nearly a week became things of the past this afternoon following a post season thunder storm that broke over the city shortly before two o'clock. The storm was accompanied by heavy downpours of rain and hail stones, which for a time fell so fast and thick that the ground was entirely blanketed with the icy pebbles that quickly disappeared with the return of the sun. The mercury slumped from the 50 degree mark to the point of freezing. The sudden temperature change coupled with cold rains rendered highways and streets dangerously slippery and made driving hazardous.

Myron Perry, son of Mrs. Edith Perry of Grove street, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital. The nature of his illness is not definitely known. His condition however is not believed to be serious.

UNION BLOCK THREATENED WHEN STUBBORN BLAZE STARTS IN ATTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 25—Firemen battled for more than an hour tonight with a stubborn fire that broke out in the attic of the three-and-a-half story Union block in Union square and were unable to subdue the blaze until damage that will run into hundreds of dollars had been caused. The fire was discovered shortly before 7 o'clock by Robert T. Chadwick, Union street merchant, who had closed his business only a few minutes before.

When the firemen arrived the third floor of the block on the west end was illuminated with flames, presenting the aspect of a serious conflagration. Several lines of hose were hurriedly dragged up to the top floor of the building and streams were turned on to the heart of the fire, which was centered behind the stage of the condemned Union hall. Flames at this time were eating into the roof but were quickly checked.

When the last trace of fire was gone, streams of water began trickling through the ceiling, flooding the dental chambers of Dr. A. H. Strahan, a tenant in the building for more than 40 years. Slight water damage was caused in the chamber of commerce offices which are also located on the second floor. The water continued to seep through the second floor and did a large amount of damage to the clothing stock, haberdashery and shoes in Lizotte's Smart Shop on Main street; in the appliance and business offices of the Connecticut Light and Power Co. and also in the lobby of the post-office in Union square. The cause of the fire has not been determined but officials of the fire department began an investigation tonight in an effort to locate the origin of the blaze, which appeared to have been from an overheated chimney.

ARREMONY STOCK STOLEN IS VALUED AT $1,150

Some time during Monday night, burglars broke into Arremony & Sons' dry goods and clothing store, and got away with a large quantity of men's fall and winter suits and overcoats. According to the check-up made by the proprietor, in company with State Troopers Scranton and Nolan from Danielson barracks, the value of the goods stolen is $1,150. Hundreds of dollars worth of other merchandise was untouched. Arremony & Sons' store occupies the entire street floor of the Maynard block. Entrance was gained when the burglars went through Fanning court and jimmied the rear entrance to the cellar. The police are of the opinion that the job was not the work of novices. Here again is shown the possibility of dodging the one local patrolman who is on duty during the night. His regular beat takes him away from Post Office square an hour at a time.

Norwich Entertainers

When Pachaug Community club meets in the Grange hall Friday evening, besides the local numbers on the program, the Two Nutmegs of Norwich will be present in the persons of Carleton Bowers and Edward Smith. The latter is an accomplished pianist and plays the accordion with exceptional skill. Mr. Bowers is an entertainer of marked ability, his dialect sketches, monologs and funny stories are always a winning feature on any program. The committee of arrangements is Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Hyde, Misses Bessie McCluggage and Anna Russenas and Elmer Miller.

Thanksgiving day, the post office will be closed after 9 a. m. No carrier delivery or R. F. D. service.

Ribbon Ceremony Thursday

Following the horsemen in the big Thanksgiving day parade, 15 young Jewett City misses will march abreast bearing a ribbon of satin [illegible] feet in length. Miss Catherine Jodoin, daughter of Warden Edmond J. Jodoin, will appear in the center. Arriving at the bridge entrance, the ribbon will be held across with seven girls stationed at either end. Then Miss Jodoin will advance and cut the ribbon, thus formally opening the viaduct to public traffic.

A fashion show and circus was staged in the Methodist vestry Friday night, which was the funniest thing seen here in many a day. The very latest fashions of New York and also of 1950 advanced styles were graphically portrayed by M. H. [illegible]lett, Frank Gardiner, Norton Gardiner, Adam Medick, Everett Thornton and Harold Field. In the circus performances, Clara Jeffers did a breath-taking rope walk act and was also an intrepid snake charmer. Norton Gardiner, with the utmost ease, lifted 1,000 pounds and never even lost his breath. The airy flying girls were Clara Jeffers, Margaret Chase and Alice O'Rourke. One of the funniest acts was the hand organ man and a monkey, which sat on the organ, then hopped around on the floor and performed all kinds of stunts. When he passed his tin cup he received 67 cents. Kenneth Miner appeared in a balloon descension. Bessie M[illegible] was an extremely fat lady. [illegible] were Gilbert Miner, Jr., and Kenneth Miner, and the Siamese twins were Bernard and Kenneth Miner. Gilbert Miner, Jr., swallowed swords in the most approved style. Danny O'[illegible] was the marvelous glass blower and contortionist. The half-woman appeared to be Hazel Jo[illegible]. The clowns were A. C. Burdick, Austin Harris, Eva Harris and Alice O'Rourke. In one act there was a clown boxing match between Austin and Donald Harris, with A. C. Burdick and Norton Gardiner trainers and Everett Thornton referee. There were clown Jack-in-the-box and fire clown acts that were very clever. The acrobats were Austin and Donald Harris. Everett Thornton was the policeman and was obliged to arrest one performer. A band furnished real circus music and was composed of John

GRAND OFFICERS HELP IN DEDICATION OF TEMPLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 25.— Disagreeable weather had little or no bearing on the attendance here tonight of Masons from various sections of eastern Connecticut and more distant points to join with the members of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., in the impressive ceremonies incident to the dedication of the enlarged and beautified Masonic temple on Broad street.

About a score of grand officers and past grand officers of the Grand lodge of Connecticut were in attendance to assist in the dedication ceremonies. They were headed by R. W. Attorney E. L. Darbie, Danielson, grand master; R. W. Howard A. Middleton, Broad Brook, deputy grand master; R. W. Sherwood H. Raywin, New Britain, grand senior warden; R. W. Samuel A. Moyle, New Haven, grand junior warden; R. W. Joseph Buths, Hartford, grand treasurer; M. W. Winthrop Buck, Wethersfield, grand secretary; R. W. James W. Brinkerhoff, Stamford, grand junior deacon; R. W. Ernest L. Prenn, Deep River, grand marshal; R. W. Arthur F. Lewis, Naugatuck, grand senior steward; Wor. Rev. Leonard R. Richards, Pomfret, grand chaplain.

In addition there were a number of district deputies and past district deputies present, and a large attendance of the rank and file of the order. Moriah lodge, of which Howard Franklin is master, welcomed in to the attractive temple here. There was a banquet for the entire assemblage prior to the beginning of the dedication ceremonies.

Police Watch For Gypsy Car

State and borough police here and at Putnam were on the lookout shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon for a new Ford sedan bearing Illinois registration 751766, that the gypsy occupants might be questioned relative to a robbery they are alleged to have committed in Hartford today. A police circuit message brought the news here from the Willimantic police. Two men, two women and a baby were said to be riding in the car, which, when last seen, was reported as heading into this part of Windham county.

Jewett City Man Sentenced To Jail

Louis Moffitt of Jewett City drew a stiff jail sentence—a matter of six months—when he was presented in the town court of Plainfield today to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. State Officer George Martin arrested Moffitt in Plainfield last night. Moffitt previously had been found guilty for driving while intoxicated, and he came into court today as an second offender.

Charles Lavallee of Plainfield was fined $100 and costs in that town court today for failure to report the sale of used cars. He was ordered to make appearance in court today by a local state officer who was checking on used cars the past week as a feature of an investigation that was being made.

Still another, Russell Wade, 17, of Baltic, appears in today's list of those who have been in court hereabouts for a violation of some section of the motor vehicle code. He appeared before Justice Laura Pike in the town of Brooklyn and was fined $5 and costs for failure to grant the right of way. Wade's car was in collision with another machine at the intersection of highways near the fair grounds in Brooklyn the past week end.

Attorney and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill returned today from a stay of several days at Dover, N. H., where they were guests of William H. Roberts, clerk of courts for Stafford, N. H. county. On Sunday they enjoyed a delightful motor trip of 139 miles, completely circling Lake Winnepausaukie. While away they also visited New Hampshire State college at Durham, where Thomas U. Day of Danielson is enrolled as a student.

Mrs. Marjorie G. Woodbury and daughter, Katherine, of West Hartford, will be guests of Attorney and Mrs Arthur G. Bill over the Thanksgiving holiday period.

Though the season is well advanced, considerable construction is going on. Houses that are partly constructed continue to engage carpenters and workmen in other trades and in some cases will until after the first of the year. On the West Side construction of a house has only recently been undertaken, and carpenters are hurrying to close it in before real cold weather sets in.

Shortly after Killingly's schools close Wednesday afternoon for the holiday recess, which will extend through to Monday, there will be an exodus of the majority of the nonresident teachers who are engaged in their profession here, that they may visit at their homes in various parts of New England.

A few days hence Christmas seals will be put on sale here and will be available in quantities. The revenue will be used to wage the year's old fight for the control of tuberculosis.

A. F. Wood was in Glocester, 11 miles northeast of here, and at Chepachet today in charge of the arrangements for the funeral of Francis J. Crawford, 86, who died at the state infirmary in Howard, R. I., last Friday. The service was in the Chepachet Congregational church at 2 o'clock and was conducted by Rev. A. F. Brudon, chaplain at Howard, assisted by Rev. Gideon Burgess, D. D., of Greeneville, R. I. Burial was at Acote Hill cemetery, Chepachet. Bearers were William Hopkins, Welcome Place, James Brown and Daniel Gleason. Mr. Crawford was a veteran of the Civil war, having served with a Rhode Island regiment. He leaves two nephews, Joseph A. Place of Foster Center and Elmer Place of Providence.

Quietly, numbers of generous acts, in the way of providing Thanksgiving dinners for needy persons in Danielson, are being done just now by kindly people who practice the golden rule. Those making the gifts neither desire publicity nor any personal mention about their goodness.

There was some increase late this afternoon in motor traffic over what it is through here on an ordinary week day, the deduction made by observers was that early starters were on their way to destinations where they are to spend Thanksgiving. Heavy traffic is looked for on Wednesday and motor coach lines have arranged to use as many extra busses as may be required to handle the business that comes to them.

The largest "family" in years will eat Thanksgiving dinner at the county jail in Brooklyn on Thursday. Prisoners have been coming in steadily throughout the fall season, filling the jail recently almost to capacity. It was remarked by a contemplative sort of person this morning that those whose terms expire today and tomorrow are going to be just a bit out of luck as to sharing in the holiday feast.

Rev. Roy B. Chamberlin, stationed at Hanover, N. H., for several years, will preach at the Westfield Congregational church here next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Chamberlin is a son-in-law of Frederick A. Jacobs of Broad street, Mrs. Chamberlin the former Miss Alice Jacobs of this town.

It would appear that turkey raising can be made a profitable undertaking in this territory. In illustration, it may be mentioned that a flock of 89 turkeys raised this year on the farm of the late Joseph B. Stetson in Brooklyn had all been sold today, without even advertising and that these native grown birds commanded about 20 cents per pound more than other varieties offered for sale here. At that, they were much cheaper than the prices asked for natives a year ago.

Thanksgiving greetings were coming through the mails to local people today from relatives and friends living at distant points.

The lowest price said to have been quoted here in 20 years was that of 34 cents a pound for fresh killed turkeys today—cheaper than many of the cuts of meat in common use.

Plenty of dances and parties planned for this and nearby communities for Thanksgiving eve and for the holiday itself.

WORKING THROUGH COLLEGE

Is an education worth working for? That is a question that seems to be fully answered by a third of the students enrolled at Yale, when it is shown in the annual report of Director Crawford of the bureau of appointments that 1,368 members of the entire enrollment earned a total of $781,967 last year through positions recorded through the bureau.

Even though such work involved employment during the summer vacation as well as during the days in college, it is an impressive demonstration which has been made by the students. It is by no means a new undertaking. It has been followed for many years and been the means of putting many a young man through college who could not have otherwise secured a higher education. It has at the same time been an experience which has had an important bearing upon the entire career of such students. They have come to realize what dependence upon their own activities and efforts means, they have been brought to realize the value of money which they have earned and they have had a greater appreciation of the education for which they were striving.

The bureau of appointments, or the bureau of self-help as it is known in some institutions, serves as the clearing house for those students who want to work and the many in those cities who have work to be done. That such work should cover a wide range of jobs is to be expected. Those who want something to do are willing to do anything. There are probably some berths that are more attractive and remunerative than others. There are some jobs which are harder, more mussy, more undesirable, but they all contribute to the pocketbook in the long run and serve as a stepping stone to something better.

Those who make use of as much time as they can get away from their studies for the sake of paying their way through college are confronted by no easy four years. It means the sacrifice of many pleasures and the constant application of efforts in one direction or another. It is a course that is not advocated by some educators because it does not give the student the recreation that he needs, but it is not improbable in the most of the cases of those who work their way through college that they make fully as good use of their time in tending to their jobs and studies and in the records they make in the years that follow, as do those who have nothing to do but study, and find it difficult to do that.

STOPPING THE ALIENS

While there are those who are claiming that there should be more liberality displayed toward the question of admitting aliens, there are others who believe that the present immigration laws are not strict enough.

Just now, while unemployment is commanding so much attention, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania is quoted as favoring a suspension of the quota law so that there will be no more immigrants admitted until conditions improve. He believes that the keeping out of the aliens at a time like this will have a good effect upon the unemployment situation.

With about 3,000,000 out of work and with about 280,000 immigrants coming in annually the shutting out of the aliens will not in itself provide work for all those who want it. Most of those coming to this country do so with the idea of getting employment. If there is need for such labor, it is one thing. If there are more workmen here than can find jobs it is evident that the increase in that number or an average of more than 13,000 a month is going to make it more difficult for those already here to find employment, while the chances of the newcomers getting work is by no means promising. That means that they would not only be increasing the number out of employment but the number, in all probability, of those dependent upon public support.

It is such a situation that is taken into consideration by Senator Reed in his plan to have the immigration law suspended. The hopes are that unemployment will show a steady decrease, but there is little satisfaction in seeing the number of idle here decrease if there are to be additions made to it by those coming from other countries. Under normal conditions, it has been possible for this country to find something for the immigrants to do. It will be so again, but, for the present, the number of idle is large enough without having it augmented by the inflow of aliens, and such a plea will be stressed in the effort to curtail immigration. Whether it will get favorable action remains to be seen, for in a short session, when time is limited and many demands are presented, it is easy to sidetrack and delay.

RATES AT PANAMA

Perhaps the surprising thing in connection with the annual report of Governor Burgess of the Canal Zone is that the receipts for the fiscal year show a decrease of only $51,481 at a time when there has been a curtailment in so many lines of industrial activity and when transportation business has suffered along with the rest.

But the figures show that the canal is meeting a great need, that it is handling a huge volume of business at all times, and no better appreciation of its value could be asked.

In the not distant past, because of the steady gain that has been experienced in the traffic and the pleasing receipts, there has been a demand for a reduction in the toll charges. Inasmuch as this country did not build the canal for the purpose of making money, such a move might seem logical. But Governor Burgess goes on record as opposing any such action, at least, at this time. He points out that the canal is not as yet earning 4 per cent, the interest rate which the government pays when borrowing, that there is a large accumulated interest on the nation's investment in the canal which has never been taken into consideration in figuring profits and the length of time the canal has been in operation makes it necessary to make repairs and improvements. Thus it is his point that before there is any thought of lowering rates attention should be given to the needed betterments.

With heavy traffic and more to be expected as the years roll along, there is a chance for expenditures at the canal which will provide for greater traffic, traffic that can move during the 24 hours. That this might be provided in part by the tolls is entirely possible and in so doing it would prevent a heavy drain upon the treasury. This is the view that is taken by Governor Burgess.

In connection with water transportation service between the Atlantic and Pacific, it has been urged that the canal be enlarged and also that a new canal be constructed through Nicaragua along a route which is being studied by engineers. What is the better course to adopt must be left to experts after all the facts have been ascertained, but in view of the fact that further expenditures, and heavy ones, can be expected, it seems a bit too soon to think of putting the knife into the rates on the present canal. Certainly the existing rates are not serving to drive business away.

TAX CUT UNLIKELY

Congressman Snell, chairman of the house committee on rules, is quoted as expressing the opinion that there is little chance of continuing the 1 per cent income tax reduction and accompanying it with the statement that "the country will be lucky if there is no increase."

At the present time there is prospect of a deficit. There is also the expectation that the coming session of congress will be asked to make some large appropriations in order to meet the unemployment situation and that it will be disposed toward favorable action. Taking care of such a situation, with a deficit faced, and still hold out hope of continuing the temporary tax cut seems wholly out of the question.

Under such circumstances, and the always present desire to avoid a deficit, there are always those who are ready with suggestions by which to accomplish everything. One of them has been advanced at this time and is to the effect that the payments on the public debt be suspended at this time. That would provide a huge sum which could be used for various purposes and permit the continuance of the tax cut.

Such a move would mean, not only a failure to lop off an annual slice of the national debt, but it would mean the continuance of the big interest account which is always reduced every time the debt is lowered. But, beyond that, it would be in direct violation of the statutory requirement concerning the reduction of the public debt.

Regarding such an idea, the president has voiced his emphatic disapproval. He believes there should be strict adherence to statutory provisions for retirement of the public debt and when he maintains that "it is sound government finance to hold to the sinking fund provisions of the public debt" he states that which is obvious and what is expected.

KILLED WHILE HUNTING

This is the season of the year when attention is repeatedly called to the careless use of firearms by those who know their deadly character and know what it means to get in the way of a bullet or to send one into another human being.

It has long been expected that those who go into the Maine woods would not come out alive. Experience has shown that many were killed because of the failure on the part of other hunters to be sure that they were firing at deer or other large game. Frequent have been the instances when hunters were mistaken for something else.

But Maine isn't alone in its hunting fatalities. New York comes forth this year with a list of 87 cases where hunters were shot, not all of them fatally, but there were 24 deaths. Fifteen of these cases were due to shots fired by companions and nine resulted by the careless handling of firearms by the hunters themselves.

That two should be killed by bullets from guns of hunters in other parties and two persons were killed by stray shots indicates the risk that is being taken these days by those who go into the woods during the hunting season and even those who travel over the highways in wooded areas where hunting is good.

The hunter who drags his gun after him, pulls it through the fence or pushes through the brush with it while the hammer is pulled back ready to shoot should understand that he is inviting serious trouble for himself or his companion. Those who point guns at each other, as was done the other day in Pennsylvania only to have the weapon fired and the bullet reach a vital spot, know better. Such acts should teach others better, but the repeated distressing killings indicate that the lesson fails to reach as many as need it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The United States has a population of 122,775,046. Where do you figure in the list?

The man on the corner says: These are the days when everyone knows how to talk turkey.

There are many appetites that will not have to be whetted for the Thanksgiving dinner.

In anticipation of Thanksgiving there are many ways in which expression may be given for the blessings that have been received.

SAUCE FOR BOTH

"My mother," Tom Dayton would begin. And forthwith launch upon his favorite subject.

"A man who will speak of his mother the way Tom does will certainly be good to his wife, too," Marie often said when her friends twitted her about her fiance's attachment for his mother.

However, no girl looks forward eagerly to hearing about how her mother-in-law can bake pies, sew and manage a ten-room house with one hand tied behind her. Wherefore, though Marie loyally defended Tom to her friends, the gleam of impending battle shone in her eyes just the same.

There were three weeks of honeymooning, during which time Tom never once mentioned the admirable methods and opinions of his most estimable mother. Then Marie and Tom came home, home being an inviting little three-room apartment. And in the third week, just at breakfast, it happened!

"Strawberry preserves?" grinned Tom, helping himself generously. "Fine. I love 'em. Where'd you get them, dear?"

"Store," laconically.

"Oh. Well, yes, of course." Tom's voice sounded slightly embarrassed. "For a minute I thought—but then, you haven't had time yet, honey. I must be pretty dense. Only, I'm so keen on homemade preserves. Mother always kept shelves and shelves of them."

"Yes, she has so much space in that big house; hasn't she," Marie asked dreamily. "And that storeroom, besides. I wish we—in these tiny apartments it's a little difficult, you know. However," demurely, "I was thinking of putting up some preserves. If you'll nail up a few shelves over there, dear—"

"Ask the janitor, honey."

"Oh, I want them right away. My father—" her voice took on a reminiscent note, "my father always put up shelves for mother. He was so handy with things around the house and he just adored doing things for mother. He used to call it a labor of love."

"Well, I guess there's not much room here for all that," decided Tom. "What's the odds, anyway? These preserves are fine. Taste just as good, dear. Don't bother canning stuff. What're you doing today?"

"I expect to be downtown around noon, dear. I'll stop up at the office for you and we'll go to lunch together. Shall I?"

"I'd love to have you, Marie. You know that. But it breaks things up so at the office. Mother seldom came down for lunch."

"Dad used to enjoy having mother walk in on him and take him out to lunch. He said it always broke up the monotony so. But then, I guess dad was just a bit old-fashioned."

Tom sat up straight, his face flushing slightly. "Well, I guess nothing could suit me better than to have any little wife running in to cart me off to lunch with her. It's just that I never thought of it that way, dear. I'll wait for you. Going shopping, too?"

"There's a marvelous sale of men's shirts right next door to your office, Tom. We could run in after lunch. It won't take but a minute. And then I'll feel sure that you'll get the patterns you like."

"Oh, you get them. Mother always attended to things like that for me."

"Dad," said Marie, sighing, "dad used to have so much fun shopping with mother. They did most everything together. But men haven't time for such things today. I suppose that it is foolish," wistfully. "But I'll get your shirts myself. I do hope I select the patterns you like."

"I believe," said he firmly, "that every young couple should launch out in their own way and never mind about how their parents did things. Nothing like using your own initiative."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—One republican chieftain came out of the election justified in an "I-told-you-so" attitude.

The crisp-tongued George Moses, chairman of the republican senatorial campaign committee, was even better off than that. The outcome was not so bad as he expected.

For Moses got back from a pre-election swing around the circle, convinced that the republicans were going to lose the house, but keep the senate by a narrow margin.

He said so, right out loud, although privately a first. Finally he said it in effect for publication. Long observation of the ways of this 60-year-young down-easter has satisfied the Bystander that his favorite pastime is calling a spade a spade.

Take that "sons of the wild jackass" remark, for example. That represented exactly what Moses felt about it, politically undiplomatic as it may or may not have been.

'Young Feller'

The New Hampshire senator is too much of a veteran not to view any election result philosophically. Forty years of active party life is a long time.

By contrast, Moses' opponent, the chairman of the democratic senatorial committee, is a youngster at the game. Tydings of Maryland is just 40.

When Moses was getting his baptism of political experience as a secretary on the state republican committee in 1890, "Militant Millard," as Colonel Ed. Halsey has dubbed Tydings, was just getting born in Maryland.

Tydings is one of these "young fellers" of the senate. Time was when he staged a lone handed filibuster that kept all hands up mighty late o' nights, that even his democratic colleagues thought him rather an enfant terrible, as the French say.

But the Tydings of that day, a senate newcomer with no respect at all for the now utterly shattered tradition that first-term senators are born to be seen, not heard, and the Tydings of today with eight republican sclaps at his belt as a campaign chairman are quite different folks.

Nobody would have the nerve to suggest now that he sit down and shut up, although his first term still has three years to run.

Lucky Day?

In fixing on "Militant Millard" as a good handle for the Marylander, Halsey, that 30-year veteran of the senate's democratic staff and secretary of the campaign committee, seen significance in the fact that Tydings was born on April 6.

That is the anniversary of the declaration of war against Germany. In that war Tydings climbed from buck private to lieutenant colonel.

Maybe the colonel is right. Certainly somebody democratic rates credit for those eight more democrats in the senate. And "Militant Millard" is getting congratulatory letters, lots of them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pick Me Ups

Mr. Editor:

I had intended to ask a question as to why, or where, they got the name of cruller for a certain culinary confection that is found in the baker shops today, for in early days they were called fried cakes. I feel a little bit ashamed to admit it, but perhaps us old fellows are just a little bit stubborn and think the old days were the best. We do know, and we are going to stand by our guns on that score, that when we were a little bit under the weather all we had to do was to crawl up in the attic, bring down a bunch of herbs, make some sort of a tea, drink it when it was hot and it was sweetened with molasses. Brother, this was a "pick me up," and you didn't need to have your face lifted or have a monkey gland operation, for you felt the next day like a yearling colt, champing on the bit and raring to go, full of vim and vitality.

Yes, siree, those old New England mothers had a specific for everything that ailed you. If you had a stubborn cold, a decoction of wormwood and boneset, piping hot and sweetened with the never-failing molasses. Oh, boy, if you ever remember drinking this, you know it sure was bitter. If you had growing pains, out would come the Balm of Gilead and then for a good rub down and after this operation you felt as though you could leap over a six-barred fence.

Oh, by the way, I wonder if you old boys remember that between Tenth and Eleventh streets on Central avenue, there were four or five Balm of Gilead trees, yesterday. In the spring time the aromatic buds were gathered and put into a little New England rum and this was used as an embrocation.

Here is a little something else. Right opposite to where is now located the Greeneville school were growing at one time two English walnut trees. You didn't know that, did you?

Now to go back to where we started from, we look into the emergency closet and see catnip, pennyroyal, tansy, ginger. If you felt weary and had that all-gone feeling—you had to soak your feet in hot water with a pinch of baking soda in it, then take a draught of camomile tea, go and hit the hay and keep the clothes on you. As you laid there, you felt as though everyone had deserted you. You could hear the gang outside playing, "run sheep, run." What a break you were getting!

Did you ever dream you were climbing up over Reynolds hill, and you got too close to the edge, that you clutched at everything as you fell and uttered a scream that woke everyone in the house? They would all come running in and go into a huddle and it was decided that only one thing was needed. You had a croupy cough and must have hen's oil, and here comes the molasses again, and also catnip tea. Darned if I don't think there was a lot of concentrated goodness in molasses.

Say, old timers, didn't you like a hunk of bread with all that goodness on it? Please notice I said hunk, for what good would a slice be to a growing boy? Let's see, where were we? All right, we have just arrived at the station called "catnip." Why, bless you, those old New England girls could think of more panaceas than you could shake a stick at. Think of onion syrup for a cold in the head! Onion and flaxseed poultices, fried onions put into a cotton cloth and used as cure for colds, also a good mustard plaster. All had their uses and were trotted out as the occasion demanded. Remember when you went home from school and you felt kinder' "all in" and you said you were dizzy. All right, here is your rhubarb and soda mixture. And don't forget castor oil. How I did love that stuff, and I mean a mile away! Do you know, as I write that castor oil I could in fancy taste it. Whew! Do you recall when you went down to Nellie Downey's or Ed Fay's and bought wooden licorice or perhaps the other kind; all were good for slight colds. Perhaps you young folks may get the idea that we always had colds by the way this reads. Well, we had plenty of colds and sore throats and if we did we could go down to the pork barrel, get a slice of pork, tie it in a cloth, tie it around our throat and, presto, goodbye colds and the throat ailment. If we wanted a tooth pulled out we tied one end of a string to the door knob and the other end to the tooth, slammed the door shut and there you are, or there was the tooth. Got something in your eye? Well, here is an eyestone; that is the boy to take the beam from your eye. Another cure for a sore throat was a coatsleeve poultice. Say, girls, have you ever tried it? Here is the recipe: Sit on a park bench a moonlight night with your sweetheart. His arm steals around your neck, his arm in the coatsleeve. Oh boy, oh joy. Maybe we didn't have the conveniences you have today, and still we were two steps ahead of the morticians, for "yesterday" we slept up in a cold garret, where the wind came through the cracks in the shingles, and the snow drifted on the floor. I can see this room where I slept even yet, very cold, but very healthy. You hated to get into bed, for it seemed like getting into ice water—so cold. But you finally mustered up courage and crawled in and you drew your legs up close, for you didn't dare to stretch out straight. You hear the wind whistle around the chimney and soon you fall asleep and then, good night.

Oh, by the way, before I leave you, did you ever try a hot roasted apple when you had an earache? And, before I close, have you ordered your Thanksgiving turkey? My, didn't the dressing smell good when the oven door was opened and you inhaled the hot mince pie! Oh boy! Signing off Station "Yesterday." Announcer:

Chronic Constipation

By R. G. Clapp, M. D., Professor of Physical Education, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Chronic constipation is one of those troublesome conditions which, in itself, may not be serious but which is often a contributing factor in physical and mental disorders and therefore deserves more consideration than it is usually accorded by the average physician. Obviously, proper and successful treatment of this condition depends upon the determination and removal of the cause. Therefore, the patient's first step should be to consult his family physician and if possible have the cause determined and suggestions made by the physician to eliminate the cause.

Inasmuch as improper diet and lack of exercise are among the most common causes a few suggestions regarding these may be helpful. The use of "laxative" foods and "roughage" is essential to normal digestion. People in general tend to eat too much pre-digested or "refined" cooked foods, with the result that the normal irritation and stimulation to the digestive tract is lacking, thereby bringing on constipation. Our diet should include a liberal amount of fresh or cooked fruits, coarse and leafy vegetables, cereals containing bran and only a moderate amount of meat and starchy vegetables. For the correction of constipation, use of fruits for dessert is preferable to pastries, etc. A liberal amount of water, with and between meals, is desirable. One should always drink at least one glass of water before retiring and the same on rising. Water is the vehicle by which most of the waste products of the body are eliminated, and there is little danger of getting too much.

Now a word about exercise. The health, tone and function of all parts of the body depend upon proper blood and lymph circulation, because the supply of food and oxygen is brought to all parts of the body and waste products are carried off by means of the circulation. Muscular exercise has a greater influence on circulation than any other factor. This applies to the digestive organs as well as other systems of the body; therefore a sluggish general circulation is sure to be followed by sluggish digestion and intestinal inactivity, resulting, of course, in constipation. Following out this train of thought it is evident that any exercise will have a beneficial effect in stimulating digestive activity but exercises which bring into play the abdominal, side waist, and lower back muscles naturally have a more direct effect on the digestive organs and therefore are usually recommended for correction of constipation.

Simple calisthenic exercises will be found of decided benefit—those involving the downward bending at the waist at about ninety degrees, returning back to erect position, keeping the back arched, repeated 10 to 30 times. So-called abdominal movements are also good—lying flat on the back, on the count of one raising both legs, both hip and knee joints are flexed, bringing the knees up close to the chest. On the count of two, hip and knee joints are extended, and stopped just before legs touch the floor. Here too we must include the side waist movements, bending to right as far as possible with knees straight, and on count of two returning to erect position—following same with movements to the left. The trunk rotation too has its value—hands on hips, the trunk is bent forward 90 degrees and swung as far to left as possible, then backward, with continued movement to right until 90 degrees bend forward is reached. The same movements are then done to the left.

There are many other simple exercises and good sound medical advice that can be given, and it is urged that the chronic sufferer from constipation visit his family doctor and secure a good stiff program and then stick to it.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Heedlessness of Youth

Heedless is the youthful mind.
'Tis universal you will find.
—Old Mother Nature.

The young Muskrats didn't intend to be disrespectful to their father, Jerry Muskrat, when between themselves they made fun of his warning about traps. They were just like most other young people who have not yet learned their lessons from the greatest of all teachers—experience. Never having seen a trap they couldn't believe that it could possibly be as bad as Jerry had said it was. Never having been frightened by Farmer Brown's boy, who was the one two-legged creature aside from the bird folk with whom they were really familiar, they judged others of the same kind by him. So when their father was disturbed by the appearance of another boy they were not at all afraid thought Jerry foolish.

"All this talk about traps sounds scary, but I won't be scared," said one young Muskrat. "When some one of us finds a trap it will be time enough to worry."

"But," said a timid one, "suppose that trap catches one of us first?"

Meanwhile Jerry Muskrat continued to be anxious and suspicious

"I guess that if there are any traps around here we will know it in time," declared another. "I would hate to feel that every time I want to sit on my favorite log I must look all about it for a trap. I've sat there ever since I can remember and there never has been a trap there yet."

"There has to be a first time for everything," ventured the timid one.

"And there is trouble enough in this world without borrowing more," declared another, who thought himself very wise and smart.

"I guess if one of those traps should catch me I would find some way of getting away from it. I'm not afraid of an old trap!" boasted another.

"There is no sense in worrying over a thing that never has happened and may never happen," said the first one. "Any one not smart enough to keep out of a trap deserves to be caught."

Then these heedless young Muskrats quite forgot all about the subject. They continued to play about as they always had done. Not even when they saw the strange boy about did they get suspicious. As is apt to be the way with young people they felt quite equal to looking out for themselves. Never having had experience they scorned the value of experience.

Meanwhile Jerry Muskrat continued to be anxious and suspicious. He was not anxious for himself or about Mrs. Jerry. He knew enough about traps to keep out of them and in this matter Mrs. Jerry was quite as wise as was he. It was about the children that he worried. As yet he hadn't been able to find a single trap, but that didn't ease his mind any. He had a feeling that though there might not be any traps then there would be later. That strange boy acted like a trapper. Yes, sir, he did so. Jerry had in the past had enough experience with trappers to recognize the signs. Jerry could tell when a trapper was looking the ground over, planning to set his traps.

"If this isn't what that boy is doing may I lose my tail," said Jerry, but he said it to himself. You see he knew how heedless were those children of his. He knew how they grinned at him behind his back.

As for those same children, they came and went heedlessly and happily without a real care in the world. Life was good and they meant to enjoy it. They did enjoy it. They had no thought for anything but to eat and play and be happy. Jerry watched them and wondered if ever he had been so care-free and heedless.

DO YOU KNOW CONNECTICUT?

By Conn. Chamber of Commerce

Q. For what is Connecticut-grown tobacco used?

A. Because of its fine quality, most of it is used for wrappers and binders.

Q. Did government in Connecticut develop from one colony?

A. There were originally two colonies having different standards for citizenship and different ideas of the proper administration of civil affairs. The Connecticut Colony was democratic; church and state were separate, and the authority was traced back to the people. New Haven Colony was an aristocracy; its founders formed a state with the Bible as their only law-book; only members of the Congregational church could take part in the town's affairs.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

New Haven Works American Steel & Wire Company, New Haven.

The New Haven Works of the American Steel & Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, ranks with the most important industrial establishments of this part of Connecticut. It is one of the four plants of the Worcester district, of which J. Lester Perry is manager, with offices in Worcester. The superintendent of the New Haven Works is Henry W. Jones, Jr.

The plant, located on the east bank of the Quinnipiac river between the Ferry street bridge and the Tomlinson bridge, has been occupied by wire mills under various ownerships for nearly a half century. It was purchased in 1907 by the United States Steel corporation from the National Wire corporation and covers 51 acres, with a river frontage of three-eights of a mile. It was here that James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation since 1911, worked as a wire-drawer when a young man.

The first manufacturing carried on at the site of this plant was that of ship building. Two shipyards occupied part of the site during the early 60's where small gunboats were built for the government by the firm of Pook and Bushnell. They went out of business after the Civil war, Mr. Pook becoming a naval constructor for the United States government. Mr. Bushnell had also been very active in securing financial backing for the construction of the historic Monitor of Civil war fame.

In the late 60's, the firm of Atwater Wheeler company established a small wire plant on Temple street, New Haven, not far from Grove street, in a building afterward used as a stable. This was conducted under a bookkeeping title of the New Haven Wire Works. Shortly after, in 1871, they bought land near the present site and the New Haven Wire company was incorporated. The firm failed in 1887, but the plant was continued in operation, under S. A. Galpin and others as receivers, for three years, when it was reorganized as the New Haven Wire Manufacturing company. The New Haven Wire company was finally legislated out of existence July 19, 1905.

The new company, formed under the title of The National Wire company, was incorporated February 25, 1899, with a capital of $200,000, the subscribers being John Wales, Geo. R. Wales, Walter H. Seaver, and Everett B. Webster of Boston, Edward S. Page, former secretary of the Cleveland Rolling Mill company, and a Mr. Ryan of the New York Woven Wire Mattress company.

The new company was overburdened with orders from the start, and it soon became necessary to increase capacity in order to take care of the increased tonnage. It was also decided to build a rod mill,—which improvements and additions to the plant required increased capital investment.

The National Wire company had been operating scarcely more than a year when it was merged into the National Wire corporation with an authorized capitalization of one million dollars, divided into 40,000 shares at $25 each. The purpose of the organization was to take over the property of The National Wire company, and to put into fixed capital form the money which had been borrowed and spent for plant development.

Up to this time, the Wales' interests controlled the company, but after the incorporation of the National Wire Corporation, the banking interests, including English stockholders, had the control. The plant was almost entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, February 3, 1901 but was immediately rebuilt on a much larger scale.

Rebuilding required more land also new financing, and a little less than two years after the incorporation of the National Wire corporation or on February 2, 1902, occurred the incorporation of the National Steel & Wire company, with a capitalization of $18,000,000. Organized as a holding company, it included under its control the business and properties of the National Wire corporation, also the De Kalb and Union Fence companies of De Kalb, Ill., Safety Insulated Wire & Cable company, Bayonne, N. J., Pacific Steel and Wire company, Oakland, Cal., and later, the National Steel Foundry company.

The holding company operated the National Wire corporation plant until December 19, 1906, when F. B. Farnsworth and H. Stuart Hotchkiss were appointed receivers. The receivers operated the plant for a few months, when it was closed down. The property of the National Wire corporation was sold December 18, 1907, to the United States Steel corporation.

The American Steel & Wire company filed papers in the office of the secretary of state of Connecticut as a foreign corporation doing business within the state, December 30, 1907, and immediately took over the property and equipment of the National Wire corporation. After the making of necessary alterations and improvements, the plant was put into operation by the American Steel & Wire company, December 17, 1908. Payroll reports for that day show that 29 men were employed. At present there are approximately 500 employes.

The New Haven Works, when acquired by the United States Steel corporation, was equipped to manufacture wire for a wide range of uses. Under the present ownership, the operating capacity has been greatly increased, but the plant has been converted into a specialty mill for the manufacture of rope wire and wire ropes, (sometimes referred to as "wire cables"). It now possesses modern equipment, and the largest capacity of any plant in the world for the production of wire rope.

The operations include the making of all varieties of steel rope wire, and the fabricating of this wire into ropes of all sizes and of many different types of construction. The finished ropes are used for elevators, dredges, lumbering, mining, oil-well drilling, suspension bridges, stump-pulling, cranes, ships, and for every other purpose calling for wire rope.

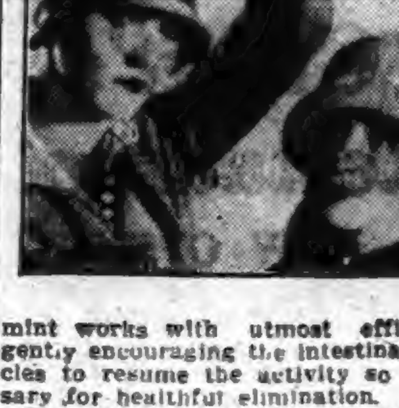
Bad Breath More Than Social Error

Almost everyone is coming to realize nowadays that we usually have to go further than the mouth to find the real cause of bad breath. Bad breath is now regarded as a warning that something is wrong with our health—usually a badly clogged up system. When this is the case, by all means take some reliable laxative—preferable the delicious mint-flavored Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative.

Feen-a-mint is specially designed to bring about thorough, distress-free bowel action and to help in cases of headache, coated tongue, billiousness and general bad health arising from constipation.

Because you CHEW Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the QUANTITY swallowed as upon the thoroughness of ITS DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE AILMENTARY TRACT

While you chew this delicious bit of gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.



The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit forming drugs. Truly the HEALTH LAXATIVE. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

COUNTY POPULATION IS 180.5 TO SQUARE MILE

The old type of pioneer and trapper who used to move his habitat further into the interior of the country every time it became possible for him to see the smoke from a newcomer's chimney, could hardly hope to find solitude in Connecticut, according to the fifteenth census being completed by the department of commerce which fixes the density of the population for the state at 333.4 per square mile.

New Haven county with 608 square miles leads and 463,449 people, a density of 768.6 per square mile.

Fairfield county is second with 631 square miles, 386,702 people and a density of 612.8 people per square mile.

Hartford county is third with 729 square miles, 421,097 people and a density of 577.7. The other counties in the order of their density are: New London, 659 square miles, 118,955 people, 180.5 per square mile; Litchfield, 925 square miles, 82,556 people, 89.3 per square mile; Windham, 500 square miles, 54,086 people, 108.2 per square mile; Middlesex, 369 square miles, 51,388 people, 139.3 per square mile; Tolland, 404 square miles, 28,659 people, 70.9 per square mile.

According to World Almanac statistics, Connecticut's density of population is only a little less than that of Prussia and is greater than that of Japan and Switzerland. The almanac's figures of countries that approximate Connecticut's density per square mile of 333.4 are Switzerland 249.5; Alsace, 362.7; Baden, 397.5; Brunswick, 356.1; Japan, 309.5; Prussia, 337.1.

Connecticut's density reached 52.1 per square mile in 1800, passed the 100 mark in 1870 when the figure was 111.5 people per square mile. In 1910 it passed the 200 mark and showed the greatest percentage increase when the density figure of 188.5 made in 1900, went to 231.3 people to the square mile.

NEW QUINEBAUG BRIDGE AND VIADUCT AT JEWETT CITY

STATE ATTY. BROWN TO SPEAK AT FORMAL OPENING WITH PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 25.—State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown is to be the speaker at the formal opening of the new Quinebaug bridge and viaduct, which will take place at 10 o'clock Thanksgiving day morning. It is expected that prominent state officials will be present, together with many visitors from other towns. The several committees have been able to make such favorable reports to Warden Edmond J. Jodoin that a grand and fitting demonstration with a fine parade is assured.

Total Cost Over $400,000

The project is a part of the state's trunk line highways, Route 12, between New London, Norwich and Worcester in the towns of Lisbon and Griswold, in the southern part of the borough of Jewett City. It consists of two separate structures and their approaches; a bridge over the Quinebaug river, and a viaduct over the Pachaug river and the tracks of the New Haven railroad. It is an entirely new alignment, running parallel to and about 300 feet southerly of the old road. The total cost is slightly in excess of $460,000, about 50 per cent of which is borne by the federal government, approximately $80,000 by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and the balance, $120,000, by the state of Connecticut. It is a two-fold improvement. The new Quinebaug bridge succeeds an obsolete, narrow and underweight structure, no part of which could be utilized for the traffic demands of the present day. The viaduct eliminates a railroad grade crossing which has been and would continue to be increasingly dangerous, not to mention delay and annoyance to highway travel on one of the most important routes in this part of the state.

Bridge 375 Feet Long

The new Quinebaug river bridge is 375 feet in length, and 25 feet high from river bed to roadway surface. It is of five spans of 75 feet each, of

AUTOMOBILE THEFT CHARGE AGAINST COAST GUARDSMEN

Kenneth H. Whitlock, 24, and George Dickson, 26, of the Coast Guard academy at New London, were presented in the city court Tuesday morning on charges of theft of an automobile owned by Arthur Sylvia of No. 246 Main street. Trial of the case was continued until this (Wednesday) morning and bonds were set at $1,000 each. In default of bonds the accused were held at police headquarters.

The two, with Michael Barniak, also a coast guardsman, who is now a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, are charged with taking Mr. Sylvia's machine from the Dolco garage alley on West Thames street, late Monday night. The machine was wrecked and the trio hurt when it crashed headon into a trolley car at Derry Hill. Barniak was taken to the hospital and another of the men was later attended at police headquarters by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy. The guardsmen attended a wedding reception at Thamesville Monday night and were on their way to New London, in the stolen car, when the accident happened on the Norwich-Montville highway. Whitlock and Dickson, claimed at police headquarters, that they had been picked up by the driver of the machine who disappeared after the accident.

WILL REPEAT PLAY WITH BENEFIT FOR UNEMPLOYED

Announcement was made Tuesday evening by George R. Gifford, a member of the committee in charge of arrangements, that ten per cent of the proceeds derived from the presentation of the two-act comedy, The Old District School, by the West End Community association last Friday evening, will be used for relief of the unemployed in the city. How much this will total has not as yet been ascertained, as a number of those who sold tickets have not made a report.

As there were many who were unable to witness the play in its initial performance the production will be repeated by request by the association at the Elizabeth street school and 10 per cent of the profits will also be contributed to the unemployment fund. The amount secured in both instances will be turned over to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins.

He said: Speaking on behalf of the boys, let me say "thank you all" and may Thanksgiving of 1930 be more pleasant to you for having shown the spirit of the occasion by giving this dinner to boys, many of whom would have faced Thanksgiving without hope of the treat you have given them. May Thanksgiving, 1930, be the more joyful for you because of your thoughtfulness and kindness to those not so fortunate as yourselves.

Boys, we have only one way of showing our appreciation at this time. Let's stand and give three rousing cheers for the Lions club. Ray-ray-ray — Lions-Lions-Lions—Some Dinner. Thanks.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 25—(AP)—Albert J. Booth, Jr., for two years star quarterback of the Yale football team, was tonight elected captain of the 1931 squad.

The election was held at a banquet which officially concluded the 1930 season. Those players who took part in the Princeton and Harvard games voted.

The new captain, commonly known as "Albie" Booth, is a junior in the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale. His home is in New Haven and he took preparatory work at New Haven high school and at Milford preparatory school, where he starred in football. As a Yale freshman, he was captain of the football, baseball and basketball squads.

He is 22 years old, weighs 145 pounds, and is five feet, six inches tall.

From Booth's first appearance on the Yale varsity gridiron last year, his sensational ball carrying and his speed, in spite of his dimunitive size, have made him one of the outstanding players on the Yale squad in the public mind. The Princeton game was the only contest on last year's schedule in which he did not take part.

This year, he was continued as Coach Mal tSevens' strongest reserve back and has been used for at least a few minutes in every game. He has seldom been in the starting lineup.

His play in the Army game this year was short. Going in in the second quarter, he was injured in the first play in which he took part, and had to be carried off in a stretcher. He stopped an Army threat by intercepting a pass a few yards in front of the goal, and a second later was caught under an avalanche of Army players.

The Y was awarded today to 31 varsity players who, under the rules of the award, took part in the games against Princeton or Harvard.

They were: Theodore P. Avery, Three Forks, Mont.; D. Edward Austen, University, Va.; Herster Barres, Bethlehem Pa.; Alpheus C. Beane, Jr., Bronxville, N. Y.; Albert J. Booth, Jr., New Haven; Wills F. Bronkie, Natick, Mass.; Edgar M. Church, Philadelphia; Joseph P. Crowley, Milwaukee; Kempton Dunn, Philadelphia; Hans I. Flygare, Buffalo, N. Y.; Arthur S. Hall, Greenville, Me.; T. Truxton Hare, Jr., Radnor, Pa.; Thomas P. Hawley, Hackensack, N. J.; Charles R. Heim, Mt. Dora, Fla.; Walter B. Leverig Greenwich, Conn.; Frederick J. Linehan, Westfield, Mass.; Frederick W. Loeser, New Haven; Donald R. McLennan, Jr., Lake Forest, Ill.; John E. Muhlfeld, Scarsdale, N. Y.; Robert B. Parker, Greenwich, Conn.; Edward Rotan, Houston, Tex.; John A. Sargent, Bronxville, N. Y.; James R. Stewart, Cleveland; Patrick H. Sullivan, Erie, Pa.; A. Thomas Taylor, Milwaukee; Mark Tyson, Pelham, N. Y.; Francis T. Vincent, Torrington, Conn.; John M. Walker, Old Westbury, N. Y.; Alexander Wiener, Germantown, Pa.; John S. Wilbur, Cleveland, and Gilbert P. Wright, of Hempstead, N. Y.

Vincent, Snead Dunn, Stewart, and Loeser received letters for the third time.

William H. Abell, of Louisville, Ky., was appointed manager for 1931 and Marshall J. Dodge, Jr., of New York city, was awarded the position of assistant manager. Robert F. Wagner, of New York city, was awarded the letters AYA for second place in the competition for assistant manager, and Thomas P. Bagden, of Greenwich, took third place.

PUTNAM-KILLINGLY TILT IS TURKEY DAY FEATURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 25.—Killingly will clash with Putnam Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock at the Quinebaug stadium at Danielson in the final game of the season for both teams. Killingly has been hit somewhat by injuries and was forced to cancel two games but will be in full strength to play Putnam. Putnam is a slight favorite to win because of taking one game, but Killingly will try to erase the jinx by beating Putnam, which they haven't done in the past six years. Both bands of the two schools will be out for this game and a large gathering of rooters is expected to be on hand, because of the rivalry existing between the schools.

The last practice for Killingly was held this afternoon and a last minute shift was made. Alvord was shifted from the second team to the first at left end because of his fine defensive play and good offensive work in catching forward passes. Labell has also been shifted from the second team to the first and will play the fullback position. This has been done on account of his ability at broken field running and kicking.

The lineups:

PUTNAM STAR HALFBACK GOES TO HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 25.—Putnam's chances for a victory in its objective game with Killingly Thanksgiving morning suffered somewhat today when Myron Perry, star halfback and the best ball carrier on the team, was taken to Day Kimball hospital with an ailment which is puzzling attending physicians. Coach Noyes will have to find a capable substitute for him in the short time remaining.

SONS OF PETER VOLO BRING GOOD PRICE AT SALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Backed by the reputation of their famous sire, Peter Volo, ten prospective trotting champions were auctioned off at a near record price today as the thirty-sixth "Old Glory" sale got under way at the Squadron A armory.

With horse fanciers from every section of the United States and several foreign countries bidding for another Peter Volo, a future Peter the Great or a second Dan Patch, the ten yearlings brought an average of $1,700 each. All were a part of the consignment of the Walnut Hill farm of Donerail, Ky., which is owned by Dr. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

Thirty-eight yearlings consigned by the Walnut Hill farm today brought $36,850, an average of $970. Last year the entire consignment of 78 yearlings brought an average of $1,205. Failure of Eva Taudida, a daughter of Guy Axworthy, to bring more than $750 held the Walnut Hill average below $1,000. Roy Miller, superintendent of the Kentucky breeding farm, had expected the well bred filly to bring at least $2,500.

Fred Eagan, Lexington, Ky., trainer stepped into the sales arena to pay the top prices of the day, paying $4,500 for the Iosolo Volo and $3,000 for Raider, both sired by Peter Volo. He purchased them for an anonymous buyer, who is entering the harness racing game. The Lexington horseman also laid $2,500 on the table for Provoker, a black son of San Francisco, one of the famous sires of the Walnut Hill farm.

W. T. Smith of New York city also got a son of San Francisco but was forced to bid $3,000 before Willglow was knocked down to him. Ralph R. Keeler, of Auburn, N. Y., paid $2,100 for Shiela, a brown filly sired by Peter Volo, and Harry Brusie of Danbury, Conn., bid $1,650 for another get of the country's ranking sire. E. J. Kirby of Goshen N. Y., obtained another of the Peter Volo offerings when he bid $2,000 for the filly, Tartar.

YALE TO RUSH CONSTRUCTION WORK TO BENEFIT IDLE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 25—(AP)—The Yale Athletic association will start immediately, it was announced today, on a program of construction which will ultimately reach a total cost of $207,000 as a measure of relief to the local unemployment situation.

At the same time it was reported unofficially that Yale officials looked with disfavor on the proposal extended by the New Haven board of aldermen for a post-season football game for the benefit of the unemployed. With the football season officially terminated, there is some sentiment against reviving it.

The construction proposed is that already outlined, but planned for a period of three to six years. Under the plans announced today, this work will be pushed as rapidly as possible. Projects include the construction of five new playing fields, extensive work on existing fields, and improvement and extension of roadways. Work on the Ray Tompkins memorial will cost $40,000. A large part of the funds voted will be spent for labor rather than for materials, the association reports, and much of the work can be carried on during the winter.

TERRY AND CRONIN NAMED MOST VALUABLE PLAYERS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—(AP)—William H. Terry, first baseman of the New York Giants, and Joseph Cronin, shortstop of the Washington Senators, were the most valuable players in the National and American leagues, respectively, for the 1930 season, according to the vote of a committee of sports writers in all the major league cities in an annual poll by the Sporting News of St. Louis. Results of the poll were announced today.

Cronin received 52 points out of a possible 64, and Terry was accorded 47. Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, was a close second behind Terry in the National with 43 points, and Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs ranked third with 41. Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics, who won the Sporting News' award in 1929, was second to Cronin in the American league with 46 points. Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, finished third with 31 points.

PLAINFIELD-LONG ISLAND GAME CREATES INTEREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 25.—Friday's opening game which brings the Plainfield Pros against the Long Island Pros is attracting much interest already and is bound to be played before a capacity audience. The Pros are extremely hopeful of getting off on the right foot in this tilt and with their three new men in Marchinak, Crowley and Bissell, teaming with the veteran Plainfield performers of Dissinger, Williams and Conway, it would seem that they have foundations for the confidence.

The visitors have already opened their season in a successful manner. They are booked to meet the leading clubs in the country during the course of the winter and if Plainfield can win this one it will be a big boost for the Community Housers.

MAPLE LEAFS BEATEN FOR FIRST TIME THIS SEASON

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs suffered their first defeat of the season and the Philadelphia Quakers won their first game in an exciting National Hockey league match here tonight. Benny Leonard's team triumphed by a score of 2-1.

Not only was it the first defeat for the leaders of the Canadian division, but it marked the first time this season they had been scored on.

Tex White won the game in the waning moments of the middle session when he picked up a loose disc and golfed it into the cords. Miller's great work in the nets saved the locals in the last few minutes.

SHYMA FIVES PLAY AT WILLIMANTIC THIS EVENING

The two Shyma club teams will descend on Willimantic this evening to battle two of the strongest clubs the Thread City can offer.

The Shyma seniors will tackle the West Ends in the main game and in the preliminary the Shyma Jrs. will grapple with the St. Joseph's choir boys. The games will be played at the state armory and should attract a large crowd, including several local followers of the teams. The West Ends will play at Taftville in a return game on Christmas day.

THE OLD SPORTSMAN PASSES

It was with a sincere sense of loss to the fraternity that the sports editors of the state learned of the death on Tuesday of Richard Howell, for over 30 years identified with the Bridgeport Herald as sports writer and editor. "Dick" Howell, as he was familiarly known to the boys of the sports desks and to the sports circles of the state, was the dean of sports writers of Connecticut. His was a personality that radiated friendship which made him liked by young and old alike.

Besides having a keen insight into things pertaining to the sporting world Dick Howell was a student of human nature which was evident in his writings and his analysis of why things did turn out as expected. While he was conversant with all branches of sports his forte was boxing and his boxing comment was pretty nearly accurate. He numbered among his acquaintances the champions and the preliminary boys, the big league star and the boy of the sandlot, the college gridiron hero and the prep school fledgling. They all looked up to Dick Howell as one who gave them a square break and one who understood their hopes and the trials.

We first met Dick Howell some sixteen years ago. It was in old Pulaski hall when the boxing game was flourishing here. Just a cub, we thought we were budding young Runyan and Rices, as we breezed up to the ringside and sat down beside this man who was many years our senior. We introduced ourselves and fell to chatting about the bouts. In that one or two hours with Dick Howell we learned more about the handling of sports than we had in a year of trying to dope it out for ourselves. We marveled at the way Howell sat at the ringside, never making a single note, while we scribbled a pad full of notes. Yet when his story appeared in print he had not missed a point or a blow which was more than we could say for ourselves. In commenting that night on writing sports Howell said: "Boy, write your sports as you see them and don't let anybody tell you what to write. Of course you'll have plenty of criticism but that's what makes the game intercsting."

In his writings Dick Howell did just that thing following out what he preached. His column "The Old Sportsman" will be greatly missed especially by the older generations who could recall with Dick the old days of sport in Connecticut. Dick Howell was a square shooter and Connecticut has lost a fearless and outspoken writer.

ADVOCATES EARLIER PRACTICE FOR FOOTBALL TEAMS

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Reiterating a proposal made in an earlier issue, the Daily Princetonian, undergraduate publication, today advocated modification by Yale and Princeton of the present president's agreement by which football practice does not begin until Sept. 15.

"The president's agreement between Harvard, Yale and Princeton, effective in 1923, has failed of its objective, namely, decreasing the emphasis on football," today's editorial asserts.

"In view of this fact and of the many injuries which have resulted at Princeton in recent years because of the attempt to prepare a football squad for its first game with less than three weeks preparation," the editorial suggests either that practice be started a week earlier or that the season begin a week later.

SPECTACULAR SHOT WINS GAME FOR SENATORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—One dazzling shot by Art Gagne a moment before the end of the first period, gave the Ottawa Senators a 1 to 0 victory over the New York Americans and possession of second place in the Canadian division of the National league tonight.

Gagne got a long shot past Goalie Roy Worters on the final dash of the opening frame and fine defensive play by the Senators protected that slim lead for the remaining 40 minutes. Worters apparently had stopped the shot without difficulty but it slipped past him into the net.

Against Ottawa's superlative defense, the American attack looked weak and the result was a poor show for the fans.

PLAINFIELD BEATS FITCH, 7 TO 0, TO WIN LEAGUE B FOOTBALL TITLE

Plainfield high, coached by Bill Ringland, a Norwich boy and former star Academy athlete, Tuesday at Mercer field, New London, won the Class B championship of the Eastern Connecticut conference with a 7 to 0 decision over Robert Fitch high of Groton. This was a playoff of a tie that existed at the end of the regular schedule. In their regularly scheduled game Plainfield and Fitch had battled to a scoreless tie.

Score in Final Period

Plainfield, although outweighed, played great football and outclassed Fitch during the majority of the game. In the first quarter they lost what seemed to be a sure score when, after four first downs, there was a fumble on the Fitch 18 yard line and the Grotonites recovered.

Close Successful Season

Today's victory was the fifth of the season for Plainfield, who lost only two games during the course of the campaign. There was one tie, that with Fitch. The team scored 69 points against 30 for the opposition and all of the 30 points were scored in two games, meaning six shutout games for the opposition.

The record follows:

Plainfield 19, Killingly 0.
Plainfield 0, Fitch 0.
Plainfield 12, Putnam 0.
Plainfield 0, Bartlett 17.
Plainfield 0, Warwick 13.
Plainfield 19, Douglas 0.
Plainfield 12, East Greenwich 0.
Plainfield 7, Fitch 0.

The season opened with an easy victory over Killingly, followed by the no-score game with Fitch. Putnam, which usually defeats Plainfield, was the next victim and then Ringland's boys ran into their two defeats when Bartlett high of Webster and Warwick high were met. However, both of these schools are conceded to be way out of Plainfield's class, Warwick, in particular, is the only team to date to defeat Westerly high, A conference champs and it is interesting to note that in Plainfield's game with Warwick, Plainfield outscored the Rhode Islanders in first downs while Warwick, against Westerly, made 17 first downs.

The team swung back into its winning stride the following week against Douglas high and then stopped East Greenwich and Fitch.

Came From W. & M. College.

Ringland came to Plainfield from William and Mary college in Williamsburg, Va., where he was an all-round athlete. While at N. F. A. he starred in baseball and football, being ranked as one of the best athletes in the history of the school. Assisting Mr. Ringland in developing the championship team this year was Mr. Monaghan, a member of the Plainfield faculty. The two worked together in harmony all year and the result is the best team in its class in the section, and a representative of which the village can feel proud.

DARTMOUTH ARRIVES IN WEST FAVORED TO BEAT STAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25—(AP)—Dartmouth's football squad, 30 strong, shook the dust of a transcontinental journey from its feet today and plunged into hard practice for the intersectional game with Stanford's Cardinals Saturday at Stanford stadium.

The big Green team, headed by Coach Jack Cannell, arrived from Hanover and, after a tumultuous welcome from alumni, civic officials and Stanford representatives, went to quarters in San Mateo, a few miles down the peninsula. After today's turnout the practice sessions will be secret.

Coach Cannell permitted newspapermen and others to attend the workout, but after interviews had been given and pictures taken the gates were closed.

With one exception, the Dartmouth players were in good shape, considering a 3,000 mile trip. It was announced Stan Yudicky, star end, was definitely out of competition. His injured knee failed to respond to treatment. Arnie Frigar, halfback, also laid up with an injured knee, has improved sufficiently to get into the game.

Neither Coach Cannell nor the Dartmouth players would comment on the forthcoming contest, except to say they expected a hard game. Assistant Coach Hazeltine, who scouted Stanford Saturday in the game against California, apparently turned in a glowing report to his chief on the Cardinals' prowess. Shortly afterward, Coach Cannell announced none of the Dartmouth men would be permitted to read the newspapers.

Whereas the visitors were reluctant to discuss the possible outcome, Coach Glenn Warner of Stanford abandoned his usual reserve to say he expected Dartmouth to beat Stanford. He said his team would be out-weighed five pounds to the man on the line, which would be a considerable handicap, inasmuch as his forward wall was weak on offense.

BLACKHAWKS NOSE BRUINS OUT IN TORRID GAME

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The determined Chicago Blackhawks continued on their undefeated journey here tonight by squeezing the Boston Bruins out of a slam-bang overtime hockey contest by a 4-3 score.

Ty Arbour gave the visitors, who appeared to have the Bruins jinxed, the winning tally by slashing the puck through Goalie Tiny Thompson during a wild scrimmage directly in front of the Boston cage. Mush March had the first try and Arbour's score was made on the former's rebound.

Both teams scored a tally in each of the regular periods, Johnny Gottselig netting two pucks and Bill Adams getting the other. Clapper, Galbraith and Weiland scored for the Bruins, who played a much slower brand of hockey than their hard-fighting rivals. Taffy Abel, burly Chicago defense star, cut down many impressive Boston rushes and covered almost every inch of his team's territory. His hard charging, during the second period, earned him a major penalty but his trip on George Owen undoubtedly saved a score.

CITY FOOTBALL TITLE TO BE DECIDED THANKSGIVING

The undefeated football team of the Laurel Hill Athletic club clashes with the Norwich Town Wildcats for the football championship of the city. The game will be called at 10 o'clock sharp at the Academy campus. The Wildcats have six victories and one draw while the L. H. A. C. have seven victories, no draws or none lost. A large crowd is expected as the L. H. A. C. intend to make it eight straight. The L. H. A. C.'s all star line-up follows: C. J Wiese; lg, Ennis; lt, B. Fowler; le, Ross; rg, McMullan; rt, Lizzio; re, R. Marshall; qb, Geo. Geoppfert; fb, Burdick; lhb, Koziol; rhb, C. Taber.

A collection will be taken for Bill Brush, star halfback who had two bones broken in his foot in the game with the Trojans Sunday.

The Laurel Hill Athletic club was formed in December, 1929 to play 1st hockey and proved to be champions of eastern Connecticut and they intend that football shall also repeat.

The L. H. A. C. is captained by Erwin Burdick, managed by Bradley Fowler and coached by Nicholas Conaty.

SOCCER SCHEDULE FOR THIS WEEK ANNOUNCED BY ROSE

Secretary Joseph Rose, Jr., of the Eastern Conn. Soccer league has announced the schedule for this week. On Thursday, the New London Rangers will clash with Plainfield at Sayles field, Baltic. Sunday, the Rangers play Plainfield at Plainfield, Wauregan goes to Putnam while Jewett City remains idle.

Owing to the fact that the J. B Martin grounds are being torn up to make way for the state road the game between New London and Plainfield, which was to have been played at the Martin field, has been transferred to Baltic. The soccer fans of eastern Connecticut are sure to see a thrilling game when these two evenly matched clubs step on the field to square off matters. A large crowd is expected to witness what is shaping up to be a bitter struggle and what may possibly have a bearing on the league standing. It is expected that both managers will use their regular line-ups for this game. The New London team which defeated Phinam 3 to 2 came through without injury and are going to Baltic with the intent of defeating Plainfield.

ARMY CHEERY AS THEY PRACTICE IN SNOW AGAINST ROCKNE PLAYS

WEST POINT, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Winter, cold, cheerless and bristling with snow and sleet, swept down upon the Army citadel on the bluffs of the Hudson today but it failed to chill the spirits of eleven young huskies facing the unenviable task of halting Notre Dame on Soldier field in Chicago Saturday.

It was a day to add the final straw to the normal hardships of football. A cutting wind blew snow in the faces of the pass receivers, and stiffened their fingers, and the slippery under-footing sent them skidding and tumbling about the canvas-walled practice field. But for almost two hours, the longest period Army ever is able to sandwich in between drills and classes, the unbeaten squad scrimmaged against Notre Dame plays, fired passes all over the lot, and polished a kicking game.

Nowhere was there any indication that Knute Rockne's great eleven will have the cadet huskies beaten before Army trots on the field Saturday before one of the greatest crowds of the season. Major Ralph Sasse, ruddy-faced, cheery head coach, shivered in his baseball uniform and joked with the men as they went through their labors. The bulgy youngsters laughed and made play of the rough workout. Wendell "Apple Knocker" Bowman, chunky quarterback from Tennessee and the wit of the outfit, offered wagers for and against every forward pass anyone but himself threw. The squad seemed saturated with the idea Sasse had:

"That Notre Dame team may beat us. It's a great outfit. But we're going to have a lot of fun, anyway, and you never can tell about football."

Army, rated a five to one underdog in the west, looked nothing like that today despite the terrible weather conditions. Major Sasse and his corps of assistants have worked out something new in the way of the "Pop" Warner offense Army adopted with success this season. All of the injured, including Captain "Polly" Humber, a great guard, Carl Carlmark, end mate of Big Ed Messenger, Edward Suarez, giant tackle, and the peppy Bowman, have recovered. In addition Army seems certain to start a backfield that has been quietly working its way out in front of the more highly publicized "aces" who have failed to show any great punch in other big games.

Sasse probably will start Ed Carver or Bowman at quarter as he has in all important matches this season, but Cy Letzelter, Ken Fields and Ed Herb, the "sophomore" trio of ball luggers, are slated for bench seats. Letzelter recently was forced from the team by the revelation that he entered the military academy over age. His place has been taken by Ray Stecker, a powerful youth from Hazelton, Pa., who passed, plunged and kicked Army to victory over Illinois in the second half of their duel in the Yankee stadium. Tom Kilday, another big fellow from San Antonio, Texas, who scored the tying touchdown against Yale, will be in that backfield along with Henry Sebastian, a fleet youngster from Sherman, Teaxs. This quartet of ball toters appears to be the strongest Army has had to offer all fall.

Letzelter, the former Carnegie Tech star, is out in uniform every day doing what he can to help things along. He passed with the centers, worked with the scrubs in the scrimmiges, and took a beating along with the rest when the green jersies were slipped on, the helmets marked "Schwartz," "Brill," "Carideo," buckled down, and a taste of the Notre Dame offense was given the varsity when the big Army linemen hit those green imitations of Rockne's stars they were none too gentle about it.

The squad of 33 players will leave West Point for Chicago in a special train at 6 p. m. tomorrow. They are due in Chicago at noon Thursday and will make their headquarters at a country club on the outskirts of the city. Final workouts are scheduled here tomorrow and on Soldier field Friday afternoon.

BILLY TIRRELL ELECTED CAPTAIN OF WESLEYAN

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—William Tirrell, of Norwich, was tonight elected captain of the Wesleyan football squad for 1931. Tirrell has been a backfield star for the past two years. In addition, he is varsity catcher on the baseball squad.

DICK HOWELL, VETERAN SPORTS WRITER, IS DEAD

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 25—(AP)—One of the foremost men in Connecticut journalism, Richard Howell, editor of the Bridgeport Herald for 40 years, died today in Fairfield, following a brief illness.

Mr. Howell's death came as a surprise to many of his friends who saw him at active work less than a month ago.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning. Burial will be in Orchard street cemetery, Dover, N. J.

Until about five years ago, Mr Howell wrote practically all the political news for the Herald. During that time, he attended all political conventions and sessions of the state legislature.

His greatest prominence, however was gained in the sporting field. He was commonly known as the "Old Sportsman," and for many years conducted a column under that heading in which he reviewed all the great boxing bouts of previous years. Mr Howell was one of the most authoritative boxing writers in the east.

The "Old Sportsman" made a hobby of collecting data on boxing. He first became interested in the fistic sport when he met John L. Sullivan, former heavyweight champion of the world, while that fighter was living in this city. Mr. Howell formed a close friendship with Sullivan and he traveled to many parts of the country to see the great champion defend his title.

He was born in Hackettstown, N. J., May 10, 1870, son of John Wilson Howell and Catherine Wells Howell. The family originally came from Wales, but settled at an early date in Long Island.

When Mr. Howell was in his early boyhood the family moved to Flanders, near Dover, N. J. In Flanders, he received his elementary education and then continued his school work in Dover. He began writing when a schoolboy and his first newspaper job was a correspondent for the "Iron Era", a weekly paper published in Dover.

At the age of 17, he went to Newark, where he served on the staff of one of the papers there. After a few years in Newark, he decided to leave New Jersey and came to Waterbury, where he was employed on the Waterbury Republican in 1888. He had been with the Republican but a year when he attracted the attention of the late Fred R. Swift, who was organizing the Waterbury Herald. In 1890, Mr. Howell came to Bridgeport working on the Herald, operated by Swift. He was editor of the paper since that time. When Mr. Swift died, he left Mr. Howell a large interest in the paper. In November, 1929, the Bridgeport Herald was sold and re-organized but Mr. Howell remained editor until his death.

Surviving him, is his widow, Mrs. Emily Arline Lingard Howell, his third wife, whom he married July 20, 1928, in Redding, and his sister, Mrs. Fanny Elizabeth Bennett, of Dover, N. J.

ONLY FOUR LETTER MEN OUT FOR AGGIE BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 25.—Only four letter men were among the 28 varsity basketball aspirants who reported for Connecticut Aggie's initial practice which was conducted here yesterday afternoon and consequently Coach Sumner A. Dole is faced with the problem of molding a quintet which will be up to the standard of past Aggie court teams.

The loss by graduation of Ray Ryan, forward, and Leo Duffy, Rhoas Flydal and Marvin Osterling, stellar guards of last year's quintet, has left some holes which will be hard to fill. The four remaining letter men are Dan Chubbuck, center; Darrow and Glennon, forwards, and Bev Wilson, guard. The first three of these men are seniors and Wilson is a junior.

Much of the success of the season will depend upon Captain Chubbuck who has been outstanding in the pivot position for the past two years.

In spite of his diminutive stature Bill Darrow distinguished himself with a fine display of floorwork, and Rusty rose to spectacular heights in several crucial games during the 1929-30 season. Wilson, although a sophomore, saw much service and gave a good account of himself in defensive work.

Callahan and Martin, members of former Aggie quintets who did not play last year but have reported for the chalked court this fall, may be counted on to make strong bids for varsity berths.

The practice sessions of both today and yesterday consisted of work on fundamentals such as passing, dribbling, pivoting and shooting.

CHOON HELD IN $10,000 BONDS AS WITNESS IN BURDICK MURDER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 25—William Howard Choon (that is the way he told Judge Williams he spelled his last name) formerly of Ledyard and Charlestown, R. I., was before third district court at 10 a. m. Tuesday on complaint of Sgt. Ernest F. Stenhouse of the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police. While before the bench "John Doe" formal murder charges were read by the judge as prepared by Prosecutor John Ferguson. In these "John Doe" was charged with violent assault upon Charles Burdick, late of Charlestown with a revolver, powder, lead and bullets.

A second warrant read charged that between the dates of September 7th and November 4th, 1930 he operated an automobile in Carolina on the Alton road without a registration license from the Rhode Island state board. He pleaded guilty to the last complaint.

Prosecutor Ferguson at Judge Williams request recited the killing of Senator Burdick and asked, saying the state desired to hold Choon as a material witness. The return on the murder warrant was to be made before the grand jury on the third Monday in February, 1931 at the Kingston, R. I., court house. Judge Williams required bail in the sum of $10,000. Choon responded "I'll have to go to jail."

Judge Williams declared that the court will hold until a later date the complaint charging the operation of an automobile without registration. Choon was ordered committed to Washington county jail at Kingston, R. I., in default of bonds.

LONG ISLAND MISSIONER AT ST. JOHN'S R. C. CHURCH

The mission in progress at St. John's Catholic church, Uncasville, for the past two days has attracted large congregations of parishioners and persons outside of the parish to both morning and evening services. The mission is being conducted by Rev. Father Charles Gaskin, C. P. who comes to Montville from the monastery of the Order of Passionist Fathers at Jamaica, Long Island. This religious order devotes time and effort to preaching the passion, or suffering, of the Saviour. The missioners are trained "physicians of souls," and their sermons and instructions are all designed to direct attention to the teachings and example of the Redeemer, also to encourage the weak and erring to repentance and reform, while at the same time heartening those who are already devout and faithful in the practice of their religion. Rev. Father Charles has inspired young and old to new fervor during the few days he has labored in the town. While the three days of the mission will end this (Wednesday) evening, there will be an impressive service on Thanksgiving morning at 7:30, when members of Pequot Council, Knights of Columbus, will receive holy communion in a body, at a mass of requiem which the council has requested for departed members of that organization. At the same mass there will be general communion for all those making the mission. There have been many confessions and communions during Father Charles' visit here and they are the real test of the success of any Roman Catholic mission.

MRS. BESSIE LUDWIG DIES SUDDENLY AT N. Y. HOTEL

News was received in the village Monday evening of the sudden death of Mrs. Bessie Hancox Ludwig, at the Iriquois hotel, New York. Mrs. Ludwig was having luncheon with two friends when she was suddenly seized with a coughing spell. As it proved so severe, a doctor was called and gave her relief. Later in the afternoon she was again taken with a coughing spell and passed away at 5 o'clock. She had been in Washintgon D. C., had come to the New York hotel Nov. 15, and had planned to come to the Mohican hotel in New London Tuesday, and then to Mystic today (Wednesday.)

STOCK MARKET STRONG IN MORNING; REACTIONARY IN THE AFTERNOON

Fortified with a batch of reasonably favorable overnight news items, operators for the advance worked the market higher during the early hours of trading and were able to put a few issues to new highs for the November recovery. Reactionary tendencies set in during the afternoon and the average net decline for the day, was about a point and a half on a turnover of 2,152,930 shares.

Wheat was easy and corn weak. The irregularity of domestic bonds attracted less attention than did the strength of the German 5 1-2s, which made an extreme gain of 2 points. Other German issues were also stronger.

The stock market seemed largely in the hands of the professional floor traders who were satisfied with small, quick profits. The chain store and merchandising shares which had a rapid rise yesterday, lost about all of that advantage, thereby emphasizing the recent partiality toward short lived group rallies. Motion picture shares softened, presumably in sympathy with the supreme court decision holding that some of the producers had been violating the Sherman act in their methods of film distribution.

Steels enjoyed considerable buoyancy for a time, in response to a belief that the outlook for prices was showing improvement.

Commercial loans made by reporting federal reserve member banks increased $89,000,000, bringing the total gain in the last three weeks to $139,000,000. Nevertheless, the increased employment of funds did not halt the growth of banks' investments in bonds, which rose $37,000,000. Loans on collateral declined $66,000,000, apparently an indication that further liquidation of borrowings had been done in a week of rising stock prices.

Several special dividend actions suggested the approach of the Christmas season, although they had little effect on stock prices. Further reports of railroad incomes for October failed to indicate a change in trend, showing continued improvement over September, and losses of something more than 20 per cent in comparison with a year ago. Rail shares turned heavy with the remainder of the market in the late trading, but an upward movement in the railway equipment issues held fairly well.

U. S. Steel was prominent in the rally and fell only a quarter of a point short of 150, thereby making a new high for the movement. American Telephone at 193 1-8 and American Can, at 120 3-8, were other prominent shares to penetrate previous resistance points on the upside, but all three reacted rather rapidly from their tops.

The mail order and merchandising issues turned downward briskly when selling got the upper hand. Sears Roebuck, which had risen 3 points on Monday, lost more than 4 net today. Montgomery Ward, Hahn Department Stores, R. H. Macy, Kresge, Woolworth, and May Department Stores, yielded 1 to 2. In the amusement group Loew's displayed conspicuous heaviness, despite the extra dividend, and was off 3 1-2, while Fox, General Theatres, Warner Brothers, R. K. O. and Paramount, lost 1 to nearly 3.

Steel stocks closed well below their best prices, which represented advances of a couple of points on the average. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, and Vanadium were down slightly more than a point net. American Can, International Harvester, General Electric, General Motors, Union Carbide, Chrysler, National Biscuit, and Westinghouse closed with losses of about the same proportions. Allied Chemical exchanged a 4 point rise for a decline of 2. American Telephone, American and Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas and Electric Power and Light also closed heavy.

Wheat's recessions ranged from 3-4 to 1 1-2 cents. A lower Winnipeg market and bearish advices from Nebraska contributed to the tone in Chicago. Corn lost about a cent and a half on larger country offerings and a smaller consumption demand.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Strength of U. S. governments and the marked improvement in German obligations stood out in an irregular bond market today.

Liberty 3 1-2s advanced 1-8 of a point, and the first 4 1-4s, were 2-32nds higher, wide movements for these issues. The banks have been very active in purchasing governments, due to the low yield obtainable on time loans since rates have sagged further. The largest turnover was in Liberty 4th, 4 1-4s, at their peak price of the year.

The recent reactionary trend of German bonds was definitely reversed following the improved sentiment created by the 2 point rally of German International 5 1-2s. The Young loan again rose 2 points, but closed 1 1-2 net higher. Other issues of that country attracted buying interest. German 7s were more active and 1-4 higher. Berlin City 6s, Berlin City Electric 6 1-2s, German Central Agricultural Bank 6s, of 1938 and 1960, German Consolidated Agricultural 6 1-2s, Rima Steel 7s, Prussia Free State 6s, Harpen 6s, and Rhine Westphalian 6s, advanced 1 to 2 points. Australian obligations that had been under pressure staged a vigorous advance. The 5s of 1955 sold 3 points higher, and the 4 1-2s gained nearly 2.

Announcement that Danish Consolidated municipal loan 8s of which $10,000,000, are outstanding, would be redeemed at 107 1-2 had little effect on the price of the bond. On a few sales it gained 1-4 and closed at 108 1-4.

Domestic bonds failed to display a notable trend one way or the other. Public Utility issues were a little firmer, Federal Light and Traction 6s B, advanced 2 3-4 points. American Telephone 5 1-2s and the 5 per cent debentures, Brooklyn Edison 5s A, Columbia Gas and Electric 5s, Detroit Edison 6s, Kansas Gas and Electric 4 1-2s and Ohio Public Service 7s B, were considerably improved. An exception to the trend was the International Telephone debenture 5, which reacted 1 7-8.

While the main body of railroad bonds held within a narrow range, softness appeared in a score of issues. Among those depressed to new 1930 lows were Erie 5s of 1975, Kansas City Southern 5s, Susquehanna and Western 5s, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, St. Paul 4 1-2s C, Florida East Coast 5s and Morris and Essex 4 1-2s.

New offerings tomorrow are expected to include $2,000,000 4 1-2 per cent one year notes of the New York Water Service corporation.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—The curb market moved up to its recent resistance points today, but found itself unable to break through into new high ground for the recovery, and turned reactionary before the close.

After moving a fraction higher, Electric Bond and Share fell back to close at 48 1-2, off 1 3-4 points, net. American Super Power, Associated Gas A, and United Light A, sagged fractionally. Utilities Power and Light moved up a point to 12, and closed at 11 1-2, reflecting declaration of an initial extra of 2 1-2 cents, together with an extra of 15 cents on the Class A shares. Eastern States Power B, was a firm spot, gaining 2 1-2 points. St. Regis also gained a fraction.

Declaration of extra dividends by two subsidiary oil companies were regarded primarily as a transfer of cash to holding companies, and failed to have any notable effect upon oil shares. Texon ordered an extra dividend of $1. In the last quarter, an extra of $3, was disbursed. The stock sold down 1-2 point to 12. In a few transactions, Humble, a Standard of N. J., subsidiary, ordered an extra of 50 cents, but the stock sagged 3-4. Standard of Kentucky and Indiana closed about steady, although the former recorded a temporary gain of a point. Gulf lost a point, and Cities Service, 1-4.

In the industrials, Chesebrough Manufacturing gained 7 points, and Aluminum, Ltd., and Axton Fisher, 3 points, in a few transactions. Deere gained 1 1-2. General Theatres Equipment new stock, New York Steam new, and Newport company, each lost a point. Empire Steel established a new low at 3 1-8, off more than a point. Mercantile Stores declined 2 and Kobacher Stores, 5 to new lows in light trading.

In the investment trust group, Goldman Sachs had a burst of activity opening with a block of 4,000 shares, and moving up 2 points to 13 in busy trading. It later slipped back to 11 5-8. A small block of Continental Shares preferred B, a rarely traded issue for which the market is thin, sold at 57. The preceding sale, recorded some time ago, had been 17 1-2 points higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(AP)—Fading of buying power helped make grain values average lower today. Transient rallies ran against enlarged selling pressure in all the pits, and the day's bottom was reached just before the close.

Wheat price advances scored heretofore this week, appeared to have checked demand for the time being at least, especially in view of a late announcement of 7,873,000 bushels increase of the world's visible supply.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 5-8 at 1 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-8 at 7-8c off, oats unchanged to 1-3c down, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 2 to 7 points lower; spot quiet; middling 10.80.

APPROVAL OF CONDITIONS AT PRISON

Daniel M. Farrington, night captain of the guard at the institution; George H. Bradley, parole agent, and identification officer; and Kurt Juraschek, hall keeper.

Farrington, Bradley and Juraschek, mentioned either today or yesterday in the testimony of other witnesses, denied either partly or wholly specific statements concerning them made by Dr. Smith or Benton McIntyre, a discharged guard who testified yesterday when the committee began its inquiry.

The committee indicated today prisoners might be summoned at future hearings to testify before it. In the pardons' room where the sessions are being conducted, a report was current that Roger W. Watkins, former Hartford broker, who is serving a 15-year term for conspiracy, was to be called today before the committee. Watkins was not summoned, however, and following today's hearing Cummings would not say whether the committee planned to have him appear at some future session.

Testimony Of Chaplain

After they had described in detail their work in connection with the prison, Rev. Grady, who is pastor of Sacred Heart church of Wethersfield; Newell, Farrington and Bradley each was asked by Cummings if he had at any time witnessed the infliction of any unusual or harsh form of punishment at the prison. Each witness replied that he had not. These four witnesses were also asked by the chairman if they had any reasonable criticism of the management of the prison and replied they had none.

Newell told the committee that in his opinion the prison as a state institution was conducted in a "very able manner."

Cummings asked Father Grady: "Given the plant and the facilities as they are now, is the prison in your opinion, well administered?"

Father Grady replied: "Yes."

Sunday School Teacher Testifies

Newell, who described the religious training given by voluntary workers to the prisoners, said that he had never received a complaint from a prisoner concerning the treatment accorded inmates although prisoners had the opportunity to complain to him if they desired. He also told the committee that prison officials were always sympathetic and cordial with the voluntary Sunday school teachers, while Father Grady said that every opportunity was given Catholic prisoners to follow their faith.

Farrington denied the allegation made yesterday by McIntyre that there had been any undue delay in obtaining medical attention for a prisoner in the insane ward who had been seized with a fit and suffered a cut in the head when he fell. He also denied McIntyre's allegation that when the incident was reported to him, he had used profane language.

No Brutality

Asked by the chairman if he knew of any instances of harshness or brutality, Farrington replied that solitary confinement was the most severe form of punishment. He also testified that during the 15 years he was connected with the prison he had no recollection of men being shackled in their cells, although, he added, if this form of punishment was in use at the prison it would be resorted to during the day time. Farrington previously had testified that he had worked nights during his 15 years at the institution.

Vermin Kept Under Control

Juraschek denied an allegation made yesterday by McIntyre that the prison was over-run with vermin. He told the board that the institution like similar institutions throughout the country, did have some vermin, but continual vigil by officials, he said, kept them under control at the Wethersfield prison.

Parole System Defended

Bradley defended the parole system used at the prison and told the committee that about 85 per cent of the men made good during their term of parole and most of these continued to make good after that.

After testifying that no paroled prisoner was released until a job was secured for him, Bradley was asked by Cummings if the task of finding these jobs would not be facilitated if the work required of prisoners in the institution were more diversified. The parole agent replied that it would.

Bradley denied a statement concerning him made by Dr. Smith during the latter's testimony. Dr. Smith had told the board that Bradley had advised him to confine his activities to his duties as prison chaplain. The parole officer testified that his only advice to the former chaplain had been to inform him that a monthly report was required of him by the prison directors.

Dr. Smith also testified in the morning that a prisoner had been placed in solitary confinement after he had been wounded by a guard while trying to escape. The prisoner was later removed to the hospital and died. Bradley told the board that the prisoner's solitary confinement was not an intentional act of brutality but that a physician believed at first that the wound was only a superficial one and not dangerous. A later diagnosis, Bradley said, showed the bullet had penetrated the prisoner's abdomen.

Suggestions By Dr. Smith

Dr. Smith, during his testimony, presented what he described as a "constructive" program for the prison and told the committee that he appeared before it not in the spirit of criticism. He recommended to the committee the abolition of solitary confinement cells in the basement which he described as "black holes." He also recommended that definite steps be taken to stop the constant changes, which he said, were made in the inside prison staff; the appointment of an educational director; an adequate recreational program for prisoners; a training school and higher wages for guards; and more humane treatment for condemned men. He also told the board that an educator, a clergyman, a psychologist and a psychiatrist should be appointed to the prison board of directors in addition to business men.

Dr. Smith criticized Warden Charles S. Reed for dismissing Deputy Warden George Patterson.

Cummings said that among the witnesses who will testify at tomorrow's session, scheduled for 10 a. m., will be William G. Baxter, secretary of the Connecticut State Prison association; Dr. Foster E. Priddy, prison physician; Dr. Harold F. Bancroft, psychiatrist, who is consulting physician at the prison; and Meyer Greenberg, Hartford insurance man and prison welfare work.

LEBANON

There was a good attendance at the service at the First Congregational church Sunday morning; sermon subject "Christianity, News Not Advice." Special music was given by the choir. There was also a service of baptism at which the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Thorpe, Alice Elizabeth was baptized. The Junior Endeavor meeting was held at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and was led by George Hoxie Jr., on Sunday.

Thirty-eight members from the First Congregational church were in attendance at the annual Thanksgiving service at Liberty Hill.

The Sunday school has a good start for the year, the average attendance being twenty-six. Mrs. Laura Tucker is kindergarten teacher, Miss Scoffield of the Junior girls, Francis Spellacy the Junior boys, Mr. Vey the adult class, substitute teachers, Mrs. Vey and Miss Chase.

The officers and various committees of the C. E. society elected for the coming year are: President, Francis Spellacy; vice president, Chauncey Williams; secretary, Mrs. W. Vey; treasurer, Wallace Blakeslee; organist, Mrs. D. W. Pitcher; chairman of lookout committee, Paul Spellacy; chairman of prayer meeting committee, Rev. W. Vey; chairman of social committee, Mrs. John Manning; chairman of Missionary committee, Mrs. Spellacy; chairman of music committee, Mrs. D. W. Pitcher; chairman of flower and calling committee, Mrs. O. L. Pultz. These officers will be installed by Harold L. Muttart, of Norwich, Sunday evening November 30th.

Mrs. Tucker, Miss Scoffield, Mrs. H W. Sweet and Mrs. Vey attended the supper at the Baptist church in Norwich when Dr. Jefferson was guest speaker and afterward attended the service at the United church.

A choir rehearsal was held at the parsonage Friday evening when special music was prepared for Sunday.

The missionary society met at the parsonage Thursday afternoon. The next meeting will be the thank offering meeting, held at the home of Mrs. F. N. Taylor Dec. 4th.

A meeting is to be held in the high school auditorium Friday afternoon at 2:30 for the purpose of organizing a local Red Cross chapter.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Estella Lyman of Ozone Park, L. I., has been a guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Tucker and upon leaving Columbia will go to Willimantic for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. James Grimm of Bridgeport spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Collins on Chestnut Hill. Mr. Grimm returned to Bridgeport Sunday night, Mrs. Grimm remaining for a visit with her parents.

Miss Doris Pinckney and a friend, Irving Anderson from New Haven, were callers Sunday at the home of Miss Pinckney's aunt, Mrs. Howard Rice.

The Religious play "And he came to his father" given in Columbia church Sunday evening by local people, was repeated by them at the Westchester church Sunday evening before a large audience. The Columbia pastor, Rev. A. W. Mellinger is in charge of the production.

Joseph Little of Detroit, was in town recently calling on relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Squiers of Hartford spent the week end with Mr. Squiers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Squiers.

Traffic through Columbia Saturday and Sunday was of great volume, as this town is on the direct route between Harvard and the Yale bowl Some state that more cars passed through than they ever saw before, and it was a difficult task to find a space to cross at the corner, the cars coming in a steady stream. Some one counted 50 cars in four minutes and that ratio kept up for hours. It would seem from the beautiful cars that went through that there are still a few not badly affected by the existing hard times!

Miss Bertha Buell who has been a patient at the Hartford hospital for the past five weeks, is improving.

The mild weather prevailing recently has been very acceptable to all, and the rainfall Monday night is also most acceptable, with wishes for more. During a recent warm spell, several people in the West street section of the town reported that they heard frogs peeping for several nights, evidently on the mistaken supposition that spring had arrived.

A British physician estimates that 75 per cent. of street noises could be eliminated.

STATE ATTORNEY BROWN TO SPEA

structural steel encased in concrete, having a 28-foot clear roadway between curbs with a six-foot sidewalk on the north side. It is on a one per cent grade rising easterly. The encasing concrete is of ornamental design; the upper part of the main girders which form the rail being built with pilasters at each floor beam connection, between which are regularly spaced inset panels having circular heads. The lower part of the main girders on the exterior are spaced off into deep rectangular inset panels, moulded horizontally with a four-inch core. The whole is surmounted by a wide, ridged cap. Concrete posts slightly larger and higher than the rail, are set at the abutments and each pier. The whole design gives an appearance of substantiality and strength, without being heavy. The deck is of reinforced concrete, supported on large steel floor beams. These beams, which are 33 inches in height and weigh over 200 pounds per lineal foot, are rolled in one piece, and are encased in concrete. The substructure of the Quinebaug river bridge is of mass concrete design, two of the piers being founded on bedrock, while the remaining piers and the two abutments are founded on piles driven to rock. Oddly enough, bedrock was found to be nearest the surface almost in the center of the river, falling away toward either bank. Piles were used where the depth of bedrock was such as to make their use more economical in cost. Over 200 were driven to a depth of about 25 feet below low water, under the west abutment alone.

Viaduct 675 Feet Long

The viaduct, which begins about 200 feet from the east end of the Quinebaug river bridge, is 675 feet in length, at its highest point 45 feet above the bed of the Pachaug river, and has 18 feet clear head room over the railroad tracks. It has 17 spans, all except that over the railroad being of reinforced concrete, T-beam construction, having a uniform span length of 41 feet.

Railroad Span 60 Feet

The railroad span is similar construction to the Quinebaug river bridge, of structural steel, encased in concrete, with a span length of 60 feet. The railroad span and those adjacent to it are on a very sharp skew. The layout provides for three future tracks in addition to the present single track. The viaduct also provides a 28-foot clear roadway and six-foot sidewalk on the north side. It is built on a five and one-half per cent grade, rising from its west end, the grade decreasing in a vertical curve as it approaches the railroad span, where it is level; thence the grade descends in another vertical curve and a slight grade to the east abutment, and meets the original grade of Main street, just east of Slater avenue.

The viaduct deck is carried on reinforced concrete, three-column bents which in turn are founded on pedestal piers rising out of the ground at varying heights from five feet on the west end to, in some cases, 14 feet at the Pachaug river. These pedestal piers are constructed with battered faces, have the tops finished with a coping, and have ends in the form of a half octagon. The roadway of the viaduct is carried on five reinforced concrete T-beams, while the sidewalk is carried on concrete brackets from the north beam. The concrete railings on either side are somewhat similar in design to those on the Quinebaug bridge, but much lighter in construction and appearance. Rectangular posts with moulded inset panels occur at each bent and smaller but similar sub-posts are placed midway of each span. Between posts runs a railing with alternate circular headed posts, and 6x6-inch square posts. The railing cap and base is of two members, the cap finishes with a ridge as on the Quinebaug bridge.

Conduits For Electric Wiring

The viaduct is provided with electric conduits and lamp posts and fixtures. The posts, which are of concrete, stand about eight feet above the top of the railing. They are of slim, tapering design with flaring base. The fixtures are octagonal, lantern style, of all bronze weathered finish.

The town of Griswold, in cooperation with the borough of Jewett City, will finance all cost incident to the lighting of the viaduct. The substructure of the viaduct differs from the Quinebaug river bridge in that most of the footings are landed on a thick stratum of gravel which is overlaid by alluvial soil at a depth of from eight to 12 feet below the original ground surface. On either side of the railroad and adjacent to the Pachaug river, piles were again used because here the gravel stratum was found to be quite thin and underlaid by fine yellow sand, making danger of erosion by high waters imminent. Pile lengths at this location varied from 20 to 38 feet.

Connecting Road to So. Main St.

A connecting road has been built from a point in the short fill between the west end of the viaduct and the east end of the Quinebaug bridge to South Main street, to serve traffic originating in the area between the railroad and the river. This new street is of waterbound macadam, 20 feet wide, and having a curb and six-foot sidewalks on either side. The roadway surface on the two structures and their approaches is of concrete, 28 feet minimum width.

Contract Awarded In 1929

Core borings were begun early in the fall of 1929, and the contract was awarded soon after. The work has been done in its entirety by the M. A. Gammino Construction Co., of Providence, R. I., under the supervision of the Connecticut highway department, John A. Macdonald, highway commissioner, of Hartford, John Smith, division engineer, of Norwich, and Lucian H. Beebe, resident engineer. Charles DeBiasi was superintendent of construction for the contractor. Approximately 80 carloads of cement were used, 15,000 cubic yards of crushed trap rock, 8,000 cubic yards of sand, nearly 500 tons of structural steel and 300 tons of steel reinforcing bars. The fill furnished for the approaches was over 30,000 cubic yards. The total linear feet of native timber piles is about 15,000.

Water and Weather Favorable

During the winter of 1929-30, with few exceptions, the weather was favorable and during the months of river work on the piers and abutments the Quinebaug ran at lower levels than for many years. The accustomed spring floods were not in evidence. Property and real estate damages were awarded the Fisk Rubber Co., the Barry estate, Wallace H. Payne, Mrs. Nellie Leonard, John Sharkey in Griswold, and E. F. Burleson, William M. McNicol and Frank Johnson in Lisbon.

NEW LONDON BUDGET HEARING NOT DISTURBED BY TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 25.—The city council held a three-hour session tonight at the hearing on the budget. About 100 were present. The anticipated further reduction in the budget did not materialize. It had been hinted that the Taxpayers' league would advocate a ten per cent reduction in salaries at the city hall, but the league didn't peep. The principal discussion was over the appropriation for the public library of New London and the playgrounds and the cutting off of an appropriation for a health clinic.

When the appropriation for Christmas lighting was considered, Mrs. Emily Speirs suggested that the Connecticut Power Co. donate the lights to the city and it was reported that Newport had taken a similar course. Under the appropriation for library, which it is proposed to reduce one-half to make it $2,000, Judge Alfred Coit and Trustee Chapman and Fred Edgarton and Valentine Chappell appealed to the council not to cut this appropriation. They said it was part of the school system of New London, that it was widely used and that the reduction of the appropriation would be such a hardship that the library would have to curtail its usefulness.

Samuel Prentice, president of the Taxpayers' league, asked Mr. Coit how the Library association had come to purchase the Spalding property. Judge Coit told him that it was to protect light and air interests on the east side of the building. The Spalding property was to be sold for $40,000 and the library trustees took the matter under consideration and after consultation, it was decided to buy it.

He said the Spalding property returned nothing to the library, but that the library would willingly give it up, if it could have 15 feet on each side of the building for ventilation and light. The library had asked the city for assistance in taking care of the property, which would not be necessary if it could be rented for sufficient money to pay the taxes on it, being owned by the library there is no tax on it now.

Mrs. Speirs said that in view of the receipts of the police court, the city should have a new police station as the present structure was not a fit place for women to go. The council, in the tentative budget, makes no appropriation for the health clinic. Dr. Joseph Ganey said this was a serious mistake and pointed out how essential it was in the care of venereal diseases. He said he had patients in two young girls, who had contracted the disease, one from a drinking glass. He advocated strongly the restoration of the appropriation in the budget.

The abolition of the appropriation for playgrounds was strongly resisted. Rev. C. E. Spaulding, Rev. Dr. J. B. Lee and Rev. J. J. Allen all protested against the abolition of an appropriation for the playgrounds. Rev. Mr. Allen read a letter from the churches, protesting. They pointed out how essential it was for the health and morals of the children. The council gave no intimation as to what action the members would take, but City Manager Holt announced that the appropriations total $85,000 less than last year and this is the lowest budget since 1907.

Edwin Cruise declared that the citizens should uphold the action of the council in reducing the budget. He said little building was being done now and would not be done, with taxes as high as they were. There were other speakers, chiefly women, in favor of the retention of the playground appropriation, all speaking with much earnestness.

A laborer who has been arrested many times on a charge of intoxication, was charged with the same offense today and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

MARIO AND ANN RESTOVI ARE TAKEN TO PROVIDENVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 24.—Mario Restovi alias Marty Russell and his wife, Anna, of 8 Cross street, arrested several days ago by Providence federal officers charged with violation of the Mann act, were presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran at 11 o'clock this morning. They waived contesting the charge and were taken to Providence where they will be tried before the federal court within a few days. The indictment issued in Providence, charges that Restivo and his wife have long been engaged in transporting young women from Rhode Island to New London for purposes of immorality, for it is claimed that the women were harbored by the Russells at their Cross street home. Two men and two women, the former being alleged to be members of a white slave ring and the latter with having been inmates of the Russell home, are also under arrest in Providence on the same charge. One of the women, who claims to have been brought to New London by the Russells, it is claimed, has informed that during a stay of eight days at the New London house, her earnings were $212 and of this amount she was compelled to pay the Russells $106. Restivo and the other men, it is believed, were directly or indirectly responsible for the murder of Tony Baldi, formerly of Shaw street, this city, who was "put on the spot" in Providence last summer when a shower of gunmen's bullets killed the man. It is further claimed that Restivo and the other arrested men were members of a white slave ring and that Baldi's slaying was the result of jealousy of the members of the two factions. However, the crime of slaying Baldi could not be fastened upon any of the suspected men.

Marriage intentions have been filed at the office of the city clerk, as follows: Joseph D. Lindsay, musician, of Hartford, and Genevieve B. Lucia, clerk, of South Glastonbury; Cornelius P. Connover, 33 Belden street.

HELD SINCE FEBRUARY, GANDER IS RELEASED

The fishing boat Gander, companion boat of the Goose, both of which have long been suspected of engaging in the rum traffic, and which had been held at the U. S. customs wharf here several months, was released today following an order of the federal court at New Haven, that tribunal ruling that there was not sufficient evidence at hand to warrant holding the boat as a rum-runner. Arthur Rowland, master of the Gander and said to reside in Bridgeport, came to this city and took charge of the Gander, which was towed out of the harbor by the speed boat Ariel. The Gander was brought into port last February when Rowland was informed that the coast guard sought him. Since then she has been tied up at the wharf. It was claimed by the coast guard that the Gander ran a hail of machine gun fire in Long Island sound and escaped, but when the case was tried in the federal court there was not evidence to substantiate the allegation.

Showed No Lights

Coast guard authorities last night ordered the master of the fishing boat Sylvia to report either at the customs house here or the state pier for operating the boat without displaying lights. The Sylvia, whose home port has not been determined, has long been considered a contact boat and is believed to be a sister boat of the launch Helen, which grounded on Watch Hill recently. Last night the patrol boat Cook detected the Sylvia off Montauk Point without lights.

AUCTIONEER'S LICENSE REMAINS SUSPENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 25.—A hearing was conducted at the state police barracks, Groton, this afternoon by State Police Inspector Stiles on the petition of Joseph Gordon, Providence auctioneer, that his license, suspended several days ago by Superintendent of State Police Robert Hurley, be returned. Gordon was represented by counsel and at the conclusion of testimony Inspector Stiles ruled that the license should remained suspended until such time as the case of John Goldsmith, also of Providence, an assistant of Gordon, is concluded in the court of common pleas. The revocation of Gordon's license was the result of Goldsmith having been convicted in the police court of conducting an auction sale without a license and to selling merchandise which was misrepresented. Goldsmith was fined $200 and costs on each count and filed notice of an appeal. He furnished a surety on his bond of $700. Gordon is conducting a sale at the jewelry store of Sol Ockooneff, who intends to retire from business. Goldsmith as assistant, relieved Gordon of the duties of auctioneer from time to time and until he was prosecuted in court, during his acts as auctioneer and as assistant to Gordon, sold jewelry on numerous occasions and on one day when Gordon was not in the city, although Goldsmith had never made application for a license from the city, as auctioneer, Goldsmith sold articles, of which he misrepresented the value. State Police Officers Clarence Hoxie and Eric Swanson visited the store while Goldsmith was conducting the sale. Hoxie purchased crystals, which Goldsmith represented as being "genuine diamond cut crystals." The purchase price was but $2.50 and it was because of this specific sale, together with the fact that Goldsmith had not been granted a license that his conviction on two charges was established, when he was arrested and prosecuted in court.

Stole From Parked Cars

Adams was given a sentence of 30 days in jail but execution of the sentence was suspended. The minors were put on probation. All of the youths were arrested because of their having stolen articles from parked automobiles near a Moodus dance hall. All the loot has been recovered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Radio To Be Given Away.

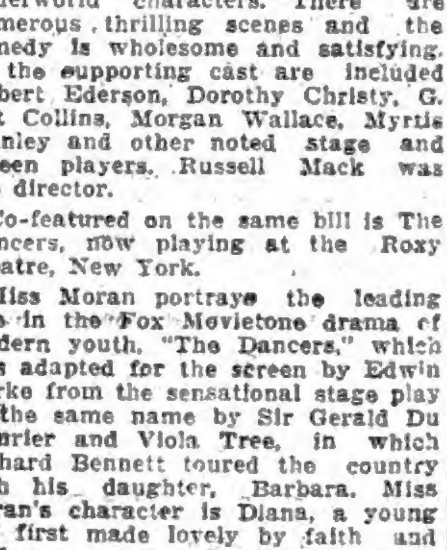
Statistics have proved that the radio, thought to be the greatest donation of science for the good of humanity, has, to a great extent, failed in its mission since its introduction into hospitals and certain charitable institutions, where it might accomplish the most good, has been limited.

In a concerted attempt to alleviate this problem through a national "Brunswick Week," which will be celebrated throughout the country from Nov. 23 to 29, hundreds of charitable institutions will be the recipient of gifts of Brunswick radio sets given by the citizens of each community.

The question of which charitable institution in Norwich will receive the radio, will be decided by those attending the Palace or Broadway during Thanksgiving week. Everyone buying a ticket of admission will be given a ballot entitling him to vote for his favorite charity. The one receiving the most votes at the conclusion of the week, will be given a Model 15 Brunswick radio.

Broadway Theatre.

"The Cat Creeps," famous mystery thriller, which opens today at Warner Bros. Broadway theatre, for an engagement of three days is taken from that famous stage play "The Cat and the Canary."



HELEN TWELVETREES and LAWRENCE GRANT in "The CAT CREEPS"

The entire action of "The Cat Creeps" takes place during a veritable night of terror in a great mansion which has not been occupied for twenty years, and where a party of men and women have gathered for the reading of a will. A chain of terrifying events culminates in the mysterious murder of one of the party, and the entire household is reduced to a state of fearful dread. The cast includes Helen Twelvetrees, Raymond Hackett, Neil Hamilton, Ilyan Tashman and Jean Hersholt. "The Cat Creeps," is recommended as the greatest mystery story to reach the talking screen. Don't fail to see "The Cat Creeps."

Palace Theatre

Not only does Miriam Seeger, stage and screen actress, possess a delightful singing voice which won her success in musical comedies both in New York and London but she has a charming well modulated speaking voice as well.

Besides those named, Robert Armstrong, James Gleason and Margaret Livingston are featured members of the "Big Money" cast. Quilan is a Wall street messenger boy with a fondness for throwing dice and in due course he becomes the associate of underworld characters. There are numerous thrilling scenes and the comedy is wholesome and satisfying. In the supporting cast are included Robert Ederson, Dorothy Christy, G. Pat Collins, Morgan Wallace, Myrtle Crinley and other noted stage and screen players. Russell Mack was the director.

Miss Moran portrays the leading role in the Fox Movietone drama of modern youth, "The Dancers," which was adapted for the screen by Edwin Burke from the sensational stage play of the same name by Sir Gerald Du Maurier and Viola Tree, in which Richard Bennett toured the country with his daughter, Barbara. Miss Moran's character is Diana, a young girl first made lovely by faith and tender romance and then tempted with horrible doubts and disillusionments brought about by a life of gayety and jazz.

SORE THROAT

To increase the stimulative effect redden the skin over the throat and upper chest with hot wet towels before applying Vicks.

Every few hours, place a little Vicks on the tongue and let it trickle slowly down the throat as it melts.

When there is much irritation or coughing, stronger vapor action will be helpful. Melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in boiling water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes.

At bedtime, rub Vicks vigorously over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Relief is two-fold: by stimulation through the skin, Vicks draws out the soreness, like a plaster; at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body-heat, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Michael Coscoran

Tuesday morning at 8:15 o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Michael Coscoran was held from her late residence 33 Prospect street which was followed by a solemn mass of requiem at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. The celebrant was Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor, and he was assisted by Rev. Donat Jette as deacon and Rev. H. Belec as sub-deacon. The musical program of the mass was under the direction of Mrs Michael J. Farrell, the church organist. De Profundis was sung at the offertory and as a waiting hymn Mrs. Farrell rendered Our Lady Della Strada. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in a family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery and the bearers were Nicholas Spellman, James Purdon, George Dolan, George Neibert, Edward Walsh and Harold Desmond. The services were largely attended with mourners present from New London, Hartford, Willimantic and other places. The attendance included a delegation from the state highway department. The floral offerings were both numerous and beautiful. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Cummings and Ring.

Thomas Ibbison

The funeral services of Thomas Ibbison were conducted at his late home Tuesday afternoon at 41 Whittington avenue at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. E. J. Norris, pastor of the St. Andrew's Episcopal church officiating. During the service Mrs. John T. Evans rendered "Lead Kindly Light" and My Faith Looks Up to Thee. Burial took place in the family plot in the Hamilton avenue cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Norris conducted the committal service. The bearers, members of the Manchester Unity Hugh Osgood lodge, were Charles Evans, Robert McNeeley, James Johnson, Sterling Nelson, Hugh Finlayson and Charles Erwin, Jr. The services were largely attended. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Children Help Needy

As has been the custom of many years the children of the Greeneville grammar school on Tuesday brought vegetables to help fill the barrels which are distributed on Thanksgiving day to the poor people of the city under the direction of the United Workers. Several barrels were filled by the children and were taken to the headquarters in the city. By this means many a poor family in the vicinity would be without the necessities to provide a Thanksgiving dinner.

LAUREL HILL COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

MRS. E. WALTER PHILLIPS

E. WALTER PHILLIPS

Married 50 years ago at the home of the bride in the town of Ledyard, Mr. and Mrs. E. Walter Phillips celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday at their home, 422 Laurel Hill avenue, with reception hours for the afternoon and evening during which many of their friends called to offer congratulations and good wishes.

Plans for the observance of the anniversary were carried out as a surprise by their five children, all of whom were present, with grandchildren and great grandchildren, making a most enjoyable family reunion. The house was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of yellow and one of the gifts was a mammoth basket of yellow chrysanthemums from the Woman's league of the Central Baptist church and the church. There was also a beautiful bouquet for Mrs. Phillips from the circle to which she belongs in the church. Numerous gifts in gold were received. Buffet lunch was served during the reception hours.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are natives of Ledyard, the bride of 50 years ago being Mary E. Chapman, daughter of John C. and Esther Watrous Chapman, and Mr. Phillips is the son of Josiah F. and Abiah Chapman Phillips. The wedding day half a century ago was on Thanksgiving day that year and about 75 attended the wedding at the home of the bride where the officiating clergyman was Rev. F. Dewhurst, then pastor of the Old Mystic Baptist church.

For the first few years after their marriage, their home was in Ledyard and for a short time in the Candlewood hill section of Groton, but in 1887 Mr. and Mrs. Phillips came to Norwich and have made their home here ever since, residing in the Laurel Hill section. For 28 years their home was at the corner of Laurel Hill avenue and Sunnyside avenue, but for the last twelve years they have resided in their present home.

At the age of 17 Mr. Phillips learned the stone cutters' trade, following this for a number of years. When stone for the Greeneville dam was taken out at a quarry at Allyn's Point 49 years ago, Mr. Phillips cut the first stone for the dam and has also been employed on many large pieces of stone work in this vicinity, one of them being the Willimantic thread mill.

Upon coming to Norwich he took up carpentering and building, developing different tracts about the city, one of which was on a tract of about four and a half acres which he bought in the Sunnyside avenue section of Laurel Hill, and where he built a number of houses as well as building many houses for himself and others in various parts of the city.

Mr. Phillips joined the Quaker church in Ledyard and has attended the Central Baptist church here. Mrs. Phillips belongs to Comfort Circle, King's Daughters, and is also a member of the Central Baptist church where she has been active in Sunday school work and with the women's organizations.

Their five children, all residing in this city, are John A., Roy C., Edna M., Earl W. Phillips and Mrs. Louis B. Allen. They have six grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Mrs. Phillips has a sister, Mrs. Joseph S. Crouch, in California. Mr. Phillips has a brother, Arthur B. Phillips, in Missouri, and a sister, Mrs. Palmer Whipple, in Groton.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN $10,000 SUIT

A verdict for the defendant was returned Tuesday afternoon by the jury in the superior court at New London in the $10,000 suit brought against Frederick D. Lewis, administrator of Louis Sherry, Inc., of New York by the estate of the late John W. Lewis of Stonington.

The jury was out from 2:15 to 3:45, Judge Christopher L. Avery having completed his charge at 1:15 and then ordered a recess until 2:15. In the morning session of court the attorneys made their arguments before the jury, H. W. Rathbun for the plaintiff and Arthur T. Keefe for the defendant. Trial of the suit was started last week.

The suit arose from an accident Aug. 17, 1929, on the Stonington to New London highway about 200 feet west of the Buddington road in Poquonoc road in Groton. At that time a heavy truck owned by the defendant and operated by John Carasi, and an automobile operated by the late John W. Lewis collided and Lewis received injuries which resulted in his death the next day.

The machine was turning into Franklin street from Willow street when the wishbone broke and the auto mounted the sidewalk.

Miss Toomey received a cut on the scalp and abrasions on the knees. She was attended by Dr. John W. Callahan. Miss Toomey had just left the J. B. Martin plant where she is employed.

BRINGS $10,000 SUIT FOR BRENNAN DEATH

Damages of $10,000 are asked for in a suit brought in the superior court against the Groton and Stonington Traction company for the death of John J. Brennan late of Hopkinton, R. I.

Brennan received fatal injuries when his automobile which he was driving on May 15, 1930 was in collision with one of the traction company busses, which was driven by Christopher Sylvia. The collision occurred between Westerly and Stonington on the Boston Post road near the residence of Harry Mitchell in the town of Stonington. The suit is brought by Minnie R. Barber of Hopkinton, administratrix of the Brennan estate, and was filed here Tuesday at the office of John H. Walker, clerk of the court.

WILL PROVIDE THANKSGIVING DINNERS FOR 230 FAMILIES

Through the efforts of the family welfare department of the United Workers 230 needy families in the city will be provided with Thanksgiving dinners on Thursday. The members of the department started their work on Friday when barrels were placed in the schools of the town to be filled with the contributions of food from those more fortunate. When the collection of the barrels was made on Tuesday there were 64 barrels brimming full with all that goes to make up a real old New England Thanksgiving dinner.

A corps of workers of the welfare committee spent the entire day Tuesday sorting the food that had been sent in by the school children. After the sorting the baskets which will go to the needy families were packed. Each basket will include potatoes, onions, carrots, apples, turnips, beets, a half pound each of coffee and tea, and 2 lbs of sugar, a roast pork and other good things. These baskets will be distributed to the families in the city this (Wednesday) morning by members of the motor squad under the direction of Mrs. Robert E. Johnson.

The work of placing the barrels in the schools, their collection and the packing of the baskets was under the direction of Miss Julia Corcoran, supervisor of the welfare department. Through the generosity of the merchants near the schools the barrels were donated and placed in the schools. The collection of the barrels was made by C. E. Carpenter, Glen Woolen Mills, Ponemah Co., American Thermos Bottle Co., C. D. Joslyn, Bromley and Son and Charles W. Burton. The welfare committee is indebted to the members of the Third Baptist church in Greeneville for generous contributions. Many individuals gave food and money to aid in the work of supplying Thanksgiving cheer to Norwich's needy families.

SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING IN N.Y. MARKED BY GENEROSITY

More That 30 000 Persons Will Today Sit Down to Turkey and Chicken Dinners Provided by Their More Prosperous Fellow Citizens—In Addition 30,000 Baskets Will Provide Holiday Dinners For Children and Parents in Their Homes—This Will Be Apart From the Every Day Measures of Relief That Have Been Organized Within the Last Four Weeks

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—In the spirit in which the day was founded more than 300 years ago by the struggling little colony of Pilgrims to whom almost any year was likely to bring "hard times," Thanksgiving day will be celebrated in New York tomorrow.

More than 30,000 persons, the majority of whom, without work or money, must live day by day on the city's bounty until the depression ends—will sit down to turkey and chicken dinners, provided in grateful generosity by their more prosperous fellow citizens.

And in 30,000 more homes where there is little enough to eat these days, baskets given out by police and a score of philanthropic and civic organizations will provide holiday dinners for hungry children and their parents.

All this is being done purely as an observance of Thanksgiving day, apart from the every day measures of relief that have been organized within the last few weeks.

The Federation for the support of Jewish Philanthropic societies, embracing 91 organizations, will serve 9,000 dinners, using 7,000 or 8,000 pounds of turkey and 1,500 pounds of chicken. Six thousand more will be fed by the Salvation Army. The city will feed 6,000 in its institutions and the Cosulich Steamship line will provide turkey and chicken dinners for 4,000 more in four sittings aboard the S. S. Saturnia, moored at her pier in the Hudson river.

The Church of St. Francis of Assisi, in the garment section, is planning a dinner party for 2,500 needy guests. A chain restaurant company is closing one of its cafes to the paying public, to serve 1,000 free dinners. Other restaurants and cabarets are throwing open their doors to the hungry who can't pay. The New York Philharmonic society will be host to 1,500 on the lower East Side.

The family service of the Welfare council distributed 15,000 baskets of food today—chickens, vegetables, milk, butter, bread—donated by children of the public and private schools. All sorts of groups, from organized philanthropic societies to the choruses of Broadway shows, were providing Thanksgiving baskets for the needy.

Having attended to these matters, New Yorkers who have jobs will be able to enjoy their Thanksgiving dinners tomorrow at considerably less expense than a year ago. Turkey, ranging from 35 to 45 cents a pound, is 10 cents cheaper than it was a year ago. Most vegetables cost less.

One dietician of a statistical turn figured out that a family of five should be able to eat turkey, chestnut dressing, cranberry jelly, two vegetables, celery and olives, grapefruit salad, fruit, nuts, and coffee for about $6.

In St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and in hundreds of other churches of all denominations, there will be the traditional services.

The weather man predicted today that tomorrow will be clear and cold.

HAWTHORNE, N. J. Nov. 26.—(AP)—Four robbers held three employes and a customer at the point of a gun and took $27,000 from the People's bank of Hawthorne today. They escaped in a stolen automobile, as a woman customer who approached while the hold-up was in progress screamed for police.

Entering the bank shortly after it opened, the men forced a cashier to open the vault and herded the other employes and the customer into a corner.

When Mrs. Thomas Statham saw the hold-up in progress she disregarded the bandit chauffeur's threat to shoot and summoned the police on a nearby telephone.

From the license plate Trenton police identified the car as one stolen from Alfred Sauter of Fairview. It was the second bank hold-up in Hawthorne within two years. In January, 1929, the First National bank was robbed of $13,000 by four men who were caught and sentenced to state prison.

QUARRELED WITH WIFE 22 YEARS BEFORE KILLING HER

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Frank L. Shepp, retired policeman, today told a Brooklyn jury he had so many quarrels with his wife he couldn't remember the one in which police say he killed her, for which slaying he is on trial.

For 22 years, he testified, his life was just one long quarrel. His wife drank, squabbled with the neighbors, took boarders and then made friends of them, he said.

It got so bad, Shepp declared, he quit the police force and couldn't keep any kind of a job. He said his wife threatened to kill him, and once he found something suspicious in his food.

Last August the family court ordered Shepp to pay his wife $1,000 a year. That left him $250. She already owned the house, so Shepp decided to pack up and leave.

While getting ready he found his old service pistol but from that point on he couldn't remember, he testified.

ARREST MIGHT CLEAR UP $129,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—An arrest which detectives said they hoped might clear the mystery of a $129,000 jewelry robbery in Times square Oct. 28, was revealed when a prisoner identified as William Sutton, 30, was brought to police headquarters on a grand larceny charge.

Sutton, police said, had a revolver and $2,750 cash in his pockets when they seized him today. In a safety deposit box they found $7,000 more and traced $3,000 he had given his wife.

FIVE ARMED BANK ROBBERS ESCAPE WITH AT LEAST $25,000

HUTCHINSON, Kansas, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Five robbers armed with machine guns held up the American National bank today and escaped with at least $25,000 after slugging one bank employe and two customers.

Sheriff Fay Brown of Reno county late today used an airplane in an effort to sight the robbers or their heavy sedan which was last reported near Haven, about 20 miles southeast of Hutchinson. Sheriff Brown believed the men were heading into Oklahoma by side roads.

250 KNOWN DEATHS IN EARTHQUAKE IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Partly restored communication lines tonight brought word of 250 known deaths in a terrific earthquake early today which rocked the Izu peninsula and also injured at least 1,000 persons. No foreigners were believed killed or injured.

Fearing further shocks, 30,000 persons were camped in what shelter they could find, grateful for food, supplies and medical aid hastily provided by the army and Red Cross volunteers from nearby cities.

THREE BANKS ROBBED IN ILLINOIS COMMUNITIES

SPRINGFIELD, Il., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Three banks were robbed in small Illinois communities today. One of the exploits resulted in capture of four gunmen; another in a haul of only $2,000 where $80,000 had been expected, and a lone holdup man obtained $12,000 in the third.

The imminence of Thanksgiving brought disappointment to five men who held up the State Trust and Savings bank at Kincaid, expecting to find the money for a mine payroll. Ordinarily the $80,000 in currency would have been on hand, but the impending holiday prompted disbursement of the cash yesterday.

At Marengo, the First National bank yielded $12,000 to a solo robber who herded five employes into a vault and escaped.

The Rochester State bank was robbed of $2,800 by a quartet who, authorities believe, were connected with the Kincaid holdup. Machine guns stopped the men, who were chased and captured after they had released Earl Bell, cashier. They had taken him along as hostage.

CIRCUS EXPLOSION KILLS 13 AND RELEASES WILD ANIMALS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Dispatches to El Universal say that the village of Guadalupe, near Irapuato, was terrorized this morning as an explosion killed 13 members of the Beas circus and released a number of wild animals.

Sixteen other persons were injured.

The disaster was caused by an explosion in a tank car filled with gasoline and flames shot through the entire circus train.

Frenzied creatures, including lions and several other caged beasts, broke out from their quarters in terror and scattered those attempting to rescue the sleeping performers aboard the train.

Some ran rampant through the village and drove all the inhabitants indoors until rifles were brought out and the animals were slain. A few escaped to the countryside, however, and searching parties were on their trail tonight.

REQUESTS SCRUTINY OF IMPORTS FROM RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A treasury investigation to determine the "extent of the use of convict labor" by Russia in lumber production was requested today by Senator Steiwer, republican, Oregon, with a view to applying the tariff provisions against importation of that commodity.

The senator, in a letter to Secretary Mellon, noted the regulations promulgated by the treasury this week requiring importers and shippers to show that importations are not produced by convict labor, and said they would be a "great protection to American industry" if the law is enforced properly.

Plans For Congress To Aid Employment

Restriction of Immigration—Increa[redacted]d Federal Highway Aid- n Government B Program

GTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—A drive in congress toward the of the unemployment problem shape on Thanksgiving eve in sals further to restrict immigra-, to increase federal highway aid d to provide means for expediting the governments building program.

The suggestion that the country was willing to give up the one per cent income tax reduction this year to permit the government to use the money in giving jobs on its works was made by Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee. His committee originates all revenue raising legislation.

Chairman Johnson of the house immigration committee proposed permanent immigration restriction legislation and predicted the United States would never "again permit the arrival of immigrants who would interfere with economic conditions."

A plan to allow the federal government to match dollar for dollar all the funds spent before next July 1 by states for road construction was drafted by Chairman Dowell of the house roads committee with a view to early action at the December session.

Dowell said the federal government could lend its greatest indirect relief of unemployment through the road program.

Another relief measure—that of Representative Aswell, democrat, Louisiana, to provide a $60,000,000 seed and fertilizer loan fund for drought stricken farmers—is to be considered by the house agriculture committee next week.

Expressing doubt that the lower taxes would be allowed for another year, Hawley said the federal government would make known its position soon.

Questioned as to the possibility of an increase in taxes, the Oregon member said he would "have to be shown clearly and strongly" that it was necessary before he would approve it.

Asserting that the remedy for the economic depression and unemployment rested with the people and not the federal government, Hawley said it was "a dangerous thing" for the government to institute a relief program that ultimately might become permanent. It would react to destroy initiative of the people, he added.

Hawley said he saw signs of the country recovering from the economic depression, which he blamed largely on a "buyers' strike."

"When the buyers' strike is ended," he said, "unemployment will diminish and the need for relief measures will decrease corresponingly."

And will help us bear our troubles,
 Lord, we thank You for them all.

Tells Of "Framing" Of Innocent Women

Testimony Involving Police Given by Witness at New York Magistrates' Investition

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. — (AP) — A young Chilean who came to the United States eleven years ago with $3,000 to seek his fortune and became a police informer, testified today, in an inquiry into magistrates' courts, that he and police trumped up vice charges against dozens of innocent women.

Mustached and smartly dressed, "Chile" Acuna leaned forward in the witness chair in appellate supreme court, rested his arms on the rail in front of him, and gave the history of 40 cases in which he said he connived with police officers to trap women and "shake them down" for bonds and lawyer's fees.

Finally came a case were he trapped a girl who had a male defender of some pugilistic prowess, Acuna said, and that was the last of his activities. Frightened by a threat of bodily punishment he changed his colors and testified against the arresting officer whose "stool pigeon" he was. Two days later, he said, this officer arrested him on a charge of soliciting a bribe from a speakeasy. He was found guilty and sentenced to a year in jail, of which he served eleven months.

Policemen accused of "framing" witnesses in vice cases, in testimony in the magistrates' courts inquiry, will be brought to trial immediately, Mayor Walker said tonight after a conference with Police Commissioner Mulrooney.

The trials will begin in the disciplinary court of the police department, the mayor said, and meanwhile a deputy commissioner will sit as an observer in the appellate division hearings into magistrates' courts.

BRING FRANCE AND BRITAIN INTO PLOT AGAINST RUSSIA

Eight Russian Engineers, On Trial in Moscow For High Treason, Admit Their Guilt—They Involve Great Britain, France, Poland and Rumania in Plot to Overthrow the Communist Regime—Trial is the Sensation of Moscow

MOSCOW, Nov. 26—(AP)—One by one, eight prominent Russian engineers are throwing their chances for life in a counter-revolutionary drama which is the sensation of the communist world.

While snow is packed on the cold streets of the red capital, while the radio blares forth the testimony to the far reaches of the soviet domain, while movie cameras grind and four judges calmly smoke cigarettes, there eight are confessing fully to the charges placed against them in indictments last month—that they conspired with certain French and British interests for the overthrow of the communist regime.

As the trial began yesterday, Professor Leonid Ramzin, accused as chief of the plotters, told full details of the scheme which was alleged to involve former President Raymond Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand of France, the French and British general staffs, Polish and Rumanian soldiers and others, and he asked no mercy although, he repented.

Just as frank today and equally repentant was Victor Alexis Larichev, second in command. Like Ramzin, he "told everything."

A third, Professor Ivan Kalinikov, also told his story today, which was substantially the same as that related by the other two and as told when the indictments were made public last month.

It was a widespread plot, as the defendants described it, aimed to bring intervention of France and England with the neighboring countries of Poland and Jugoslavia; to sabotage soviet industries, thereby slowing them down and raising the cost of production, and otherwise spread discontent among the soviet public so as to make the overthrow of the proletarian dictatorship easy.

The principal blame, however, was laid upon French officials and capitalists and the defendants even named by initials Frenchmen connected with a "certain institution in Moscow." The French embassy is the only institution of that country in the red capital.

Kalinikov said his part in the scheme was principally to establish incorrect figures in planning industries since he formerly was head of the state planning commission.

In its essentials the story of all three is that the year 1928 was originally set for intervention after conferences between the Russian counter-revolutionaries and the French and British general staffs. This later was postponed until the summer just passed, and still later until next year.

Among the figures named were a "General Janville" of the French general staff, a British general who was not identified, a "Lord Churchill" of England, the famous "Lawrence of Arabia" and Sir Henri Deterding. Numerous conferences were said to have been held in France and England with other counter-revolutionaries working with French and British secret agents in Russia.

The trial will continue tomorrow with the other five indicted men expected to relate substantially the same stories into the courtroom microphone which carries their testimony throughout the soviet union.

The trial is the sensation of the red metropolis. The ballroom of the "House of Columns" is jammed for every session of the court, and the thousands who can not get in stand outside to shout for the death of the eight defendants.

A great demonstration was held last night and another was planned for this evening, but the latter did not develop because authorities considered the previous manifestation to show the temper of the populace sufficiently.

ADVENTUROUS LIFE OF CAPT. OTTO SVERDRUP ENDS

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 26—(AP)—Captain Otto Sverdrup, much of whose long, adventurous life was spent on the ice which surrounds the Arctic seas, died today at the age of 76.

He was the man who commanded Fridtjof Nansen's famous ship, the Fram, on the polar voyages of 1893. Norway placed him second only to Nansen and Roald Amundsen in the ranks of her great explorers.

He and Nansen were the first white men to cross Greenland. They made the trip on skis back at the turn of the century. Many a stranded exploring party was cheered by the sight of his vessels butting their way through the ice on voyages of rescue.

Once he turned his face the other way and for a while was manager of a tobacco plantation in Cuba, but the venture failed and he returned to the north.

In the last years of his life he received a pension from the Norwegian government, and as comforts in his old age he could look back upon the many times when he had received high decorations from his own and other governments.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Nov. 26—(AP)—Goman Booze, 35, contracting carpenter on trial here for three days for the shotgun slaying August 23 of his wife and another woman, was found guilty of manslaughter today.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 26.—(AP)— The admitted slayer of his employer, whose body was hidden for a month in a barrel, Kennard Thompson, 16, was convicted today of murder in the second degree. Sentence was deferred.

The boy repudiated an alleged confession to police that he was drunk when he killed Herbert G. Wetters, 48, in the latter's small chemical plant the night of August 1, and testified that his employer attacked him, firing several shots with a pistol.

The jury was out 20 minutes. The trial opened Wednesday in criminal court.

COMMONS REJECTS ACTION AGAINST RUSSIAN WHEAT

LONDON, Nov. 26—(AP)—The house of commons by a vote of 224 to 129 today rejected a conservative motion calling attention to the "dumping" of foreign grains in Great Britain and deploring inaction by the government in the matter.

Colonel A. H. Gault, conservative, who introduced the motion, said that out of 71,000,000 hundredweight of wheat imported for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 3,500,000 came from Russia.

G. M. Gillett, minister for overseas trade, asked why Russian wheat should be considered dumped into Great Britain any more than wheat coming from the United States, Canada and Argentina. Russia, he said, was responsible only to the extent of ten per cent. of the great world surplus wheat which was the crux of the whole position and really responsible for the heavy fall of prices at the present time.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM

PARIS, Nov. 26—(AP)—Paris breathed easier tonight than she had in several days, for despite unremitting rains the Seine had risen only five inches in the past twenty-four hours and it appeared that the worst of the destructive flood which began on Monday was over.

In Belgium the situation also was eased somewhat but the authorities stood aghast at the realization that reinforcement of the dikes along the river Scheldt to a point where such floods would be impossible in future would require twenty years of work and would cost $100,000,000.

New breaks in the dikes appeared today and some of the biggest made in the past few days were still open despite the desperate efforts of soldiers and civilians to make repairs. A special dam had been hastily thrown up to protect Ghent against the invading waters, but the job had cut off road communications with the north.

ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION TO TAKE 12 DAY VACATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—President Hoover's law enforcement commission decided today to take a real Thanksgiving vacation from the task of preparing a report on prohibition and recessed until December 8.

The commission returned to its deliberations last Monday after a 10-day adjournment.

No official reason was given for the new recess, which, under previous plans, had been expected to extend only until next Monday. From within the commission ranks, however, came the assurance that although the 11 members are not yet in agreement upon the report, there has been no discord.

It was said the 12-day adjournment was not causing the members to abandon their hope that the task on which they have labored for 17 months can be completed before January 1.

The big steam pumps at the municipal water reservoir are idle after having been in operation from three to 24 hours a day since the middle of July to force the low water into the storage reservoir on Hosmer mountain in the city. The use of the steam pumps occasioned by the drought is an expensive item consuming much coal and wasting much of the water in the pumping process. Superintendent Willard N. Bowen of the pumping station said today that low-water troubles appear to be over with an ample supply now running over the dam.

A check-up on minor discrepancies in which property owners made additions and improvements to property, including houses and garages for which they failed to secure permits from the building inspector, is now being made by the board of assessors. It is found that a number of these items which tend to increase property valuation were not complied in the grand list of 1930.

LOCAL COUPLE HELD FOR SETTING FIRE TO COLLECT INSURANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Angeline Gialluca, 24, and her brother, Nicholas Lorella, 18, were bound over to the next criminal term of the Windham county superior court from police court this morning when they pleaded guilty to arson. Signed confessions were secured from the brother and sister early this morning by State Policeman Henry Zehrer of the Stafford Springs barracks, concluding the officer's investigation into a mysterious fire that was discovered about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the home of Joseph Gialluca at 88 Birch street. Damage of about $1,000 was caused by the blaze which was the second of undetermined origin within a year. In the previous fire damage of about $700 was caused.

Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds and Deputy Chief Michael J. English conducted a preliminary investigation after the presence of kerosene had been detected in the fire-gutted rooms. The state police were notified. At the time of the fire the house was unoccupied, members of the family having left about 7 o'clock for Westerly, R. I. The confessions are to the effect that before leaving and unknown to Mr. and Mrs. Gialluca, the young woman and her brother placed kerosene about the house and Lorella set it afire with a match just as he was leaving. There was insurance to the amount of $4,500 carried on the house which is valued at approximately $3,000. A milk bottle containing about an ounce of kerosene was found in the cellar. After being notified of the fire, the Giallucas and Lorella returned from Westerly about 11:30.

In court today Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a bond of 1,000 in the case of the woman and $2,500 for Lorella, the latter being unable to furnish the amount and being taken to the county jail at Brooklyn to await trial. The reduced bond in the case of the woman was furnished by Mrs. Mary Camillo. This bond was lowered on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher because of the necessity of having some one take care of the woman's family if she went to jail. The arrests were made by Police Officer John A. Lutton who is credited with valuable work in the collecting of evidence leading to the confessions. This is the first arson case to have developed here in many years.

HOW A SKUNK GOT AWAY IS PROVING A MYSTERY

Skunks are many around the fishing village and every night you can see fellows with guns and traps hunting for the unwelcome animals that are not liked by any one in the world. They are common as a cat and sometimes you cannot tell one from a cat, in the dark; but when you get near, put a Monday morning clothes pin on your nose and stand from under!

One night a young fellow, George Bean, was coming home in his auto shining like a $2.50 gold piece, after calling on his sweetheart, Betty, from the north side of Ledyard. A monster black skunk was standing in the driveway as if nothing in the world was bothering him. Sheik George was mad, for it was 2 a. m., by his wrist watch. He was thinking about his new suit and that auto, for he did not want to bury the car (or, himself). But Mr. Skunk was still on watch. The roosters were calling daybreak and till 4.30 o'clock, over 2 1-2 hours, Mr. Bean had to wait until the black animal ran into the woods nearby. It was a mean trick to pull on the girl-caller, but he took it as a joke, although it gave him only a few hours to sleep.

So a trap for a skunk was set in the yard at Billie Green's that has been hanging around for a long while it was unable to catch him.

As the sun was high on a morning recently, the monster skunk was caught and the air had a funny smell, not like Three Roses toilet water. Then everybody knew the skunk was done for. The young man who set the trap wanted him; so he left Mr. Skunk there in the trap until his day's work was done, the skunk had a white streak down his back and he weighed 29 1-2 lbs.—the largest one ever seen in the Indian village by the sea. When the young man came back for his pet the trap was empty, and the animal gone. Only a stick for a clue. The man was mad, after wasting half the night to catch the skunk then to find the pet gone. He asked a neighbor if he had seen a skunk. "Yes! this afternoon, he was walking up East Main street." It sure is a mystery where the unwelcome animal went. Could he have got out of the trap after it was claimed he was dead and run away? Or was it taken for a joke? It might be the man with the right shoe on the left foot—a good one for Andy Gump to work on! Has a skunk got nine lives, like a cat? A prize will be given by the Sardine club to the one who finds out how that skunk got out of the trap! All letters will be opened Wednesday evening to see who has the right dope on that skunk to escape. He has caused a good laugh among the young fellows—right in broad daylight the animal went without leaving a note, only a smell in the air! Or can it be a man with four fingers on his left hand opened the trap? It sure is hard to tell. A skunk with his leg caught in a trap can fake it by closing his eyes until the party goes away, unless you shoot him. One man was telling about getting all dressed up and was going to church one Sunday evening. He ran into one of those pets. But if you don't scare him it is all right. Somehow, Mr. Skunk almost told the man, as long as you've got on your good clothes and are on your way to church, I will let you go by.

That drew a laugh from the crowd that was listening to his story. Do you know that a skunk can be trained just like a cat and made a good house pet? Whistle and he, or her, will come on the run; also ask you for their meals. A skunk likes milk and it is one great chicken thief. It is nothing for them to get in a coup and kill a chicken or two when the chicks are in dreamland. Can a man from the west call them away with a cornet? As long as the skunks keep in their right places and not speak out of turn, they sure will be O. K. in this village.

ULTRA SHORT WAVES USED IN TANK RADIO

LONDON — (AP) — The difficulty of British army communications over short distances from tanks and other armored fighting vehicles and police cars has been overcome by the development of a special radio outfit.

It is an ultra short-wave portable installation, operating on between seven and eight metres—designed for telephony and telegraphy to be used either as a permanent fitting in armored vehicles or as a portable set for trench and other advanced military positions.

The aerial consists of a copper plated steel rod 12 feet high and made in four sections. The ground is the tank.

The transmitter and receiver are compactly fitted in an instrument case. Power for the transmitting valves is supplied by a rotary transformer driven by a 12 volt battery. It also delivers 600 volts B battery supply.

DANIELSON

ONE MEMBER OF SILVER BANDITS PLEADS GUILTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 26—There may be considerable significance in the fact that Joseph Cardoza, one of the several youths from Providence and vicinity that are alleged to have held up a silver laden By Rolly truck at South Killingly early one morning several weeks ago, pleaded guilty when presented in the town court here this morning. One of his companions, Anthony Peters, similarly charged with robbery on the highway, demurred to the complaint, on advice of counsel, but the demurrer was overruled by Judge W. Fenner Woodward and probable cause found for holding Peters for trial at the December term of the Windham county superior court, criminal side. In each case the court fixed bail at $10,000. Neither Cardoza, who has been in various difficulties with the law prior to his present predicament, nor Peters could furnish the amount, so were taken back to the county jail at Brooklyn, where they have been held since shortly after the robbery occurred.

It was regarded as probable, in view of the fact that Cardoza has pleaded guilty to the serious charge against him, that he may be of aid to the state when the cases of Peters and others allegedly involved in the holdup comes up for trial. One other young man who was arrested in connection with the affair is out under bonds.

Cornelius Wines, giant colored driver of the truck that was held up about 4 o'clock in the morning, was threatened with guns, blindfolded, gagged and bound to his truck after it was driven off the highway into a glade, it will be recalled. Two hours elapsed after the robbers had taken $12,000 worth of silver from his truck before Wines could release himself, catch a ride into Danielson and report the affair. Meanwhile the holdup men had disappeared. Arrests of suspects followed late the same night, and much of the silver was recovered within 48 hours.

William Cull, about 42 years old, of 45 Thomas court, Boston, was being held at the state police barracks here this afternoon awaiting the arrival of his brother to take him back to Boston. Cull was in rather bad shape physically this afternoon, the result of over-indulgence in some intoxicant, he claimed.

He was bound home from Philadelphia on a New York-Boston coach that stopped at Sherman's Corner in the town of Chaplin early this morning to allow the passengers a period of refreshment. Cull left the coach with the other passengers, but when it was ready to start on toward Boston again he could not be found. Shortly afterwards a report came to the barracks about a man being in Chaplin who was acting in a strange manner. State Officer Royal V. Scranton went out from here to look him up and eventually located him in Willimantic, and brought him over here.

A marriage at St. James' church this morning, was that of Miss Balandine Hubert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hubert, and Edeas Lemery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roel Lemery of Reynolds street.

The suave, well-dressed young man who has been nicking business men here and in nearby eastern Connecticut towns, has made another collection in Danielson through his short-changing operations. This time it was at a filling station. He drove in with a small car and asked for a quart of oil, got it and tendered a $20 bill in payment. Awaiting, outside, the time when the attendant had made the necessary change from the cash register, he went into the station, took his change and then apparently had an after-thought. "Why, I find I have plenty of change," he said. He offered in silver the price of the quart of oil, and remarked that he would like to get his $20 bill back. He counted out the bills, including a $10 one, and the other change that had been given him, counted the bills out slowly and one by one and put them on the counter, accepting his $20 bill and passed out. The $10 bill was not in the change when the attendant recounted it. This slickster is young, nifty looking and smart. He is about 25 years old and travels with a companion about his own age. He is of medium size, wears a blue overcoat and fedora hat. Watch out for him. Watch out for the boys that offer a big bill and then change their mind after they get their change.

The pressure upon the selectmen of Killingly for aid for the unemployed and the unfortunate is increasing. The money expended from the town's charity funds is considerably greater now than at the same time a year ago. The careful supervision that is being given this year to distribution of these funds is more rigid than ever before. This has been made necessary by discovery of the fact that there are applicants for aid who are undeserving of receiving it, inasmuch as checkups show that they have reserve funds, are earning more money than they elect to tell about or in some one of various other ways are not in line to receive doles from the funds of the town. To separate the worthy from the unworthy, each applicant for aid is required to give information for the filling out of a long questionaire. Every statement made is investigated before any aid is given. Making false statements will avail a person nothing, rather will operate against him, for all that appears in the record of each case is investigated.

On the other hand, the selectmen are doing their best with the funds they have available to give aid to the needy. Likewise, they seek to find work for the unemployed who are able and willing to work. It is a burdensome and trying task that the selectmen are now contending with, and likely will have to continue to struggle with for the next four or five months. One of their greatest problems along this line is to see that the town's treasury is not raided by unscrupulous seekers after aid who are not entitled to receive it. Day by day they are guarding against this, and doing so entails a great deal of work.

A brighter side of life than the foregoing contemplates was in evidence about everywhere in Danielson today as preparations for Thanksgiving went forward in much the same manner as in the years that are gone. There was bountiful buying for holiday feasts at the stores dealing in foodstuffs of a staple nature, and equal activity about business places of caterers to the trade in fruits, nuts, candies and other such things. It was an encouraging sight, after hearing about and considering other phases of the local economic situation at the present time.

The Killingly high school band and the Putnam high school band will be on hand at Quinebaug field here Thanksgiving morning and will play at the annual football game between the two schools.

The looked for holiday traffic set in with a buzz late this afternoon and was unusually heavy by early evening.

A holiday schedule of service according to the usual practice will be in force at the postoffice here, but mails will be distributed and despatched as usual.

Mrs. Marjorie Waller, director of the recent Red Cross roll call here, said this morning that the receipts were $1,243.03, a slighter lesser amount than was received last year. Of those enrolled 1,057 are annual members, eight contributing members. The remainder of the money received to make up the amount mentioned was from donations.

Numbers of Danielson people were planning today to be in Jewett City Thanksgiving morning to witness the ceremonies incident to the opening of the splendid new viaduct now completed down there.

Local manufacturing plants closed tonight for the Thanksgiving holiday, and this evening there was an exodus of employes to other towns and cities where many of them planned to spend the holiday.

Mrs. Grace S. Wheatley and daughter, Frances, of Hawkins street are spending Thanksgiving with relatives in Boston.

There was a change today to more seasonable temperature and the tang of late fall reminiscent of the Thanksgiving period. Thermometer readings here this morning averaged 25 degrees. h morn--ETAOIN ETAOIN NN NN

EAST HARTFORD SALESMAN KILLED IN CRASH ON POMFRET HIGHWAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 26—Death came instantly about 9:15 this morning to Thomas J. Molumphy, 49, of Silver Lane, at East Hartford, when the big and powerful roadster he was driving at high speed along the Brooklyn-Pomfret state highway crashed broadside into a light delivery truck that unexpectedly emerged from a side road. An examination of the body early this afternoon by Dr. S. B. Overlock, medical examiner for the town of Pomfret, at L. E. Kennedy's Funeral home here, showed that Mr. Molumphy sustained in the accident a fracture at the base of the skull, a broken left thigh and that a number of his ribs were crushed in. He was alone in his car when the crash occurred.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill went from Danielson to view the body of Mr. Molumphy and gave permission for its removal to Danielson. State Officer Lionel Poirier of the Danielson barracks investigated the accident.

It appears that the Molumphy car was traveling south, in the direction of Brooklyn, when the truck came out of the little side road that leads into the state highway from the Pomfret Landing-Goodyear road. This side road is an obscure one and rises a bit as it approaches the state highway. It appears certain that Mr. Molumphy, a partner in and a traveling salesman for the Silver Lane Pickle company, did not see the truck until it suddenly appeared out of the side road and too late for him to stop.

His car hit it practically broadside and dragged it along for a considerable distance, the truck remaining upright, until the roadster rolled over and over. Everything above the tonneau was swept clear of the roadster and Mr. Molumphy was in all probability dead before the hurtling car had really come to rest. The badly wrecked machine was later towed to a garage here. The accident appears to come in the unavoidable category in the broadest meaning of that term.

This afternoon a Hartford undertaker came here to take Mr. Molumphy's body back to the nice home he owned in Silver Lane, where he had been a resident and engaged in business for a number of years. He leaves his wife and a son about 21 years of age, who also is a salesman for the pickle company. Mr. Molumphy was well known to the trade in this section of eastern Connecticut.

PUTNAM

RED CROSS WORKERS RAISE $650.50 IN ANNUAL DRIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 26.—The annual roll call drive of the Putnam chapter of American Red Cross ended today with the report made late this afternoon by Chairman Arthur F. Hughes that the total amount of the fund collected was $650.50. A goal of $1,000 was set by the committee at the opening of the drive, but the fact that it was not reached has not detracted from the excellent showing made by the people of Putnam in the support of the Red Cross. Mr. Hughes said this afternoon the result of this year's drive is over and above the amount of money raised by the campaign forces in 1929, the fund created last year amounting to $590. Inasmuch as the roll call does not officially come to a close until Thursday, Mr. Hughes said that the committee expects that late returns will increase the present figures considerably.

That $1,000 was not raised, as Mr. Hughes said, is in no way a reflection upon Putnam's attitude toward the organization. The figure was set up by the local chapter itself and no one is responsible for its not being achieved. Mr. Hughes spoke in terms of high praise of the work of his assistants and of the response to the appeal made by the people of Putnam, whose generous contributions will make it possible for the Red Cross work in a local sense being carried on to a greater extent during the next year.

Responsibility for the fire which broke out in Union block early Tuesday evening has not been definitely fixed by fire officials, who began an investigation this morning to determine its cause. Acting Chief Alphonse Dumas said this afternoon several possible causes for the blaze have been collected from the charred chambers of the condemned Union hall on the third floor of the building. An estimated loss of $3,000, most of which was caused by water damage, is centered principally in Lizette's Smart shop on Main street. No damage of any consequence was incurred in the lobby of the Putnam post office, where water seeped through the ceiling.

Pupils of the Israel Putnam school furnished a programme of entertainment during the social session of the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club held today at the Putnam Inn. The programme was as follows: March, "Happy Days," played by the I. P. S. orchestra, under the direction of Nelson Frink, "Thanksgiving Day," song and pantomime, by the kindergarten pupils; "Thanksgiving Day," song and acrostic, by the first grade pupils; folk dances, by Miss Farrows' second and third grade pupils; "Story of the Pilgrims," by Miss Strahan's second grade pupils; "The Pilgrim Maid," sung by the fourth grade pupils of Miss Dutton; "The Discovery of America," a playlet, presented by Mrs. Kent's third grade pupils.

Thanksgiving Day in Early Plymouth was dramatized by a talented group of pupils from the sixth and seventh grades, who are taught by Miss MacConnell. This number was followed by the presentation of the play, "Miss Alden's Pilgrim," by Miss Etta Whiting's sixth grade students.

The programme was brought to a musical conclusion with the playing of the waltz, "Sweet Dreams," rendered by the school orchestra.

The toll of damage caused yesterday to telephone circuits in this section from a lone bolt of lightning during a hail and rain storm, mounted today as additional reports of disabled lines were reported to the local wire chief's office. The estimated number of stations crippled by the effects of the storm was placed at more than 200 today. It was expected that service would be restored to each subscriber by nightfall Wednesday.

All schools in the city closed this afternoon for the Thanksgiving recess which lasts until Monday morning when sessions will be resumed.

LOCAL PEOPLE GET $5,000 BEQUESTS IN THURSTON WILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Bequests of $5,000 are made to Miss Annie E. Joy, Miss Bridget Joy and Miss Alice Joy, under the terms of the will of the late Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston, which has been filed for execution in the probate court of the Putnam district. The Misses Joy are residents of Grove street, and during the number of years of Chief Thurston's life spent in Putnam he made his home with them. In making the bequests Chief Thurston wrote, "because of their kindness to me during the years I lived with them." There are no public bequests included in the instrument. The bulk of the late public official's estate, as directed by the testator, goes to his relatives living in Massachusetts. One other Putnam friend and intimate associate of Chief Thurston is mentioned in the will—E. Ray Sherman, who is left the testator's shares of Connecticut Electric Service stock.

The will was drafted in September while Chief Thurston was a patient at the Truesdell hospital in Fall River. He died on Oct. 6, less than a month after the will had been signed.

Several Putnam young men and women attending New England colleges returned to their homes this evening to spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

A death in this city today was that of Mrs. Octavia Bruneau, who died at her home on Mill street early this morning after an illness of several weeks. She was 73 years old. Mrs. Bruneau, who was the widow of Alex Bruneau, was born in Canada but had been a resident of this city for a number of years. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church. Surviving her are two sons, Philip and George Bruneau, both of Mill street.

Dinners of turkey and chicken to be served at the city's three institutions, the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam town farm and the Windham County Temporary home, will serve to carry the holiday spirit to inmates on Thanksgiving day. At the children's home, roast turkey will delight 80 youngsters who have been working up an appetite since Tuesday, when arrangements for the "big spread" began taking place. Turkey will be served to the patients and employes at the Day Kimball hospital. At the town farm, where there are six women and 18 men, a roast chicken dinner will be provided. Representative Leon A. Talbot of the Putnam News Co., will add to the holiday pleasures of the aged inmates with his contribution of ice cream, which will be served at two meals.

HOW THE LINE WILL MOVE IN TODAY'S DEMONSTRATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 26.—The line of march for the big Thanksgiving day parade as a part of the celebration for the official opening of the new Quinebaug bridge and viaduct will form with the right resting on the East Main street highlands, at the foot of Palmer avenue. This line is to include those who march.

The automobile divisions will form on North Main, the right resting at David Hale Fanning park facing down town. The parade will move up East Main street, through Brown avenue, down North Main to Main, thence to and over the viaduct. At the viaduct entrance the satin ribbon feature, which will be carried out by 15 local girls, will formally open the great structure, whereupon it will be regularly listed as a part of Route 12 from New London, Norwich to Worcester, and a regular lane of state highway traffic. Upon the return of the parade from Sylvandale, an address will be delivered by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown from the platform at Slater library.

The marching order: First Division —Men on horseback, the national flag with color guards, ribbon girls, platoon of police, Swahn's band, societies, organizations and school children; Second Division—Flag and guards Ashland Boys' band; riding in automobiles: Car No. 1, the speakers; No. 2, clergymen; No. 3, state officials; No. 4, M. A. Gammino and party; No. 5, state and construction engineers; No. 6, borough officials; No. 7, electric light commission; No. 8 town officials; machines with members of the various committees; the A. A. Young, Jr., fire department and all cars that will participate in the general parade. The line will move at 10 o'clock.

NEW TADPOLE BRIDGE IS OPENED TO TRAVEL

At 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the new Tadpole bridge, which is a part of the regular state highway, Route 12, from New London to Worcester, was opened to public travel. This bridge, with a center line of 191 feet, is built of structural steel with cement footings, pillars, balustrades and roadbed. The steel construction was erected by the Boston Bridge Co., the members of which came here with their own crew of steel workers and riveters. The erection work was done from their regular work cars, which operated from the railroad tracks without delay of trains. The cement part of the project was built by the M. A. Gammino Construction Co., of Providence, as a part of their big contract of roads and bridges in eastern Connecticut.

This new bridge takes the place of the S-curve structure, which, besides being narrow, underweight and generally obsolete, was built to cross over the tracks at right angles, thus making bad curves in both approaches. In connection with this job, two long fills were necessary on either approach, also a passage way was provided for the overflow from the upper Tadpole pond. In its completion this week, a fine straight highway is opened and a bad menace to travel is eliminated. The cost is divided between the federal government, the railroad company and the state of Connecticut. By comparison with the big Quinebaug bridge and viaduct, which is to be officially opened this (Thursday) morning, the Tadpole bridge appears as a minor item, yet reckoned from the standpoint of its own importance, it is a steel bridge job of the highest class.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving day comes this year as it comes every year—after the harvest has been completed. This year conditions throughout the country are not what they have been some years. It has been so before and is but the repetition of history, and yet it is not to be thought that reason for thanksgiving is lessened because the height of prosperity does not prevail.

We need but to turn back the pages of history to other days, days of strife and struggle, perhaps to the first Thanksgiving day, to realize how much more reason there is today for thanksgiving than there was then, and yet those pioneers found good and plenty reasons for expressing their thanks for the blessings received. That being so, how much more deserving of thanks are the conditions under which we live today.

It has been well said: "Goodness, unselfishness, integrity, moral and spirtual courage, cleanliness of heart and life, purity of soul, the capacity of self-sacrifice, true humility—for these graces and virtues, and such as they, one who possesses them or any of them, in even slight degree, cannot be too thankful. Such a man will never plead his own merits as deserving of a reward, for he will be slow to recognize those merits and will be very likely to undervalue them. It is a contemptible idea of so much thankfulness for so much good. We do not thank God as we politely thank a friend for a courtesy or a slight favor, which we may, perhaps rightly, feel was fairly due us. Thankfulness to the Almighty means a pouring out of the heart and soul in reverent attitude for 'inestimable benefits' to which we may not feel ourselves in any sense entitled, and which we are surely conscious of not having merited or earned. If we are to be truly thankful we must first of all be thankful for what really counts, for all that bears on and may determine the eternal destiny of man."

Thus it is more than temporary conditions that need to be kept in mind on the day of thanksgiving, more even than temporary hardships. The picture of those who established the day in the midst of real hardships in a strange land and absolute uncertainty ahead serves as an inspiration for the giving of even greater thanks in this day and generation.

LOCAL GOVERNMENTS FAIL

That the federal government, through the department of justice, is making a study of racketeering with the idea of giving the states whatever aid may be required in putting an end to gangster activities is not to be taken as indicating a lapse on the part of the federal government. It doesn't mean that it is just awakening to conditions or the necessity for suppression. It doesn't mean that the way is being paved for new federal legislation to deal with the situation.

The president is mindful of the fact that the present situation due to gangsters is the result of the failure of local governments to meet their responsibilities. As he declares, "every single state has ample laws that cover such criminality. What is needed is the enforcement of those laws, and not more laws. Any suggestion of increasing the federal criminal laws in general is a reflection on the sovereignty and the stamina of state government. . . . What we need is a more widespread public awakening to the failure of some local governments to protect their citizens from murder, racketeering, corruption and other crimes."

The idea of having the government proceed against the gangsters because of their failure to pay income taxes is like many other efforts to pass along a lot of responsibility that should be assumed by the states for the federal government to handle. Such a centralization of government is the wrong way to tackle the problem. The existence of the gangsters is due to the fact that they encounter little resistance. Local governments are winking at their duty and in the winking they must be getting sufficient public support to warrant them in continuing such an attitude.

It is not improbable that the federal government can be of aid to the states and cities in their efforts, but as for putting the burden on the government at Washington for suppressing such conditions, it is out of the question. When local governments admit their inability, their impotency, their failure to enforce adequate laws, it reflects deplorably upon public sentiment, for back of the success or failure in such efforts must be public sentiment.

SENATOR ROBINSON'S JOB

Senator Robinson of Arkansas democratic senate leader and one of those who pledged democratic cooperation with the republicans in the coming session of congress, hasn't been driven from his position by those democrats and insurgents who have voiced other sentiments. It isn't to be supposed that he has assumed an attitude that will mean he will give his backing to everything that is urged by the republicans. On the contrary, he will be found to be quite as strong a democrat as ever, and he never has been a straddler, but he sees the desirability of avoiding a special session of congress and is disposed to contribute his efforts to its prevention.

He considers the discussion as to whether a special session will be necessary as premature. He recognizes in it the prejudging of a lot of legislation or the laying of plans to block action in order to see that congress is prevented from doing what ought to be done by this session. Evidently he sees plans being formulated which may result in a filibuster, but he declares, "It is no part of my duty to filibuster against appropriation bills, and I have no intention of doing so."

There is such a thing as having legitimate reason for the calling of a special session of congress. That is not contemplated by those who are inclined to foist a special session upon the country. Their aim is to bring it about by the introduction of such demands as will precipitate an endless controversy in congress, and prevent action upon the appropriation bills. Inasmuch as the government cannot function without such appropriations, a special session would be necessary, meaning the prolongation of the legislative session indefinitely and the creation of endless uncertainty.

What the country wants is for congress to meet, get down to business at once, deal with such emergency legislation as is necessary, dispose of the appropriation bills and so clean up the legislative slate as to be ready for adjournment when the time comes. It wants no dallying, no blocking of action, no efforts to hamstring the administration, and Senator Robinson knows it. Whether he can exert a leadership that will prevent the democrats from playing into the hands of the insurgents for trouble-making purposes remains to be seen. His job is cut out.

NEW YORK COURTS

Conditions in the courts of New York have been experiencing revelations for a number of weeks, and as time passes, more and more is being brought to light. The more that is disclosed the more apparent it becomes that the investigations are justified. There is being disclosed, according to the testimony, a condition that outdistances fiction.

Through the story told by a process server, who worked for years but is now out of that line of activity, the woman's court was in the hands of the fixers. Whether cases were brought up and how they were disposed of depended upon the manner in which the accused poured out his money. This process server told of bribery and graft and told of it in a manner which indicated that he knew the danger of being called to account some day and he was prepared to talk by the book. He kept a record of the cases in which he figured, the fees he received, the ones from whom he got them, and he was able to show that his office and the way he administered it netted him $20,000 for allowing cases to be dismissed.

While he had a profitable hand in the whole scheme, there being an established fee of $25 coming to him from each case, there was a ring in which lawyers and policemen were involved. His story showed that the administration of justice in that court was a farce. It was undermined by a system of graft that made a joke of the courts. Whatever may have been thought of the necessity for the investigation in the minor courts or the efforts to get at the facts in the other courts, the combined disclosures in the big city and its courts are almost beyond belief. New York may well wonder what will come next, but it should not be of two minds as to what should be done in order to clean up such rottenness. The people of that city have tolerated conditions too long.

MODIFICATION

One large brewer has within a few days confirmed the statement that close to a million dollars is being spent in bringing his plant up to date. Though the impression may have been gained that Milwaukee was about to resume its old-time activity in the production of the amber fluid, the Chicago News, following inquiry, reports that it is not so. It directs attention to the fact, however, that the big brewers will have little to do if the time comes when they can resume their former business, for they are still manufacturing beer and then by the removal of alcohol making near beer of it, and all that would be required should the law be changed would be to stop the dealcoholization and the beer would be manufactured and shipped as freely as ever.

When that time w'll come is not certain. Several measures will probably be presented at the coming session of congress legalizing the manufacture of 2.75 or 4 per cent beer. Senator Bingham is advocating a bill that would permit the latter. It is in keeping with a widespread sentiment that much of the undesirability of present-day conditions surrounding prohibition would have been avoided had the manufacture and sale of beer been permitted. As it is, the question is being raised as to whether the legalizing of beer would satisfy the demands of the present time. This doubt is raised because of the appetite that has been created by the extensive use of strong drink. Beer drinkers have become the users of liquors and there is no assurance that they would be satisfied to go back to beer and nothing else.

All these questions are bound to be raised in connection with the efforts for repeal and modification, but there appears to be a confidence among the drys that there will be no actual test of such changes yet awhile.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It will be a long time before Harvard forgets that football surprise it worked on Yale.

The man on the corner says: Turkey and the fixin's will not lack for plenty of attention this day.

Singing about the springtime in the Rockies doesn't fit in well with the reports about the snow and cold in that region.

"Captain of Ovidia is without plans" says a headline. He is also without his ship but he has had an experience which gives him good reason for special thanksgiving.

The great day for family reunions. Thanksgiving, and even though times are not what everyone would like, there is, nevertheless, plenty for which to be thankful

PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING TURKEY ALWAYS USED TO COME FROM HEREABOUTS

President Hoover likes wild turkey—too well, perhaps, as a Bulletin news story intimated yesterday, to wait till Thanksgiving to eat it. Recently the story went on, Lawrence Richey, one of the president's secretaries, returned from a hunting trip with two wild turks, but both are gone now, with the result that six farm-grown birds will take their places on the Thanksgiving dinner table today at the white house.

The item fails to state where these farm-grown birds hail from, but certain it is that their home was not eastern Connecticut. Time was, however, when the presidential table was decorated annually with a whopping big Thanksgiving bird from right around here.

Beginning with President Grant and continuing with all his successors up to Wilson, Horace Vose of Westerly used to make the president a yearly Thanksgiving present of his best turkey. Vose, a native of Westerly, always announced that his present was Westerly grown, though the oldtimers assert there was little doubt that the habitat of at least some of these birds was eastern Connecticut.

When Vose began his custom of keeping the white house supplied with free Thanksgiving turkeys, eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island were famous turkey-growing centers. Twenty-five or 30 years ago, however, the birds were attacked by the black head in such numbers that the turkey-industry hereabout suffered a blow from which it has never recovered. Bulletin entries recording Vose's activities are as follows:

Cleveland Got A 31-Pounder

From the issue of Nov. 26, 1896:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — The president and nearly all his official advisers will pass Thanksgiving day in this city in a quiet way. The president and Mrs. Cleveland will attend divine service in the morning and eat their Thanksgiving meal in the executive mansion in company with their three little girls.

The principal dish at the dinner will be the choice turkey from the stock of Horace Vose of Rhode Island. The bird arrived by express this morning. It weighs 31 pounds, and is acknowledged to be the fattest and handsomest bird that Mr. Vose has presented.

Mr. Vose began his practice of supplying the president of the United States with a Thanksgiving turkey nearly a quarter of a century ago, and for a number of years the late Senator Anthony of Rhode Island sent the gift in person.

The vice president and Mrs. Stevenson, with their family, will spend the day at their home in Bloomington, Ill. The secretary of state and Mrs. Olney will have a regular New England dinner at their home.

Taft's V'eighed 35 Pounds

From the issue of Nov. 10, 1909:

Through the courtesy of Horace Vose of Westerly, R. I., The Bulletin is enabled to present a picture of the turkey which will grace the white house table on Thanksgiving day. It weighed 35 pounds and was the choicest of 10 select birds set aside for this purpose. The bird not only has heft but also quality.

As a judge of quality Mr. Vose has few peers and no superiors in the country. He began sending the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys to the white house when General Grant was elected to the presidency and kept it up till the time of Roosevelt, when the Christmas bird was discontinued, and the November turkey only has since been sent.

Mr. Vose's turkey is not the only bird sent for they come to the white house from the east, south and west; but the National Magazine, in an article upon the white house turkeys, said the preferred turkey was the Rhode Island turkey. In this single feat alone, Mr. Vose has given the Rhode Island turkey national fame as well as won it for himself. He knows who raises the greatest flocke of turkeys in the turkey belt, and where to look for the finest turkeys grown in America.

Book Told His Secrets

From the issue of Feb. 1, 1912:

"Turkey Secrets from the Experience of Horace Vose," who for 40 years has annually supplied the presidential family with its Thanksgiving turkey, is the title of a book of 62 pages published in Philadelphia. The illustrations include Horace Vose watching a flock of turkeys and sizing them up; Horace and Editor Michael K. Boyer of the Farm Journal seated in a carriage starting for a drive among the Rhode Island and eastern Connecticut turkey farms; a Vose turkey packed for shipment to the president; the first dressed turkey sent to a president by Mr. Vose, which weighed 36 pounds and went to President Grant in 1873; flock of Narragansett turkeys; turkey hen that stole a nest in pumpkin patch; white Holland turkey that does not find favor with Mr. Vose; Mr. Vose and the turkey sent to President McKinley; turkey brood coops; flock of turkeys from which Taft's 1911 turkey was selected; pair of bronze turkeys; turkeys seeking protection from cold winds; Mr. Vose and the big turkey sent to President Garfield compared with an average size turkey; flock of bronze turkeys; the marking of the wing and tail of the bronze turkey; pair of Narragansett turkeys; the turkey that President Harrison and family feasted upon; the killing of a turkey; the turkey sent to McKinley in 1897; a woman dressing a turkey; the turkey sent to Roosevelt; the Cleveland turkey of 1885.

In addition to the Poultry Secrets which are given in an interesting and instructive way, there are many interesting anecdotes in connection with the presentations of the president's turkeys, told in a quaint way by Mr. Vose. As an introduction Editor Boyer makes this reference to Mr. Vose:

In Turkey Business Since 1857

"Horace Vose at the time of this meeting (October, 1911) is 71 years young. Although grayhaired, no one would take him for that age. Strongly built and active, and with rugged appearance, he looks at least 10 years younger than he really is.

Mr. Vose has always been a Rhode Islander. He was born on Vose hill, now called Quarry hill. His earliest turkey experience dates back to the time when he was 17. That was in 1857, when he purchased six turkey eggs and placed them under a brood hen, and raised two turkeys that weighed 15 pounds each by Thanksgiving week. He sold them for 17 cents a pound.

"Each year he repeated his efforts, with varied success, until he was 21, when he left home to help his uncle, who made poultry business an adjunct to the farm. He managed the latter branch five or six years, and in that time saved enough money to buy out his uncle's poultry interests. He then purchased a flock of six turkeys and a yearling tom, and from that flock he gradually built up his immense business.

"Mr. Vose is a man whose character friend to those who deserve friendship, an enemy to tricksters. Horace has a great big heart. He believes in honest methods, and in the town of Westerly his word is his bond."

Died In 1913

Horace Vose, known from ocean to ocean as the Turkey King, died suddenly Saturday morning seated in a chair at his home in Railroad avenue, Westerly, in the 74th year of his age. He was the son of Charles B. and Mary J. Thompson Vose and was born May 12, 1840, on Vose hill, now known is plainly photographed in his face—of firm and decided convictions, a as Quarry hill, in the village of Westerly, and has been a lifelong resident. Mr. Vose is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susie Chesebro Vose, a daughter, Mabel Vose, widow of Otis Chapman, Jr., and a son, Charles Vose, also by a brother Oscar Vose.

He had been sick for several weeks with a weakness of the heart, being confined to his home with the sickness with the exception of one day, a week ago last Friday, when he went out contrary to the advice of his attending physician. He showed signs of improvement, until a sudden turn came on Saturday which resulted fatally.

In early life he became interested in turkey raising, which he later abandoned and engaged in the sale of turkeys on a large scale, shipping tons of turkeys from Westerly each Thanksgiving and Christmas season. Owing to the scarcity of turkeys in this section this business became greatly reduced, and the shipments for the past 10 years have been comparatively small.

Ever since the first term of Ulysses S. Grant as president of the United States down to the present time Mr. Vose has presented the president with the best turkey obtainable for the Thanksgiving feast and this act has brought Mr. Vose wide prominence.

Interested In Horses

Many years ago Mr. Vose engaged in the ice business in Westerly at wholesale and retail, disposing of the same at a profit. He conducted a livery stable for a time in Vincent land, later enlarging the business into an extensive sale stable for horses and cattle and locating in Railroad avenue where he erected a large stable with capacity for 100 or more horses, Mr. Vose going west and purchasing horses in large numbers. Of late years he has devoted most of his time to dealing in cattle and turkeys and in farming, as his ambition was to keep busy and lead an active and useful life.

Mr. Vose was noted for his honesty and shrewdness.

ENTRRONED UPON A PLATTER

The downtown window before which Vera Richards, stood riveted displayed neither ravishing millinery nor enchanting costumes. Nor was the allure that of a book store's editions de luxe or a florist's bower of bloms. It was a window of the Center Market, and of all absurdities the thing that had captivated her attention was an uncouth line of dangling turkeys.

But it was Thanksgiving eve, and at Thanksgiving a turkey is not just a turkey. It is a symbol of home and family reunions and love feasts. For on that one enthroned-upon-a-platter day at least the American turkey becomes the national bird, outranking the American eagle with taint of coin upon its feathers.

"Gee, look at 'em, Madge!" exclaimed a gleeful voice at her elbow. "A whole clothesline of Thanksgiving turkeys! Ain't they Jim-dandies!"

Vera smiled down at the small boy and his still smaller sister. They were too preoccupied to notice her presence.

By no means were they of the street ragamuffin type. Though poorly enough clad, their clothes were well cared for; their hair neatly brushed; their bright faces fairly shining with cleanliness.

"I choose that one there!" declared Madge, with eager, pointing finger. "Which do you choose, Willie?"

"Him," he beamed. "Next door to yours. Gee, here comes mother now. She's got our Thanksgiving turkey! She's got our Thanksgiving turkey!"

In a flash the children were darting into the provision shop to meet a thin little woman in black with a big bulge of market basket on her arm.

With a sigh, Vera Richards also turned away—but lingered a moment for one last look at the children's excited happiness over the great event of the Thanksgiving turkey's purchase.

To her surprise, when they came into view, however, all the light had gone out of their little faces and, except for some small packages in the bottom, the mother's market basket was empty.

"You don't mean, mother, that you're not going to buy any Thanksgiving turkey at all?" Willie was asking incredulously.

"But, mother, you said we should have one!" declared Madge, almost in tears. "Mother, you promised!"

"I'm sorry for your disappointment, children." The mother's voice was sharp with pain. "But I'd no idea of the price they were asking. We simply can't afford one, and that ends it."

At first sight of the children's mother, Vera had stepped back; then she stood gazinig into space. For she knew her. Knew her well, although she had never seen the children before. It was Sallie Harris who, like herself, clerked at Lobell & Fisher's, at the lingerie counter, directly next her own glove counter. Often they had had talks together. She was one of the finest women Vera knew—and the proudest. Not for the world must she guess that one of the girls at the store had discovered she was too poor to provide the promised Thanksgiving treat.

As usual, Vera had eaten her dinner downtown before going back to her little uptown apartment, which had no kitchenette, only a gas plate in the bathroom, and from the overheard snatches of talk as she sped across the city it seemed to Vera that every one in the car was either having or was going to a Thanksgiving dinner the next day.

Not for a moment did she wish herself back in her home small town. She was too ambitious to be willing to stagnate in a place with no opportunities for advancement, but—

The "but" meant the thought of her first Thanksgiving away from home, and the bitter-sweet memory of the big family reunions that as far back as she could remember they had always had at her grandfather Blake's farm. And such a wonderful Thanksgiving dinner . . . Such a wonderful Thanksgiving turkey . . .

It was absurd, but as she got out of the car all Vera's homesickness seemed to concentrate in a desperate longing for a Thanksgiving turkey. A beautiful golden brown turkey served whole on a platter. Not restaurant's kitchen!

The outer halls of the apartment house where Vera lived were brightly lighted, but the narrow passage leading to her own little apartment was a dusky pocket.

As preoccupied in thought she turned up it, she suddenly ran against—almost fell over—a big, bulky black object outside her door.

What could it be?

Vera clicked on the light and tugged it in.

It had come by parcel post. Was heavy as lead. Excitedly she opened it.

"For the love of Mike!" she exclaimed.

And laughing until the tears came she gathered up out of the pasteboard container one of the biggest, plumpest finest Thanksgiving turkeys ever seen.

"It 'peared to me Thanksgiving wouldn't be Thanksgiving," she read in her grandfather Blake's penciled scrawl from a card tied around its neck, "unless you had a gen-u-ine Thanksgiving turkey from the farm."

Bless his dear heart, he knew exactly how she felt! But what was she going to do with it? Even if she had it roasted at a caterer's, how could she possibly eat it?

A sudden light leaped into Vera's eyes. She had an inspiration.

In a whirl of excitement she dived into her closet and produced the largest suit-case.

Half an hour later the door bell of a shabby little house tucked away in a shabby little side street rang lustily.

With slow steps Sally Harris, who had been putting the tired-out children to bed, went to answer it.

The disastrous expedition in search of the Thanksgiving turkey had been the last straw to break the courage of the brave little mother, who had gallantly faced so many hard things during the year since her husband's death, and she was thoroughly disheartened.

"Why Vera Richards!" she exclaimed in astonishment, as on opening the door, a glowing young woman, suitcase in hand, briskly entered.

"Don't be alarmed!" laughed Vera. "I haven't been evicted! And although appearances are against me, I haven't arrived, bag and baggage, to spend the night. But I've come to ask if you'll do me a big favor."

"Why, of course, anything in my power," Sallie assured her. "But what has happened?"

"You could never guess! A Thanksgiving turkey has been wished on me. Me, who lives my my lonesome and has only a gas-plate to cook on! Can you beat it?"

"It's from Grandfather Blake's farm. A magnificent bird! And you're the only one of my city friends who has an honest-to-goodness cookstove with an oven. It's a shame to put you to so much trouble," she went on, stooping to open the suit-case, "but if you would cook it and invite me to Thanksgivinig dinner, I'll love you forever."

"Don't talk of trouble;" cried the unsuspecting Sallie, a Thanksgiving of her own singing in her heart at the thought of the glorious surprise in store for the children. "I think cooking a Thanksgiving turkey is the greatest fun and I'll be so glad to have you with us to dinner tomorrow. —Detroit News.

Jerry Grows More Suspicious

'Tis often true the more you know
The faster will suspicious grow.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat daily grew more suspicious. He would have told you that he was too old and had lived through too much not to be suspicious. Any way he didn't like the way a certain boy hung around the Smiling Pool and along the Laughing Brook when Farmer Brown's boy wasn't about. Usually it was very early in the morning or just before dark when Farmer Brown's boy was busy with his chores than the stranger was seen by Jerry Muskrat.

Always after the stranger left Jerry visited the place where he had seen the stranger and with the greatest care looked for traps. He had a feeling in his bones that sooner or later he would find traps. The fact that he didn't find them didn't make him any the less suspicious.

Then after one of these late afternoon visits by the stranger Jerry found some pieces of apple at one of his favorite landing spots. Patiently and carefully he searched for a trap. Satisfied that no trap was there he landed and sampled the apple. And while he nibbled he did a lot of thinking and his suspicious grew. Why had that apple been put there?

He said nothing about it to Mrs. Jerry. Why worry her? He said nothing about it to any of his children. He knew that they would not heed a warning of possible danger and would be only to eager to share in the feast should more apple be placed there. After the next visit of the stranger Jerry found more apple there. That same evening one of the young Muskrats reported a find of the same kind near a certain half-sunken log.

"What did you do with it?" asked Jerry.

"Ate it," replied the youngster promptly.

"You would," replied Jerry, "but did you first look for traps?"

"Traps!" exclaimed the youngster scornfully. "Why should I look for traps? Never has there been a trap there, so why should I look for one now?"

"Never has there been apple there before, so why should there have been any there tonight?" retorted Jerry. The youngster pretended not to hear this.

A few nights later some pieces of carrot were found along the Laughing Brook, and the finders feasted on them. Jerry's suspicious and uneasiness grew. He knew that these good things were left by that strange boy. Farmer Brown's boy had often left goodies in this manner, usually in hard times. Perhaps this strange boy was also doing it out of kindness. Perhaps, but Jerry had a feeling that it was nothing of the kind.

So Jerry kept watch and did his best to make his children feel as he did. This, however, he couldn't succeed in doing. Secretly they laughed at him. They said that he was growing old and nervous. They were unafraid, for nothing serious had ever happened to any of them. So they said nothing when they found apples and carrot near favorite landings of theirs, but greedily ate what they found without taking time or trouble to look for traps.

"We never have seen one and we wouldn't know one if we saw it, so why bother to look?" said one young Muskrat, and his brothers and sister seemed to feel the same way. Only one, a timid one, took any particular care when scrambling up at one of these landings in quest of the goodies so often found there these days.

Meanwhile the weather was growing colder and Jerry and Mrs. Jerry were looking forward to the day when the Smiling Pool would be covered with ice and the youngsters would have little opportunity to go where traps might be.

YOUR HEALTH

Dental Health Service

By Frank A. Delabarre, D. D. S. Boston.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Dentistry has accepted the greater responsibilities and the new objective necessitated by the fact that infections in the mouth are often directly responsible for serious disease in other organs and tissues. Its object today is the maintenance of mouth health for the sake of it's influence on general health.

Our technical skill is admittedly high but the change in attitude necessitates radical changes in diagnosis and procedure; a diagnoses that weighs the causes and effects of disturbances of function in all organs of the body and a procedure more effective in preventing or controlling disease.

Heretofore attention has centered on control after the decay of the teeth has been unmistakable, but now we are thinking in terms of prevention. The old effort has proved to be ineffective in maintaining a high degree of health and efficiency of the mouth, as is evidenced by the number of fillings, crowns, bridges or plates in the average mouth. The problem has been attacked from the wrong end. Repair is less desirable than prevention.

Can we today prevent decay which is the most common of all human ailments? Unfortunately we cannot, since its cause is not definitely known. Many of the contributing factors are recognized and yet the occurrence of decay has not been diminished.

There is, however, a new approach which has been proved to have the most effective control of decay yet devised, and which even carries a degree of prevention with it; an approach which is logically applied before serious damage has been done; that is, Dental Health Service for Children.

Its principles have been unanimously accepted by organized dentistry in many states, by two National Dental associations and, also, by the International Dental Federation.

Quotations from their resolutions state:

"Prevention, to be effective must be applied early in the life of the individual and be systematic and periodic.

"That is the aim to attain prevention and systemic and dental disease.

"No defect is too slight to receive definite attention.

"The temporary teeth should receive as much care as the permanent ones in order to promote proper development of the jaws and head, and to maintain function.

"Particular attention should be given to developmental pits and fissures (i. e. defects in the enamel covering) whether decay is or is not present.

"The most effective dentistry that can be done for any individual is the service rendered between the second and fourteenth years of age."

Considerations of diet, faulty health habits, other physical defects, fatigue and many other factors that have an important influence on growth and development are included in the service.

The whole idea presents the best thought of our profession today. It is logical, practical and economically sound, and the child fortunate enough to receive such attention will escape to a large degree the unfortunate experiences that adults of today have undergone. Complete public co-operation, however, in rigidly conforming to the principles outlined, is essential to its success.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26— Hying himself theaterward to see one of those fascinating mystery plays where, if your observation is quick enough, you can pick up the clues for yourself, the Bystander found himself in distinguished company.

Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States, no less, sat in a stage box for this particular first night.

And if the Bystander didn't beat the head "dick" on the stage to a solution of the mystery, he consoles himself with the notion that maybe he missed a clue now and then, being so busy watching Hughes.

It was worth it. That massive Hughes intellect was focused on the joy of detecting. Having seen him fairly close up at the state department in his cabinet days, the Bystander well knows his powers of concentration.

That was the way he seemed to go at the mystery show. If the chief justice missed a move, it was not for lack of attention. His eyes never left the stage.

Relaxation

Mr. Hughes, it seems, has long sought mental relaxation in detective yarns. That's the way he eases up tension. That is the way the late Chief Justice Taft got his mind off the heavy job of reviewing the complicated cases with which the supreme court is called upon to deal.

President Wilson and a lot of other folks who have carried heavy governmental responsibilities in Washington showed this same liking for detective yarns.

Viewed from that angle, the highhat pose of problem novel writers toward the lesser brethren of pen and typewriter who turn out the ever mounting crop of mystery stories hardly seems justified. Detective stories serve their own highly useful purpose of relaxation.

Fast Reader

Coming back to Mr. Hughes, he is credited with a reading several detective yarns a day when he decides to shut off a while on more weighty business.

That sounds reasonable to any one acquainted with his speed in discovering the essentials of a diplomatic note or a legal brief.

His eyes rove over pages flying by under his fingers in seeming carelessness, yet never seem to miss the point.

Heavy weight lawyers pleading before the supreme court have noted that uncanny power, sometimes with dismay.

The Bystander had a notion as he watched Mr. Hughes that he has mellowed much since he was so narrowly denied the presidency in 1916.

It made him seem quite close and human to see him so enjoying himself as other folks do. President Wilson's theater-going bent made an ordinary man of a president in the public eye, for those moments, anyhow.

What a different road history might have trod had the Hughes of 1916 been the Hughes of 1930?

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Wilson H. Lee Company, New Haven.

The Wilson H. Lee company of New Haven, whose new printing plant on the Boston Post road, six miles south of New Haven, in Orange, is one of the largest in New England and most modern in the country, has been established in New Haven for the past 46 years, and bears an enviable reputation for enterprise, good management, craftsmanship and honorable dealings.

In 1884, Wilson H. Lee, who had been publishing directories since 1873 under the firm name of "The Price & Lee Co.", first in Bridgeport, and later in New Haven, decided that it would be a logical step to establish a printing plant in conjunction with the directory work and purchased the printing business of John Kirschner, who was located on State street and moved it to the Second National Bank building, on the corner of Chapel and Union streets. It is interesting to note that one of the early publications of this firm (in 1886 or 1887) was the first Telephone directory ever issued.

In 1888, Geo. M. Adkins entered the firm, and it was reorganized under the name of Price, Lee & Adkins, Mr. Adkins aking charge of the printing end of the business.

In 1889 the company moved its office to a new building on Meadow street, it being the first commercial enterprise on what was then a residential street.

As the firm progressed, additional city directory printing was done, which, in addition to the printing of catalogs, railroad time-tables and general direct-mail advertising literature, kept the company constantly expanding.

In 1913 the name of the printing company was changed to "The Wilson H. Lee Co.", Wilson H. Lee being the president, and his son-in-law, John R. Demarest, secretary. The directory publishing business was carried on as a separate company, under the original name of "The Price & Lee company."

In 1915, in order to give customers better service in advertising and art work. The Wilson H. Lee Advertising agency was established, and in addition a direct-by-mail department was opened. Since then, direct-by-mail offices have been established in Bridgeport and Hartford, which specialize in imprinting, multigraphing and addressing, on a large scale.

As The Wilson H. Lee company was still occupying the original building at 246 Meadow street, which had been remodelled several times to meet the growing needs of the business, it was decided to build a new plant, and while these plans were being considered, the Lee company entered into a merger with 20 other companies to form the National Bancservice corporation.

As the Lee plant was to become the main Christmas club imprinting division of this corporation, plans for the new quarters were then re-arranged to provide for this new branch of the business, and at the same time to take care of a rapidly expanding business in advertising printed literature. The new plant was built on a tract of land of approximately three and one-half acres on the Boston Post road in Orange, and a considerable sum was involved in the erection of it. In addition to this, about $150,000 was invested in new equipment. Ground for the new building was broken in February 1929 and some of the presses were moved in during June of the same year. As the company was very busy at the time, it was necessary to move the different departments in gradually, so as not to slow up production, but the whole plant had been moved by the end of July.

The new building is of buff-colored brick, and consists of a two-story section in the front center, which is used as an administration building, and a one-story section, which takes up a space equal to two city blocks, and houses the production department. A tower above the administration building has a double purpose, as it not only contains the water tanks, but adds to the structural beauty of the building.

The new plant is under the supervision of Wilson H. Lee as president, and John R. Demarest, treasurer and general manager. M. L. Griswold is the secretary.

Of Mr. Lee's many business experiences during the past 57 years, one of the most interesting must have been to watch the growth of an enterprise begun in a small office with one assistant, and office equipment consisting of one $10 desk, three kitchen chairs and a waste basket, to a organization which employs approximately six hundred people in its various units and has as its principal plant one of the largest and most completely equipped in the country.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF LINCOLN

From the picture of the shabby log cabin above, it can be clearly seen what poverty Lincoln suffered. There was nothing of the pomp and splendor about him that surrounded Washington and the other wealthy presidents. This cabin has been distroyed, but a monument has been erected where it stood.

Our true respect and experience is evident in our service, and is commented upon.

DISCUSS GIVING MORE POWER TO GAME WARDENS

New legislation which will give fish and game wardens authority to make arrests for violations of other than fish and game laws will be sought from the next general assembly, if suggestions made at a conference of wardens, the state fish and game commission, Major Frank Nichols of the state police department and Assistant Attorney General H. Roger Jones at Hartford bear fruit.

The conference was held mainly for the purpose of determining just what police power the wardens have in checking the illegal hunting of deer at night with the aid of strong searchlights and high power rifles and revolvers.

Many instances were cited of deer brought down by rifle marksmen, after first blinding the deer by flashing the rays from spotlights in their eyes. It was also said that valuable cows were shot by these hunters, and one instance was reported of a railroad engineer having been wounded by a bullet from a huntsman's rifle. It was told that some of these cars have been halted when the wardens were suspicious that the operators were engaged in illegal hunting, but when the game warden's uniform was recognized the car drivers "stepped on the gas" and made their getaway.

The cooperation of the state police department and the motor vehicle department has been pledged to assist in checking this illegal hunting of deer, and a meeting of the commission, immediately following the conference, discussed the proposed new legislation.

ANNUAL BOY SCOUT MOVIE
TO BE SHOWN AT Y. M. C. A.

According to the local Boy Scout headquarters the annual Boy Scout moving picture which is shown each year at the Y. M. C. A. as a courtesy to the Boy Scouts of Norwich, will be shown next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 sharp. The picture selected by Secretary Edwin Hill is called "The Deerslayer," and is preceded by an educational synopsis of the life of James Fenimore Cooper.

Scout Chief Sellman says that every effort will be made to get every scout in the city to attend in uniform. Though no charge is made for the picture scouts are being urged by their leaders to be prepared to give a small gratuity in appreciation for the courtesy and to help defray the expenses.

The scout movie which in years past has been shown in January is shown next Sunday because the local Y. M. C. A. has this opportunity of securing the picture "The Deerslayer," which is of particular interest to scouts.

Scouts or leaders desiring further information can secure it by calling the local Boy Scout headquarters.

BUNGALOW AND GARAGE
BURNED IN LEBANON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 26. — Fire, originating in the vicinity of a kitchen range, tonight totally destroyed a large summer bungalow, comprising kitchen, dining-room, milk shed and garage at the farm of Abraham Podbersky on Village hill, town of Lebanon. A call was sent in here to Engine Co. No. 1 and response was mad but the frame dwelling was practically burned to the ground by the time the fire truck had traveled the three miles to the farm. A bucket-brigade succeeded in saving the residence and the main barns, located only about 50 feet away. The damage was estimated at about $2,500 and insurance to the amount of $1,500 was carried on the building and contents.

Accidents from firearms are a serious cause of blindness in Mexico, according to a physician who teaches medicine at the University of Mexico.

CALF SHOOTING COSTLY FOR NEW LONDON YOUTHS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26.—Ralph and Richard Staplin, Hempstead street youths, and Joseph Benvenuti, 16 Goshen street, were in Ledyard justice court this afternoon, charged with wilful and malicious destruction of property of Edward E. Lamb, R. F. D., Mystic. The complaint was amended to that of trespass and the accused were fined $5 and costs each on the charge alleged, but they also were fined $25 for taking an automobile without the permission of the owner and made arrangements for paying $75 for a calf they killed belonging to Lamb. As a result of the compromised settlement, neither of the youths will be locked up.

The Staplin youths, together with Benvenuti, went to Ledyard last Tuesday night and had firearms. On property of Lamb, the boys observed a calf and decided to take possession of it, but to do so while it was alive was a difficult task, so they shot the calf and killed it. They then loaded it into an automobile, which they had also taken possession of as a matter of convenience and started for New London. En route to this city the attention of the auto was directed to Officer McElaney, of the Groton police and when that officer ascertained that the youths had been guilty of perpetrating a crime outside of Groton, for he ascertained the facts in the slaying of the calf, he turned the case over to the state police. The result was that the youths were arrested and held until this afternoon for prosecution. The youths have also agreed to compensate Lamb for the loss of the calf, for they have arranged to pay the farmer $75, at their convenience.

MASONIC TEMPLE OPEN

The hours are to be from 3 to 6 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

Ground was first broken for the erection of the temple in April, 1928, the cornerstone was laid in July, 1928, the flagpole and flag were dedicated on Nov. 11, Armistice day this year, the temple was dedicated with Masonic ceremonies on Friday, Nov. 21, this year, and this reception for the public will conclude the programme of formal events in connection with the use of the new building by the Masonic fraternity.

TURKEY SUPPER BY GERMAN SHOOTING CLUB

Over 400 members, their wives and friends were present at a delightful turkey supper and dance given by the German Shooting club Thanksgiving eve at its clubhouse in Blissville, Lisbon. The hall was effectively decorated by the committee in charge with streamers of red, white and blue suspended from the ceiling, and crepe paper of white and green, the club's colors. A large sign with the word "Welcome," hung over the stage which was also decorated with greenery.

The appetizing menu, served at three long tables, trimmed with laurel and artificial flowers, included roast turkey and dressing, mashed potato, mashed turnip, green peas, cold slaw, pickles, celery, German coffee cake, fruit cake, rolls and coffee. After supper the tables were cleared away and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour to music by Brennan's Ideal Radio orchestra, which also provided an attractive concert programme during the repast.

Much credit is due to the committee in charge which comprised George A. Seidel, Jr., chairman; John Ely, Bernard Wunderlich, Charles Meyer, Edward Meyer and Frederick Meyer and to those assisting. The waitresses included the Misses Frieda Saroski, Antoinette Meyer, Helen and Miriam Seidel, Alice Smith, Clara Russ and Helen Thoma. Those who worked in the kitchen were Mrs. Louis Wunderlich, Mrs. Bernard Wunderlich, Mrs. John Ely, Mrs. Bernard Krauss, Mrs. Howard Rydholm and Mrs. John Frohmader.

BACKFIRE IN AUTO
CALLED OUT FIREMEN

A Marmon sedan owned by Mrs. Lewis A. Beit of No. 390 West Main street, was put out of commission temporarily late Wednesday evening when it caught fire opposite her home from a probable backfire in the carburetor of the machine. Mrs. Beit had gone to the car and attempted to start it and while doing so it burst into flames. The damage resulting was not of great extent, being chiefly to the carburetor, which was rendered defunct.

A telephone call was sent in to fire headquarters at 11:18 o'clock and was immediately followed by a bell alarm from Box No. 73, corner of West Main and Connell streets. The two alarms called out Engine Nos. 5 and 6, Truck No. 1, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan. The blaze was extinguished in short order by the fire fighters, only three gallons of chemical being needed to extinguish it.

Mrs. Lewis Eberhart and Mrs. Sarah Shaw of Norwich, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Church of Montville.

SPEAKS ON VALUE OF CREDIT RATING BUREAU

The Value of a Credit Bureau was the subject of an interesting address given by Charles H. Martin of Springfield, Mass., field representative for the eastern states of the National Retail Credit association, at a well-attended meeting, under the auspices of the Norwich Credit Rating bureau, at the chamber of commerce rooms Wednesday morning. Local merchants and their employes were present.

Mr. Martin explained the general use of the credit bureau, its value to all kinds of business, and spoke of the manner in which it should be used. The speaker emphasized the need of cooperation with the credit manager. Members, he said, should send to the bureau all information relative to new accounts, delinquents, etc. Mr. Martin answered a number of questions asked by those in the audience. Miss Helen Plante, in charge of the credit bureau, conducted the meeting.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for coughs from colds that hang on, for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is $1.25—a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

CREOMULSION
for Difficult Coughs from Colds

No Substitute for Mother Nature

Old Mother Nature has no substitute when aid is needed for torpid, constipated liver. That's why Carter's Little Liver Pills are made out of pure vegetable calomel. Starting thirty ounces of bile flowing freely, they thoroughly cleanse body of all waste. Red bottles. All Druggists. Insist on Carter's by name. Take Carter's.

Peterson's Ointment Healed Sore 18 Years Old

It seems rather a sweeping statement but Peterson's can back up the just claims of his powerfully healing and soothing Ointment with grateful letters from people who have been benefited.

Even one application takes out the soreness, starts to heal, discharge ceases—it instantly relieves piles, bruises, insect bites, chafed and itching skin—it banishes pimples, blackheads and Eczema in a few days.

One 35 cent box proves it — all drugstores.

Robert Phillips of New Salem, Ind., writes: "For 18 yrs. I had an old fever sore on my ankle. I spent hundreds of dollars on it and found no relief. I saw your ad and tried Peterson's Ointment.—it gave me ease and enabled me to sleep for first time in 7 weeks. I kept using it and now my leg is sound and well, thanks to you."

To Break Up a Cold In a Jiffy

Feel Like a New Person In Just a Little While

People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

SLIGHT RECESSION IN PRICES IN DULL SESSION OF STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)— The tidbits of the stock market's Thanksgiving turkey went to the bear crowd today. In general, however, the shorts had to be satisfied with morsels rather than large bites, although there were some recessions of four and five points in rails and volatile specialties.

With sales totaling 1,950,040 shares it was evident that the day's movements were governed by professional activity. The only active interval of the session was the last half hour when traders enlivened the dullness by selling railroad and utility shares, which quickened the downward turn that had been in progress in the market since early afternoon. A few stocks recovered a point from their lows and the industrials closed with moderate losses. U. S. Steel finished 3-4 lower at 145 3-8 compared with its minimum for that day of 144 7-8.

Bonds were weak. German 5 1-2s dropped nearly 2 points, while the domestic list showed liberal recessions.

Wheat and corn were firm in sympathy with firmer foreign quotations, and both grains made fractional net advances. Cotton sagged 10 to 13 points.

The weekly steel reviews told their familiar story of declining operations, offset by expressions of optimism over the ultimate effect of increasing orders from railroads, automobile manufacturers and structural projects. Although this is the normal season for curtailment of ingot output, the steady shrinkage of the last few weeks has not been a strengthening influence on sentiment. "Iron Age" estimated that the ratio had dropped to 41 per cent from 43 per cent last week, but again stressed the importance of the present low inventories and the indications of firmer prices.

Call money was microscopically firmer because of the holiday currency withdrawals from the banks. Funds in the outside market were available at 1 1-2 per cent instead of at one per cent and were slightly less plentiful.

Revival of the old Sears Roebuck-Montgomery Ward merger rumor which has been bobbing up for several months brought the usual denials but was accompanied by strength in the former stock which held nearly two thirds of a three point advance. Montgomery Ward failed to respond and was fractionally off on the day. Wall street is inclined to the view that the anti-trust laws stand in the way of such a combination. Railroad equipment shares displayed group heaviness. Coppers were sluggish and lower while the oils moved irregularly in response to the favorable weekly statistics on production and gasoline stocks. Royal Dutch, up more than 2 points, was a feature.

The large decline in car loadings may have had something to do with the break in the rails, although the reaction came rather too late in the day to attribute it to that report. Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific lost 4, Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, and Chicago Northwestern 3, New York Central 2, and Atchison and Baltimore and Ohio, 1. Half a dozen issues went to new lows.

Net losses in American Can, American Telephone, Anaconda, DuPont, Westinghouse, North American, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light, Pullman, Bethlehem Steel, and Auburn Auto ranged from 1 to 2. Allied Chemical tumbled 5 and Western Union 3.

Wheat closed unchanged to 3-8 higher. Domestic influences included a bullish government weather report. Corn's gains were in the smaller fractions.

Foreign exchanges made slight changes. Italian lira and the Spanish peseta sagged.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)— The uncertain trend of bonds gave way to weakness today under persistent selling of railroad issues and a miscellaneous list of utility, industrial and foreign issues.

The narrow trading range which has prevailed this week was widened as a long list of bonds reacted a point or more to new 1930 minimums. The sharpest reaction in several weeks was reflected in the average for 30 bonds, off 1-2 a point to a new 1930 low at 97.3, compared with the year's peak of 101.9. Both rails and industrials were at new minimums in the averages, the former in a decline of 8-10ths of a point, and unusually sharp break.

While the domestic section was weak foreign bonds were mixed. German and Italian obligations were in supply and the German International 5 1-2s, which have recently pushed up briskly, showed a reversal of trend. In a large turnover the bond declined to 69 3-4, a loss of 1 3-4 and recovered only 1-4 at the close. United States governments moved both ways. Liberties were irregularly higher while Treasury issues were quiet and about steady.

The day's activity made further additions to railroad bonds that have sagged to new 1930 lows during the week. A feature was heavy selling in Boston and Maine 5s, Canadian Pacific 4 1-2s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, St. Louis San Francisco 4 1-2s and Nickel Plate 4 1-2s C, on declines ranging from 1-2 to more than 2 points. St. Paul adjustment 5s dropped 2 3-4 to 32, a new low and the 5s of 1975 reacted 1, also to a new 1930 minimum.

The reaction in the utility group generally was more moderate, and among the highest grade issues declines were confined to small fractions. Bonds of the International Telephone company and its subsidiary, Postal Telegraph, were under pressure as the management refused to say on what action the directors will take next month on the Postal preferred dividend. It is not guaranteed by the parent company. There was a drop of 10 points in Postal Telegraph 5s to 60, a new year's low and its net loss was 8 1-8. The International Telephone debenture 4 1-2s lost 2 3-4, and the debenture 5s and convertible 4 1-2s were fractionally lower.

Stock privilege issues and a miscellaneous list of industrials were sharply lower. Cuba Cane Products 6s declined 2 7-8 to 8, and Punta Alegre Sugar 7s suffered a 50 per cent drop, closing at 10, off 10 1-2 points. Lehigh Valley Coal 5s yielded 10 and Childs company 5s, Chile Copper 5s, B. F. Goodrich 6s, Goodyear 5s, and Lorillard 5 1-2s reacted 1 to 2.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)— Call money steady, 2 per cent all day. Time loans easy, 60-90 days, 2 1-4; 4 months, 2 1-4; 5-6 months, 2 1-2a2 3-4. Prime commercial paper, 2 3-4a3. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 — (AP) — Treasury receipts for Nov. 24 were $6,599,093.45; expenditures $8,194,690.75; balance $97,873,046.36.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Active selling of some of the utility shares unsettled the curb market today, and final prices were irregularly lower. In the aggregate, however, that day's transactions were in moderate volume, reaching 510,600 shares, or only 20,800 more than yesterday's.

American Gas and Electric dropped 4 points, and Eastern States B lost yesterday's 2 point advance. Electric Bond and Share reacted 1 3-4 points but failed to close only 1 1-4 lower. United Light A, Niagara Hudson and Middle West sagged fractionally. American Super Power, however, held steady.

A strong spot in the industrials was Tubize Chatello B, which rose 2 points to 7 in active trading for this issue, presumably reflecting stabilization of rayon prices. Most of the industrials and specialties, however, declined in light trading. Aluminum company traded six points lower, and shares losing a point or two included Atlas Plywood, Columbia Pictures, Mead Johnson, Diamond Match new, General Theatres Equipment, Sherwin Williams and Stromberg Carlson.

Oils were mixed. Humble rose a point and Vacuum and Standard of Kentucky improved fractionally. Indiana and Cities Service eased fractionally, and Gulf lost nearly a point. In the natural gas group, Lone Star lost a point. Coppers eased. Newmont lost a point, and Copper Range sagged to a new low at 6 1-2. In the investment trusts, Goldman Sachs, a firm feature yesterday, slid back 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP) —Affected by big shrinkage of crop yields in Argentina, wheat prices showed an upward trend most of the time today. Authoritative unofficial estimates received here indicated 10,000,000 bushels less Argentine wheat in sight for export than a recent forecast had pointed to. On the other hand, European purchases of wheat from North America during the last 24 hours were figured as totaling as much as 1,750,000 bushels, and the aggregate of probable feeding of domestic wheat to livestock this season was predicted to be in excess of 200,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were steady, ranging from 1-8a1-4c off to 5-8c up, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1-2c higher, with oats at 1-8 decline to 1-4c advance and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2c.

SCHN. PETREL TOWED TO NEW LONDON AFTER NIGHT OF PERIL ON REEF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—Schooner Stormy Petrel, believed to hail from New York, had a close call from destruction by foundering in Long Island sound last night, with her crew of four men and a woman. This would have been another tale of the sea but for the alertness of the United States coast guard for as a result of the activities of this branch of the federal service the schooner was saved, as were the crew.

The Stormy Petrel a boat built back in 1870 was plowing through a dirty sea and a terrific gale last night when she lost her course and was driven on the rocks off Cornfield Reef. The coast guard destroyer Porter and the patrol boats Marion and Vigilant went to the assistance of the distressed vessel, the sails of which were blown away. The Porter was the first boat to arrive beside the Petrel and a line was made fast to the schooner. When the endeavor was made to haul the schooner into deep water the hawser parted and the schooner was again freed and left to the mercy of the wind and sea with the result that she drifted upon Long Sand shoal where the coast guard boats again went to her rescue. The Petrel again was floated and with the boat free of the shoal the Marion took her in tow and started for this port, arriving in the harbor late this afternoon. The crew members were completely exhausted, for when the schooner first grounded on the rocks her seams were opened and she took water freely. The pumps were manned and their constant operation in order to keep the schooner afloat sapped the energy of the crew.

Mrs. Sherman Gay and infant daughter, of Quaker Hill, Waterford, Mrs. Clyde Huntley and infant son, 37 Cape Ann court, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

THIS THIEF WAS NIMBLE AND PINCHED COATES' CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—Theodore Coates, 96 Hempstead street, employed by the city's water and sewer department, reported to the police this evening the theft of his automobile, a Chevrolet which carries Connecticut markers, L-473. Coates drove to Mill street for the purpose of inspecting a pump in the pump house there and was absent from the car no more than five minutes, but that time was sufficient to permit the thief to enter the auto and drive away.

THANKSGIVING BANQUET OF NIAGARA ENGINE CO.

The annual Thanksgiving day banquet of Niagara Engine company was held tonight in the quarters of the company, Bank street and was attended by a large number of members and guests, the latter including members of the city council, city and fire department officials. A turkey dinner was served at 6:30. Brief addresses and toasts followed, and there was a popular program by an orchestra. The affair proved to be one of the most enjoyable of its kind ever sponsored by the officers of the company.

UNTRUTHFUL DRIVERS TO FACE INSPECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—Because of their alleged misstatements on applying for their public service operators' licenses, nine drivers will be given hearings at the county court house Monday morning next at 10:45 by an inspector of the state motor vehicle department. The drivers are: Samuel Bisconti, 8 Montauk avenue; Leto Campo, 24 Grove street; Edward L. Dray, 62 Douglass street; John W. Elwood, 34 Prest street; Charles Favolise, 34 Shaw street; Dominick Gillombardi, 43 Belden street, Robert Potter, 58 Howard street, Russell Taylor, 254 Ocean avenue.

James J. Corbett, 40 Franklin street, this city, will also be heard in relation to a charge of loaning his markers. Raymond Moore, Deep River, will be given a hearing in connection with a fatal accident and Carmine Cutillo, Niantic, will be given a hearing on a charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Harley Wood, of Fishers Island; James Carey, Niantic; Mrs. John McGarry and infant son, 202 Williams street; Dr. Thomas Woodruff, 44 Mott avenue; Arthur Eggleston, 27 Alger place, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Sweeney

Mrs. Mary Margaret Sweeney, widow of John Sweeney, died this morning at her residence, 331 Huntington street, after an illness of but a comparatively short time. She was of advanced years and was born in Ireland, but had resided in New London many years. Mrs. Sweeney is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Charles Alling, Mrs. George Selner and Misses Alice, Nellie and Veronica Sweeney, all of New London, and by three sons, John Sweeney, of this city; James Sweeney, of Hartford, and Thomas Sweeney, of New Jersey.

Back on Beat

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan resumed duty this afternoon, after having served the penalty imposed by City Manager Holt for violations of the police rules and regulations, the officer reporting with the 3:30 o'clock shift. Sheehan was presented in the police court last August, charged with breach of the peace as a result of his having attacked and beaten a sailor on Main street while Sheehan was off duty. A few days later the officer was presented before the city manager on charges and was suspended for 90 days.

THOS. SULLIVAN UNDERGOES OPERATION AT NORWICH

Thomas Sullivan, of Williams street, who has been a patient at Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich, for several months, was operated on this forenoon and late today the patient's condition was reported favorable. It was intended to bring Mr. Sullivan to this city today where he was to have remained over the holiday with his mother and other members of the family. When relatives went to the hospital to bring the young man here, developments of the condition of the patient the past 48 hours had made an operation imperative, and they were naturally surprised at the change in Mr. Sullivan's condition.

Robert Harfnett, a lodger at the residence of Hyman Siff, 39 North Bank street, was injured last night when he fell down a flight of stairs at the rooming house. Hartnett sustained lacerations and bruises of the face and head and was taken to police headquarters, but because of the numerous cuts the man was removed to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Following the dressing of the wounds, Hartnett returned to the lodging house.

Thief Scared Away

The police early today discovered a window in the wholesale beef house of the branch of Wilson & Co., Railroad avenue, smashed, probably the result of a thief having attempted entrance. John Rice, manager of the branch, was notified and upon making an inspection of the interior of the building discovered that none of the stock had been disturbed. It is believed that the thief was scared away before he had an opportunity to obtain entrance.

Salem Justice Fines Driver $100

Floyd LaPierre, R. F. D. Groton, was in the justice court at Salem yesterday afternoon charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs. LaPierre was arrested Tuesday at Salem Four Corners by State Police Officer William E. MacKenzie. The officer was on duty at the corners and when he observed the auto driven by the Groton man approaching, and in a most irregular course, he signaled LaPierre to stop. When the driver heeded the command and MacKenzie noted the condition of LaPierre the latter was arrested. LaPierre was indignant and stoutly denied that he was intoxicated, saying that he had been shopping in New London and was on his way to his home, although when arrested he was headed for Hartford. LaPierre insisted that the strongest drink he had partaken of was cider. Still he could not account for driving toward Hartford when he wanted to go to Groton.

MUCH DAMAGE RESULTS FROM EXPLODING HEATER

An oil burning heater in the building, 153-157 Bank street, owned by Meyer H. Holl, exploded late yesterday and Manuel Silva, 26 Harrison street, the janitor, received lacerations and contusions, being thrown against the side of the boiler house, which is in the rear of the main building. Silva is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, but will be under treatment there but a few days. Silva went to the boiler house for the purpose of inspecting the boiler and without any warning the explosion occurred. The explosion caused Silva to be hurled violently across the building. Besides the boiler being partially wrecked, the building was also damaged, for doors were forced from their supports, while a plate glass window in one of the stores of the main building was shattered.

William Porter, of 749 Ocean avenue, this afternoon reported to the police that his pony had either been stolen or had strayed from its pasture. The animal is white, has brown spots and a defective eye.

Domestic troubles resulting from husbands' indulging too freely in liquor was the cause of three men being in the police court this morning. In each instance the wife caused the husband's arrest when the latter made life miserable in the home.

A John street laborer, who is an ideal mate for his wife when not drinking, had been on a spree and when he went to his home late yesterday his conduct was such that his wife was compelled to bring about his arrest. The accused was sentenced to 20 days in jail, more for the purpose of bringing about his sobriety than anything else, for the man was in a condition where it was advisable to have him where he could not procure liquor for a while. Besides having been charged with intoxication, he was charged with breach of the peace, but the second count was nolled.

A resident of Pequot avenue, charged with intoxication, was given 20 days in jail but execution of the sentence was suspended for a year and the accused was placed on probation. The man went home yesterday afternoon, had been drinking, abused his wife and was finally arrested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy. Members of the man's family are of the opinion that the man is not of strictly sound mentality and that eventually, especially if he continues to drink liquor, he will of necessity be placed under restraint.

The most serious offender of this nature was a Denison avenue man employed as a fireman. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail on the intoxication charge, but execution of the sentence was suspended and the accused was placed in custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The charge of breach of the peace was nolled. In imposing the penalty, Judge Daniel M. Cronin rebuked the man for his conduct and directed him to deliver his wages to Probation Officer Mansfield every week and the latter will turn the money over to the man's wife. The accused was arrested last night when he went to his home and was intoxicated. He was taken into custody by Patrolmen John Sullivan and George Bruhns.

A fisherman charged with intoxication had the count nolled. He was arrested by Patrolman Albert Iverson last night when the fisherman hired a taxicab and then refused to pay. At police headquarters, however, the man paid the fare of $2.50.

A Main street man, charged with intoxication, was given suspension of judgment. He was arrested on Main street last night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, where he was making a nuisance of himself.

Elisha J. Rathbun, of Noank, was charged with passing a traffic signal on the left hand side, having been arrested last night by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran. Rathbun was fined $5.

At the beginning, a committee of nine merchants was appointed to circulate the paper among merchants and business men in Mystic. This committee was Max Bendett, chairman; Benjamin Bendett, Louis Sklarew, Louis Bendett, L. E. Vatet, J. A. Schoonover, L. E. Kinney, S. Curlenjik and Peter Hammacher. With the money a committee of merchants was to purchase groceries from local dealers and deliver them to needy families in time for Thanksgiving. At a later meeting Max Bendett, chairman; Peter Hammacher, treasurer, and Benjamin Bendett, secretary, checked up the amount of the fund and number of contributors, prepared in detail a list of groceries, this being an aftermath to a thorough investigation as to the number of families considered really in need of assistance. If any of the fund is left, it will be kept to be used later on to aid the most in need. It was found that 45 families would be provided a basket of groceries and the amount in each basket would be in proportion to the number in each family. The baskets contained potatoes, onions, turnips, carrots, beans, canned vegetables, butter, lard, flour, rice, coffee, canned milk, macaroni and a piece of meat for a roast. The baskets were delivered Tuesday by one of the members of the committee, with John Marchand who gave his services to aid in this worthy cause. The list of contributors, merchants, business men and friends, who all gave cheerfully, follows:

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Citizens of Norwich are about to be given a chance to have their cake and to eat it as well.

As a rule, when one gives to charity, he has to sacrifice something on his own part; deny himself some personal luxury or enjoyment in order to make somebody else happy. However, those who attend the Palace or Broadway theatre during the week of November 23rd to 29th will be given the opportunity to enjoy themselves and make a personal contribution to a local charity at the same time.

During the seven days from November 23rd to 29th, every purchaser of a ticket to the Palace or Broadway theatre will be given a ballot entitling him to vote for the local charitable institution which, in his opinion, should receive the Brunswick radio which will be given away during the week.

The radio which is to be given away is now on display in the lobby of the theatre and can also be seen in the Ferguson radio store.

Palace Theatre

Big Money featuring Eddie Quillan, Bob Armstrong, Jimmy Gleason, is a wise cracking, fast rolling, story of the Big Stem, where all the boys have a chance to do their stuff, and they do it, a decidedly new picture of a rollicking racketeer with more nerve than common sense and a streak of luck a mile wide, hilarious ascents and descents of a wise cracking boy who was befriended by Lady Luck until love for a charming girl engrossed him, then—what a picture—

On the same bill, The Dancers, featuring the beautiful Lois Moran, the most talented young lady of the screen, in a story of swift stepping youth, as modern as a flying trip to Europe, as smartly sophisticated as frivolous youth at its most daring. Modern morals, modern maidens who attempt to steer clear of marriage and hit the pace that kills the soul. Swift, smart, sophisticated yet surprisingly sweet so that a dozen noted men wanted to marry this hectic girl. Lois Moran and Phillips Holmes are the romantic leads in this drama of youth.

Coming Saturday for four days, Constance Bennett, the lovable [illegible] star of Common Clay and Son of the Gods, is presented in her latest and greatest success, Sin Takes a Holiday.

TO STOP CHILDREN FROM DRESSING AS RAGAMUFFINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—New York's modern burghers are going to try to do something tomorrow about an old Thanksgiving custom which the Dutch burghers tried in vain to abolish nearly 300 years ago.

They are going to try to keep the children from dressing up as ragamuffins and going about the streets begging for pennies.

MUSKRAT 'RANCH' REPLACES KANSAN'S HERD OF CATTLE

SUGAR BEETS THRIVE IN ENGLISH CLIMATE

LONDON —(AP)— English climate, subject of vocal and written criticism, is ideal for sugar beet raising.

Advising English farmers to center their efforts on one strain of beet, I. J. Schapringer, beet expert, says England may in time challenge American growers with English beets.

"The English climate," he said, "is ideal. All that remains is to select the proper strain and cultivate that type of beet extensively."

POETRY

Thanksgiving

If you had time to look about
And see how others fare,
How many hearts are torn with grief
How many filled with care,
You'd realize your blessings great
And, kneeling humbly, say:
Thank God for home and loved ones dear,
On this Thanksgiving day!

If you had time to look about
And see how others work,
To feed and clothe their little ones,
Your tasks you'd never shirk
You'd be ashamed to whine or fret;
You'd say, on bended knee:
Thank God for this, my blessed lot,
How kind you've been to me!

If you had time to look about
And see how some men try
To struggle on with health impaired,
Resolved to do or die,
You'd get a firmer grip on life,
And say, on bended knee:
Thank God for health and strength to toil
As long as life may be!

If you had time to look about
And see how others give
Their lifeblood that a fellowman
In peace and joy may live,
You'd bow your head in gratitude
And say, on bended knee:
Thank God for this, my heritage,
A land of liberty!

—Hannah Leary Doppmann, in Springfield Union.

So Much To Be Thankful For

There is so much to be thankful for,
As the days and years slip swiftly by;
Sea-mist on an amber waste of marsh,
A gray gull's wing 'gainst a grayer sky.

The swishing undertone of a breeze
Rustling gold leaves in my poplar tree,
Soft feathers of cloud that nightfall trails
As the moon-path silvers an empty sea;

I'm thankful for wood-lined country lanes,
Deep russet and scarlet sumach-clad;
Even this tremulous afternoon
With its hazy sunlight makes me glad

There is so much to be thankful for!
So short is each fleeting day and year,
The shining hours elude our grasp—
Nor will they linger, however dear.

Essex. Agnes Choate Wonson

SEVERAL MAJOR FOOTBALL GAMES ARE ON SCHEDULE FOR TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The renewal of four old football rivalries will provide the pieces de resistance of Thanksgiving day football in the east. On the eve of battle the colleges that have taken it on the chin down through the years have hopes of turning the tables on ancient foes.

Cornell tackles Pennsylvania at Philadelphia with even gloomy Gil Dilbie in a state bordering on optimism. Columbia, with the participation of its injured quarterback ace, Ralph Hewitt, virtually assured, hopes to turn back Syracuse in their annual struggle here.

Colgate, which has lost more games to Brown than it has won, figures to give the Bears a trouncing in their morning encounter at Providence, and Penn State, despite a disappointing season, will be out to surprise the Pittsburgh Panthers in their lair.

Colgate is perhaps the only outstanding favorite in these four featured games, the Maroon having piled up an impressive record against eastern opposition. Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Pittsburgh, in the other contests, figure to hold slight edges but no great upset would be involved should they be turned back by their old rivals.

In various parts of the east several other games of local interest will be staged. Among them are the Springfield-Vermont affair at Springfield, and the Canisius-St. Thomas game at Scranton.

There is the dope on the four principal rivalries showing when they began, how many victories each college has gained, and the score of last year's contests:

Penn-Cornell, 1893, Penn won 27, Cornell 7; ties 2; Penn won last year, 17-7.

Pittsburgh-Penn State, 1904, Pitt won 17, Penn State 7; ties 2; Pitt won last year, 20-7.

Brown-Colgate, 1908, Brown won 7, Colgate 3; ties 4; Colgate won last year, 32-0.

NOTRE DAME WILL START REGULARS AGAINST ARMY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Notre Dame's regulars will start against the Army Saturday and the probability is the shock troops will remain on the side lines throughout as they did in the Northwestern contest.

Before their first drill of the week today, Knute Rockne told his men that the Army would be about as tough as Northwestern and that the weather would make the going even tougher. Rockne was so concerned about the playing conditions of Soldier field that he planned a trip to Chicago to inspect the grounds after the benefit game between Notre Dame All Stars and former Northwestern aces tomorrow.

A foot and a half of snow on the Notre Dame practice field caused Rockne to hold today's practice indoors. Every regular was present, even Tom Kurth, whose face was banged up in the Northwestern battle. Two hours of signal drill, and a rehearsal of plays which have not been employed in previous games, kept the squad busy. Dan Henley and Larry Mullins, who are dividing the work at fullback, were given a lot of attention, and Rockne indicated that Hanley, a sophomore, might be in the starting lineup against the cadets.

Rockne put in a long busy day, coming out at 10 o'clock this morning to give the All Stars their last drill, then actively directed the varsity's workout. He will see the benefit program at Soldier field tomorrow, then will hustle back to South Bend for practice. There will be noliday for the Irish, who will be given their only scrimmage of the week when Rockne returns tomorrow. He hopes to hold it outdoors, but with the field in bad condition was expected to use the field house again to prevent injuries.

Of the expected crowd of 125,000 Saturday, about 20,000 will go from South Bend.

COLGATE IS FAVORITE TO BEAT BROWN TEAM

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 26—Colgate's high scoring eleven is an almost prohibitive favorite to defeat Brown here tomorrow, in their annual Thanksgiving day football game, the 15th in the series between these two elevens. Brown has lost its regular quarterback, Frank Gurll who has an injured foot, and Vahe Johnson, varsity end, has likewise been benched by an injury. Harris, will replace Gurll in the starting lineup while Allen will be at end.

Both teams worked out this afternoon, the Colgate squad testing the turf in the Brown stadium while the Bears limbered up on Aldrich field. Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate announced that he will start his full strength with Macaluso, the nation's leading scorer in the fullback position.

One of the largest crowds in this history of the series is expected despite Brown's defeat by the New Hampshire eleven last week as these games hav developed some surprising upsets in previous years.

COCHRANE TAKES HONORS FROM HOPPE IN MATCH

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Welker Cochrane, who recently annexed the 18.1 balkline billiards title from Willie Hoppe, took all honors in an exhibition match with the former champion here today. In the afternoon he won the first half of 18.1 balkline, 200 to 138, while at night he conquered 200 to 137. His run of 92 in the afternoon was high. Cochrane took both three cushion matches, 25 to 21, and 25 to 16; he had a high run of 12 at night. They exhibit at Hartford tomorrow.

PLAINFIELD AND N. L. RANGERS PLAY AT BALTIC TODAY

The Plainfield soccer football team will battle the fast traveling New London Rangers at Baltic Thanksgiving day in one of the most important football games of this year's schedule Plainfield being in a tie for first place with J. B. Martin of Taftville, battled to a two to two tie at New London on November 2nd, at Calkins field, but due to Plainfield putting in a sub in the last few minutes of the game New London protested and was rewarded a replay. This game is to be played on neutral ground and will also be in charge of a neutral referee, these teams being fortunate in getting Mr. Shann of Putnam who has refereed quite a few games around this section proving his worth as a efficient handler of soccer football. A large crowd will follow these two teams and a lively game is expected with the Plainfield boys holding a slight edge over New London due to the fact that they are the only team which hold victories over Taftville, Jewett City and Wauregan but have not clashed with Putnam or Baltic. This game is scheduled at 2:30 prompt.

The probable line-up will be as follows:

New London	Plainfield
Brooks, g	g, J. Korab

TILDEN RANKED SECOND BY ENGLISH EXPERT

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden, although beaten by Johnny Doeg in the United States championship, is rated second only to Henri Cochet of France this year by A. Wallis Myers, English tennis expert, who annually names the "world's first ten" players. Myers' selections for 1930 are published in the current issue of American Lawn Tennis.

The men's list contains the names of five Americans and the women's three, with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody again in No. 1 position. Doeg is ranked fourth, behind Cochet, Tilden and Jean Borotra. Betty Nuthall the English girl who won the American women's title in Mrs. Moody's absence, is rated ninth.

Tilden's dramatic comeback to the English championship at Wimbledon as well as his Davis cup challenge round victory over Jean Borotra are reflected in his advance from fourth to second place, passing Borotra. A year ago Myers placed Borotra as well as the other French stars, Cochet and Lacoste, ahead of the American.

Newcomers to the men's first ten this year are Frank Shields, finalist against Doeg for the American title; Wilmer Allison, finalist against Tilden at Wimbledon and conqueror of Cochet in an earlier round; and Christian Boussus, young French southpaw. Missing from the 1929 list are Lacoste, who played no competitive tennis, Frank Hunter and John Van Ryn.

Men—

1.—Henri Cochet, France; 2.—W. T. Tilden, United States; 3.—Jean Borotra, France; 4.—J. H. Doeg, United States; 5.—Frank Shields, United States; 6.—Wilmer Allison, United States; 7.—G. M. Lott, United States; 8.—H. L. De Morpurgo, Italy; 9.—Christian Boussus, France; 10.—H. W Austin, England.

Women—

1.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, United States; 2.—Frl. Cecile Aussem, Germany; 3.—Mrs. Holcroft-Watson, England; 4.—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, United States; 5.—Mme. Renee Mathieu, France; 6.—Miss Helen Jacobs, United States; 7.—Miss Phyllis Mudford, England; 8.—Senorita Elia De Alverez, Spain; 9.—Miss Betty Nuthall, England; 10.—Frl. H. Khrahwinkel, Germany.

ARMY TEAM LEAVES FOR BATTLE WITH NOTRE DAME

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 26—(AP)—Army's football caravan, bound for Chicago and Saturday's major battle with Notre Dame, pulled noisily out of West Point at 6 p. m., today with the disappointed Cadet corps cheering them on their way.

The squad of 38 men, all in good condition, worked hard this afternoon, scrimmaging for half an hour against the green shirted scrubs equipped with Notre Dame plays. Capt. Humber, guard, Suarez, tackle, Carlmark, end, and Bowman, quarter, were kept out of scrimmage to prevent possible aggravation of healed injuries.

The corps of Cadets, not permitted to make the trip to Chicago, gave the team a big sendoff, gathering with the Army band in the central area, where the punishment tours are paced off each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon, to sing the Army songs and form a parade to the gym. There each player was cheered and forced to speak.

The Army scrubs, having taken their beatings for the season, will be taken to Chicago to see the battle in Soldier field but their train does not leave until Friday morning. Major General Smith, commandant at the Military academy, will accompany them west with his staff.

The varsity is due in Chicago tomorrow noon. They will stay at a country club outside the city and practice in the big stadium Friday afternoon.

Major Ralph Sasse, head coach, had no word to say of his starting lineup. He had Glattly, a big fullback, and Frentzel, a halfback, practicing punts and placements much of the afternoon while Charley Broushous, Army's one-play drop-kicking specialist, was busy at another end of the field lifting boots over the goal posts. His record in practice this week is 28 successive goals without a miss from the extra-point distance.

Army's starting backfield is expected to have Bowman or Carver at quarter, Stecker and Kilday at the halves, with either Glattly or Sebastian at fullback.

SHYMA QUINTET PLAYS DANIELSON TEAM AT PARISH HALL TODAY

The basketball lovers of this vicinity are in for a real treat this afternoon at the Parish hall, Taftville, when Danielson, the leaders in the Southern New England league now being run at the Plainfield Community house, invade Taftville to clash with Manager Sullivan's Shyma team. It is expected to be a game for blood as there is a keen rivalry existing between these two teams which was started last year besides the old rivalry between Taftville and Danielson which has existed for quite a number of years. The Danielson boys have so far this season cleaned up everything that they have met and feel sure that they will keep the record intact at the hands of the local Shymas who have lost their only game played so far this season.

Rumors coming from Danielson have it that the Danielson management has strengthened up for this game having secured one of the fastest players in the Southern New England league to bolster up its lineup. Whether this was true could not be confirmed at a late hour last night. The lineup divulged by the Danielson management is Gale and Young, forwards, Mayhew, center, and Adams and Withey at the guard positions This is the same lineup which has represented that town in all of its league games so far this season. Most of these boys are Killingly high alumni and have been playing together for a few seasons.

Manager Sullivan of the Shymas put his team through a stiff practice for this game and all of his regulars were declared to be in condition with the exception of Lefty Dugas, who underwent a minor operation earlier in the week and will be unable to play for a few weeks. Taftville will be depending upon the following players to carry the Shyma colors to victory: Rabbit Gauthier, Chink Wilke at the forward positions, Coleman at center, with Captain Pingree and Lemieux in the backcourt. Adams and Labarre will be held in utility.

A preliminary which is rivaling the big game will be between The American Legion team and the Shymas Juniors. This feud has been going on for the past two seasons, both in baseball and basketball with neither team having much of an edge on the other. The Juniors will take the floor in the following order: Dugas and Sammy Raymond, forwards, Pete Raymond, center, Durr and Peltier guards, Pepin and La Flesh in reserve. The American Legion would not divulge its lineup other than to state they will be led by Paradis, who is this year playing with Assumption college Enos Eccleston will officiate at the games.

As a special attraction the Shyma management has secured Leith's Melody Boys to furnish music for the dancing which is to follow the games which are scheduled to start at two o'clock. A banner crowd is expected to take part in this big double attraction.

SHYMA SPORT FLASHES

Volley Ball League

A fighting Columbia team, playing in a reversal of form staged a strong comeback Monday evening and swamped that highly touted Notre Dame team three straight to furnish the upset of the evening. White, Snow and Sammy Raymond, that strong front line, played brilliantly throughout the three games. All the Columbia team played well, even their server Leo Peltier, who at times thought he was knocking flies to the outfield. For the losers Pete Raymond played a fine, but losing battle.

In the first game of the evening the Yale Bulldogs let go with a bang and gave their West Point opponents a neat lacing, but in the second game the Bulldogs growled aplenty, but didn't bite a bit and the Kaydets led by Georgie Adams, basketball hero, threw their opponents from New Haven, for a total loss, amounting to one game. The Yale team staggered and wobbled to victory in the third game to gain a tie for first place in the league with Columbia. These games were not well played, they were listless, there were no thrilling moments. In fact it would have been a washout had it not been for the Army cheering section. The hall was packed with loyal Army rooters all who came for one reason only, and that was to see that famous Blue aggregation go down in defeat and they almost got their wish.

In the final games of the evening Princeton who lost three games last week surprised the nation by defeating a fair Harvard team three games, thereby going into a tie for second place with Notre Dame, last week's league leaders.

Albert Dugas and Pete Finn starred for the Tigers. Titi Peltier smiled cheerfully throughout the three games trying to ward off defeat with his sex appeal, but without avail. The important facts about these games were that Harvard scored but four points in the entire three games. The scores set a league record which should stand for many weeks. The first game 15-4, second game 15-0 and the third game 15-0.

League Standing

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Yale	4	2	.666
Columbia	4	2	.666
Princeton	3	3	.500
Notre Dame	3	3	.500
Army	2	4	.333
Harvard	2	4	.333

Basketball Shots

The Shyma team plays the fast Radio Five of Danielson Thankskgiving afternoon which should be a fast game. After losing their first game the boys are out to do one thing and that is to win.

The team will wear their flashy new uniforms for the first time Thursday and intend to initiate them properly.

A fast preliminary game will start at 2 p. m. the main game starting about 3 p. m. giving everybody ample time for making the turkey look sick.

After filling up on turkey and pumpkin pie it would be bad policy to lie down and rest, we are wisely advising each and every one of you to attend the game and cheer your troubles away. Eccleston, former "Y" senior basketball star will handle the game with the whistle.

STONINGTON-WESTERLY CLASH IN ANNUAL GRID CLASSIC

At 10 o'clock this morning before an estimated crowd of 3500 excited football fans Stonington and Westerly will again do battle. Mathematically Westerly will be a decided favorite, losing but one game out of nine already played while Stonington can only boast a record of two wins, four ties and two defeats. Because of the timeworn jinx that seems to give the underdog the victory in this annual encounter—Westerly will carry no odds. Stonington has won this annual classic for the last five years and hopes to add another game to this record.

Before mentioning the teams it is only right to look to the two hard-working coaches. Coach H. D. Rogers of the Blue and White side has held his position for nearly fourteen years having successful years and then again tasting disappointment. During his time served at Westerly he had occasion to start a well known athlete on his career, namely Leo Smith. Little did he know that in some ten years from then he would be matching wits with him. But as the teams line up today for the starting whistle there they will be, no more teacher and pupil but man to man, each trying to outguess the other.

The outcome of today's game lies in the hands of the linemen. Eldridge and Green, two of Westerly's star backfield men have been ruled out of the game because of studies and "Eddie" Goyette. Stonington's triple threat man should he play will perform under the handicap of a bad ankle which he sprained last Friday. Chevalier, Stonington's big hope on the line, will also be in the same fix with Goyette. Westerly has the heavier line but Stonington has the scrapper with Grimes, Hanley, Platt, Arnott, Harrison and Brannegan filling the guard, tackle and end positions.

This game will not only be played for honor and glory but also for a silver cup offered by Mr. Findlay well known Westerly man. The outcome as usual in this game will remain in uncertainty until the last play has been executed. The lineups:

Stonington	Westerly
Harrison, le	le, Trumpetto

The Pennsylvania State Athletic commission recently notified Walker that he would have to defend his title with a "sutiable opponent" by January 1 or have the championship declared vacant in Pennsylvania.

Snow Causes Cancellation of Game

GRAFTON, W. Va., Nov. 26—(AP)—Football game scheduled for Grafton tomorrow between Davis and Elkins and the U. S. Marine corps team from Philadelphia, was cancelled late today because of a heavy snow storm in this area. Eight inches of snow blanketed Grafton and the fall continued tonight.

LINEUPS FOR DARTMOUTH-CARDINAL TILT ANNOUNCED

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 26—(AP)—Driving rain greeted Dartmouth's football squad today as it went through heavy practice for the game with Stanford Saturday.

The change in weather was particularly suitable to Coach Jack Cannell, who figures if it rains the day of the game his heavy Dartmouth line will have a big advantage.

Practice was devoted to fundamentals, tackling, blocking and clipping. Cannell indicated he was through with scrimmage, Dartmouth having had plenty in the week following the Cornell game.

BIG MARATHON RUN AT NEW LONDON TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26.—A team of five runners from the Duwell club of Norwich will vie with Clarence DeMar, veteran marathoner, to hold the Rose City's interest in the Thanksgiving day 15-mile run to be staged here tomorrow afternoon under the sponsorship of the New London Y. M. C. A. The starting time has been set for 2:30 o'clock. There were 51 runners entered tonight, including some of the leading campaigners from all over the New England states.

Besides DeMar there are entered Fred Ward, recent victor over DeMar in the Dallas, Tex., ten-mile run; Arthur Garvin, New York, twice winner of the A. A. U. 15-mile run; Willie Kyronen, of Brooklyn, one of the best known of the hoofers in the metropolitan district, and many others.

Following the run there will be a supper at 5:30 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., when Evan Hale, president of the Y's men's club, will preside. The greeting will be by Councilor William C. Fox and the cups will be awarded by Judge Alfred Coit, president of the association.

TOO COLD EVEN FOR GRID GAMES IN MID-WEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—It is indeed a tough winter that causes football games to be cancelled.

From all parts of the country, but principally in the middle-west, numerous cancellations and postponements were reported today, with severe snowstorms and cold the reasons for depriving gridiron enthusiasts of their Thanksgiving day football entertainment.

Bradley college of Peoria, Ill., and Cornell college of Iowa, will play their Thanksgiving day game in 1931—if the weather is seasonable. Tomorrow's battle was cancelled because it was impossible to clear nearly a foot of snow and ice from the Bradley gridiron, which was declared to be dangerous for football.

Sub-zero temperatures at Decorah, Ia., caused officials of Luther college and Columbia college of Dubuque, Ia., to call off their annual game, and eight inches of snow and freezing weather ruined plans for the United States Marines' game with Davis-Elkins college, scheduled for Grafton, W. Va.

Scores of high school games in the middlewest were called off or postponed, and the schools faced serious financial setbacks by the loss of the feature games of their seasons.

PLAINFIELD PROS SIGN McNALLY, ST. MARY'S STAR

The Plainfield Pros who open their season on Friday evening have signed McNally of Springfield to play one of the guard positions. McNally is a former star of the St. Mary's college basketball team of California, having played three years with the varsity while a student there. McNally was also a football star while at St. Mary's but his brilliance was shown in basketball. It will be remembered that St. Mary's football team administered the first defeat in two years to the Fordham a week or so ago.

For the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies are scheduled to meet the fast Danielson team.

The man has disappeared. Upon his evidence of having bought liquor at Zienkowski's house at the corner of Forest and Aqueduct streets, and at the Martell house on Cove street, the two accused were arrested on the charge of violation of the liquor law.

SPEAKS TO ROTARIANS ON GERMANY'S NEW SPIRIT

"The Germany of Today" was the topic of an illustrated address by John George Bucher, Fellow of the Royal Geographic society, member of the lecture staff of the bureau of commercial economics, who spoke at the luncheon meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel.

"Such feats as the world trip of the Graf Zeppelin, the record smashing voyages of the steamship Bremen and the flights of the 'Dornier X,' the giant among the world's great flying machines," said Mr. Bucher, "are eye-catching, front-page stuff, of course. But they are merely spectacular outward evidences of Germany's great technical-industrial resurrection. What impresses the close-range observer even more, is the activity, the energy and industriousness with which all constructive forces in the land are at work,—how brawn and brains, the workman and the scientist, the merchant and manufacturer, in short, all agencies for economic and cultural advancement pull together, and successfully, to lift the country to its new place. Behind it all there is, of course, a new spirit, a spirit born of hard experience and the will to give the best that is in the people—to work back into the sunshine and to make friends."

"No foreign visitor, especially when he comes from the United States," said the speaker, "can fail to observe this desire on the part of everybody in Germany, to make him feel at home in their country." Referring to the great world advertising convention last summer, to which many hundreds of the profession had gone from the United States, Mr. Bucher said: "These men and women, better trained observers probably than the average tourist, all were simply delighted with what they saw on their tours of the country. And they surely had their eyes open!"

"One of the most remarkable signs of the success of Germany's efforts at economic rehabilitation," he said, "is the splendid condition of the German railroads which are, by the way, the world's largest unified railway system, with about 750,000 employees. Roadbed, rolling stock, shops and methods of administration and organization have been thoroughly modernized. The service is really excellent. Trains are scrupulously clean, comfortable and so punctual that one can regulate one's watch after the timetable. Last summer, we rode on several of the rapid express trains, which have again reached their pre-war speed, and these, with de luxe flyers such as the famous Rheingold express, the finest train in all Europe, have nothing to fear by comparison with our own best trains in the United States. But still, fares are lower than here. With Americans, trains as the Rheingold express have made such a hit that the number of cars had to be increased to accommodate them." Conductors and other personnel coming in contact with foreign visitors, said Mr. Bucher, often speak several languages, as do special police in all larger cities and, of course, hotel employees, so that an American can well make his way through the country without knowing the notive tongue. "These and many other little conveniences," the speaker observed, "make travel in Germany a real pleasure."

"One thing which impressed me greatly," continued Mr. Bucher, "is the remarkable activity of athletics of all kinds in Germany. I visited several fine golf courses; saw many perfect tennis courts, as well as numerous horse and motor racing tracks. The significant thing is the number of really remarkable athletic fields which have been built by city governments everywhere, and as I think of what I saw in this respect it is difficult not to use superlatives. Most of these places contain a large field for important matches with concrete stands, some of which seat as many as 50,000 people. All have several smaller fields for practice games of all kinds, and each has at least one splendid out-door swimming pool. Thus instead of thousands of people merely watching two well known clubs at some game, the people themselves are playing in a way that they never before had facilities for doing. While it is true that great crowds attend important matches, yet when it is remembered that in the city of Frankfurt, for example, one in every five of the city population is a member of a sports club, it will be seen that the Germans are playing. And they are glad to share their facilities with the visitor, so that those interested can not only watch great sporting events of all kinds, but if so inclined, can engage in any sport desired."

The talk was illustrated with motio pictures which covered Berlin, Dresden, Munich, Frankfurt, Bremen, Hamburg, Cologne, Breslau and others, and in each of the cities the speaker gave an interesting review of living conditions as he found them, so that an excellent idea of the Germany of today was obtained. A trip along the Rhine in the famous Rheingold express was but a preparation for visits to many famous galleries where masterpieces of art and sculpture are seen.

During the course of the talk a visit was made to the beautiful snow-capped Bavarian Alaps, and upon the screen were thrown scenes of rare charm intermingled with some hair-raising feats of mountain climbing in every second of which there was a thrill.

President Harold D. Larrabee who introduced the speaker also presided at the business session of the club assisted by Rev. T. M. Shipherd and Bruce F. Rogers as song-leader. The community service committee, Joseph C. Worth, chairman, was to make arrangements for the annual distribution of gifts of clothing, shoes and other articles of wearing apparel to the needy children of the city.

Arthur M. Thompson, chairman of the program for December, announced that at the first meeting in the month E. J. Guthrie would be the speaker, the second will be in charge of Christopher M. Gallup, the third meeting is tentative. William G. Park will be in charge of the Christmas meeting and Rev. Dr. Shipherd has the last meeting in the month. Lucius Briggs and Charles E. Taylor were named as song leaders for the month.

TWO BOUND OVER ON AUTOMOBILE THEFT CHARGE

Charged with theft of an automobile, Kenneth H. Whitlock, 24, and George Dickson, 26, coast guardsmen, of the coast guard academy at New London, were Wednesday morning bound over to the criminal superior court by Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis in the city court. Bonds were set at $1,000 in each case. The two coast guardsmen have confessed that they and another guardsman, Michael Barniak, stole a Chrysler coupe from the Dolco garage alley, West Thames street, late Monday night. They had been guests at a wedding reception in Thamesville and were on the way to New London when they took the car for transportation. The coupe crashed into a Norwich-bound trolley car at Derry hill, in Montville, and Barniak was badly injured. He is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, and, when discharged at the hospital, will be arrested on a charge of theft. Whitlock it is understood, was driving the machine when it was wrecked. In addition to the theft charge he will be charged with driving while intoxicated and driving without a driver's license.

The confessions, secured by State Police Officer James Dygert, were read in the court. The night of the accident, Dickson and Whitlock claimed that they had been picked up by the driver of the Chrysler and were just riding with him in the machine. They claimed that the driver disappeared after the accident. The machine which was practically demolished in the crash, was owned by Arthur Sylvia of No. 246 Main street.

It is understood that a Norwich policeman on Thamesville beat saw the car drive by him on the night of the accident and at that time there were only three men in it.

TAFTVILLE MAN APPEALS FINE FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

In the city court Wednesday morning Albert J. Bryant, 33, of Taftville, was found guilty of reckless driving and was fined $35 and costs. A second charge of driving while under the influence of liquor was dropped. Accused appealed and furnished bonds of $250 pending trial in the court of common pleas.

A machine operated by Bryant, according to the testimony, struck a fruit wagon owned and driven by Henry Hankin, Boswell avenue, near Seventh street. The vehicles were moving in opposite directions and the accident happened in the late afternoon of November 20th. Mr. Hankin was thrown to the highway and slightly injured and a wheel was ripped off the wagon.

Hankin testified that Bryant gave him a false registration number and then drove away. A boy who happened to be at the scene, got the number of the car, it was turned over to the police and inquiry revealed the fact that it was Bryant's car.

Bryant testified that the number he gave Hankin was his telephone number and not his registration number. He claimed that Hankin's wagon had no light on it and denied that he, (Bryant) had been drinking.

YEAR OF 1920 SHOWS BEST HEALTH RECORD

The year 1930 is destined to set a record as the best of all health years among the industrial populations of the United States and Canada, unless a severe setback occurs in the last six weeks of the year. For the first ten months of the year, the death rate among the 19,000,000 industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, a reliable cross-section of the population—was 8.7 per 1,-000 as compared with 9.5 for the same period in 1929, a drop of 8.3 per cent. Reports received by the insurance company's statisticians indicate that similarly good health conditions prevailed during the first two weeks of November.

The absence of widespread prevalence of any of the infectious diseases has been largely responsible for the year's good health record, according to the insurance company. Deaths from influenza and pneumonia have shown decided decreases over 1929, while the considerable declines observed this year in the mortality from organic diseases and chronic nephritis may be attributed, in part, to the improved influenza situation.

The tuberculosis death rate shows a large decline over a year ago, while the diphtheria death rate has dropped 30 per cent, as compared with that of last year, and 50 per cent, in the past three years. Suicides have been somewhat more frequent than during the January-October period in 1929, and homicides show a small increase. The cumulative death rate for automobile fatalities to the end of October is 20.2 per 100,000, as compared with 19.9 in 1929.

Georges Fleishmann, former resident of the Canterbury turnpike and now of Bucharest, Roumania, where he is in the employ of a large wholesale grain company, writes an interesting letter to local friends regarding a trip he made the latter part of September to Belgrame, the capital city of Jugo-Slavia. Unlike the inhabitants of Roumania, who are Latins, descended from the old Roman legions which were quartered on the Black Sea, the inhabitants of this country are Slavs. The country is composed of the former independent states of Serbia and Montenegro and the southern Slav provinces of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. Belgrade today, writes Mr. Fleishmann is a metropolis of almost 350,-000 people. He finds it a city, quite modern and industrial.

Grain in Jugo-Slavia and its marketing is done under the supervision of gigantic co-operative societies. Great quantities of corn are grown in this territory. There are some fine hotels in Belgrade.

Writing about the political situation in the Near East, Mr. Fleishmann says that there is still great jealousy in this part of the world. The several thousand Hungarians now under Roumanian rule as a result of the peace treaty, are showing signs of desiring to be re-united with their mother country. There is a strong feeling between Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria which has not been helped much by the recent marriage of the king of Bulgaria to an Italian princess. France and Italy continue to play the game of diplomacy in the Balkan peninsula which Mr. Fleishmann describes as the "tinder box of Europe."

Village residents were treated to a brilliant display of northern lights Tuesday evening.

STUDENT WATCHMAN DRIVES OFF TURKEY THIEVES AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 26—While he was acting as night watchman at the poultry plant at Connecticut Agricultural college Monday night, Carl F. Schreiber, 23, a special student from Erfurt, Germany, received a sprained ankle and a blackened eye as a result of a scuffle with two unidentified poultry thieves who were leaving the egg-laying contest buildings with a prize turkey in their possession. Schreiber seized one of the men and the two of them fell to the ground in a clinch. The other roost-robber meanwhile dropped the turkey he was carrying and went to his colleague's rescue twisting Schreiber's foot so that he was forced to release his hold on the man he had down. The thieves then fled into the darkness leaving Schreiber in a bruised condition.

It was about midnight that the fight occurred and because of the mist and extreme darkness, Schreiber was unable to ascertain the identity of his assailants. He immediately went to the nearby home of Professor William F. Kirkpatrick, director of the poultry department, and told what had happened. Kirkpatrick took Schreiber to his room in Koons Hall dormitory. Schreiber was able to walk at the time but when he awoke yesterday morning his ankle was swollen so badly that he had to be removed to St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. An X-ray showed that no bones had been broken but a blood vessel was ruptured as a result of the twisting his foot had received.

In their haste to depart the thieves left a baseball cap and a hat behind them. Schreiber states that hee believes one of the men was wearing a dark blue sweater bearing a large white "C" such as are awarded to athletes. This leads the authorities to believe that the robbers may have been students or persons impersonating students.

A shot gun which Schreiber was carrying was broken in two at the stock during the encounter. Although he had received no orders to go about his duties armed, he was carrying the weapon in hopes of shooting a skunk which he had sen in the neighborhood the previous night. At the time he came upon the turkey stealers, he had the gun loaded and cocked. Realizing that a fight was likely to occur and that either he or his opponents might suffer serious injuries with a loaded gun at hand, he discharged the piece at the ground and flung it to one side. The gun was found next morning in the vicinity of the scuffle with the stock broken off at the breach. The damage was such that it could have been done only by a severe blow and how it was done is problematical.

Two Taftville women, Mrs. Yvonne Sylvestre and Miss Priscilla Guerard, who were occupants of an automobile alleged to be owned and driven by Lucien Comtois of Danielson, have brought suit in the superior court against Comtois for a total of $11,000 damages on claims for injuries received when the Comtois machine struck a pole and went over a bank on Sept. 15 on the road between Taftville and Occum. Two other occupants of the machine died from their injuries.

She was discharged from the hospital about a week ago. FRANCE DENIES INTRIGUE WITH RUSSIAN TRAITORS

All the Accused Repentant in Moscow Court—Promise if Their Lives Are Spared to Devote Their Activities to the Interests of Communism—Former Premier Poincare of France Protests Confession of the Anti-Stalin Plotters Implicating France in Effort to Overthrow the Soviet Regime—Evidence Involving Foreign Powers Will Be Heard in Closed Sessions

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—There will be no naming of names where foreign governments are concerned hereafter in the trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the soviet regime, for the court ruled today that evidence involving foreign powers will be heard in closed sessions.

This ruling came as one of the accused was about to go into details concerning charges that France had entered officially into an elaborate intrigue with several other powers to attack the soviet republic. The testimony was cut short and presumably was to be heard by the four judges after the public session ended.

The move was interpreted as an effort on the part of the red government to preserve its diplomatic relations with the powers involved in the charges. France already has protested through its envoy here, and Raymond Poincare, former president, has denied such of the charges which identify him as an active plotter.

Elaborate confessions of the eight defendants already have identified France, Britain and several other nations as parties to the fantastic scheme by which the accused are charged with having plotted Stalin's overthrow, and the testimony thus far in the trial has been virtually a series of repetitions of the confessions.

M. Kuprianov, whose testimony brought the closed-session ruling, had recited details of his part in the alleged plot and was about to name French government officials with whom he said he had worked when the decision was handed down.

It did not detract, however, from the wide interest which the proceedings have aroused since the commissar of police announced discovery of the intrigue.

The last of the eight defendants completed his rehearsal of the confessions today and informed the court that he, as well as the others, was repentant. Professor L. K. Ramsin, indicted as the leader of the plot, blazed that trail on the first day of the trial when he said he believed his full confession would make such anti-soviet manifestations impossible in the future.

As the defendants' statements were completed, it was expected that the prosecution would complete its cross-examination quickly.

Non of the accused has asked for mercy, but all have promised that if their lives are spared they will devote their activities to the interests of communism.

BERNSTORFF AND CECIL IN CLASH AT GENEVA

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—(AP)— German objections to a French and British move to bind anew Germany and her war-time allies to the rigid defense equipment laid down in the Paris peace treaties, today plunged the preparatory disarmament commission into a heated debate.

Count Von Bernstorff, the German delegate, denounced this move as intolerable for his country and accused the commission of preparing an agreement that would merely serve as a shield behind which the World war victors would maintain present armaments and perhaps increase them.

He demanded "parity of security," and engaged in a hot dispute with Lord Cecil of Great Britain who challenged the German assertion that the disarmament commission had accomplished nothing for land disarmament.

The spectacular conflict arose over a French and British article to provide that nothing in the disarmament convention under consideration should release the defeated powers from the strict terms of the Paris peace treaties. This was introduceo by Rene Massigli, the French delegate.

It had been expected that controversy over the issue would be waged between Massigli and Count Von Bernstorff, but the French delegate simply restricted himself to a statement of his country's position.

Lord Cecil, however, taking issue with Von Bernstorff's statement that the league's agency had "accomplished nothing" for land disarmament, vigorously countered this.

Unseasonable Cold In The West And South

Zero Weather in Chicago—Six Deaths Are Attributed to Heavy Snowstorms in Ohio

CHICAGO, Nov. 27—(AP)—Unseasonable cold spread over the central states today, bringing death to a few and restricting holiday activities to many.

Some of the Thanksgiving day football games were cancelled. Others were played before reduced crowds but the players were hindered by numb fingers and icy fields. Most of the populace elected to remain at home, and watch thermometers outside flirt with zero.

Temperatures were expected to be even lower tomorrow in the southern portions of Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and to be slightly higher in the upper Mississippi and middle Missouri valleys.

Temperatures today were far below normal in the Great Lakes region and the Ohio valley, with zero readings as far south as Indianapolis and freezing as far as the Gulf of Mexico.

Chicagoans endured zero weather for the first time this season. The minimum registered by the weather bureau thermometer was 4 above, but other parts of the city and the suburbs experienced as low as 6 below. It was clear and calm in most middlewestern states, but a brisk northwest wind at Duluth brought predictions of 10 below before morning.

The usual quota of deaths from exposure, accidents and freezing was reported. Ohio counted a toll of six as result of the heavy snowstorm of the last two days. Two unidentified homeless men died of exposure in Chicago; two others were found in a barn in Minneapolis, one frozen to death, the other dying. A Milwaukeean was killed as he stepped into the path of an automobile from behind his own stalled car.

There was not much snow in the Chicago area, but Indiana and Michigan were still digging away the heavy fall of the last two days.

Cuban Govt. Lifts Press Censorship

Was Imposed Nove[illegible]3, When Talk of [illegible]ution Called For [illegible] Measures

HAVANA, [illegible]—(AP)—Cuba today enjoyed fu[illegible]erty of the press for the first time in 15 days. Censors were removed from cable offices to permit newspaper correspondents to transmit what information they wished concerning the political situation prevailing in the republic.

The censorship, imposed November 13, came at a time when talk of revolution reached a point where drastic measures were considered necessary by the government to maintain order in Cuba, and constitutional guarantees were suspended.

On November 10, trouble broke out in Santiago. Several hundred citizens participated in the demonstration and one was killed. The revolutionary movement quickly spread to other parts of the island and November 11 and 12 were marked by a series of disturbances in Havana, Santa Clara, Matanzas, Cienfuegoes and other important Cuban cities. Seven persons were killed and an undetermined number wounded.

President Machado ordered suspension of constitutional guarantees November 13 and troops took the place of police on the streets. Groups were not allowed to form, theatres and other amusement places were heavily guarded, and numerous arrests of alleged communist agitators were made.

Censorship on all telegraph and telephone lines, radios and other means of communication was imposed to halt what the government is said to have believed was a well organized campaign on the part of agitators in the United States to secure American intervention under the Platt amendment.

News coming into the republic also was submitted to censorship.

Havana publishers protested, but were unsuccessful in getting the censorship lifted. Owners of 12 of the leading newspapers and periodicals suspended publication, leaving but one Spanish language newspaper and four English language newspapers for readers in the western and central parts of the island.

After ten days of suspension, these protesting publishers united in the issuance of a co-operative newspaper called La Prensa Un'da. Eighty thousand papers were run off in the first edition but the government prohibited their sale and the venture was abandoned.

Yesterday President Machado lifted the ban, proclaiming he favored freedom of the press, but insisted on truth." Governmental machinery was started moving immediately but it was not until this afternoon that the last censor on press material was removed.

The censorship still exists on other forms of transmitted information, however, particularly code matter.

Secret police yesterday announced that they had discovered a plot on the part of agitators to make Thanksgiving day one of riots inasmuch as it coincided with El Dia De Los Estudiantes, the annually celebrated anniversary of the execution of eight students by the Spanish in 1871.

Extra precautions taken last night and today proved unnecessary, however, as students agreed to cancel their observance for the first time in 59 years.

CONDEMNS THE EMPLOYERS WHO ARE REDUCING WAGES

President Green of the A. F. of L. Classifies as "Public Enemies" Those Employers Who Are Taking Advantage of the Industrial Distress—Calls Attention to the Fact That the Government Has Committed Itself to the Maintenance of Wage Schedules and Working Standards

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight classified as "public enemies" those employers "who are taking advantage of economic and industrial distress to lower living standards through forced reduction of wages."

In a statement, he said the employers to whom he referred "are found in the textile industry, the bituminous coal industry, the boot and shoe industry and in some other miscellaneous manufacturing enterprises."

Green said it was the "patriotic duty of American workers to resist, with all the power they possess, any attempt of employers and corporations to reduce wages or lower the standards which have been set."

"The wrongs which they are perpetrating," he said, "are against the public and serve to undermine our national economic structure at a time when the leaders in government and public spirited people are striving to maintain wage standards so that we can facilitate and hasten a return to normal conditions.

"Because of their action a substantial decrease in the purchasing power of these workers, who become their victims, is brought about and to that extent the day of returning prosperity and normal industrial activity is being delayed and an injury is inflicted upon those industries where employers and workers are heroically endeavoring to maintain established wage standards."

Green said the government had committed itself to the maintenance of wage schedules and working standards and it was the duty of all working people "to support this policy and to hold fast to the wage levels already established."

"Fortunately," he continued, "there are many employers of labor who believe in the philosophy of high wages. They understand that if we are to consume the products of industry the purchasing power of the masses of the people must be maintained at a point where it will balance with the facilities of production.

"Those public enemies among employers who will not willingly subscribe to this humane and sound economic policy should be compelled through the resisting power of working men and women and the pressure of sound public opinion, to maintain wages, hours of labor and the conditions of employment which are in accord with American traditions and the American standard of living."

20 PERSONS UNACCOUNTED FOR AFTER CIRCUS TRAIN WRECK

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The charred ruins of gaily painted circus cars at Guadalupe, Quanajuato, were searched tonight for the bodies of 20 persons unaccounted for after the wreck and fire which yesterday demolished the show train.

At least 14 persons are known dead, their bodies arranged under sheets at the Guadalupe station platform. Twenty-one others are in hospitals at nearby Irapuato, and several of them are expected to die of burns.

Many of the circus' bears, lions, tigers and menagerie were burned to death. Others, including some elephants, are loose on the mountainside, where posses of hacienda owners and charros, fearful for their cattle, are hunting them. The elephants particularly have left a trail of destruction behind them so that pursuit has been easy, although corraling the huge beasts is another matter.

The disaster overtook the Beas circus, one of the most widely known in Mexico, as it was en route to Irapuato, along the Mexico City-Guadalajara line. Some of its coaches, being switched at Guadalupe were bumped into tank cars which telescoped and spilled gasoline over the circus train.

SOVIET RUSSIA TO DUPLICATE THE CHICAGO PACKING PLANTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Soviet Russia is again seeking aid in America for a government enterprise. Fifty or more engineers and draftsmen, under direction of an American engineer, are transferring to blue prints the best features of the Chicago meat packing industry for reproduction in soviet Russia. The communists plan to spend $50,000,000 on a chain of 40 packing plants.

A committee of the soyusmiaso (government meat trust), after a survey of the American packing industry, opened headquarters here. Plans are being drawn for two plants, one in Moscow and the other at Semi-Palatinsk, in southwestern Siberia Russia's cattle country.

The Moscow and Semi-Palatinsk institutions are to cost $10,000,000. The plant in the capital will be larger than any in the United States and, in capacity, not much below the largest in Argentina. It will employ 3,000 persons. Preparation of the popular "kolbassa" (sausage) will be its major employment.

PARIS TO MEET CRITICAL FLOOD SITUATION SUNDAY

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The level of the Seine river remained at 17 feet, 4 inches throughout the day, neither rising nor falling despite continued rains.

Meteorological experts and river officials expressed the opinion there would be no change until Saturday, when floods from the Marne and Grand Morin rivers, passing through Paris, probably would cause a rise of 20 to 25 inches.

"A critical situation must be met Sunday," the newspaper L'Intransigeant said today.

Meanwhile the water continued to filter into cellars, but no heavy damages were reported in Paris.

CONGRESSMAN J. P. QUAYLE DIES SUDDENLY IN HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Congressman John Francis Quayle, democrat, of the seventh New York district, died suddenly at a hospital today. He was 62 years old.

The congressman, a native New Yorker was first elected to the 68th congress, and was three times subsequently chosen to represent the seventh district which is in King's county (Brooklyn).

QUIET OBSERVANCE OF THANKSGIVING DAY HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 27.—Thanksgiving day was observed in the customarily quiet way here, activity for the most part being confined to the home culinary department from whence came the savory turkeys and mince pies served to family members, many of whom came from out of town for the holiday gathering. Several annual family reunions were held here and there was a substantial outpouring of local people to spend the day out of town. Manufacturing plants, stores, offices and schools were closed for the day.

Thanksgiving eve the annual Protestant union Thanksgiving service was held at St. Paul's Episcopal church with the rector, Rev. Frederick C. Williams, officiating. The sermon was preached by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the First Congregational church There was a good attendance, representative of the various Protestant churches of the city.

Lutheran Church Gathering

A largely attended Thanksgiving service was held at the Ebenezer Lutheran church this evening with a service conducted in English except for a brief address in Swedish by the pastor, Rev. E. Einar Kron, who is also pastor of the Salem Lutheran church of Norwich. A special musical program was given.

Feast at Almshouse

The rewards of a bountiful garden crop were represented in an excellent Thanksgiving dinner served the 40 inmates of the Windham town almshouse today by Superintendent Joseph T. Nolan and Mrs. Agnes Nolan, matron of the home. The mainstay was roast stuffed turkey with all the fixings, consisting of a large variety of vegetables all grown on the almshouse farm during the past season, and topped with mince pie and cider. There are 25 men and 15 women at the almshouse at present and it is considered likely that the full capacity of the home, 60 persons, will be filled by Christmas. Except for an emergency period during the influenza epidemic, a ward room has recently been opened for occupancy for the first time in 20 years. Special dinners were also served at the Card Home for the Aged, St. Joseph's hospital, and other institutions in the town.

This is the same type of warning device that will be erected at 13 other railroad crossings on the Central Vermont line in Connecticut, and is in compliance with orders of the state public commission. As the rays of light from headlights strike the signal they reflect back and give adequate warning of the approach to the crossing.

INVISIBLE GENES GOVERN HEREDITY, SAYS SCIENTIST

PASADENA, Cal.—(AP)—An elementary, sexless and little-understood sort of reproduction is involved in the multiplication of genes, those invisible particles which are the active constituent of chromosomes and which govern hereditary development.

Describing what is believed to take place, Dr. Calvin B Bridges, of the California Institute of Technology, says:

"The synthesis of daughter genes utilizes materials abstracted from the surrounding fluids. It is selfgoverned, occurring at and only at the site of the original, or parental gene of each specific kind.

"This process is at once the most fundamental and the hardest to comprehend in the whole range of cellular phenomena.

"There is a certain set of chromosomes or gene-carriers, in every living cell, and this set can divide into two complete sets whereupon the cell body divides also, giving two complete cells and thus producing growth.

"This growth is controlled by the genes in the chromosomes, thereby producing fingers on the hand, golden hair and blue eyes as well as every other character in its proper place."

THANKSGIVING DINNER SERVED TO 90 INMATES OF JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 27.—Approximately 90 inmates, the majority of them with superlative appetites, indulged in an affectionate offensive on a holiday dinner at the county jail in Brooklyn this Thanksgiving day. It was a very good dinner, too, with roast pork and a variety of vegetables, and everything in abundance. No such galaxy of customers has gathered about a banquet board since pre-prohibition days at this particular institution, which, all forecasts were ten years ago, would be closed up by now, insofar as prison purposes are concerned, and in use as a garage, or something. No one knows yet what the county tax may be next year because of the necessity of entertaining so many guests at Brooklyn during the coming winter, but it is going to be plenty. All of which, not even in the slightest degree, is intended to cast any reflection upon county officials or jail administrators. As a part of the record it should be set down here, they are just as unhappy about having a full house at the Windham county jail as any other citizen is. But there's the full house, and there just isn't anything to be done about it.

The county rates a good sport, in the name of its people. It fed the prisoners well today. It houses them where the roofs do not leak, where steam heat radiates its beneficence and where peace reigns, though there be barred doors and windows. It's not so tough over there—except for the taxpayers.

As at the county jail, 20 inmates, men and women, at the Killingly town farm near Dayville, were without worry today. They had their holiday, too. A chicken dinner was served them by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett, respectively superintendent and matron of the institution, in which capacity they have served so efficiently for a long term of years.

It is interesting to note that practically everything that went into the assembling of just about as good a dinner that anyone might reasonably ask for, even on a holiday, was made up of the products of the town farm. The chicken, the selective variety of vegetables, and this thing and that thing that went to make up the feast came right off the town's acres. The cranberry sauce rates an exception, but not so much so. The good "King" George Jacques of East Killingly donated two bushels of cranberries to the town farm. Not all of them were used today, by any means, so there is a reserve for use on other winter holidays to come.

The people at the town farm now look forward to the Christmas season, and they will not be forgotten. Plans are in the works to provide them gifts and another feast day. Everything considered, the old world's not so bad, after all.

Snow and Ice on Highways

Old Man Winter appeared to have made his debut in Danielson this morning—and was sneered at, the evidence indicates—by a mass of people who don't seem to care just what happens or what anyone has to say about how they should act or what they should do. For the first time since summer faded away drivers of cars in this territory encountered snowy and icy highways this morning. Official and what may be termed semi-official observers stood in the business section this morning and watched the dizzy operation of cars. The old wheeze about women drivers being a total loss just faded out of the picture after watching many men do foolish things with an automobile. Not that they were driving fast, but driving ridiculously, inviting accident after accident. Chief John McFarland looked them over in more or less disgust. He might have blown his whistle at some of them, but, being the sensible man that he is, refrained, fearing a skid and a turn-over, if he tried to stop them short on a wet and very slippery pavement.

Breaks Ribs in Accident

Cars operated by James T. Arnold of Stafford and by Richard Blitchford of Yalesville went into a jam over at the dread Dark Lantern hill, five miles east of here, early this morning. The snow-covered and slippery highway was responsible for the accident. Mr. Blitchford sustained three broken ribs in the accident and his wife suffered a scalp wound. They were taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam for treatment.

Not much doing, generally, around Danielson today. It was a day, nevertheless, of family gatherings and traditional observances of the old Pilgrim holiday. Those who sought entertainment found it at the theater, at dances of here and there in nearby areas. It was a typical Thanksgiving day, just cold enough, just stormy enough, just dreary enough, to match tradition.

On Saturday, Nov. 29, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the public sign post on the town hall building at Danielson, I will sell at public auction, one 1929 seven-passenger, air-cooled Franklin sedan and three Oriental rugs (Chinese), two of oval shape, about two feet by six feet, and one parallelogram about eight by ten feet; also one extra fine pair of team horses, weight about 2,700 pounds. Terms cash. Charles E. Dyer.—adv.

Such early risers as Chief John Mc Farland were among those that an inquirer depended upon to furnish information this morning as to what time the day's snowstorm started. The chief said that it was just about 5 a. m., and that by 6:30 it was going good. However, it did not amount to much, other than that the snow gave a typical Thanksgiving touch to the countryside.

Selecting the most dangerous conditions for operating automobiles for months past, drivers of cars proceeded, in a great number of instances, to show today how crazy they can be. And dozens of them were just that going through Danielson. High speed on wet and slippery roads were the rule, and only God alone, it seemed, saved the most of them from breaking their necks. Seems 'twas a holiday. An occasion for making a mess of things.

Today the body of Alice Drabble, wife of Charles Drabble, was brought here from Worcester for burial at Dayville. She was the wife of Charles Drabble, and died at Auburn, N. Y., the first of the week. Mrs. Drabble was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Phillips who lived, many years ago, at what is still known as the Phillips farm, on the shore of Alexander's lake. Mr. Drabble and his people were for many years resident near Killingly Center.

With the passing of Thanksgiving this town fares forth on its annual Christmas affairs. That means that the coming week will witness the beginning of this and that to pep up the community to the proper holiday spirit. There are good things ahead it seems!

STERLING CHILD FATALLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY HEAVY TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 27.—This morning's first of the season, and as it happened, Thanksgiving snowstorm, filtered death down upon Kenneth Tyler, a little lad who lived down in Sterling. He courted eternity reveling among the snowflakes. He was only about six years old and was having a very happy time snowballing just before he dashed out into the state highway fronting his home to be knocked over by a passing truck and fatally injured. A passing motorist picked him up and rushed him down to the Backus hospital in Norwich, where he died early this afternoon.

Joseph A. Roy, Blackstone, Mass., operator of the truck that struck the child, was not held. State Officer Henry Mayo of the Danielson barracks checked up the accident, which rates just one more of those that go into the unfortunate and unavoidable list.

The little lad was playing about with companions who were engaged in throwing snowballs at each other when, in his enthusiasm, he ran off the property where the sport was going on and out into the state highway. The driver of the truck swung the wheel of the machine sharp over to avoid hitting the little fellow, it later developed, but the child dodged the same way and was run down.

The accident happened close by the United Protestant church, between Moosup and Sterling. The dead boy is a son of Mrs. Clarence S. Tyler of Sterling.

ALASKAN'S CROP REPAYS MOST OF HIS INVESTMENT

Last year A. A. Schondeck bought and partially cleared a 320-acre farm and placed full equipment, including a thresher, on it. His total investment was $10,000.

This season he has cut 200 tons of wheat oat, vetch and hay which sold for $40 a ton—almost clearing his investment in one year.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM QUIETLY OBSERVES THE THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 27—General market conditions, local unemployment and individual pains and aches were subjects that faded into the background today as the people of Putnam joined with others of the nation for the observance of Thanksgiving day. Turkey was king and in many homes throughout the city this bird graced platters which were set on tables and was sacrificed at the alter of appetite, as were the relishing side dishes of giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, celery, sweet potatoes, turnip, pumpkin pie and fruit, which were carefully prepared during the morning hours.

Efforts made during the early part of the week to clothe the November holiday in community wide happiness met with complete success. At the three institutions, the Day Kimball hospital, The Children's Home in Sawyer district and at the town farm full course dinners of chicken and turkey were served to inmates and employes and special programmes of entertainment at the home and almshouse served to round out a happy and joyous day for the unfortunates there.

At police and fire headquarters and at the Day Kimball hospital reports received at a late hour this afternoon indicated that the holiday had passed in an unusually quite manner. Captain Dubreuil of the police department reported that no arrests had been necessitated during the day and at the Central fire station, Acting Chief Alphonse Dumas said that the alarm tape had not registered a single fire call at any time during the day. Hospital authorities reported that no casualties of any nature had occurred during the day and from general appearances, the evening hours would pass in a similar manner.

With the annual roll call of the American Red Cross brought to a successful conclusion, Mrs. A. A. Vonriatsky of Thompson, general chairman of the Day Kimball hospital nurses home fund drive brings in the eagerly awaited report that the campaign for funds for the erection of the hospital institutional building will be crowned with success during the final week of the last "push" to achieve the $25,000 mark. A complete report of the work of the drive forces will be available for publication at an early date, Mrs. Vonriatsky said. The statement will outline the amount of money raised by each community.

WEDDING

Dona-Beaulac

Among the Thanksgiving day weddings taking place today was the ceremony at St. Mary's church this morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss Lauretta Beaulac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Beaulac of 222 Church street, was married to Antonio Dona of Attawaugan.

Amidst elaborate decorations of palms and gladioli, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. The Rev. Father Bellerose, was also celebrant at a nuptial high mass. The soloist during the mass was Miss Anna Paulhus who sang an "Ave Maria." The nuptial marches, "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" and the "Wedding March" of Mendelssohn's were played by Miss Rose Metras, church organist. Music during the service was furnished by quartet members of the choir.

Miss Beaulac was attractively gowned in white satin and tulle. Orange blossoms held her veil of tulle in crown effect. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses which were arranged in shower effect. The bride was attended by Miss Lily Beaulac of Plainfield, as bridesmaid. Her costume consisted of a dress of coral colored satin and a turban hat of matching color. Her bouquet was made up of deep pink carnations arranged in shower affect.

Mr. Dona was attended by Oliver Beaulac of this city who acted as best man. Delor Lamontague served as ring bearer and his sister, Miss Marie Lamontague was flower girl.

A reception in honor of the couple was held at noon in Eagles hall on Providence street.

According to the November issue of "The Argo", publication of the student body at Rutgers Prep school in New Brunswick, N. J., Russell Sherman, son of Mrs. W. J. Sherman of Farrows street, is among the 5 members of the senior class possessing academic ratings above 80 percent, who have been given special privileges by the faculty. Sherman's rating is 86.25. Quoting the "Argo" story: "The rule provides that seniors who are on the honor roll and in no single subject are below the grade required by the school for college certification have the privilege of two extra nights out a month." In addition to his academic record, Sherman who was a member of the Putnam high school undefeated football team of 1928, achieved athletic honors in this branch of sport for the season just closed. Sherman played at quarterback position and according to the sports editor of the school publication was regarded as, "The Putnam, Conn. triple threat man, who punts, passes carries the ball with equal skill and plays a heady game at quarterback."

Thanksgiving recesses granted students at the various eastern colleges have enabled a number of Putnam young men and women to spend the brief vacation at their homes in this city. J.; Charles Murphy of C. A. C. The game resulted in a 12-0 victory for Putnam and marked the seventh consecutive year in which the Blue and White gridsters have triumphed over their ancient red jerseyed Danielson rivals.

The blaze was quickly extinguished by the members of the pumper company who responded under the direction of Acting Chief A. J. Dumas.

A delightfully entertaining bazaar and dance given in Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening under the auspices of the American Legion and the I. O. O. F. fraternity proved successful financially and socially.

Bill, no action will be taken against Edward Greene of Pomfret, driver of the truck which was in collision with another car driven by Thomas J. Molumphy, East Hartford, who met instantaneous death when the cars came together Wednesday morning on the Pomfret road.

As soon as insurance adjustments are made to owners and tenants of the Union block, who suffered considerably from water damage following the fire in the top story Tuesday evening, repairs to the damaged quarters will be started.

FENCES, DITCHES FORM PART OF AIR PROGRAM

Completion of 90 intermediate landing fields by the government before the end of the fiscal year, involves the construction of 120 miles of fence and 30 miles of ditches.

In addition there is the laying of 12 miles of pipe and tile, installation of 1,800 sets of field border markers, and the clearing of nearly 500 acres of timber.

CHECKING POLLUTION

Pollution of the waters in and about New York, along the New Jersey shore and even along the Connecticut shore of Long Island sound, has been the subject of much discussion. Not only does this apply to the sewage that is dumped into these waters, but also the garbage which New York dumps at sea, only to have float back upon the Jersey beaches. Some other method of disposal has been sought with good reason.

When this matter was considered by federal grand juries it was believed that there should be a conference of representatives of the three states for the purpose of discussing the situation and agreeing upon a plan of action that would result in bettering the conditions in New York harbor. That was followed by the suggestion that there be a joint committee to devise and present bills to the legislatures of the respective states that would deal with the pollution situation with the idea of reducing it. Such would have been in keeping with efforts which are already being made in Connecticut to have the pollution in the rivers of the state stopped and in which direction considerable progress has already been made. Such reduction would have the effect of reducing the pollution in the sound.

New York has also started on a scheme of its own for building plants to treat its sewage, and because it has there is a feeling on the part of the chairman of the sanitation commission of New York city that such a committee as proposed would interfere with such arrangement.

As the situation stands at the present time, New York is the biggest contributor to the pollution which should be reduced. Naturally it would be expected to make the biggest effort to correct the condition. If it is much concerned with its own efforts it likewise should be eager to get such cooperation as the neighboring states can or will furnish. Trying to say what can or what cannot be done in advance of a meeting of a tri-state committee is anticipating a good deal; but if New York prefers to go it alone there will be little objection on the part of the other states so long as there is some real progress made in reducing the pollution. New York has much to do, even if New Jersey and Connecticut are not involved in a joint undertaking.

SHANGHAI IS RIGHT

Bad as we consider conditions in China to be, there is no desire on the part of that country to serve as the place of banishment for those accused of crime in this country, and there can be nothing but commendation for such an attitude.

Despatches from Shanghai show that city to be resentful of the plan adopted by a California court in approving the suggestion of a California prisoner charged with arson that he be allowed to go into voluntary exile in China and remain out of the United States for a period of ten years. Evidently it was the idea of ridding the country of the presence of such a person and the hopes that such a stay would result in it becoming permanent that appealed to the judge. He was thinking of the benefit that would accrue to the state and country and not what was being imposed upon China.

In Shanghai there was immediate recognition of what was coming its way. If it was a bit surprising that it should feel insulted by the disposition of an arson charge in such a manner it is no more than ought to be expected. Shanghai probably has enough trouble of its own without serving as a correctional institution.

The action of the California judge was in line with a similar method of treating prisoners which certain judges were inclined to adopt some few years ago by trying to wish them off onto the navy. The alternative of serving a sentence or joining the navy was given. What a burden to place upon the navy! That branch of our national defense is not intended for such persons and courts were properly rebuked for adopting such a method of punishment. The expectation was, of course, that the navy would accomplish the needed reformation, but that isn't the purpose of the navy and those who enlist do not desire such companions.

The way Shanghai feels is no different from the way in which cities and towns feel in this country when judges order those who have figured in maintaining rotten conditions and encouraging lawlessness and crime to get out and stay out. That is simply telling them to go into practice their offenses in other communities and virtually turning them over to someone else to deal with. Shanghai doesn't like it and says so and there is much to commend in the attitude which it displays. Shanghai well knows how we would like to have Chinese firebugs and criminals exiled to this country

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

While the need may not be as great for throwing protection around writings in the form of copyright in every country in the world, there are times when it is important and advisable to take such a step in more than this country.

It is a simple matter to obtain a copyright in this country, but it involves much more effort and expense when it comes to other countries. For the purpose of meeting the situation the International Copyright Union has been organized and by means of a bill introduced in congress at the last session an effort is being made to have the United States become a member thereof. The union covers 40 countries. It is a new arrangement, to go into effect next year, and the purpose is to simplify procedure and insure protection to ideas by authors, playwrights and publishers.

The United States, Russia and Siam are the only countries which have failed to act favorably as yet. Why the other two have delayed action is not known. In this country action seems to have been sidetracked because of the methods followed or forced in the last session, where obstruction rather than progress was the object of the balance of power. Whether any better success will result in the coming session is problematical.

Thus far there doesn't appear to have been raised any real objection to having this country become a member of the union. Those directly interested are urging its adoption. Those who must pass upon it appear to have found nothing the matter with it but they have not acted.

The coming session is certain to be a short one. There is much business to be disposed of. Some of it will be of an emergency type. More of it will be necessary in order to provide funds for keeping the machinery of the country going. There will be some holding over from the last session of a controversial character. On this some contest may develop with certain members already threatening to put the whole session out of joint if they cannot have their way and get everything in just the form they want. Such a holdup attitude is by no means justified but conditions are such as to make it possible, so that until the course is shaped there's no telling what may happen to such legislation as the international copyright bill.

COUNTRY DOCTORS

The country doctor is a much discussed individual. There are those communities which offer evidence to the effect that there is no such person. There was the time when he was one of the leading citizens, one of the best known. But times have changed and today the country doctors are few and far between. With the passing of those who devoted their lives to treating those in their locality, whether it was one town or a group of towns, the younger men of the profession have not been interested in taking their places. They have gone to the cities and to the hospitals. The new order of things has been aided by the building of good roads, for it is quite as easy to drive into the country in response to a call, provided there is a good road, as it ever was for the country doctor to get about among his patients.

As the result of a study that has been made by a specialist in the bureau of education at Washington, it is reported that the small town doctor may expect a recompense of $2,000 to $5,000 a year. This expert thinks that by success and ambition, and he would probably add unusually favorable locations, he can boost his income to $8,000. The country doctor is assured of a good chance for general practice, but the lack of country doctors indicates that the attractions are not very enticing.

This study that has been made of country doctors and the chances before those engaging in such practice may be of some benefit to those communities which are without a resident physician and want one. Under such circumstances, there have been towns which have seriously given consideration to the paying of a bonus to a doctor for locating therein, he to have in addition such additional recompense as he might collect from his regular fees. If it is so that fees will average from $2,000 to $5,000, and possibly $8,000, communities will have something to guide them in determining what bonus ought to be offered.

WORLD COURT ACTION

There is plenty of business with which to occupy the attention of congress during the short session, and yet if congress should be so disposed it could easily take care of all the essentials and have time to spare. It is not the habit of the present congress to do things that way. Unfortunately for speedy and considerate action, congress is made up in the wrong way. Experience shows that delays and political wrangling can be expected, so that no matter what plans are being made to the contrary or how sincere the efforts to smooth the way for meeting needed conditions, not many will be inclined to predict what is going to take place.

Although there are plenty of matters on which there might be efforts made to conduct a filibuster, the sending of the protocol of American adherence to the world court to the senate for ratification would furnish a sufficient excuse for certain members to not only voice their objection but to do their utmost to prevent a vote being taken.

Up to recently, the other nations have agreed to the Root plan by which the United States would be admitted, with the exception of the objection raised by Cuba. This objection came as a surprise at the time it was made, but having reconsidered its action and withdrawn its objection the Cuban obstacle is now removed.

Thus, with nothing standing in the way of action upon the question by the senate, it rests with the president to decide whether to submit the protocol at the short session or to allow it to go over until the next regular session. If there was not an effort to avoid an extra session there might be no thought of withholding the matter now but since the senate is certain to do as it pleases, whether this matter is before it or not, the matter might as well be presented now as at any time.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Henceforth there will be a concentration of effort on early Christmas shopping.

The man on the corner says: One good thing about cold waves is that they are not permanent.

HEARTS AND RADIATORS

Audry Marsden looked at her watch, at the steaming nose of her stalled roadster, at the smattering of houses in the distance, and at the snow-covered landscape, and shivered. In vain she struggled to find some morsel of encouragement to sustain her in this cold hour of distress, but she could do nothing but chastise the motive that had lured her into the notion of making a down payment on a suburban bungalow and purchasing a car. Life in great open spaces had seemed so alluring that warm summer afternoon when the hillside had been blanketed with flowers and the dapper young salesman had visualized the future boulevard that would some day slice the meadow directly in front of the bungalow.

"But the transportation?" Audry had objected.

The salesman had laughed with easy assurance. "Transportation is nothing these days. But a car. It will pay for itself in the constant convenience and pleasure that it gives you."

For a while the adventure had seemed to be great sport. Her mother, also, had found it pleasant to keep house in a house instead of a flat. Then winter had come suddenly and ferociously. Audry was not schooled in the ways of radiators, and, now, on this particular morning, with her car stalled a mile from home and a mile and a half from the interurban, with the snow falling faster every minute and stinging her eyes and cheeks, and with her toes growing stiffer with each passing second, her whole soul wallowed in regret.

"Why did we ever leave our cozy flat and come away out here in the country?" she wailed. But such lamentations thawed neither the radiator nor her toes. "No doubt Byrd felt colder when he flew over the south pole than I do now, but I doubt it."

She climbed into the car with one numbed foot and pushed the starter, but it merely whined. She crawled out again and flopped back one side of the hood, but the network of tubes and joints was only an added mystery. At that particular moment she felt that she would give anything she owned for a few cubic inches of space in a crowded "L" train or a warm street car.

Then suddenly into her bewilderment issued a foreign sound and being—the soft purr of another motor, and a man's deep voice, rising above the hum. "Having trouble? Want a lift? Are you another pioneer in this future suburb?"

Audry was conscious of a substantially built young man with ruddy cheeks and a beaming smile towering beside her. His very presence seemed to warm her. "Yes, yes yes," she replied to all three questions, and was surprised that her own voice could sound so pleasant. "I live in the new brick bungalow over there under the hill. I was office bound but my car got stuck. Frozen radiator, I guess. For a while I thought I was marooned."

"It's lucky I took this road," he laughed. "I had a notion to go around the other way. Jim Larrimer's my name. We must be neighbors. Last summer I bought the young farm just over the hill; thought I'd do a little prospecting in real estate; coaxed my mother to come out and keep house for me. You don't go into the city every day, too, do you?" he questioned with a look of real admiration in his eyes. "You're a game little Spartan. I'll say," he replied to Audry's answering nod. "My car's at your service. I'll take you back home or in to the city, or wherever you wish to go."

"Thank you," murmured Audry. "I'm due at the office this minute, so I think I'll ride into the city with you. I'll phone a garage man to come and get my roadster." Snuggled beneath a huge lap robe, with her toes thawing against a nice warm heater, she listened with animation to Jim Larrimer expostulate on the joy of living on the outskirts of a great city.

"It brings out sturdy qualities that, we fancy, have ceased to exist in modern human beings."

"Neighborliness and chivalry, for instance," flashed Audry.

"I wouldn't go back to strap-hanging days for anything. Would you?"

"No, indeed," vouchsafed Audry. "I'm quite sure now that I'm sold on suburban life."—Chicago News.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Price of Heedlessness

By Thornton W. Burgess

For heedlessness you always pay;
You'll find there is no other way.
—Jerry Muskrat.

One of the young Muskrats at the Smiling Pool was a little bolder, a little more headstrong, a little more inclined to think he knew it all, than were his brothers and sisters. It was he who grinned most behind the back of his father, Jerry Muskrat, when the latter warned them of traps and that they never should approach any good things to eat which they might find unless they had first made careful search for hidden traps.

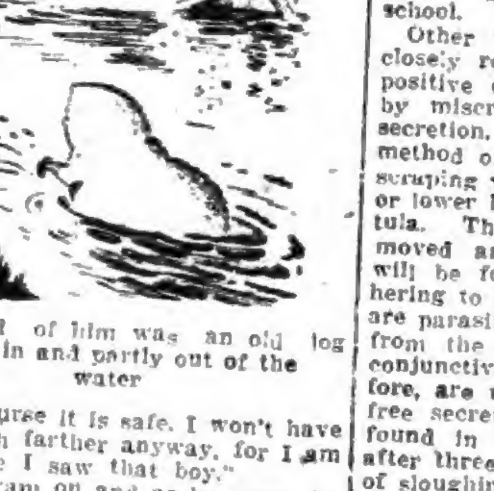
"It's all nonsense," declared this young Muskrat. "We've never found a trap and I don't believe we ever will. He is just trying to scare us. For my part I would like to see one of these traps he tells about. I don't believe they are so dreadful as he makes them out to be. I don't believe one could hold me."

Most of his brothers and sisters felt the same way and they were quite as heedless as was he, and this was very heedless indeed. Some of them, remembering Jerry Muskrat's warning, were at first rather cautious in approaching pieces of apple and carrot that they found here and there along the bank, but they soon forgot this and whenever they found any of these good things scrambled out heedlessly lest another should also find the treat. Of course that was just pure greed.

It happened that one evening the boldest young Muskrat swam a little farther down the Laughing Brook than he ever had been before. It was moonlight, just the kind of a night that Muskrats love. Just before dark he had caught glimpse of that strange boy who so often visited the Smiling Pool and the Laughing Brook. He had been down the Laughing Brook and had not come up to the Smiling Pool. As a result there were no pieces of apple or carrot around the Smiling Pool that evening. The young Muskrat suspected that there might be some along the bank of the Laughing Brook where he had seen that boy and he intended to find out.

No one saw him slip away in the moonlight. He meant that no one should. Out of the Smiling Pool and down the Laughing Brook he swam. For a short distance it was familiar. He had been this far before. When he reached the last familiar place he hesitated. Would it be safe to go on?

"Pooh!" said the young Muskrat to himself. "What is there to be afraid of? Of course it is safe. I won't have to go much farther anyway, for I am near where I saw that boy."



Just ahead of him was an old log partly in and partly out of the water

So he swam on and as he swam he watched for landing places that other Muskrats might have used, and with his nose he tested every little wandering Night Breeze, hoping that one would bring him the smell of carrots. The young Muskrat stopped swimming, faced the direction from which that little Night Breeze had brought that pleasant odor and sniffed eagerly. Somewhere up on that bank were some carrots. There was no doubt about it. He began to swim towards shore, looking for a good place to land.

Just ahead of him was an old log partly in and partly out of water. It was a perfect landing place. More than this, the odor of carrot came from the upper end of that log. The young Muskrat swam straight for that log and he hurried. He had but one thought now—to get that carrot. He was utterly heedless. He paid no attention whatever to his surroundings. He swam in over the lower end of that log and then put his feet down to climb up the log. There was a sudden snap as one foot touched something and the young Muskrat squealed aloud with pain and terror as he tried to plunge back into the water and found that he was held fast by one leg, a fore leg that ached terribly. He was paying the price of heedlessness, and a dreadful price it was. He was helpless and hopeless and at first didn't understand at all what had happened to him.

YOUR HEALTH

PINK EYE

By Frederick Allison Davis, M. D., F. A. C. S., Professor of Ophthalmology, University of Wisconsin Medical School.

(From Gorges Memorial Institute)

Pink eye, otherwise known as acute epidemic or contagious conjunctivitis, is an acute catarrhal inflammation of the conjunctiva which lines the lids and covers most of the eye ball. It is caused by a minute rod-like germ known as the Koch-Weeks bacillus. It begins with pain about the eyes, tearing, and sensitiveness to light, with a feeling of some foreign substances in the eye. The margins of the lids become slightly swollen; intense redness develops throughout the conjunctiva lining the lids, and especially where it joins the eye ball. There is a slight mucoid secretion which later may become profuse and frankly purulent. Flakes of mucous or pus may extrude between the lids, and the lashes may become matted together due to the drying of the secretion. There is at times oedema (swelling) of the conjuctiva and fine petechial hemorrhages may appear beneath it. The disease reaches its height after three or four days and gradually subsides after ten days to two weeks, though slight symptoms may persist longer. It frequently accompanies an acute cold in the head, and thus the infecting organism may be spread by coughing or sneezing. It almost invariably passes from one eye to the other in spite of precautionary measures and when it appears in schools, frequently spreads amongst the pupils. It sometimes appears among people using swimming pools. It is transmitted directly by the discharge.

Prevention of the disease can be effected by isolation, avoidance of contacts with others, and especially by avoiding the use of a common towel, wash cloth or basin. All linen used by the patient should be boiled, and he should practice scrupulous cleansing of his hands. Any child with the slightest redness about or secretion from the eyes should be kept home from school and be sent to his physician for an examination of his eyes—otherwise he may be responsible for spreading the disease throughout his school.

Other forms of conjunctivitis may closely resemble pink eye so that a positive diagnosis can be made only by miscroscopic examination of the secretion. This is best made by the method of Lindner, which consists of scraping the conjunctiva of the upper or lower lid with a dull platinum spatula. The epithelial cells are thus removed and the Koch-Weeks bacilli will be found in large numbers adhering to these cells. The organisms are parasites deriving their sustenance from the live epithelial cells of the conjunctiva. The organisms, therefore, are more difficult to find in the free secretion and usually cannot be found in the scrapings or secretion after three or four days. The process of sloughing off of the superficial epithelial cells, together with the pouring out of serum which likely develops bactericidal properties, tends to make the disease self-limited. Phagocytosis, or ingestion of the bacteria by leucocytes and the epithelial cells as well, has been demonstrated, and this undoubtedly plays an important part in bringing the disease to a termination. Treatment naturally aids and hastens this process by its destructive action on the bacteria.

The approved treatment should only be carried out under the directions of a physician. Much of it consists of rather strong applications to the conjunctiva of the everted lids, and this would be dangerous in the hands of the untrained layman. The routine treatment of cleansing and irrigating can be carried out by the layman. Fresh air and out-door exercise is important. Dark goggles should be worn but there should be no bandaging of the eyes. The patient may carry gauze handkerchiefs for mopping any secretion, and these should be burned after use. He should refrain from the use of his eyes during the period of the disease, and care should be exercised not to strain them when using artificial light. He should avoid smoke and dust and any external irritation. If only one eye is affected, rarely the fellow eye may be protected by a shield. The disease usually clears up completely and complications are rare.

When a baby is a year old he should have twelve teeth and his first toothbrush, a health official says

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Chance led the Bystander to a backstage view of the senate office building recently, and to a discovery.

For viewed from its seldom-seen east face, the huge structure is now graced by an eight foot, woven wire fence. Access to the back windows of senatorial offices is cut off thereby; also all approach to the inner court, never used for any purpose, so far as the Bystander recalls.

Obviously the fence is not intended for a political roosting place for senators undecided as to how they shall vote. A row of sharp pointed spikes lines the top.

Even the most veteran senatorial fence sitter of the lot would find it uncomfortable up there. So the Bystander started out to discover why the fence? The building got along for years without it.

Not Small Boys.

First inquiries brought the answer that neighborhood small boys might use the court for a ball park and disturb senatorial meditations with their clamor. They might, of course; but they never have that the Bystander has observed.

The time when the fence went up might be significant. Its erection followed pointed remarks about secret service activities made by Senator McKellar last spring after his office files were twice tumbled about by unknown prowlers.

Senator Hiram Johnson had a similar experience. He was inclined to josh about it. So far as disclosed no progress was made toward discovering who did the prowling or what was sought. Attorney General Mitchell denied that any of his under-cover lads were involved.

Intimation.

There may be more heard about it this winter. Being the sort of person he is, McKellar may pause to remark when secret service maintenance appropriations come up for action. He has intimated that he would like to know a lot omre about what the sleuths do for their money.

And since then, it happens, a government undercover agent has been discovered in the senate woodpile, so to speak. He was not then one of Mitchell's men, to be sure, being a prohibition enforcement bureau employe.

Nor is the fact that he was doing business in the senate office building disguised as a senate employe in any way connected with the raids on the Johnson and McKellar files. Those had some other mysterious objective in view evidently.

Yet had prohibition enforcement been then a department of justice matter as it is now, General Mitchell might have been in difficulties. He could not have said there were no secret service operatives taking clandestine if official peeks at senatorial doings.

For if that imposing back fence was intended to keep such folk out, it missed fire. The prohibition sleuth was inside all the time.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Labrador's Quaint Methods Of Hunting And Fishing

The burning recently of Sir Wilfred Grenfell's first hospital at Battle Harbor, Labrador, recalls how his social work has helped alter the human geography of Labrador, creating new industries for the natives, and encouraging explorations which have revealed scenic beauties and potential water power sites.

"Labrador is a strange land of many contrasts," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters. "Because of its barren, forbidding shores sailers call it the 'Land of Naked Rocks,' yet, inland Labrador is green with vegetation. Virgin spruce, a potential source of pulpwood and home brew, all kinds of berry bushes, scrub trees, moss and many northern varieties of wild flowers cover the interior, while familiar garden vegetables are grown in sheltered mission gardens.

"In summer, under bright blue skies, giant 'sea horses' leap and crash against its uncharted reefs, the graveyard of many a fair ship, while in the nine months of winter, creaking, groaning ice floes smash and grind against its outer defenses of rock. Parts of the coast are low-lying islands and headlands, but, in other places, gray mountains, the highest on the North Atlantic seaboard, rise precipitously from the ocean's depths to 4,000 feet.

"While existence in Labrador is a life-long battle, its inhabitants enjoy certain enviable advantages. For instance, fat salmon and trout swim into nets tied to private wharves, virtually to one's front door. Sleepy spruce grouse sit on boughs of fir trees and allow noiseless Eskimos to slip up from behind and drop nooses over their heads thereby saving time, trouble and ammunition for all hands. Partridges and hares are plentiful. Natives sneak up on the former and with a snap of their dog whips flick off the birds' heads. Individuals have been known to bag 500 in one hunt by this economical method.

"Migrating ducks fly regular routes, following the indentations of the coast, not daring to strike off across wide bays by dead reckoning. Hunters, knowing this, plant themselves with their dogs in primitive blinds and drop the ducks as they fly past close inshore, using all kinds of ancient firearms. Bears make good eating and taste like venison. Deer are numerous and their worst enemy is not the wolf, as one might suppose, but a species of fly whose maggot bores into their beautiful bodies. Skins which make soft, warm clothing and moccasins show 100 to 1,000 tiny holes made by this insect. Wild berries, such as the cranberry, remain on the bushes all winter and are often picked after the spring thaws. It is said that the snow sweetens the red fruit.

"During the summer months, the deep, fiordlike harbors are dotted with Newfoundland fishing vessels over for the cod season. So poor are some of these fisherfolk that whole families, including mother and daughter-in-law, often 'man' the boats. The recent perfecting of a new method for quick freezing may eventually help the Labrador industry by allowing the shipment to the United States of fresh fish from this far-off country. Hitherto the fish could only be used to make fertilizer.

"While sealing is not so important an industry to Labrador as it is to Newfoundland, many are taken off its coast. In the waters near certain headlands the seals are caught and drowned in ordinary nets, for they swim along close to the rocky shore much as migrating birds do in the air. Many Labradorians in the early spring hunt seals from large ships which follow the whelping herds out to the ice pack. To save the ships many weeks of useless search, airplanes are often employed for spotting the herds.

"Although no part of Labrador is north of Scotland, dog teams and sledges are the sole modes of transportation for three-quarters of the year, excluding of course one's own snowshoes. During the summer months the sea becomes the arterial highway and power dories the motor vehicles of more temperate regions. Gasoline may well be considered as the native's chief item of expense, as for his southern brother. Dog team races on the ice of frozen harbors take the place of horse racing. The driver of the winning team in this northern futurity becomes the hero of the winter to his neighbors. When dogs roam at will during their summer vacation, Battle Harbor is the concert platform for the loudest 'husky' dog chorus in the world!

"Sir Wilfred is aided in his welfare work among the Scotch-Irish and English colonists and fisherfolk by American college men and women who, guided by altruistic motives, give their services during the summer holidays. These workers, with the help of trained teachers, have taught the people new methods for increasing their income and thereby have helped them alleviate some of the hardships of living in this Arctic country. No finer hooked rugs are made anywhere than in Labrador. Discarded silk stockings with runs are at a premium here for incorporation as rags in the rugs. Toy making, weaving and ivory carving with walrus and narwhal tusks as the medium are some of the most lucrative trades.

"Battle Harbor came into news prominence in 1925 when Sir Wilfred accompanied the National Geographic society-U. S. Navy expedition, which was headed for Etah, Greenland—an expedition whereon Admiral Byrd commanded the navy personnel and made his first flying experiments in high latitudes."

Previously, Battle Harbor had had its first baptism as a world news source in September, 1909, when Peary, returning from his discovery of the North Pole, met American correspondents who sent the first great news story by wireless. The Battle Harbor wireless station was destroyed by the recent fire.

Stories That Recall Others

What?

Two persons of rather ample proportions were overheard talking on the street car. They were apparently brother and sister and when they entered the car, the man immediately took the only seat, leaving the woman to stand.

"Gentlemen always let ladies sit down!" said the woman.

"Well," retorted her companion, "What's that got to do with us?"

Squeezed It Out.

A very desirable "date" in the eyes of a particular group of girls had taken one of the number out for the evening. Next morning all were eager to hear about the popular lad.

"I hope he didn't get it from you how crazy we all are about him," said one.

"Well, I must confess girls, he squeezed it out of me," replied the prize winner.

Because of the drought in the United States this year, wild ducks and geese are expected to gather in greater numbers in resting grounds well supplied with water, and hunters may be deceived into thinking that these birds, which are for below normal in number this year, are abundant.

President Hoover has made the first formal endorsement of the 1930 Christmas seal sale which opens Thanksgiving day all over the United States, according to an announcement made Thursday by the state tuberculosis commission, directors of the Christmas seal sale in Connecticut, and state agents for the National Tuberculosis association. More than twenty-five million seals have been received at the state capitol at Hartford and distributed to the 80 local tuberculosis associations throughout the state.

Members of the commission said Thursday that they felt confident that the people of Connecticut would continue their generous support of this endeavor to raise funds for the prevention of tuberculosis in this state particularly in view of the fact that the need this year is greater than ever before. For 24 years the tuberculosis associations of the country have gone before the public each year with a standard form of appeal, a Christmas seal, which is attractive as well as useful.

BUGLE CALL FOR GRATITUDE IS THANKSGIVING SERMON THEME

Greeneville Congregational church had a large congregation Thursday evening at 7:30 for the union Thanksgiving service at which the sermon was by Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent of the Methodist church, who spoke upon "A Bugle Call for Gratitude."

After the organ voluntary and doxology, the invocation was given by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church. An appropriate anthem by the choir was followed by responsive reading which was led by Rev. A. N. Foster of the Church of the Good Shepherd, following which the congregation united in the singing of a hymn and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Theodore M. Shipherd of Park Congregational church. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. G. W. Potter of the First Methodist church and the governor's Thanksgiving proclamation by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the United Congregational church.

Preceding the taking of the offering, which was for urgent local needs, there was a hymn by the congregation, and after the offering, the Thanksgiving sermon was delivered.

Thanksgiving Sermon

Rev. Mr. Genter spoke upon the theme, A Bugle Call for Gratitude, and had for his text the fourth verse of the one-hundredth Psalm Enter into God's gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise. Be thankful unto God and bless His name.

He spoke in part as follows:

This passage from the Holy Book is but one of many by this famous poet of Israel, as an exhortation to his people, urging them to expression of their gratitude to God, the maker and benefactor of mankind.

For ages humanity has been all too slow in recognition and adequate expression of appreciation of the Infinite Father. Four times in the seventh poem following this text, the poet breaks out with the words, "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and His wonderful works to the children of men." In the day of our Lord Christ, perhaps the conduct of the ten lepers is symptomatic of that day; ten were cleansed and one returned to thank the Man of Galilee. In our own day, the public assemblies called for such sacred occasions are comparatively small, and many privately admit that the habit of audible thanksgiving to God privately has ceased.

If this be true and God is still the Father as the Saviour taught, then the heart of the Almighty Father must be pained a thousand million times because of the masses of His children who ignor His presence, neglect acts of praise, and in the conduct of life, do not voice their gratitude for his unceasing benefactions.

We may then ask, what appears today—which should cause the human host to come to its knees on Thanksgiving day, in devotion and gratitude and then to rise with paeons of praise and joyous hallelujahs.

Let us name the high privilege of living in such an age as we have today.

In the order of things our only chance for life on the planet was not in the age of the cave man, tearing the raw flesh from the bone; nor the age of the Psalmist when a man's life was so little valued; nor in the day of Christ in the flesh, with the low level of civilization at large; nor in some later period called chivalry, when a few rode in armor but the masses lived on marsh, moor, barren, with small fields and oppression strong. Neither those later days, when royalty feasted at tables, threw the bones underneath to growling dogs and after drunken carousal were led or carried away to cover. Let us be glad that we live not in grandfather's day, but our own and in such a land as this vast domain with variety of climate and natural products and opportunity for freeman second to none under the dome of heaven. Let us not forget that millions in India have never had more than one meal a day such ase we enjoy. Let us bear in mind that of China's 400 million, most of them have the mind of a child still. Should we not see vividly that millions of others in barbarism, paganism, and animalism, still live and move and will disappear on the same low plane as their ancestors a thousand years ago.

Our praise should be spontaneous and unanimous because of the abundant temporal blessings of the year.

The old earth, in spite of her centuries of production has not been exhausted, and in some respects this year, fruits of the grounds and the trees and the vines has been fairer than usual. The seeds still grow, carrying the vital life from year to year, though the husk dies, while it is declared that leading scientists with the best of laboratory equipment cannot make seed that will grow.

While some have sputtered and complained much as to the rain shortage of a few months, the notable law of averages over periods of time still holds and the ancient covenant of God with man is still observed, "As long as the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, summer and winter, cold and heat, day and night shall not cease."

What harvests! It is still true as the ancient poet said "God loadeth us with benefits." Wagon loads from the farms, truck loads in the interstate traffic overland; train loads across the continent, and ship loads in the coastal and deep sea trade. But let us not forget, that if there is nothing more for which to be grateful, then a crass, coarse, and canker—our materialism, will strangle the diviner things.

Let us pause to be thankful for the higher privileges of the mind. We may have forgotten that our system of education is taking this 41 million of children and youth under 16 years of age, and leading them away from ignorance and lack of understanding up to planes of intelligence, where this vast throng is soon to take charge of the social order and lift it to levels of which the prophets never dreamed. Here is found equipment to serve, enrichment of personality with things of the spirit to possess forever, and the power to think thoughts of God after him.

Does it not command our admiration that God has so ordained that in spite of the law of progress in affairs, that a poise or balance still inheres in the order of things. If greater obligation rests down upon us, and there is increased burden to bear and increased pain to share, as we rise in civilization, it is also true that there is vastly increased joy and satisfaction over task well done. And some seemed to have found the secret of secrets, as in the stress of things, these radiant, strong, brave, conquering souls, have a creativity relation to the Infinite Spirit himself. They go with quest and have conquest; they assay into life with a smile, and turn opportunity into victory.

Let us also be thankful for the vast spiritual resources for all who will trust the God of our nations and order their lives in the light of truth revealed. There are times when we all like Kipling in sickness say, "I want my Heavenly Father." There is a God who is near, a Christ, spiritual leader of the hosts who is the living bread of life, for the soul. There is still a voice as of one behind us saying, "This is the way." There is a throne of grace to which weary, tired and beaten souls may go and rise sufficient for life. There is still the offer of a changed life to all who seek the Christ, in their need. There is still given to trusting folks strength divine for their day and "a light never seen on land nor sea." With slight change in the poet's words, "So near is grandeur to our dust—so near is God to man. That when stern duty says Thou Must, we all reply we can."

We must also hold in mind, in spite of the present living, with all of its complications, that life itself would be dogged with defeat, discouragement and ultimate disaster, were it not for the divine provision for unceasing life after we disappear from the natural order of things in the world we now know and use.

There is nobler toil, higher motive, lovelier human relations and sweeter sleep because we rest life in all of its aspects and activities on the dictum of Christ, "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am, ye may be also." The whole character with which we shall emerge out of the present life in the beyond, takes on nothing less than God—likeness if we live the present life in the light of this revelation which comes through the Son of God, and all through every day in every trusting heart, there is the conviction voiced by a Quaker of these New England hills, "I know not where His island life, their fronded palms in air, I only know I cannot drift beyond his love and care."

In conclusion: Yes there is high obligation that we on Thanksgiving day, on proclamation of president, governors and mayors and others to assemble for public worship and praise. Let the bells in the steeples peal out, let the organs send forth their most joyous notes, let the choirs render the loftiest anthems, let all the people lift praise in mighty volume to God as on no other day. Let the prophetic messengers speak of the might and majesty of the Most High, as well as His mercy and munificence. And after we have done all this let us still remember, what the same poet who gave us the text said long ago, "God daily loadeth us with benefits." Daily are his gifts to the children of men. Yea—more, God so makes the earth to yield up and the skies to bow down and the whole order of nature to tend to our need, that through His systems, He ministers to us all the time, night and day—thoughout all the golden year. Shall we not then with this Psalmist, say "At evening and morning and noon, thou shalt hear my voice."

Thus when man comes to his best lives there as his mode of conduct, the praise to God becomes almost as natural as breathing.

The service was brought to a close with prayer by Rev. Mr. Genter, a hymn by the congregation and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town.

CALL FOR SCOUTS TO SPEND DAY AT CAMP

A call has been issued for husky scouts who can get hold of a claw hammer to report to the local Boy Scout headquarters this (Friday) morning about 9.30. Scouts are warned to dress very warm and to bring plenty of food for cooking along for dinner. Among some of the things the scouts can do to help build the new cabin will be that of building a stone foundation, removing nails from 320 feet of lumber and the cutting of a trail from the cabin to the river.

Scout Executive Carl B. Bauder of Salem, Mass., visited the site Thursday and was warm in his praise of the location of the camp for winter use. Field Scout Executive Arthur Adams also visited the camp site. The committee of scoutleaders who are taking on the job of getting the cabin built and getting men and boys out to build it are Scoutmaster Walter Weidman, Lloyd Rathbun and Will Collins. These men and other leaders whom they secure will probably spend part of Friday and Saturday working on the cabin. The leaders hope to finish the project before Christmas.

According to Dr. R. R. Agnew, chief sponsor for the cabin, additional lumber has been donated through the city gas and electric department which can be used. The scouts are still in need of suitable flooring, roofing paper and wall board for the interior to make the cabin warm.

All scouters will return in time for supper.

Scouts Want to See "Deerslayer"

Boy Scouts are looking forward with considerable anticipation to the moving picture to be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. next Sunday, entitled the "Deerslayer." Through the courtesy of the local Y. M. C. A., this Sunday will be called Boy Scout Sunday and a large delegation of Boy Scouts are expected to see the picture which should be of especial interest to them now that they have a camp.

A roll call by troops will be taken and every scoutmaster is expected to use the emergency mobilization call through his patrol leaders to have his troop represented 100 per cent strong at the showing of the picture. It has been suggested that troops meet at the Thayer building and march down in a body. It is pointed out that the participation and supervision of scouts in this showing could well be handled by one of the troop committeemen should the scoutmaster be unable to be present. Every scout will be expected to make a gratuitous offering.

THROWN WHILE RIDING HORSEBACK AT YANTIC

While riding horseback at Yantic Thursday afternoon, Neil Woodbury of Springfield, Mass., was thrown at the railroad crossing and was taken to the Backus hospital for treatment for his injuries, which were abrasion of the left shin and contusion of the left hip. He was able to leave the hospital after treatment.

The horse, it was reported, suffered a broken leg and had to be shot.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE WILL HEAR HARTFORD SPEAKER

At a recent meeting of the executive board of the League of Women Voters held at the home of the president, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, plans were completed for the December meeting of the league. This will be Dec. 3 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at Slater hall annex and the subject will be Education. The speaker on this occasion will be Mrs. Helen Lewis of Hartford, who has been for two years chairman of the education committee of the League of Women Voters in the state legislature. Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman will give a report of the state convention of Women Voters held recently in Bridgeport. Reports of the school investigating committee of the local league will be part of the programme.

Members of the league have the privilege of bringing friends to the meeting.

WILL DEMONSTRATE VISUAL AIDS FOR TEACHING

Simple forms of teaching by the use of visual aids will be demonstrated at three conferences, sponsored by the Connecticut State Board of Education, at the state trade school, in Hartford. The first will be on Monday, December 1, from 10 a. m., and will be devoted to methods of instruction in attaining and safeguarding health and safety. Other conferences will be held January 5 and February 2, 1931.

Seven hundred school authorities, including superintendents, supervisors, principals and teachers, have been invited to attend by Dr. Ernest W. Butterfield, commissioner of education. Dr. Charles J. Prohaska, director of physical education and health, will be in charge of the first exhibit.

This will be of a character to include all of the latest methods and contrivances successfully used in visual education. The scope of the exhibits will be greater than anything thus far shown outside of a convention national in character. Many state departments and agencies, not directly connected with school work, are contributing health and safety material which has proved of value in traffic, industry and business life.

Demonstrations will be given of visual aid in new processes of oral hygiene instruction, nutrition values of foods, and health exercises. The program will stress the importance of work for child health and protection as a fundamental in the school curriculum. In the morning the program will be given over to health and safety work in elementary schools, while that of the afternoon will be devoted largely to work in junior and senior high schools.

An exhibit which will particularly demonstrate the hazards of modern traffic for children and ways of avoiding dangers will be displayed by the state department of motor vehicles. Included in this will be miniature models of cities and streets, constructed from attractively painted blocks and patterns, after the picture puzzle plan. Toy models of vehicles, lights and other things which make up traffic are placed on the models. When used in schools, pupils are allowed to construct copies of streets and intersections with which they are familiar and work out traffic problems. "Danger spots" are set up and advice given by the teachers on the best ways of avoiding the dangers.

The conference on January 5 will be under the direction of Joseph Wiseltier, director of art education, and the subject will be "Art Education." Russell F. Lund, assistant in nature study, will direct a conference on "Elementary and High School Science," on February 2. Both conferences will be based on the aids to be secured in teaching by "visual education."

THREE WESTERLY HIGH CROSS COUNTRY RUNNERS INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 27.—Three members of the Westerly high school cross country team figured in an automobile accident on the Westerly-Stonington road on Thanksgiving night shortly before 8 o'clock. All sustained injuries. Three automobiles were involved in the accident, two of them being badly damaged and two of the occupants receiving court summons.

Nicholas Furcolo, 16, of 32 Pierce street, was the operator of the Chevrolet sedan, owned by his mother Maria, who went with his brother to mail a letter. He left his brother and picked up two other members of the Westerly high school team, Clarence Shippee of Ledward avenue and James Giorno, 16, of 137 Tower street, members of the freshman and sophomore classes, who went to Wequetequock. They were returning and when near the top of Moss Hill, Operator Furcolo said that he saw the front of a Cadillac sedan parked in a driveway on the right side of the road the front over the highway and blocked up while the driver, who was accompanied by his wife, George Marcheen, 50, of 45 Clifford street, Roxbury, Mass., was making tire repairs. Furcolo said that in the absence of lights he was unable to see the car in time to prevent striking it, knocking out the blocking and glancing off to hit the Nash sedan of Bernard Payne of 85 Crystal avenue, New London, returning home, with a wedding party, two girls and another man. The Furcolo car was turned over onto the occupants and the driver sustained a cut on the ear and an injury to his car. His companions were rendered unconscious. They were picked up by a man who resided near the scene and heard the crash, and took them to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon for treatment. Giorno sustained a concussion of the brain, bad lacerations and bruises to his head, hands and chest. Shippee had a concussion of the brain, and lacerations, bruises on his forehead, right hand and left knee. They declared that they did not know what happened after they heard two crashes until they came to in the doctor's office.

Pawcatuck Police Patrolman Simeon Shortman and Constable Hill were called to the scene to investigate and as a result Furcolo was summoned to appear in Friday morning's session of Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox on a charge of reckless driving, and Marcheen as a material witness. The driver was admitted to $50 bail with Joseph Mazzarelli as surety.

EXPECTING 1,000 ATTENDANCE AT FARM BUREAU CONVENTION

True New England hospitality will be a dominant note in the coming annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Boston, December 9 and 10. Under the leadership of Elmer M. Poole, of North Dartmouth, president of the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation, Howard S. Russell, of Wayland, secretary, and other farm bureau leaders plans have been developed to give the 1,000 or more farm bureau people from all over the nation, a real welcome.

Governor Allen and Mayor Curley will express official welcomes from the state and the city and some outstanding farm leaders from one of the northeastern group of states will voice the pleasure of the agricultural forces at entertaining this body of delegates representing more than 1,000,000 farmers. In addition to these words of welcome Mr. Russell and the committee in charge have made arrangements for dinners, sight seeing trips, a great display of New England's agricultural resources and music and social features throughout the leisure hours of the big convention. Nothing will be planned during the business sessions as it was the wish of the leaders that nothing should distract the attention from the weighty matters to be discussed at the meeting.

Every through train will be met by representatives of the Massachusetts federation and all farm bureau people will be taken to the Hotel Statler, the headquarters of the convention. On registration each guest will be given a coupon booklet entitling him to all privileges including free sight seeing trips, baked bean supper at Ford hall, a special meeting at Horticultural hall where the exhibit will be held, trips to the markets, meetings at Faneuil hall, and other features which have been planned. Everyone will be given a badge with "Guest" prominently displayed

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine Neither salves or cutting can remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Lee and Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and gaurantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery

CORNELL, LED BY VIVIANO, BEATS PENN FOR FIRST TIME IN 7 YEARS

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Led by a 19-year old battering ram in halfback Bart Viviano, Cornell's big red football team handed a beating to Pennsylvania today for the first time in seven years. The Ithacans turned the tables on their old rivals by a final score of 13 to 7 but their margin of superiority was much greater than the tally indicated.

Despite the near-freezing weather, close to 65,000 spectators saw the most powerful Cornell team developed since 1923 by Gil Dobie slash Pennsylvania's line to pieces with a power attack featuring Viviano. This young sophomore from Plainfield, N. J., revived memories of Eddie Kaw and George Pfann backfield aces of Cornell's last gridiron golden era, as he ripped off tackle and tore around the ends for repeated and sensational gains.

Viviano, lugging two and three tacklers on his back as he plunged forward, scored Cornell's first touchdown in the second period on a short line plunge. His hard-running and blocking helped the Ithacans tally again shortly afterward on a long pass, Handleman to Beyer, who caught the ball on the margin of the end zone.

Viviano carried the ball 34 times from scrimmage for total gains of 169 yards, an average of five yards per play. Only twice was he stopped without gain.

All the game's scoring was confined to the spectacular second period, in the last minute of which Pennsylvania put over its only touchdown on a brilliant passing play, Munger to Burnett, who raced 30 yards to score after taking a 23-yard heave.

Aside from this scoring play and a drive to Cornell's 20-yard line in the third quarter, Pennsylvania was decisively outplayed and seldom threatened the Red goal. The Quakers were saved from a worse beating largely through the sensational end play of Paul Riblett, who made nearly half of the Quaker tackles anywhere near his side of the line. Riblett was the outstanding defensive player on the field and contributed to the gallant stand which the Quakers made in the final period in taking the ball on downs on their two and a half yard line.

Cornell's rushing attack, with Viviano as its dynamo, registered gains of 251 yards as compared to 136 yards for Pennsylvania. The Ithacans led in the first downs 17 to 9. Their passing attack, although it accounted for the deciding touchdown, was at times a boomerang. Twice in the first period Cornell penetrated to Penn's 22-yard line, only to have passes broken up. Twice in the third quarter, Penn's alert end, Burnett, broke up Cornell's marches by intercepting passes.

Cornell completed seven out of 11 heaves for gains of 111 yards, whereas Pennsylvania completed four out of 11 for gains of 104 yards.

Beyer's sensational catches of long passes by Handleman figured in both Cornell touchdowns.

After the Ithacans had reached Penn's eight-yard line early in the second quarter, only to lose 16 yards on a fumble, Beyer raced wide to take a long pass from Handleman and reached the three-yard mark. From there Viviano bucked over in two plunges and Captain Hunt, who played a fine game in the line, booted the extra point.

As the climax of a 60-yard advance, Beyer took another long pass from Handleman who tossed into the end zone to Beyer from Penn's 35-yard line. The Cornell receiver was on the very edge of the end zone, falling outside as he made the catch, but the referee allowed the score after consulting the linesman.

Cornell partisans, dashing on the half-frozen gridiron to celebrate the first victory over Pennsylvania since George Pfann led the Ithacans to triumph in 1923, were repulsed in a wild attempt to tear down the Quaker goal posts. The uprights were swaying on their foundations when re-inforcements from the Penn stands came to the rescue. For fully a half hour hand-to-hand warfare raged. Fists flew freely and there were dozens of knockdowns but apparently nothing more serious than bruises resulted.

Edward Wolle, ace of the Newton high school squad of New York city, took second place with 14:15. Close at his heels was Thomas Russell, of LaSalle, who placed third by dint of a strong finish.

KILLINGLY BOWS BEFORE STRONG PUTNAM ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 27—In the last game of the season Killingly high school bowed to Putnam after being beaten on the Quinebaug field 12 to 0 in the annual scrimmage between the two schools. Due to a light snow which had fallen during the previous night the field was slippery and muddy and both teams had trouble in starting. Although neither team played brilliant or snappy football Putnam put up the best game all the way through. The snow made the ball very slippery and caused many fumbles. Although Killingly was forced to cancel all other games on account of injuries she wished to meet Putnam in the traditional game on Thanksgiving day. Several new men were added to the Killingly squad and her chances looked good. but Putnam proved to be too strong for her.

Killingly has made only one score during the whole season. She tied East Douglas 7 to 7. Putnam also seemed to have a jinx this year, having won very few games. This game drew about a 1,000 spectators, one of the largest crowds seen at the Quinebaug field for some time. Shaw, Putnam's fullback, showed very good offensive playing and carried the ball through the Killingly line time and time again, to score Putnam's first touchdown.

In the last quarter Killingly launched a fierce aerial attack and made some good gains until Shaw pulled the oval from the air and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Haveles and Dascoll were the bright spots for Killingly. The lineup follows:

SHYMAS LOSE TO FAST RADIO FIVE

Winning by a 51 to 49 score from the Shyma club of Taftville at Taftville Thanksgiving day, the Radio Five of Danielson proved why they are leading the way in the Southern New England basketball league standing, but in doing so the team had to extend itself. Their adeptness at shooting baskets at long range sums up the reason for the Danielson victory.

Going into the second half on the short end of a 13 to 7 count, the Danielson basketeers let loose an attack that found them 21 all at the half. After the first quarter, in which the Shyma club showed that it really could play acceptable basketball, it could easily be seen that the upstaters were in for a win. In the first five minutes of play Taftville scored 13 points to their opponents' three.

The Shymas have yet to win this season, having lost the first encounter to the New London Ockfords. Battery E. of Westerly, will be their opponents in the next go Tuesday evening at Taftville.

The American Legion, of Taftville, whipped the Shyma Jrs., in the preliminary 38 to 27. The summary:

FLORIDA CRUSHES GEORGIA TECH FOR FIRST TIME

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—After years of defeat for Florida, a powerful Alligator machine crushed Georgia Tech today under its worst defeat in years, 55 to 7, and its first at the hands of Florida.

The Jackets scored midway in the opening period and kicked the extra point, but after Florida had demonstrated its power by marching 95 yards after the next kickoff for a touchdown, the Alligator offense began to click.

The Florida varsity scored three times in the second period. Twice in the third and once in the fourth and a complete second team rushed over two additional touchdowns in the last quarter.

"Y" ACTIVITIES

This afternoon the volleyball team representing the local Y. M. C. A., in the state volleyball league will hold practice at 5.30 o'clock. This practice is in preparation for the game with New London here on Saturday afternoon.

The Y Senior basketball team will open the home season on Dec. 20th when the Middletown team will be the opponents. Middletown is also bringing down a girls' team to compete against the local girls.

The basketball season for the seniors opens on next Tuesday night with the local boys going to Bridgeport to engage the Central Electric team of that city.

BOXING

With the practical close of the football season yesterday there is very little for the gridiron fans of the east to look forward to now. The interest in the east centers on the Army-Navy benefit game on the 13th of December and the Notre Dame-All Star game the next Sunday. However, there is keen interest in at least three of the late season games, the Army-Notre Dame and the Dartmouth-Stanford tilts this Saturday and the Notre Dame-California tilt later in the month.

Basketball now takes the stage and will hold it along with hockey until the opening of the baseball season. Locally there will be plenty of basketball this season, the Shyma club putting on fast games while the Y Seniors are striving for a state Y. M. C. A. crown. At Plainfield the Pros hold forth with the intention of copping off the New England professional title. Hockey although not played anywhere in the eastern part of the state is drawing fans from Norwich to other cities. Many go to Providence, Springfield and New Haven to see the Canadian-American league teams play while others go to Boston to see the Bruins in the National Hockey league.

For real fever pitch the interest in the coming Darr-Koziol bout is mounting to unknown heights. This bout is causing more comment than any bout ever staged in the city in recent years and the opinion is pretty much divided. Darr by virtue of his showing against Koziol earlier in the season has been established as the favorite. But on the other hand there are plenty who are willing to risk good coin of the realm on the Laurel Hill mauler. Both boys are just sawing wood and saying nothing, determined to let their work in the ring speak for them. But at the same time both are pretty confident of victory. Darr because he has once trimmed Koziol and Koziol because he will be in much better shape than he was in the first bout. No matter who wins its going to be the scrap of the year and the last one until long after the holidays.

WESTERLY BREAKS FIVE-YEAR JINX BEATING STONINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin).

STONINGTON, Nov. 27—In the annual Turkey Day classic here today Westerly copped the inter-town championship from the Stonington high school by a 12 to 0 score and thereby broke the winning streak of the locals in annexing Thanksgiving day contests. The Stonington school boys had won this annual classic for the past five years, but in today's tilt they met a superior team. The Rhode Island high school has two championships in football under her belt, having also taken the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic championship.

Westerly, with its heavier team, crashed through the local team of lighter weight almost at abandon in the first two quarters, scoring a touchdown in each, Stenhouse taking the ball over the stripe. Both scores were made by line plunges. The Brown and White were saved from an 18 to 0 shutout in the final quarter by the shrill blasts of the referee's whistle, which marked the end of the encounter.

In winning the Rhode Islanders gained first leg on the Westerly Theatres cup, which was donated especially for the occasion by John Findlay of the United Theatres of Westerly.

S. C. TROJANS MARCH TO EASY WIN OVER U. OF WASH.

COLISEUM, Los Angeles, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Trojans of Southern California marched through the University of Washington football team today and on to their intersectional clash with Notre Dame.

The Huskies were left bogged in a 32 to 0 defeat as 40,000 persons roared their approval of the spectacular open game which developed despite a slippery field.

The men of Troy wended their way to the five touchdowns with Erny Pinckert, blocking backfield ace, absent. He limped from the fray early in the first period with an injured hip.

Outweighed by their opponents Coach Jimmy Phelan's Huskies hammered and pounded the walls of Troy in vain. Neither could they scale the walls with their passing attack which at times blossomed into brilliance with Merle Hufford either on the sending or receiving end of their offerings.

ONE-THIRD OF TICKETS FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME SOLD

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—(AP)—More than one-third of the tickets allotted for general sale for the Army-Navy football game Dec. 13 have been disposed of Governor Whalen, chairman of the citizens' committee of the Salvation Army announced today.

Of the 45,022 tickets available to the general public, 17,212 have been disposed of, Whalen said.

PLAINFIELD OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

Professional basketball makes its 1930-1931 debut at the Plainfield Community house this evening when the revamped Plainfield team stacks up against the fast Long Island professional combination. Manager Lester Salisbury is out this year to hang up a record for basketball in Connecticut and with this in mind has built up a strong club. Four new faces will appear in the Plainfield lineup. They are Marchinak, Crowley, Bissell and McNally who together with Dissinger, Williams and Conway make up as well balanced a team as has ever represented Plainfield.

Just how the Plainfield team will take the floor against the Long Island team tonight is something of a guess and it is probable that the entire roster will see action before the final whistle. The starting lineup will probably be Marchinak and Crowley, forwards, Conway center, McNally and Bissell guards, with Dissinger and Williams held in reserve.

The Pros from Long Island are no strangers to eastern Connecticut basketball fans and their lineup includes some of the best basketball shooters in the metropolitan area. Last year they came to Plainfield and put up a good battle giving the fans some of the best basketball of the season. Their schedule this year includes games with all the leading clubs in the east and mid-west so that a victory over this aggregation tonight will be quite a step along the trail to championship honors.

For the preliminary game the Plainfield Boddies clash with the Danielson club. There will be dancing after the games.

STRONG COLGATE ELEVEN BREAKS DOWN STURDY DEFENSE OF BROWN

By BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Colgate's powerful football machine after a slow start, ripped a hard fighting Brown eleven wide open in the final period for a 27-0 victory here today before 20,000 hardy spectators who braved an extremely low temperature for the Thanksgiving classic between these ancient rivals.

The Bruins, who started with little hope of success, made a stubborn stand during most of the well played contest but the lack of even a mediocre punter counted heavily against them. Each of the Maroon's four touchdowns could be traced back to one of Captain Link Fogarty's exceptionally short kicks.

Andy Kerr's speedy backs, with Len Macaluso, the east's highest scorer, leading the way, banged over a touchdown in the first period and then were checked until the finale, when three Maroon-clad runners tripped over the Brown goal line in rapid order.

Brown was waging a stubborn battle with its highly touted rivals when the first break went against Coach "Tuss" McLaughry's men. A Colgate punt was downed on Brown's 16-yard line on the first play, an unsuccessful end sweep by Harris, a Bruin was caught holding.

Macaluso hit center for 10 yards, banged out side of his right guard for four and then went over center for the opening score. This great back, one of the outstanding candidates for the All-American fullback berth, contributed most of the 196 yards that his team gained by rushing during the game. Rotelli, his rival line buster, earned most of the 80 yards that the Bruins piled up on rushes.

Brown's great linemen held most of Andy Kerr's tricky Warner plays for slight gains in the second and third periods and their heart-breaking efforts appeared due to be rewarded with a touchdown late in the latter session.

Brown's only scoring chance came when Mackesey, outstanding Bruin lineman, recovered Terry's fumbled punt on Colgate's 35-yard line. Fogarty and Rotelli ripped inside of the tackles for two first downs and when the fourth period opened, Brown was but seven yards from the Colgate goal.

Part of this advance was due to a forward pass but when Fogarty tried to complete another to Sawyer, Captain Hart grounded it in his end zone and regained the ball.

Colgate regained its scoring stride after Terry downed a Brown punt on the latter's 35-yard line. Macaluso hit the line to tighten the Bruin defense and Hart then hurled a long scoring pass to his quarterback, Abruzzino.

A few plays after another poor Brown punt, Hart booted the ball deep into enemy territory and the Maroons were again in scoring position when Marsland, Colgate pivot man, intercepted Fogarty's pass on Brown's 35-yard line. Again Macaluso drew the Brown defense tight with a line smash and there was no one near when Hart rounded his right end and dashed 30 yards for a score.

Brown's last stand, a desperate passing attack deep in its territory, gave Colgate its final score when Orsi, able end, intercepted a heave on Brown's 35-yard line. Before the teams lined up, Kerr replaced Abruzzino with Reynolds, and after the usual successful Macaluso plunge, Hart completed a scoring pass to the substitute quarterback.

In addition to his touchdown Macaluso scored with three dropkicks for extra points, giving him a total of 144 points for the nine games he has played this season. The Colgate running game earned 13 first downs to four for Brown and the Maroons completed nine of their 14 passes, most of the short ones, while Brown was making four of its 10 heaves legal.

The line-up:

Colgate	Brown
Sullivan, le	le, Allen
Lockwood, lt	lt, Mackesey
Doyle, lg	lg, Richardson
Marsland, c	c, Horton
Ellis, rg	rg, Gilles
Schiebel, rt	rt, Schein

Score by periods:

ALABAMA DOWNS GEORGIA TO END PERFECT SEASON

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 27—(AP)—Alabama defeated Georgia 13 to 0, here today to close the Crimson Tide's third undefeated football season in eight years under Coach Wallace Wade.

Twenty-eight thousand spectators shivered in the coldest weather of the year to witness the Thanksgiving day classic on Legion field.

Today's game gave Alabama eight southern conference victories for the season. The Tide won the conference championship in 1926 and 1927, going to Rose bowl on New Years' day of the following year.

The game with Georgia closed Wade's tutelage at Alabama. He goes to Duke university, Durham, N. C., next year as head football mentor.

Johnny Campbell, a half back, was the outstanding Crimson star. He scored the first touchdown in the opening period and his 60-yard return of a punt in the final quarter made possible the other touchdown.

Johnny Cain ran Campbell a close second. He tallied the last touchdown and was responsible for several good lines gains in other periods.

Alabama's initial score came on a drive that started from Georgia's 47-yard line in the first quarter. Cain ripped off 22 yards over right tackle. And on successive line plunges a first down was made on Georgia's 13-yard stripe. A pass, Cain to Moore, made it first down on the one-foot marker and Campbell went through for the touchdown. Campbell failed to make the point from placement.

Near the close of the fourth period, Campbell received a punt from Chandler and ran it back 60 yards to Georgia's 10-yard mark. Line plays placed the ball on the one-yard line and on the third down Cain scored the touchdown. Campbell this time made the extra point.

LaBARBA WILL BE A 2 TO 1 FAVORITE IN TONIGHT'S BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Fidel LaBarba, hardy little warrior from the Pacific coast, will go to the post a 2 to 1 favorite over Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., featherweight, in their ten round bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

LaBarba "retired" several years ago as the world's undefeated flyweight champion but later reconsidered his decision and returned to the ring as a featherweight. A few weeks ago he astounded the experts by giving Kid Chocolate a decisive beating. Chocolate previously had been considered virtually invincible at his own weight. It is largely because of his showing in that bout that LaBarba has been installed a heavy favorite over the middle westerner. Although a veteran, Taylor has gone back so little that it's practically invisible to the naked eye. A puncher of no mean ability, the Terre Haute terror has battered down many an outstanding bantamweight and featherweight contender with his relentless body attack.

As an additional incentive to victory, the winner of tomorrow night's bout has been promised a match with the survivor of the Chocolate-Bat Battilino featherweight championship bout here Dec. 12.

The supporting card includes a ten rounder between Jimmy Slavin, hard hitting New York featherweight, and Joe Scalfaro, another local slugger.

PITTSBURGH TEARS INTO PENN STATE FOR VICTORY

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A snarling, embattled Lion from Penn State college today was clawed into submission, 19 to 12, by an equally vicious Panther representing the University of Pittsburgh in their annual Thanksgiving day gridiron classic. Cold weather kept the crowd down to approximately 10,000.

Warren Heller, Pitt's 165-pound left halfback, played brilliantly, scoring two touchdowns. Heller, a sophomore who hails from Steelton, Pa., galloped 80 yards and 30 yards for the 12 points besides gaining many additional yards in scrimmage through his speed and behind good interference.

Pitt seemed the stronger of the two elevens, although the State eleven went down fighting at the final whistle.

The Lions were unable to crack the strong Panther line but were fairly successful with an aerial attack. Pitt employed straight football and the forward pass to beat State for the ninth successive year.

The first period resolved itself into a scoreless punting duel, but soon after the second period started, Heller ran 30 yards around left end for a touchdown after shaking off several tacklers. Baker failed to kick goal. The Lions tied the score in the third period when Lasich plunged through center.

Later in the same period French intercepted a pass on Pitt's 45-yard and ran 23 yards before he was tackled. Diedrich's attempt at a field goal missed its mark and Pitt was given the ball on the 20-yard line. On the first play Heller sprinted 80 yards for his second touchdown. Baker kicked goal.

In the fourth period Reider paved the way for Pitt's final touchdown when he took a pass from Heller and ran 21 yards to State's four-yard line. Williams, who replaced Reider, hurled a pass over the goal line to Baker. Baker failed to kick the extra point.

SYRACUSE OUTPLAYS OLD RIVALS TO WIN, 19 TO 7

BAKER FIELD, New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Syracuse downed Columbia, 19-7, before 25,000 spectators this afternoon in a thrilling Thanksgiving day football battle marked by long runs and brilliant plays.

Columbia's fighting team was outplayed by the heavy Orange forwards and fast-stepping backs most of the afternoon but escaped a shutout by punching over a touchdown in the final minute of play.

Syracuse turned in its best performance of the season to re-assert supremacy over its New York city rival in this holiday feature, registering its eighth victory in ten games played against Columbia since 1901.

A pair of hard-running sophomore backs, Joe Moran of Niagara Falls and Dick Fishel of New York, led the Syracuse attack that produced three touchdowns, one each in the first, second and fourth periods. Fishel carried the ball over the line twice and Moran once. Dashes through the line and around the ends paved the way for all of the Syracuse scores.

For Columbia, Ralph Hewitt, star quarterback from Lawrence, Mass., played a hard game through most of the first half but the jinx that has dogged him all season overtook him in the second period and he was forced out of the game with a broken bone in his right hand.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE BOWS BEFORE DUQUESNE ATTACK

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 27—(AP)—Duquesne university ended its football season with seven victories and three losses by rallying to defeat Providence college here today 15 to 6 on a snow-covered gridiron.

The Rhode Islanders surprised the Duquesne reserves, who started, by working a double pass in the opening quarter with Foster, left halfback, covering 25 yards for a touchdown, but a forward pass for the extra point failed. Duquesne then took the lead with a touchdown and a safety in the second period and marched to another touchdown in the final quarter.

Quarterback Bleiler's fumble of the slippery ball on the Providence 18 yard line paved the way for Duquesne's second period counter. Captain Benedict's pass was taken by Burns in the play that knotted the count. Although Kovalcheck's placement attempt was blocked, Duquesne forged ahead in the same quarter when Abele blocked Galligan's punt from the Providence 20, the ball bounding over the end zone for an automatic safety.

In the fourth period, Fullback McCarthy ended a steady march with a short plunge over the goal line and Kovalchek converted the 15th point.

MISSOURI SPOILS OKLAHOMA'S CHANCE FOR CONFERENCE TITLE

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 27—(AP)—Missouri's scrapping line stopped Oklahoma's running attack when danger threatened and the Sooners saw their hopes for a Big Six championship share go glimmering in a scoreless tie on Owen field today.

Although the Oklahomans piled up ten first downs to five for Missouri, and rolled up 208 yards in scrimmage to 88 for Missouri, one of those heralded breaks of the game robbed the visitors of a touchdown that would have beaten the Sooners.

An offside penalty, assessed because the backfield was in motion, nullified a 40-yard pass over the goal line from the sharp shooting Van Dyne into the arms of Campbell.

Otherwise it was a nip and tuck battle, with Mills and Warren scooting off tackle and around end for consistent Oklahoma gains between the 20-yard lines, only to be rebuffed by the sturdy Missouri linemen when serious gestures were made in the direction of the goal line.

MARYLAND'S BURST OF POWER DOWNS HOPKINS

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27—(AP)—Maryland's regulars, battled to almost even terms for the greater part of two periods, staged a late third and early fourth period offense to score three touchdowns and win the 27th football meeting with Johns Hopkins university, 21 to 0, today before 10,000 shivering fans.

A team of Terrapin second string men failed to score and the regulars were sent in at the start of the second period. Five times they drove inside the Hopkins five yard line only to be halted.

On the sixth drive, one of 30 yards, Poppelman ran right end for 15 yards, a pass made seven and Berger scored on a triple pass. Chalmers intercepted a Hopkins pass on the first play after the kick off and ran to the Jay 13 yard mark. A pass, Chalmers to Poppelman made ten as the period ended and Poppelman plunged over on the first play of the final quarter.

An intercepted pass paved the way for the final score, made on a 40-yard drive, 30 yards of which Poppelman contributed on a touchdown break through tackle.

TEXAS U. HAS EASY TIME WITH TEXAS AGGIES

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 27.—(AP)—As advertised, the mighty University of Texas Longhorns swarmed all over their ardent but punchless rivals, the Texas Aggies, 26 to 0, here today, assuring Texas the 1930 southwest conference championship and providing a Roman holiday for some 40,000 fans.

From the opening kickoff there was never a doubt of the decision, so completely did the new crowned champions dominate the situation. The first time they got hold of the ball they drove straight down the field 66 yards for a touchdown. That was the tip-off, and their other scores came with almost equal ease. They rolled up 383 yards from scrimmage compared to 92 for the Aggies, and 16 first downs to seven for the losers.

DETWILER WINS ANNUAL BERWICK MARATHON RACE

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Richard Detwiler, of Pennsylvania State college today won the 21st annual marathon over the Briar Creek hills course. He was victor over a field of more than 40 runners.

Detwiler won by a fast sprint in the last half mile. Racing three abreast, through the snow covered course, Detwiler, Louis Gregory, of Rochester, N. Y., and Wolf McCluskey, of Toronto, gave the crowd a thrill at the finish.

Half a mile from the finish, Detwiler put on a burst of speed and outdistanced the others. Gregory was 20 yards behind him and McCluskey about 20 yards behind the Rochester man.

Detwiler's time was 50 minutes and 15 seconds, more than two minutes behind the record.

CAPTAINS ELECTED AFTER SYRACUSE-COLUMBIA GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Ralph Hewitt, star quarterback from Lawrence, Mass., was elected captain of the Columbia football team after the Syracuse game today. George Ellert, end, from Holyoke, Mass., was elected to the Syracuse captaincy.

Hewitt scored all of Columbia's points in the victory over Cornell here November 1, but suffered an injured ankle in that game and broke a bone in his right hand in the Syracuse contest today. Ellert has starred for Syracuse for two seasons. Both he and Hewitt are juniors.

WILDCATS WIN CITY GRID TITLE

Laurell Hill A. C. proved to be just another team to the Norwich Town Wildcats on Thanksgiving morning at the Academy campus when the Wildcats rode roughshod over them for a 7 to 0 victory. One thing for which the Laurel Hill A. C. may be very thankful, is that the field was in very slow condition, thus hindering the speed and power of the Wildcat plays. The losers, famous for the rough tactics, met their Waterloo in the form of clawing Wildcats, who matched them in every play. LaVarge ran a punt back 78 yards for a touchdown, victory, and the city championship. The extra point was converted by a pass from LaVarge to Mero. The Norwich Town line proved to be a stonewall on the defense and displayed a slashing attack on the offense, despite the sloppy condition of the campus. The Wildcats will now rest peacefully on their "Laurels" until the hockey season opens when they will again set forth in all their glory in quest of the city championship. The victory was celebrated Thanksgiving evening by a large bonfire, which will be followed shortly by a banquet for the squad.

The members of the squad are: Mullens, LaVarge, Flash Matthews, Cummings, Captain Murphy, Herberts, O Nylen, E. Nylen, C. Nylen, Spicer Mackie, Genette, Beany Banes, Fritz Majeski, Jarvis, Gallagher, Smith, Mara, Taymis, Mero, Lasch, Walker, Adams. The team was under the able management of John Fields and John Tamyls, Ling Miller was the capable waterboy and mascot.

KYRONEN WINS 15-MILE RUN AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Willie Kyronen, 29-year-old baker from Brooklyn, led a field of 34 runners here today to take first place in the 15-mile marathon.

His time was 1 hour, 24 minutes, 31 seconds. Leslie Pawson, of Pawtucket, R. I., like Kyronen, without club affiliations, came in second with a time of 1:26:37, while John D. Semple, of the Lynn Y. M. C. A., Lynn, Mass., took third with a time of 1:27:18.

Kyronen took the lead at about the fourth mile and ran at the head of the field the rest of the way to the finish. The weather was cold with the sun generally showing through a heavy cluster of clouds.

The first ten runners were awarded cups. Following the three leaders they were, in order: Thomas Mooney, St. Joseph's Catholic club, Newark, N. J.; Clarence DeMar, Keene, N. H.; Larry Cece, St. Joseph's A. C., Newark, N. J.; William Thurston, Good Shepherd A. C., New York; Mel Porter, St. Joseph's Catholic club, Newark, N. J.; Charles Welch, Pere Marquette Knights of Columbus, Dorchester, Mass., and Chief Stanton, of Westerly, R. I.

The race was run under the supervision of the Y's Men club, of New London, with the sanction of the A. A. U.

McMILLAN'S TEAM NOSES OUT NEBRASKA ELEVEN

LINCOLN, Neb. Nov. 27—(AP)—Fourteen years old football history did an about face on Memorial stadium sod this afternoon as a fighting band of Kansas Aggies upset the Cornhuskers of Nebraska, 10 to 9, to win the 15th annual game between the two schools.

Throughout the initial two periods "Bo" McMillan's Wildcats romped roughshod over the Huskers. A concerted Aggie drive in the second frame placed the ball on the Husker 5-yard line, from where Aucker dropped back to 15 yard stripe to kick a field goal. In the third, Marvin Paul, swept around left end to score from the Aggies' 5-yard stripe. Frahm's place kick was good.

Then Cronkite, Aggie tackle sub at end, caught a long pass and eluded the Huskers backfield to race for a touchdown.

ST. MARY'S TAKE CLOSE AND HARD GAME FROM OREGON

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27—(AP)—St. Mary's Gaels squeezed out a 7 to 6 victory over the University of Oregon here today in one of the hardest battles seen in this section this year.

From opening kickoff to the final gun, the two teams fought up and down the field in a game that thrilled 25,000 spectators. After a scoreless first period, Boyle of St. Mary's rushed over a touchdown in the second quarter. Harry Ebding, right end, converted the extra point with a place kick and it was this tally that eventually decided the contest.

Oregon scored a touchdown on a pass, Kitzmiller to Fletcher in the third period but Kitzmiller's try for extra point failed. The Oregon halfback booted the ball to one side and it hit the goal post and bounded back.

OREGON STATE DEFIES ELEMENTS TO BEAT W. VA.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Oregon State's powerful football machine defied the discouraging elements of snow, ice and near zero weather today to conquer the fighting Mountaineers from the University of West Virginia 2 to 0, in the first annual Shriners' charity game at Soldier field.

Stopped for half the game by a valiant Mountaineer stand and the almost impossible playing conditions, the Pacific coast stars suddenly clicked effectively behind their ace, Bill McKalip, in the third period, hammered across two touchdowns and then settled back to a more comfortable and less hazardous defensive play for the rest of the battle.

Twenty thousand spectators, huddled in blankets as the wintry blasts howled through the gigantic lake front stadium, watched the victors accomplish what two squads of former stars from Notre Dame and Northwestern universities failed to do in their scoreless preliminary game. When the All-Stars left the icy playing field, they said scoring was impossible, but the Pacific coast players proved they were wrong.

TENNESSEE BEATS KENTUCKY WITH TWO FIELD GOALS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two field goals and a safety gave the University of Tennessee an 8 to 0 victory over the Kentucky Wildcats in their annual Thanksgiving day game today.

An icy wind swept the field and sent shivers through the 23,000 spectators.

The Vo's scored a safety when Kentucky's center threw wild to "Shipwreck" Kelly and the ball rolled behind the Wildcats' goal line. Kelly recovered the ball but before he could carry it to safety, Ray Burn, Vol end, pounced upon him.

REED AND GARCIA TO FIGHT STAR BOUT FOR SHYMA CLUB

Eddie Reed of Hartford and Frankie Garcia of Boston have been signed to box the third star bout on the Shyma All Star card at Parish hall a week from tonight. Al Beauregard was first matched with Garcia but as he had a chance to box Midget Lavigne of Burlington, Vt., in Lavigne's home town on that night he asked to be let off. In his place the management secured Eddie Reed, one of the fastest little bantamweights in Connecticut. Reed has been going good in recent bouts in and around Hartford and his opponent is just as well liked in Boston.

For the opener Snooks Lacey, local boy who was robbed of a decision in his last bout, is to meet Whitey of Manchester a protege of Frankie Busch, a former Norwich boy and now physical instructor in South Manchester.

STANFORD, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dartmouth and Stanford began the tapering off process today for their intersectional football clash here Saturday.

Len Clark, star back scheduled to start for the eastern team, twisted a knee injured in a previous contest and probably will be out of play Saturday.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

UNEMPLOYMENT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Yesterday was one of those simply ge-lo-rious Indian summer days when just living was a delight and driving a flivver was an adventure.

Taught by long experience that one couldn't expect many more of them before winter sets in for good and all, John Farmer seized the opportunity to drive to his market town and lay in a few supplies which would be harder to get when the roads were choked with snowdrifts and zero temperatures made the radiator a subject of worry if not worse.

After the usual "close calls" in congested traffic and the customary extended hunt for a parking space, he made his way to the chain-store grocery he most frequents. It was quite as densely congested with buyers as the street outside was with cars. It was apparent that somewhat of a wait was indicated. So John took advantage of it to look things over,—"rubber-neck," I think the slangsters call it.

The first thin~ which was noticeable was that the store was pretty well stocked. There were the usual show-cases and counters. Three-quarters of the space on the latter was occupied by packaged goods piled totteringly high. Behind the counters were ceiling-high shelves, likewise burdened with cans and cases and cartons. In the center of the floor were several tables buried in "special bargains."

It was self-evident that starvation wasn't impending in that particular joint.

Then John took notice of the personnel. It wasn't a very big store, but there were seven salesmen in it,—three on one side and four on the other, all young, active and strong-armed fellows, and all "on their toes" all the time. They were all good-natured enough, but none had time for small talk or the swapping of tall stories which used to be such a feature of the country store. They were so busy bundling things up and making change that it was a good 15 minutes before I could get at one to ask the price of evaporated milk by the case.

It was apparent that "unemployment" wasn't worrying them.

During that wait I had fair opportunity to observe the sort of things which the patrons were buying. One trimly clad young matron directly between me and the counter bought 11 different items. One of them the clerk weighed out and bagged and tied. I don't know what it was. Eight were package goods, such things as tea and coffee and cocoa and canned salmon, etc. Two were loaves of bread, not so big nor so good as those the young woman's mother used to bake in her own oven. It was my impression that fully three-quarters of all the stuff sold during my wait was in some sort of package or can. It was also certain that every customer paid cash down and lugged away her own purchases, unless they were so heavy that a clerk was called to carry them to her waiting car.

My third deduction from it all was that "business depression" wasn't worrying that particular store half so much as how to keep its customers good-natured while waiting their turns.

I had occasion, later, to visit two other places of business. At the first I found but one customer ahead of me. The other I found closed in order, as next-door informed me, to give the employes an afternoon of golf. Which, again, didn't savor strongly of "business depression."

As I think I have already noted, the streets of the small town were so congested with automobiles that it took me some time and a bit of close figuring to find a place to park within gun-shot of the business district. As a rule I understand that automobiles cost money and usually have to be paid for. There must have been quite a wad of money represented in the cars along that single street. Anyway, they didn't suggest poverty or even acute financial distress to my rural mind. "out-of-work" whom the New York haven't heard of a single man who wants to work being unable to get a job. I have heard of several would-be employers who haven't been able to find help at wages such as rural conditions make possible.

If I want a job of carpentering or brick-laying or painting or having done, I have to hunt over three townships and then wait from one to four weeks. One man whom I asked to do my small haying for me last summer replied that he had the horses and the mowing-machine and the rake, but he couldn't hire a man for love or money to help him load and unload. When you do find one to tackle a job of ditch-digging or woodchopping, he wants to know if he can get to it with his car.

I've had to scuffle my own way through life for something over 60 years. During that apprenticeship I've run up against many different forms of business and many different business men. As I reminisce over that rather dreary past, it seems to me that the talk I've most commonly heard from business men was one of complaint that business was dull and collections slow. Once in a while some sanguine soul has admitted that he was "doin' pretty well," but beyond that the utterances have been rare. Real Hallelujahs I can't recall ever having heard.

Yet they all manage to get three meals a day, somehow.

Consequently, I'm the least little bit skeptical about this present howl over unemployment and business depression. That cry of "Wolf, wolf," has been raised so many times when there wasn't a wolf within a thousand miles that it isn't nearly so scary as it was the first time it was heard.

Of course there is unemployment. There always has been and always will be, so long as there are men readier to take a dole than to earn a living. Of course, also, there is poverty. There always has and always will be. Some of it is due to sickness and accident and unavoidable misfortune. In such cases it is not only a duty but a privilege to afford relief. For the man or woman rendered helpless through no fault of his or her own, neighborly help can't be given too freely or too unstintingly.

There is also a poverty which is born of shiftlessness or laziness or greediness or wastefulness which is deserving of no respect and of small pity.

One day last week a couple of men applied for work at an employment agency in one of the big cities. They were told of a farm job offering work in a rural county. "What d'ye take us fer? Country boobs?" they retorted, and stalked indignantly out.

In New York city a health official reports that he is unable to get two stenographers to take notes of autopsies and post mortems at the morgue, though the work is light and the pay $1,650 a year. It is certainly a disagreeable job. No one would choose it. But any port in a storm is better than shipwreck! And really deserving people would rather earn an honest living at even a dirty job than take their bread from the hands of charity.

Here in New England, farming is "all shot to pieces." Everybody admits it. Why?

It isn't because of over-production, for all the farms of all New England aren't producing one-quarter of the farm products which New England markets are buying.

It is simply the lack of adequate labor at rurally possible wages, which prevents New England farmers from growing the crops which their next-door markets are loudly clamoring for.

For at least a generation the workmen who might have kept farming alive and prosperous have been turning their backs on it and herding into the cities, because the cities offered bigger wages per day or per week than the country could out-bid. Now the cities, like over-soaked sponges, are not only unable to absorb any more but unable to hold what they have.

The results are sloppy and deplorable. Who are to blame for them?

You tell.

There are hundreds of thousands of acres of land in New England alone growing up to weeds and brush, which are just crying for hands to work them. They won't pay a dollar an hour, or permit the men-folks to go to ballgames twice a week, or the women-folks to put in Saturday afternoons window-shopping. But they would furnish an adequate and wholesome living to more than the 39,000 "out-of-week" whom the New York police report in that city.

But you and I know that the 39,000 won't leave their beloved gutters to take up hoeing potatoes or weeding onions. They don't like that sort of work, and they want bigger wages than it will bring.

They haven't yet got far enough along in elementary arithmetic to comprehend that a man whose income is $2 a day and whose outgo is $1.90 is actually better off than one whose income is $5 a day and whose out-go is $5.25.

They may have heard that a penny saved is two-pence earned; but they don't believe it. Anyway, they prefer to think in terms of dollars and nothing smaller. The are not interested in what they call "chickenfeed." Their joy is to rake the dollars in, regardless of how wastefully those same dollars roll out.

I happen to know one city man who is being paid a salary of $10,000 a year, and who is spending every cent of it as he goes along. "Why should I bother to save?" he asks. "The company will pension me off when I get too old to work."

The word "thrift" is still in the dictionaries. But the practice of thrift is not strikingly manifest in actual life.

It's as old-fashioned as quilting-bees and as out-of-style as poke bonnets.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Tubridy's Sale Closes Sat.

cess that is comparable only to the banner years of post-war prosperity, the great annual 20 per cent. sale being conducted by the Tubridy-Weldon company at Wallimantic will close at 9 o'clock Saturday evening of this week.

In view of business condititions the sale has been a most gratifying success and the management of Tubridy's feels that it is strong evidence of the willingness of the public to buy when a real opportunity is offered. This year's tremendous success is also regarded as an attest of the faith in this time honored sales event on the part of the wide trading territory built up by Tubridy's. Customers from far and wide have responded to newspaper announcements to receive the benefits of this sale, making it in all a most encouraging undertaking.

J. F. Carr, Anniv., Sale.

As a fitting observance of the 40th anniversary of its entrance into business, the J. F. Carr company of Willimantic is inviting its thousands of customers throughout eastern Connecticut to participate in a genuine profit-sharing sales event. John F. Carr, president and founder of the company, said today: "We can think of no better way to express our appreciation to our customers on this anniversary than by offering them an opportunity to chose merchandise from our regular late fall and early winter stock at a clean 20 per cent. discount." Mr. Carr, who ranks as a dean among Willimantic's business men called attention to the new and large stock of men's clothing, hats and furnishings which will go on sale at the 20 per cent. discount today (Friday.) The sale montinues to and including Saturday December 6. Extra salesmen are to be secured to assist in giving prompt and efficient service.

Broadway Theatre.

"War Nurse," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which opens Saturday at the Warner Bros. Broadway theatre for an engagement of four days, does for the women of the war what "The Big Parade" did for the men.

It portrays the bravery and hardships and the romances of war nurses in a deft, strong and accurate manner. The leading roles are capably taken by Robert Montgomery, Robert Ames, June Walker and Anita Page.

Excellent bits of comedy relief are provided by an able supporting cast including Zasu Pitts, Marie Prevost, Helen Jerome Eddy, Hedda Hopper, Edward Nugent and Martha Sleeper. Michael Vavitch scores as the doctor. The script was written by Becky Gardiner from the much-discussed novel which appeared for several months in a national magazine.

Today for the last times will be shown that great mystery thriller "The Cat Creeps" adapted from the famous stage drama "The Cat and the Canary" with agreat cast including Helen Twelvetrees; Raymond Hackett, Lilyan Tashman and Jean Hersholt. Don't fail to see "The Cat Creeps."

Palace Theatre.

Beautiful Constance Bennett, the most talented young lady of the screen, fresh from the laurels of Common Clay and Son of the Gods, is seen in her latest and gayest play to date, Sin Takes a Holiday, which starts at the Palace for four days Saturday.

He wanted many women, she wanted one man, the smartest actress on the screen in the smartest, spiciest, dressed story of the season, Sin Takes a Holiday.

One of the most brilliant casts ever assembled in any motion picture distinguishes Constance Bennett's production, "Sin Takes a Holiday."

Miss Bennett's role in this picture is one that she plays to the manor born and in the somewhat risque situations which abound, she displays artistry of diamond-pure lustre.

As her leading man, the beautiful star of "Rich People," "This Thing Called Love," and "Common Clay," has Kenneth MacKenna, former Broadway stage player who made an emphatic hit in "Men Without Women." MacKenna produced, directed and played leads in many New York stage successes, including "The Big Pond," before talking pictures claimed him.

Playing MacKenna's rival is Basil Rathbone, who appeared with Norma Shearer in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." Rathbone, who started his theatrical career on the London stage, was featured in "This Mad World," "The Bishop Murder Case," and "Lady of Scandal."

To Rita La Roy has gone the feminine menace role. Miss La Roy's work in "Dynamite," "The Love Trap," "The Bachelor Girl," and "The Delightful Roque," won her a picture contract. Helen Johnson, blonde stage and film player, has the role of a society girl.

Clark in Mexico

J. Reuben Clark, successor to Dwight W. Morrow as ambassador to Mexico, is snapped upon his arrival in Mexico City where he assumes his new duties. Clark was a member of the American embassy in Mexico for several years.

'EAT PECK OF CIRT' MORE THAN PROVERB

CHICAGO —(AP)— "You must eat a peck of dirt before you die," is more than a proverb. In some parts of the world it is put into practice.

Women of Spain and Portugal today enjoy munching a pottery clay which has an agreeable flavor and odor when dissolved in water or wine, says Dr. Berthold Laufer of Field museum here.

Sometimes clay is mixed with chili pepper, and there is an epicureanism of clay, too, with discriminations in favor of clays of certain colors, odors flavors and degrees of softness.

This book will be especially interesting to the local residents where clipper ships used to be familiar. It contains 600 pages many illustrations, some in color and for the present, the book will be on exhibition at the library.

Mrs. Winifred L. Knapp, wife of Rev. E. E. Knapp of Mystic, will sing at the Congregational church Sunday, Nov. 30, one of her own compositions The 53rd of Isaiah's Prophecy, "Our Redemption." The arrangement and musical composition is her own work, but she was assisted in the organ setting by Michael Kayriomski, a Ukaranian composer and chorus leader of New York. Mrs. Knapp has sung this composition in other places and has received much praise from the audiences. She plans to sing it in other towns. She is also working on a musical setting for Isaiah's 12th chapter, that is to be a composition of high character. Other music at the church includes a baritone solo, Aria, from Hayden's "Creation," by Traffly Morin.

The Word for Today

Today, whatever may annoy,
The word for me is Joy, just simple Joy;
The joy of life;
The joy of children and of wife;
The joy of bright blue skies;
The joy of rain; the glad surprise
Of twinkling stars that shine at night;
The joy of winged things upon their flight;
The joy of noonday, and the tried,
True joyousness of eventide;
The joy of labor and of mirth;
The joy of air, and sea, and earth,
The countless joys that ever flow from Him
Whose vast beneficence doth dim
The lustrous light of day,
And lavish gifts divine upon our way.
What'er there be of Sorrow
I'll put off until Tomorrow,
And when Tomorrow comes, why then
'Twill be Today and Joy again!

TREE'S 'BREATH' TESTS IT'S CHANCE OF DECAY

STAMFORD, Conn.—(AP)—Tests of a tree's "breath" may indicate whether it is liable to decay.

Trees breathe carbon dioxide through their bark and leaves, and a device to measure the amount of this gas inside a tree has been invented by Dr. W. Howard Rankin, tree pathologist.

There will be no heartwood decay in a tree if sufficient carbon dioxide is present it is believed. Cavity fillings in trees therefore must be airtight lest carbon dioxide escape, encouraging decay, says Dr. Rankin.

WHITE LEGHORNS SHINE IN STORRS EGG LAYING

The battle is on in earnest with every pen doing its best to catch up with and outdo every other pen in the Storrs egg laying contest. Altogether this week the pullets have laid about 500 more eggs than last, increasing the average per cent. from 56.4 to 62.9 which is approximately the same per cent. as for the third week of last year's contest. The total production in eggs for this week is 4,477 and points 4624, which means that there is hope for larger and more weighty eggs. Just wait till these birds actually get going! The total production in eggs for the first three weeks of the contest is 11,304 and in points is 9975

Although the credit for the best pen still goes to Donald I. Goodenough of Torrington (with a production of 186 eggs and 183 points) and in spite of the fact that the second best pen is another pen of Rhode Island Reds belonging to Harold G Colt, of West Hartford, (with a production of 175 eggs and 171 points), the White Leghorns as a whole came through with an increase in production of more than 10 per cent. over last week's record, scoring 77 per cent. production for the week. The White Leghorns have quality, too, for from the good average of the group. Pen 98, belonging to Mount Hope Farm at Williamstown, Massachusetts, steps forward to claim third place for the week with a production of 183 eggs and 164 points. And fourth place goes to the pen of White Leghorns owned by Alfred J. O'Donovan of Katonah, New York. His birds laid 170 eggs with 158 points divided among them.

Rhode Island Reds—Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, Conn., 186. Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 175. Norman W. Amidon, Abington, Conn., 177. Globus P. Farm, Attleboro, Mass., 170.

White Leghorns—Mt. Hope Farm, Williamstown, Mass., 183. Alfred J. O'Donovan, Katonah, N. Y., 170. St. John's P. Farm, Oronogo, Mo., 166. J. A. Hanson, Corvallis, Ore., 164. Leighton Orchards, Kingston, R. I., 159

MOST ACCIDENTS IN HOME CALLED EASILY PREVENTABLE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Safety engineers at the bureau of standards say about 85 per cent of 250,000 fatal accidents which occur yearly in American homes are easily preventable.

More than half the accidents in homes are due to falls, more than a fourth to cuts and about one-seventh to burns and scalds. The remainder is attributed to poisons and miscellaneous causes.

A survey made in North Carolina showed that more than half of the injured were children under 15 years. Of 170 accidents to children between the ages of 5 and 14 years, 108 occurred to boys.

POETRY

The Coral Grove

Where the purple mullet and goldfish rove,
Where the sea flower spreads its leaves of blue,
That never are wet with falling dew,
But in bright and changeful beauty shine,
Far down in the green and glassy brine.
The floor is of sand like the mountain drift
And the pearl shells spangle the flinty snow;
From coral rocks the seaplants lift
Their boughs, where the tides and billows flow;
The water is calm and still below,
For the winds and waves are absent there,
And the sands are bright as the stars that glow
In the motionless fields of upper air;
There with its waving blade of green,
The seaflag streams through the silent water,
And the crimson leaf of the dulse is seen
To blush, like a banner bathed in slaughter;
There with a light and easy motion,
The fan-coral sweeps through the clear, deep sea;
And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean
Are bending like corn on the upland lea;
And life, in rare and beautiful forms,
Is sporting amid those bowers of stone,
And is safe, when the wrathful spirit of storms
Has made the top of the wave his own;
And when the ship from his fury flies,
Where the myraid voices of ocean roar,
When the wind god frowns in the murky sikes,
And demons are waiting the wreck on shore;
Then, far below, in the peaceful sea,
The purple mullet and goldfish rove,
Where the waters murmur tranquilly,
Through the bending twigs of the coral grove.

—James Gates Percival.

Hearts

Hearts in the right place; that's what they say;
Hearts in the right place, and well goes the day.

Hearts in the right place, and nothing else counts;
Hearts in the right place, and joy in us mounts.

In the curd of the battle, the strain of the strife,
Hearts in the right place solves a whole life.

Hearts in the right place and all shadows flee
As the mist in the sun or the foam on the sea.

A lane through an orchard, a path through a dream;
A song in the soul like the lilt of a stream.

Hearts in the right place, and all life is this—
A mem'ry of gladness, a banquet of bliss.

—Folger McKinsey, in Baltimore Sun.

NEW LONDON THEATRE MANAGER ARRESTED ON PATRON'S COMPLAINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 27.—Charged with breach of the peace, Albert J. Herskowitz, manager of the Crown theatre, was arrested tonight by Patrolman William Riordan upon complaint of Robert (Chick) Gaines, of Ridgewood Park, Waterford. Herskowitz obtained a surety on his bond of $50 and will be in the police court tomorrow. Gaines went to the picture house about 6:30 and purchased a ticket, but in some unexplained manner the ticket was not taken at the entrance and Gaines selected one of the seats on the main floor. It became known that Gaines had not delivered his ticket to the doorman and Herskowitz went to where Gaines was sitting and, it is claimed, accused the latter of not having purchased a ticket. Gaines returned to the box office, where the young lady attendant admitted having sold Gaines his admission. A row was started as to Gaines not having tendered the ticket to the doorman and harsh words were exchanged. Patrolman Riordan appeared in the lobby and when Gaines made complaint against the theatre manager, Herskowitz was arrested.

B. F. KRIEGER, NORWICH, LOSES COTTAGE BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 27.—Fire totally destroyed a cottage on Woodbine avenue, Ridgewood Park, Waterford, owned by Benjamin F. Krieger, of 50 Ann street, Norwich, early today, the origin of the fire being not yet determined. Not only was the cottage reduced to ruins, but all of the furnishings of the building were consumed, for the building was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered, shortly after 6 o'clock, when flames burst through the roof and sides. A telephone message was sent to the Waterford fire department and the town's apparatus responded, but by the time that the firemen arrived at the burning building it was doomed to destruction and their efforts were devoted to preventing other cottages in the vicinity from being ignited, for a strong wind prevailed. The fire was observed by Patrolman William Graham, on duty at Ocean Beach, and he reported the building burning to police headquarters. But the building being located in Waterford, a New London company did not respond. No cause of the fire has been advanced, but it is known that Wednesday a force of painters was engaged in work at the cottage, leaving late in the afternoon.

The police tonight were summoned to a house on Shaw street, where a holiday party was in progress. The head of the household became intoxicated and when he became a nuisance and demonstrative, a request was made of the police to arrest the man. When officers arrived at the house the man was not arrested, for Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty succeeded in inducing the man to retire to his bed. No further disturbance was experienced by the merrymakers.

ALBERT MORIN DECLARES STATEMENTS UNTRUE

Albert Morin, 19 Winthrop street, was arrested Nov. 9 on two charges of violation of the liquor law and the following day when he was presented in the police court one charge was nolled, but on the other a penalty of $200 and costs was imposed. Morin, who is an ex-service man, went to jail, but recently he was released, the fine being paid. Since his liberation, Morin declares that the facts printed relative to his arrest were not entirely true. According to Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolman Anthony Turello, who went to Morin's house, upon orders from their superior officer, following complaint having been made against Morin alleging breach of the peace, they found Morin in the house and the household in a turmoil. The officers reported that the trouble was precipitated when Morin returned home and discovered his wife seated on the knees of a friend of the family and that a fight by husband and wife resulted which led to the police being called. The officers also reported that Mrs. Morin informed the officers as to where Morin kept his beer and liquor, for Morin had been dispensing wet goods and enjoyed a liberal patronage. Now Morin reports that the statements of the police were entirely erroneous. He says that when he returned to his home early in the evening, he had been drinking and because of that fact, a row occurred between himself and his wife and that he attempted to hit the latter. When he endeavored to attack his wife, Morin says, other occupants of the house interfered and prevented such an attack, which also resulted in the police being summoned, his arrest being the result.

The condition of Mrs. Patrick Murphy, wife of Police Sergeant Murphy who has been confined to her home, 26 Bayonet street, several weeks by illness of a serious nature, is much improved. It is believed that the patient is now out of danger.

Several of the churches held Thanksgiving services last night.

John Hines, formerly employed as janitor at the gymnasium of the New London police department, was taken ill last night while at the gymnasium in the Cronin building. A physician diagnosed Hines' case as trouble from gall stones and had the man taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, Hines being taken there by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty.

The Hartford police this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an automobile stolen in the former city between 4 and 6:45 o'clock. The car is a Hudson coach and carries Connecticut registration, H—5530.

Boys Smash Window

Thomas Tortora, proprietor of a store at 77 Hempstead street, tonight made complaint to the police because of youths causing damage to the building he occupies in the conduct of his business. Tortora said that a window was smashed this evening, the second time that this form of damage had been perpetrated within a short time. Automobile Patrol Officer George Laboue was assigned to investigate and the identity of two of the youths suspected of causing the damage was learned. If investigation to follow proves that the suspected youths are guilty of causing the damage, they will be presented in the juvenile court next week.

There was no session of the police court today, although one arrest was made last night. The offender against the law was a freight handler but he was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, instead of being presented in court. He had been drinking and went to his home about 1:30 o'clock and created such a disturbance that his wife made complaint to the police and the man was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell and Patrolman Albert Powell.

A man from Boston, a laborer, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, when found drunk, down and out, in a vacant tract, corner of North Bank and Douglass streets. He was locked up and will be presented in the police court Friday. The accused, who has been residing on Main street, was in court Wednesday last and as it was the first time that he had been arrested, Judge Daniel M. Cronin suspended judgment.

OIL STOVE IGNITES WOOD IN WINTHROP ST. HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 27—The residence at 27 Winthrop street, a two-story frame building owned and occupied by Joseph Zelinski, was threatened with serious damage by fire this forenoon. An oil stove, used to provide heat in the kitchen, was located close to a pile of wood. The heat from the stove caused the wood to be ignited while occupants of the house were in another room. When the fire was discovered through smoke filling the other rooms, the wood was burning briskly. An alarm was sent in from Box 12, corner of Harrison and Tenth streets, which was responded to by Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus. The firemen extinguished the blaze with chemicals and without damage of consequence.

Firemen Generous Hosts

The annual banquet of Niagara Engine company, held last night at the quarters of the company, Bank street, was the success it was destined to be for the affair was, as usual, in the hands of an efficient committee. The repast was one of the most elaborate that the company has ever served. The only speakers were City Manager William A. Holt and Councilor William C. Fox. Mayor E. Frank Morgan was scheduled to speak but he was absent from the city. On the conclusion of the speech-making, an entertainment of motion pictures and a musical program was provided.

CHILDREN PROVIDED FEAST AT COAST GUARD ACADEMY

Thanksgiving day was celebrated in the usual manner, feasting featuring the observance of the day and the kiddies being those to obtain the greatest enjoyment from the holiday. One hundred boys and girls, from nine to 12, assembled at the B. P. Learned mission at 3 o'clock and were taken in automobiles provided by the coast guard, to the Coast Guard academy mess hall, where the chief warrant officers provided the juniors a bounteous turkey dinner. Upon the conclusion of the feasting the youngsters were taken to one of the theatres where they were guests of the officers at a motion picture performance. This forenoon the children were also guests of the officers at the academy where the coast guard band played for their entertainment.

Dinners For 125 Families

The city's charity department and the Learned mission distributed about 125 dinners to needy families yesterday and today the repast was enjoyed, the holiday meal being made possible through the cooperation of the city and mission. Baskets containing four or five pounds of roast pork, potatoes, turnips, onions, coffee, sugar and bread and butter and in many cases, fruit, were given the families.

At the Home and Lawrence-Memorial hospitals, a full course turkey dinner was served patients whose condition would permit partaking of the same and at the Smith Memorial home, where a score or more of aged women reside, turkey was served. At the county jail, where nearly two score prisoners are confined, roast pork and vegetables were served the men and women.

Members of the police department were allowed to dine at their respective homes, being provided an hour to do so, instead of being allowed but a half hour for the lunch period.

There were no athletic events staged, excepting the running of the marathon race, which was sponsored by the Y's Men's club, of the Y. M. C. A.

REPORTS TO GOVERNOR ON STATE'S FRONTIER POSTS

Governor Trumbull has received the report of the perambulation of the Connecticut-Massachusetts state line and has written to Governor Case of Rhode Island suggesting that the state line between Rhode Island and Connecticut be perambulated in the near future and the necessary boundary markers replaced, the governor announces.

Each of the 129 markers on the Massachusetts-Connecticut line were visited during August of this year by Henry Robinson Buck of Hartford, civil engineer, representing Governor Trumbull, and a representative of Massachusetts. Only one post, between Stafford and Wales, was found to be in poor condition, and this was recently repaired by the Connecticut state highway department employes.

Mr. Buck presented an exhaustive report to Governor Trumbull concerning the perambulation, describing the general condition found on the border

The Rhode Island border of the state has not been perambulated since 1919, and many of the stones marking the boundary are those which were originally set up in 1840 when the whole line was surveyed and established. One of the stones, that at the so-called Warwick corner, is even older than this, being the key stone at this angle, set in Colonial times.

This stone was repaired some 10 years ago. Situated atop a heap of stones near the border of a swamp, the stone threatened to topple over entirely, according to Mr. Buck. At that time the Rhode Island authorities set the stone, some 12 feet in height, on a concrete base, and it is now in a good state of repair.

The Rhode Island boundary is the only one not marked throughout its entire length by the standard boundary markers and it is felt that these stones, bearing on one side the seal of Connecticut and on the opposite side the seal of the state whose boundary is marked, should be set up as soon as possible.

The New York boundary line was so treated in 1909, Mr. Buck said. Although New York state law prescribes that the state engineer shall visit each marker once in three years, lack of appropriations for this purpose have curtailed the practice, and the line has been perambulated but once since, about seven or eight years ago.

Mr. Buck has perambulated each of the three boundaries of the state which are bordered by other states being appointed by various governors as their representative for this purpose. Unlike Massachusetts, which requires that its borders be perambulated at least once each five years; and New York which prescribes an inspection every three years; Connecticut law does not set any hard and fast rules as to when its boundaries shall be inspected.

The law reads: "The governor shall have power, whenever any monument or boundary mark between this state and an adjoining state shall have become damaged, displaced, or destroyed, or whenever he shall deem it necessary or expedient that an examination of such boundary be made, to appoint an agent authorized to act with the duly authorized agent of such adjoining state to examine any or all of such monuments and boundary marks and restore or repair any that are injured or have been removed; and a reasonable portion of the expenses thereof, together with the cost of services of each agent, when duly approved by the government, shall be paid from the state treasury."

In the days before the twentieth century "perambulate" meant just that, and the two representatives of the respective states "walked about" the border just as the dictionary defines the word and the process entailed considerable labor. Since the advent of the automobile the process has become much less fatiguing, according to Mr. Buck, and despite the fact that many of the stones, especially on the Rhode Island border are some distance from the road, it takes comparatively little time to visit each one of them.

TO COOPERATE AGAINST L. I. SOUND POLLUTION

Legislation empowering the governor to appoint a committee to co-operate with similar committees, appointed by the governors of New York and New Jersey in an effort to lessen the pollution of the waters of Long Island sound, will be drawn up by a special committee which will meet in the offices of Mayor Thomas A. Tully of New Haven. The committee, appointed some time ago by Governor Trumbull, has had several conferences with New York and New Jersey committees engaged in the same task.

Members of the Connecticut committee are: Mayor Tully, Mayor Edward T. Buckingham of Bridgeport, Mayor Anson F. Keeler of Norwalk, Representative Julia M. Emery of Stamford, and Brigadier General Sanford H. Wadhams, member of the state water commission.

The New York state anti-pollution commission voted this week to ask New York legislators for an act to establish a four-man commission, with two members appointed by Governor Roosevelt, to cooperate with Connecticut and New Jersey in eliminating pollution from New York harbor and adjacent waters. Dr. Mathias Nicoll, Jr., New York commissioner of health, and Dr. William Schroeder, Jr., chairman of the New York sanitation commission, were designated as mandatory members of the New York commission. An appropriation of $50,000 is suggested to pay the commission's expenses.

It is expected that Connecticut's proposed bill will be drawn up in somewhat similar form with the state commissioner of health designated as a mandatory member of the commission, although no definite action has been taken on this suggestion as yet. It is expected that each state will appoint a four-man commission.

Once established, the commission would act jointly with the other two states in formulating the terms of a treaty between the three states and the federal government for its pre- The legislation authorizing the ap- vention and eradication of pollution. pointment of the commissions will provide that the members serve without compensation except for the payment of their necessary expenses. APPEAL FOR U. S. AND FRANCE TO SAVE WORLD ECONOMICALLY

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An appeal for the United States and France to take the lead in saving the world economically and financially was made tonight by Premier Tardieu at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American club of Paris.

In what was judged one of the best speeches of his career and with enthusiasm, emotion and occasional satire, Tardieu frankly discussed the question of Franco-American relations and Franco-American duties.

He criticized the American people for failing to judge the people of France at their true value.

"In our difficult moments," he said, "in our difficult periods, you have a tendency to call us fantasists; when we are at the top you say we are workers."

Referring to present economic conditions, he maintained that the present crisis had come from the United States and expressed the conviction that the real hope of solution of the world situation is for the United States and France to take the lead and help the world as a whole.

MAY PREVENT STOPPAGE OF WORK IN WALES COAL FIELDS

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An important decision which is expected to avert a threatened stoppage of work in the great South Wales coal fields on Monday was taken at midnight by the national coal board, which had been sitting all day considering the situation.

While the decision was not announced officially, it was learned on high authority that the board had decided unanimously that there should be no reduction in wages. The board's conclusion was embodied in a report which has been forwarded to the owners and miners executives' in London for consideration.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' union, told newspapermen he felt sure there would be no stoppage of work in South Wales on Monday. He said he was very hopeful about the situation and could not imagine the owners rejecting the board's recommendation.

Settlement of the South Wales problem would greatly influence the whole situation.

SEAPLANE CRASHED WHILE IN TEST FLIGHT

ORBETELLO, Italy, Nov. 27.—(AP)—One of 12 seaplanes which Air Minister Balbo plans to lead to Latin-America crashed at the Brunetta air field today, killing one flier and injuring two others.

The plane, of the bomber type, was on a test flight. The cause of the crash was not determined. Captain Temperini died shortly after the accident; Captain Mario, who was with the Nobile polar dirigible expedition, and Captain Ambrosini were seriously injured. It was not learned who was piloting the plane.

COMMUNISTS BATTLE WITH FASCISTS IN GERMANY

COLOGNE, Germany, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Communists battled fascists high above the Rhine tonight when troops of national socialists, returning to Deutz from a mass meeting in Colonge, encountered a force of several hundred communists on the Hohenzollern bridge.

The communists, armed with pistols, brought the clash to a quick termination, the fascists retreating with five wounded, including one shot through a lung. The police later arrested the local secretary of the communist party on suspicion of fomenting the affair.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Ernest L. Nye, president of the National Steel Car Lines Co., said he believes railroads will not lose their present gasoline traffic and tank car leasing companies will not suffer any serious setback in the volume of their business on account of proposed pipe lines. He reclared the tank car leasing companies will continue their steady growth and that the railroads at the very worst may be confronted with a gasoline traffic loss of not more than the normal average increase in the daily national gasoline consumption.

Many bankers are mentioned as possible successors to J. Herbert Case who is expected to resign the chairmanship of the board of the New York Federal Reserve bank within a month to head the new billion dollar bank being created by merger of four New York institutions. In financial circles rumor said the federal reserve board may fill the post outside the bank although Dr. Randolf Burgess, deputy governor, has been prominently mentioned. James S. Alexander, former chairman of the National Bank of Commerce since merged with the Guaranty Trust, and now retired, Pierre Jay, former chairman of the Federal Reserve bank, and Walter E. Frew, chairman of the Corn Exchange Bank and Trust company have been mentioned.

GREENEVILLE

BARREL BURNING GANGS OBSERVE OLD CUSTOM

The youths of Greeneville held their annual barrel burning Thanksgiving night, with the various gangs having their different sections for their place of amusement. The largest number of barrels were collected by the Durfey street boys who had a pole that held nearly 30 barrels. The largest audience was at the Ninth street fire which was in the old garden on North Main street. Here autoists parked their cars along the roadside to get a good sight of the barrel burning. Barrels were also burnt in the rear of the company's lot on Hickory street, and on Boswell avenue. The boys stated that they planned to organize as one gang next year and have a community barrel burning. By this way they would have a larger collection and it would be better for the ones that look on.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. A. Iciek, the pastor, the double ring service being used. The music was in charge of the church organist, Mr. Hancin, and Miss Sophie Tylenda was the soloist during the ceremony. The bridesmaids were Miss Anna Rex, Miss Anna Kowolenko, Miss Helen Bolczun and Miss Lena Rutkowski whose gowns were all alike, long draped models of peach satin with slippers to correspond and their bouquets were of yellow chrysanthemums. The groom had as best man Alcide Brodier of West Warren, Mass., and the ushers were Horace Niemiec, of West Warren, Mass., William Szalkowski, Eugene LeClair, Donald Granelm, William W. Farren. Automobile Turned Over

While driving her car on North Main street, heading to the south, Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Sophia Cooper of Plainfield noticed another machine backing out of Sixth street onto North Main street. Thinking that they would collide she made a sharp turn up Sixth street and in doing so hit the curbing which resulted in turning the car over with the body of the car resting on the sidewalk, with nearly $100 damage to the car. The occupants of the car were very fortunate as none of the them was injured. The car that was backing out of the side street was owned and driven by Walter R. Rex of 10 Terrace avenue, Taftville, and was a brand new Auburn car. Officer Burns investigated the accident and had both parties report to the police station where Mr. Rex was told to appear in court Friday for backing his machine into the highway.

Jodoin, cut the satin ribbon, and the big Quinebaug bridge and viaduct, was formally declared open for state highway traffic. With Miss Jodoin at the center, the ribbon was borne over the line of march by fourteen of the fairest young women in Jewett City, these ribbon girls being Misses Catherine Jodoin, Claire Shea, Florence Connell, Victoria Misiaszek, Ellen Prior, Florence Morey, Verna McGovern, Irene Jaskiewicz, Lucile Tomlinson, Almy Hamel, Emily Smith, Margery Webster, Stella Glowacki, Juliette Savigne and Dorothy LaFavre. The parade, moving shortly after 10 o'clock, was preceded by eight horsemen. Members of the Orville LaFlamme post, American Legion were a part of the first division, the color bearers being Commander Edgar Knox and John Davis, the armed color guards were Victor St. John and Ed. Wyatt. Swahn's band of Norwich were preceded by four state troopers from the Danielson barracks, and by a platoon of local police. The borough patrolmen on duty, in the parade and as traffic officers, were Chief Henry Vegiarde, John and William Blake, John Foley, Thomas Morancy and John McKenna. Between five and six hundred school children were in line, each one carrying an American flag.

The Ashland Boys' band, led the second division with 26 members, Fred Bourque, leader. Riding in automobiles, besides State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown, were Revs. John J. McCabe, Elmer E. Scates, John W. Carter and Giles F. Goodenough, Selectmen Arba Browning, and Thomas McBroome, Warden E. J. Jodoin, and Burgesses John McDermott, Felix Guillette and Henry E. Olsen, and the following members of the several committees: Alex McNicol, P. W. Chase, V. E. Jodoin, L. E. Boucher, Oscar Shaw, Peter Osga, Louis M. Carpenter, James Q Dolan, Charles Ruszenas, Benj. Kolbus, Elphage Tetreault, Joseph Malek.

Outstanding figures in the parade were the two engineers who have actually built the great bridge and viaduct, and have been responsible for its wonderful perfection in the minutest detail, Lucian H. Beebe for the state, and Charles De Biasi for the Construction company. A dozen firemen with firemarshal G. H. Prior, manned the big pumper which was driven by the chief, Walter A. Field. The automobile parade, exceeded anything ever seen in this section for the reason that 250 cars in the actual line, were augmented by almost endless numbers that had held up in the regular traffic line, having arrived from all over this tip of New England to go over the big bridge on its natal day. Buildings were decorated all along the line. Thousands of people filled the sidewalks, while before the speakers' stand full 5,000 stood to listen to the address which was delivered by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown.

In presenting the speaker, Warden Jodoin spoke of the new viaduct as a beautiful monument to the state, town and borough. Mr. Brown said in part:

We are gathered here on this Thanksgiving morning for the high, noble and fitting purpose of celebrating the formal opening of this magnificent structure. It was a great undertaking and as I look across its broad expanse, it appears to me as an actual thing of beauty and a joy forever. I am thinking of the marvellous skill of the architect who first drew the plans on paper, and the wonderful ability of the builders who were able to interpret those lines, with such unerring certainty that this great bridge and viaduct have risen before our eyes. To me there is much of strength and beauty about it. It is true that there are the mean and sordid things in life the sin and the crime, but why write about it? Why paint it, when if we open our eyes and look about us, there is so much of beauty and usefulness to inspire our love and challenge our admiration? Over this bridge in years to come will pass the raw material and the finished product. Within the great stream of humanity there will appear the rich and the poor, the mighty and the weak, the sinner and the saint, who shall tell whence they come or whither they go. This great viaduct here spans the peaceful Pachaug, and in the distance I can see the massive structure that bridges the more turbulent Quinebaug. It is broad, firm and long, and it seems to me to appear like a king's highway, but it is not a king's highway, rather does it represent the handiwork of free people in a free land, and it is here dedicated to all who desire to make use of it through the years to come. When I think of a bridge, I seem to see things that are joined together, brought into closer union: so we, all these great peoples, commonwealths and countries must be brought together in understandings, if our common problems are to find solution. Over this bridge will pass young men and women who are going out to meet the great adventure, some will return, having been successful in the strife, others perhaps will have been broken on life's wheel. We shall meet them here, with plaudits or with sympathy as the case may be. When we see the rugged structure of this great project, the concrete and the steel, let it inspire us with faith and courage. We can make out the lights of hope, for just beyond the horizon better days and brighter times are in the offing.

Let us think for a moment of the Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims, a thanksgiving, when as compared with our welfare, they had nothing.

Quoting from a stanza of English verse, he said, "Let us take the highway and not the low way."

Give thanks today, that we live under such a wonderful government, where such great achievements are possible, and unlimited opportunity and liberty are ours. Let us have faith and hope, brighter days are coming, confidence has not taken leave forever, and prosperity and peace shall smile upon us.

The invocation was by Rev. J. W Carter and the benediction by Rev. G F. Goodenough. Hundreds of visitors were in town, many of whom took photographs of the bridge and viaduct and along the line.

TWO HURT IN CRASH NEAR HOSPITAL ENTRANCE

Two persons were slightly hurt when two automobiles collided almost headon about 1.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon on Washington street, near the W. W. Backus hospital entrance. One of the machines, owned and driven by Ralph Barber, of No. 53 Sturtevant street, was being driven in a northerly direction and the other machine, a Studebaker, owned by Ignatius Strab, of No. 163 High street, was being driven in a southerly direction. Barber received a cut on the hand and Charles Pletzer of this city suffered lacerations of the scalp and hip wounds. Constable Lucius A. Fenton investigated the crash but found no cause to make any arrest. Both machines were considerably damaged.

Both of the injured men went to the hospital for treatment and then went home.

PETER DAVIS BARN BURNED IN YANTIC

Fire starting from an undetermined cause destroyed a large barn near the Yantic crossing, early Thursday evening. A nearby house, unoccupied, was saved by the Yantic fire department which responded to a telephone call. Approximately 1,000 feet of hose was laid from a hydrant at the railroad crossing, across lots and through barbed wire fences to the burning barn. The fire had such a start when it was discovered by neighbors that it was impossible to save the structure. The property is owned by Peter Devis of Cove street. It was within a few feet of the Central Vermont railroad, and one theory of the cause of the blaze was that it might have been started by sparks from a passing locomotive. Another theory advanced was that tramps who were in the barn might have been responsible for the fire, which was discovered about 7.30 o'clock.

BARREL BURNING LESS THAN IN FORMER YEARS

The annual Thanksgiving barrel burning celebrations in Norwich are dying out. Time was, not so many years ago, when scores of barrel fires blazed into the heavens Thanksgiving night from practically every hill in and around Norwich. For weeks previous to the annual holiday hundreds of the younger generation labored many hours hunting and stealing from backyards, sheds and unprotected cellars, ash barrels, flour barrels, casks, boxes and crates and secreting them at carefully guarded gang strongholds.

Today, all is changed. Wooden ash barrels are the exception, rather than the rule, flour is seldom delivered in barrels, and crates and boxes have given way to cardboard cartons. There is not the same opportunity for the gathering of fuel for the Thanksgiving poles.

The barrel fires of Thursday night were not what they were a score of years ago. Less than a dozen barrel fires of any size were noted about town. There was a barrel fire at the Sherman street grounds in the Falls section, one at Lake street, one at Fanning flats, one at Jail Hill, a couple on the West Side and several in Greeneville. As far as could be learned there was no barrel fire celebration at either Norwich Town or Yantic. The Thanksgiving night fires that for many years reddened the skies in this vicinity are not what they used to be.

TAFTVILLE

WEDDINGS

Lobe-Gouin

On Thanksgiving day morning at 8:15, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends of the contracting parties, Miss Caroline Gouin, daughter of Simon Gouin of 11 South A street became the bride of Joseph Lobe, at a nuptial high mass at Sacred Heart church celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault. Prior to the exchange of the nuptial vows, the bride' insignia of membership in the Children of Mary society was removed by Miss Rita Picard and Miss Rosanna Cantara, before the altar of the Blessed Virgin. Miss Alice Frechette had charge of the music of the mass.

The bride had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Gloria Gouin. The best man was Edmund Beauchemin. The bride was most attractive in a gown of white satin with tulle veil, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations. The maid of honor wore pink satin with hat to match and carried pink roses.

The groom is employed by the Yantic Grain and Products Co., and both he and his bride have a wide circle of friends in the village who extend to them their best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. George Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Girard Provost, Edward Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Boisvert, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cote of Forge Village, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Baothe of Central Falls, R. I.

Sevigny-Moreau

At 9 o'clock Thursday morning, Miss Emma Moreau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moreau of Norwich avenue, and Wilfred Joseph Sevigny, were united in marriage at a nuptial high mass at Sacred Heart church. Rev Donat B. Jette was celebrant of the mass and performed the ceremony which preceded it. A large gathering of invited guests were present at the church. In a special ceremony before the altar of the Blessed Virgin, the medal which signifies membership in the Children of Mary sodality, was taken from the bride by Miss Aurea Adam and Misss Loretta Bourdon, two members of the society. Miss Alice Frechette, organist at the church played the wedding marches and accompanied for the music of the mass at which the choir sang. Kyrie Eleison was sung as a solo by Joseph A. Viegard of Willimantic.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with Spanish lace. Her bridal veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations. Miss Bernadette Sevigny, the groom's sister was maid of honor. She was gowned in Nile green satin, wore a white hat and carried an arm bouquet of tea roses. The best man was Emile Moreau, brother of the bride.

Immediately after the church ceremony there was a breakfast and reception at the home of the bride on Norwich avenue. The newlyweds left by automobile for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, and when they return will take up their residence in Taftville. Many beautiful gifts were received by the bride who is a popular member of the younger set.

Q., Canada.

The biggest Thanksgiving dinner served in town was that enjoyed by 120 youngsters of the village who were guests of the Overseers and Foremens' club at Ponemah hall Thursday noon. The dinner proved to be a big enjoyable party and everybody had the best time imaginable. Before being seated the young citizens stood and sang America, led by J. Omer Tellier, and accompanied by Miss Alice Frechette on the piano. Rev. Hormidas Belec, of the Sacred Heart church clergy staff invoked divine blessing. The menu included chicken pie, mashed potatoes milk, turnips, cake and ice cream, and each child received a package of candy, an apple, an orange, a bag of nuts and a bottle of soda. During the meal a radio loaned by George W. Weller furnished entertainment. The hall was decorated with red, white and blue bunting. The happy affair came to an end when the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the entire company. The members of the club stated that they enjoyed themselves as much as any of the children, and were grateful for courtesies extended by Clarence J. Nagle, Paul Peltier, George W. Weller and the Rock Water Soda company.

The regular meeting of Taftville post, No. 104, A. L., will be held in the Red Cross rooms, Monday evening. Commander Arthur Bessette called a meeting of the executive committee recently and a winter program planned by the committee will be brought up before the meeting.

REMOVING DEAD LEAVES HELPS HIGHWAY SAFETY

Removal of dead leaves from the highway by the state highway department is a real aid to motoring safety, says Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel. In a bulletin prepared for and read from WTIC, at Hartford, he pointed out that "this activity means that in a rain the great element of slipperiness created by decay and disintegration of the leaves is absent."

"It is quite true," he added, "that this particular hazard lasts only a comparatively short time, and that it is gone usually by the first snowfall, but fall rains, in combination with leaves on the highway, have invariably made numerous, serious skidding accidents. It is not always possible to remove the leaves as fast as they fall, and operators should be wary of the dangers of skidding.

"Operators are duty bound to foresee conditions, and the suggestion about leaves goes equally well for the early winter conditions of sleet and light snow. Dry snow is not usually dangerous, but wet snow and slush are as bad, if not worse, than ice. Probably the reason fo rthis is that an operator watches his car more carefully when there is an apparent icy condition and is not as watchful when encountering patches of snow and slush. Experience has shown that all of these conditions create definite hazards, and motor vehicle operation pays a toll on account of them. Serious warning is given now, because these conditions will be here soon.

"It is also true that in Connecticut, at this particular time, there is more need than ever for being sure that the windshield wiper is in order. The department of motor vehicles, if it were possible, would like to make a special inspection of all cars to make certain that windshield wipers are working. This is not so much for the idea of discipline as to determine that the machinery is ready to work when needed. It is certain that, under coming conditions, the man whose car is equipped with a good windshield wiper will feel mighty thankful on occasion."

BALLOON FROM NEW YORK COMES DOWN ON PRESTON CITY ROAD FARM

Looking like a parachute with a man holding to it, a big balloon with a dummy figure fastened under it floated to the ground just at dusk Thursday evening on the farm of Mrs. Harriet Douglass on the Preston City road and was secured and taken charge of by Alderman Amiel Brosofske of this city and his brother-in-law, John Bowker, who had been attending a family Thanksgiving gathering in the vicinity.

When they first saw the big bag in the dim light the two Norwich men felt sure that they were about to rescue some stranded aviator, who had been compelled to jump for his life. They could see that it had landed in a tree on top of a hill some distance off the road and they made all haste to get to it, shouting, "Hey feller, hang on, we're coming," to encourage the distressed flier. But when they got close enough they were able to see that the figure of the man was nothing but a rubber dummy, but it had a worth-while reward for them.

Attached to the dummy was a tag, showing that the balloon had been released in New York Thursday in the Macy company Christmas parade and the company would pay $25 reward for its return.

The tag read as follows:

This balloon was released from Macy's Christmas parade, New York city, Nov. 27, 1930. It is inflated with helium gas, non-explosive and nonpoisonous. A reward of $25 will be paid by R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., to the finder if he complies with the following conditions: 1. Notify R. H. Macy and Co., at once of the recovery, where found, date and time of day, circumstances attending the landing, etc. 2. Deflate (by releasing opening valve), pack it properly and ship "Express collect" to Macy's together with this tag Kenneth Collins, publicity director, R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., Broadway and 34th street, New York city.

Alderman Brosofske and Mr. Bowker got the balloon out of the tree and deflated it with considerable difficulty and took it to the alderman's garage on North Main street from where it will be shipped back to New York.

The balloon is made of rubber which is also what the dummy is made out of.

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR PLANE OF MRS. J. M. KEITH-MILLER

Aviatrix Long Overdue in Flight From Havana to Miami—Planes Searched the Coral Keys and the Waters of the Gulf of Mexico—Belief Expressed That She Has Been Forced Down at Sea—Carried a Collapsible Rubber Boat in Her Plane—Officials of Pan-American Airways Believe That Mrs. Keith-Miller is Definitely Lost

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Airplanes searched windswept coral keys and the waters of the Gulf of Mexico today for the airplane of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, hours overdue on a flight from Havana to Miami.

Six airplanes joined in the hunt. She had been expected here about 11 a. m., E. S. T.

She took off from Havana, en route to Washington, despite adverse weather conditions. Several days ago she made a Pittsburgh-Havana flight. She left Havana today, messages received here said, at 9:11 a. m., E. S. T., and expected to arrive here in about two hours. A strong head wind was believed to have held her back.

A Pan-American plane returned here this afternoon after scouring the land south of here to Key West, without result.

Later officials of Pan-American Airways learned Mrs. Keith-Miller had set a course from Havana without allowing for strong east winds which they said would have blown her far to the west over the Gulf of Mexico. The second plane was withdrawn from the search when this information was obtained, officials said.

Two other Pan-American planes plying between Havana and Miami, were ordered off their course in the hunt.

Curtiss-Wright Marine base here sent a seaplane from Miami to Dry Tortugas with instructions to base at Key West tonight. A land plane was sent as far as Key West by the Curtiss-Wright Flying service.

Pan-American officials tonight believed that Mrs. Keith-Miller, with gasoline for six hours flight, might be in the vicinity of St. Petersburg.

Coast guard headquarters at Fort Lauderdale heard nothing of the woman flier during the day from picket boats. Florida East Coast railway officials instructed their employes from here to Key West to maintain watch for her.

Mrs. Keith-Miller recently flew from Los Angeles to New York in less than 22 hours to lower the best time for the distance by a woman.

Pan-American officials said the plane flew on a zig-zag course over the lower tip of Florida and returned by a course that took it over the east coast reefs.

They added they had been advised Mrs. Keith-Miller followed a course out of Havana that would take her to the west over the Gulf of Mexico, providing strong winds were blowing from the east.

BELIEVES MRS. MILLER FORCED DOWN AT SEA

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, who accompanied Mrs. J. M. eKith-Miller, missing aviatrix, on her flight three years ago by short stages from London to Australia, said tonight he felt confident she has been forced down at sea. He expressed the belief she must be afloat somewhere between Cuba and the Florida coast in the collapsible rubber boat she carried in her plane.

Backers of the woman's Pittsburgh-Havana flight, however, expressed hope that she might have landed somewhere in Florida. John Liggett III, one of the sponsors, pointed out that she was forced down at Charleston, S. C., last Saturday on her trip from here to Cuba, and was not heard from for several hours.

BELIEVE DEFINITELY THAT MRS. KEITH-MILLER IS LOST

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A possibility that Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, who left here this morning for Miami, may not have attempted to go to the Florida city was seen tonight in the statement of a reported from Diario De La Marina.

Mrs. Keith-Miller told the reporter she would land at Miami if she found weather conditions unfavorable, but otherwise would continue north as far as possible. Others understood, however, that she intended to stop at Miami.

Since she had fuel for about nine hours of flight and the distance across the gulf is not far, it was felt by some that she may have reached some point in the United States where communication was difficult.

The two planes searched the wind-tossed sea for a radius of 50 miles on each side of the course announced by Mrs. Keith-Miller and went almost to Key West.

They flew also along the coast of Pinar Del Rio province, but hope was abandoned when night settled through the fog and only the whitecaps of rolling waves were visible from aloft.

William B. Pawley, president of the Cuban Curtiss Co., and officials of the Pan-American Airways, now believe definitely that Mrs. Keith-Miller is lost.

TWO VOTES OF CONFIDENCE FOR PREMIER TARDIEU

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The government of Premier Andre Tardieu today won two votes of confidence, although his majority is gradually being whittled on the issue of the failure of the Oustric bank and other financial institutions recently.

The chamber of deputies was put in a critical mood yesterday, when Tardieu won another vote of confidence. In this balloting nothing was said directly about the bank issue but a question was posed on a purely internal matter that nevertheless involved the expenditure of about $650,000,000 for public improvements. The government emerged with a majority of 78.

As the chamber reconvened today it became known that Eugene Lautier, under-secretary of the ministry of fine arts, and Henri Falcoz, under-secretary of the ministry of public works, had resigned. This was an outgrowth of the Oustric bank failure, as was the recent resignation of Raoul Peret, minister of justice, and rumors spread that the premier himself would quit.

Thus, facing wide criticism of his policy in dealing with sunken financial institutions, Tardieu put a question of confidence squarely up to the chamber. Invoking what has become known as characteristic Tardieu courage, he won by only 14 votes, or 293 to 279, the smallest majority his government has ever received.

Not satisfied, the young premier again sprang before the chamber and said it must immediately express confidence or lack of confidence in his government's ability to investigate the financial failures. On this ballot he won by 203 to 14, all oppositionists except the communists abstaining. This meant 251 abstentations.

CALL FOR INVESTIGATION OF NEW YORK CITY GOVT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A group of citizens styling themselves "native born New Yorkers," headed by former Governor Alfred E. Smith tonight called on Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in a letter for "an immediate, non-partisan investigation of the entire city government."

The group was one of several to submit similar demands since exposure of alleged vice graft and the disagreement of a jury trying two former city officials on charges of bartering a judgeship to Magistrate George F. Ewald.

PENTHOUSES ON NEW JAIL AT JACKSON, MISS.

When the grand opening—or shutting—of the jail occurs Dec. 16, prisoners assgined to the top floor will have a dandy view of the city—of the skyscrapers, gas and oil derricks and the forest beyond the city limits. There is even a terrace and a court—not the legal but the architectural kind—upon which chicken thieves, forgers, disorderly persons and other rascals may gaze.

Every cell but two has running water. The two without it are reserved for condemned men.

The jail sets atop the new courthouse. The whole thing cost a million dollars.

BODIES OF FAMILY OF FOUR FOUND STABBED TO DEATH

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The bodies of a family of four, stabbed to death, were found today in their Dutchess county farm house at Stanfordville, near here.

Police believed the four—James Husted Germond, member of the grange and of the Stanfordville village church, his wife, daughter and son—had been killed early Wednesday night.

The bodies were discovered when a creamery, desiring to know why Germond had not delivered his daily milk supply, sent an employe to investigate.

$25,000 SECOND ROBBERY OF BANK WITHIN A YEAR

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Invading the Layton Park State bank a second time in less than a year, six robbers with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers today obtained $25,000 in currency and escaped.

Eight customers and nine employes were in the bank when four men drew sawed-off shotguns from under their coats and announced:

"This place is being held up." Two other men held revolvers. The customers and employes were herded into a conference room and guarded.

The four with the shotguns went through the cages, scooping the money into large paper bags, and tried unsuccessfully to get into the vault. One of them ordered Henry Lemmermann, assistant cashier, to go into the vault but he did not have a key. The robber, angered, slugged him on the head. Ben Koppa was slugged as he entered the building while the robbery was in progress.

The customers and employes were then ordered into the basement, where they were forced to lie on the floor.

Outside the bank, five of the men climbed into a large gray sedan, while the sixth entered a small coupe, in which Frank Schery was waiting for his wife, who had gone into the bank. The man ordered Schery to drive the car carefully, observing traffic rules. The gray sedan followed.

Half a mile from the bank Schery was ordered out of his machine and the robber drove away.

The bank was robbed of $53,000 last Dec. 6 by five men, who never were apprehended.

TOO MANY FREE BREAD LINES IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—This open-handed city awoke tonight to the fact that it had so many breadlines and free meal establishments that a waste of hundreds of thousands of dollars weekly was resulting because of duplication.

In an effort to stem this waste Mayor Walker's committee on unemployment relief called for conferences with individuals and institutions maintaining more than 50 eating places feeding the city's thousands of jobless.

A survey today revealed that the city itself was supplying 40,000 free meals a day and that private philanthropy was opening new breadlines every day, diverting funds which, the mayor said, ought to go into concerted resources to stamp out want.

Belloni, one of the chief anti-fascist leaders, went because an investigating committee reported that he had used his office in Milan to increase his private fortune. Belotti was thrown out of the fascist party some time ago.

Dispute Between Miners and Coal Owners—Strike Was Impending

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The government tonight intervened in the dispute between miners and coal owners which threatened a great coal strike Monday when the new mines act comes into force.

Representatives of the miners and owners saw the president of the board of trade and the secretary for mines tonight and as a result the following telegrams were dispatched by the government:

"To owners. Hope you will arrange to meet workmen and conclude temporary arrangements to continue work pending further Miners federation conference next week. Am advising workmen to approach you."

"To workmen. Urge you to meet employers and endeavor to arrange to work on Monday."

In view of this development the Miners' federation sent the following telegram to district associations immediately concerned in the dispute:

"Advise you to approach owners immediately and endeavor to make temporary arrangements to work seven and one-half hours on best terms available for day to day contracts until after further conference meeting next Thursday."

The grim prospect of a strike drew nearer today after two chief conferences and several minor negotiations had been in progress throughout the day in an endeavor to bring together employers and men.

Before both a conference of miners' delegates and a conference of South Wales employers and men were proposals from the mine owners that the "spreadover" system of hours should be adopted from next Monday, when the new coal mines act becomes effective.

In each case the proposal was flatly rejected and at the delegates' conference a recommendation was passed that stoppage of work in any one district should be converted into a national strike by all other areas joining in.

Under the spreadover system the owners would have the option of compelling the men to work on the basis of 90 hours every two weeks instead of a fixed seven and one-half hour day, which the new act requires.

The alternative, the owners contend, is a cut in wages, and this has already been declared totally unacceptable by the men.

Demotions In New York Police Dept.

Result From Testimony Before Inquiry Into City Magistrates' Courts

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Demotion of seven members of the New York police department resulted today from testimony before an inquiry into city magistrates' courts linking them with charges of vice extortion.

Meanwhile in authoritative quarters it was reported that two lawyers, named by witnesses before the appellate supreme court's hearing—among those who had taken money from women arrested on trumped-up immorality charges had told investigators of their part in the so-called "vice ring."

Police Commissioner Mulrooney put six plain clothes men and one detective back into uniform and sent them to beats on the edges of the city. He said departmental charges would be brought against them when he had had time to study testimony given against them at the inquiry and when sufficient evidence had been developed. One of his deputies has been assigned to attend future sessions of the inquiry.

It has been testified that police arrested women on "framed" evidence and turned them over to bondsmen and lawyers who extracted exorbitant fees for bonds and for "fixing" their cases. A former acting district attorney in women's court, John C. Weston, said he received $20,000 in bribes in seven years for moving the dismissal of cases against women vagrants.

Isidor Kresel, special prosecutor before Referee Samuel Seabury, named by the appellate court to conduct the inquiry which Governor Roosevelt requested, was in Atlantic City today for a rest but his staff of assistants was busy all day questioning "Chile" Acuna, a police informer who was a witness Wednesday, and lawyers, bondsmen and magistrates. Mr. Seabury was on hand to sign 110 subpoenas for unnamed witnesses, called to testify next week when open hearings are resumed.

The revelations of the Kresel-Seabury inquiry have brought renewed demands from civic sources for a city-wide investigation of police and courts. Two requests for such an investigation have been forwarded to Governor Roosevelt at his winter camp at Warm Springs, Ga. When the matter was called to his attention there he said he had not yet received the letters and had no comment to make.

11 DEATHS IN NEW ENGLAND ATTRIBUTED TO THE COLD

(By the Associated Press)

America yesterday was the land of the freeze.

From her snow-laden head in the chilly northwest to the tips of her usually warm toes in Florida, the nation shivered. Temperatures, save in the far west, were generally subfreezing. In parts of the northwest they went below zero.

Two score deaths were attributed to the holiday cold and half of them were in the middle west. New England reported 11 deaths. Ohio seven, and there was one each in New York state and Maryland.

The New England cold with a low reading of eight above at Northfield, Vt., swung down out of Canada, laying a slick coat of ice and snow on highways. This resulted in many automobile accidents which were in turn responsible for most of New England's death. Even colder weather was predicted for today.

DRYS ARE CONSIDERING PROHIBITION REFERENDUM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A carefully worded proposal that the drys lend their support in the coming congress to a resolution for a national referendum on prohibition was under consideration today by a group of nationally prominent drys and will be further thrashed out at temperance meetings here and in New York.

Nothing definite has been done and the leaders were obviously divided today over the proposal, involving as it would an alliance with the wets to get the measure through congress.

CHALLENGE FOR DUEL SENT LORD WINTERTON

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Lord Winterton, conservative, revealed in an address at a party meeting tonight that he has been challenged to a duel by "an enthusiastic supporter of Mr. Snowden" as a result of last night's division in the house of commons on a vote of censure.

The vote was taken at the end of a heated session in which Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and others participated. It ended in a triumph for the MacDonald government by a vote of 299 to 234.

As members of the house of commons filed toward the division lobbies before the balloting was conducted, Lord Winterton was struck on the face with an order paper by a laborite, C. J. Simmons.

"He struck me lightly," Lord Winterton said tonight. "It was not until he walked away and I heard indignant remonstrances that I realized I had been what lawyers term technically assaulted".

Lord Winterton refused to disclose the identity of the man who challenged him.

PRESIDENT HOOVER NAMES W.N.DOAK AS SEC'Y OF LABOR

The Appointment of Doak, an Official of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Had Been Opposed by President Green of the A. F. of L.—In Naming Doak President Hoover Declared That He Was Maintaining the Principle of Open and Equal Opportunity and Freedom in Appointment of Public Officials

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—William N. Doak, of McLean, Virginia, who has been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, was named secretary of labor today by President Hoover.

Doak is legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which is not affiliated with the federation. William Green, federation president, has announced he thought a federation member should be named to the post which James J. Davis will quit next Monday. President Hoover replied to Green in making the appointment.

"I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor," Mr. Hoover said, "but Mr. Green's enunciation that appointments must come from one organization in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office."

At federation headquarters no comment was made on Doak's appointment.

Doak was suggested as secretary of labor when Mr. Hoover formed his cabinet two years ago but the federation was against the brotherhood representative. William B. Wilson, the first labor secretary, was a federation member, as was Davis, and the federation took the attitude that these had set a precedent. The result of that controversy was the retention of Davis but he was elected senator from Pennsylvania in November and a new labor secretary had to be found.

Doak will have to be confirmed by the senate but it was a question tonight whether the federation would continue active opposition to him. There has been no indication from any senate members that they were against Doak.

In naming Doak, the president said several score of labor unions, including members of the labor federation, had endorsed the new cabinet member. He added that he knew Doak would represent all labor while in office and that Green himself had said he had the highest personal regard for the new appointee.

Mr. Hoover said he did not feel that he could consent to the "principle of debarment of the railway employe, or any other labor unions and associations, or any labor man in the United States from the opportunity and the aspiration to obtain any office in this land."

"I have appointed William N. Doak, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, as secretary of labor. Mr. Doak has been identified with organized labor all his adult life. For 16 years he has been a general officer of the trainmen, taking part in a great number of labor negotiations.

The president said:

"I have received endorsements of Mr. Doak from several score of labor unions, some of whom are members of the American Federation of Labor. I know that Mr. Doak will represent all labor in his public duties, and that he will reinforce the sympathetic attitude of the administration to the great problems of the wage earner.

"While President Green has publicly stated that he will oppose Mr. Doak's appointment because Mr Doak's union is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, he informs me that he holds Mr. Doak in the highest personal esteem."

"I do not feel that I can consent to the principle of debarment of the railway employes, or other labor unions and associations, or any labor man in the United States, from the opportunity and the aspiration to obtain any office in this land.

"I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor, but Mr. Green's enunciations that appointments must come from one organization in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointment to public office."

PRESIDENT OF A. F. OF L. KEENLY DISAPPOINTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—President Green of the American Federation of Labor said in a statement tonight that he was "keenly disappointed" that the president had seen fit to go outside his organization to find a secretary of labor.

The federation head added his organization freely recognized the right of the president to select cabinet members regardless of political or economic affiliations but that it thought the secretary of labor should be a member of his group.

SECOND READING OF THE MARRYING BILL PASSED

LONDON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Led by the women members of parliament a bill was passed on second reading today giving to British women marrying foreigners and foreign women marrying Britons the right to choose their nationality.

Under the present law a British woman who marries an alien loses her nationality, and a foreign woman marrying a British citizen automatically becomes a citizen of Great Britain.

Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, in speaking in favor of the bill, declared citizenship is an individual matter which women should be permitted to decide for themselves. She said she was still a "passionate Virginian" for all her British citizenship.

"Men will never be free until women are free," she said. "To my mind, being very fond of men, I am so interested in their moral and social progress that I want to free women."

WOULD PROTECT NEOPHYTES OF COLLEGE FRATERNITIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—The problem of taking the terrors out of "Hell Week" for neophytes of college fraternities was tackled today by the Interfraternity Alumni conference.

The physical and mental torture to which "pledges" are subjected during the probationary period of their college days was criticized by Prof. Frederic M. Thrasher of New York university as creating the opposite of a brotherly feeling in the prospective initiates.

Dr. Thrasher proposed as a substitute for the usual personal indignities a system of discipline which would consist mainly of manual labor for the "pledge" in the fraternity house and on the campus.

BERLIN BARS SALVATION ARMY POTS FROM STREETS

BERLIN, Nov. 28—(AP)—Salvation Army Christmas pots will be barred from the streets of Berlin this year under a police department order.

All forms of street collections were abolished by ordinance some months ago "to protect the public from annoyance" and the police have taken the position that no exceptions should be made.

Press comments while agreeing in principle point out that the Army's Christmas charities have been a bright feature of the Yuletide for years.

One compromise suggested was that the Army pots be confined to theatre lobbies and other private property frequented by the public.

Mrs. Laura M. Popple, widow of Charles H. Popple, died at the home of her father, Oliver Lussier, of 1149 Main street, Thursday afternoon. She had been ill about six weeks. The deceased was born in this city, May 14, 1891, a daughter of Oliver and Maria Robarge Lussier. She is survived by one son, Charles O.; one daughter, Claire G. FUNERAL

Fred Mather

Services for Fred Mather were held at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the mortuary parlors at 62 Church street with Rev. David W. Lovett of the First Baptist church officiating. Burial was in the Ledyard cemetery, Groton, with friends of the deceased acting as bearers. The ritual of the Knights of Pythias was conducted by officers and members from Natchaug lodge, No. 22, during the services. Arrangements were by Lincoln and Potter.

It has developed that Carl F. Schrieber, 22, a special student at the Connecticut Agricultural college in Storrs, who has been a patient in St. Joseph's hospital, received his injuries while preventing two men from an evident intention of stealing turkeys which he was guarding at the college poultry farm. The young student, whose home is in Erfrut, Germany, grappled with the two men, who are believed to be students of the college. He seized one of the men and fell with him to the ground but the other came to his rescue and started to twist Schrieber's foot until a blood vessel in the ankle was ruptured and the young watchman was forced to release his hold on the would-be thief. Schrieber was equipped with a shotgun, which he discharged in the hope of frightening the men away. He then threw the weapon aside and went into the hand-to-hand conflict.

The date of the annual Elks' memorial exercises has been set for Sunday evening, Dec. 7, in the lodge room of the home on Pleasant street. Hon. Joseph F. Dutton of Bristol will deliver the oration and the officers of the lodge will conduct the ceremonies. There will be music by the B. P. O. Elks band, Charles N. C. While 3,500 spectators applauded his cool precision, Combs piloted his powerful team, hitched three abreast to a heavy gang plow, with no more effort and for no less effective plowing than if he were breaking land with a two-horse walking plow.

The award was based on the time required to plow one and one-half acres, horsemanship and the quality of the work.

DANIELSON

NEW ROAD WILL DO AWAY WITH GRADE CROSSING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 28—When the state starts construction of the new highway that will lead off the present Danielson-Wauregan state highway at a point about two miles south of Danielson the route will lead to a new bridge that will carry traffic over the tracks of the New Haven railroad and when across fields to the Green Hollow road and thence into Broad street. With this new bridge in service and the present Main street crossing at Central Village eliminated it will be possible to travel the entire distance from Danielson to Norwich without encountering a grade crossing.

It is believed here that work on this new highway, which will divert much traffic from Danielson's business section, will begin in the spring.

A real estate man here made mention today of a peculiar situation—his inability to find small farms in this territory that their owners are willing to sell. Common belief appears to be that there are many such places for sale within a few miles of Danielson, but, according to his realtor, it doesn't appear to true. A possible explanation is that it's a better bet to stay on a farm this winter than to take a chance of earning a living some other way. The farmer is sure of having a home and plenty to eat, even though he may make no great amount of profit.

There was no business for the town court this morning, a rather unusual happening on the day after a holiday. As a matter of fact, the court has had very little business for the past ten days. This is a distinct change from the situation earlier in the fall, when the local court had a grist of cases.

Rhode Island Girl Scouts, Inc., has purchased a large colonial house in the neighboring town of Foster and the building will be put in condition for use throughout the year. The property is on what is known as the Cranberry Hill road, just off the victory state highway. Dedication exercises are to be held Saturday afternoon of next week, when the camp is to be opened. The public has been invited to attend. This farm property is of historic interest. It was long known as the Bennett place. At the foot of a nearby hill is what is known as Lafayette spring, where the famous French general stopped to refresh himself as he passed that way during the Revolutionary war.

E. C. Babson, health officer of the town of Brooklyn, has posted a notice at the town pump at Brooklyn green giving warning that the water taken from the pump should be boiled at least five minutes before it is used for drinking purposes. The notice further suggests that water from the well should be pumped daily, in an effort to reduce the present contamination. This is to be done for four or five weeks, when another laboratory test will be made. Mr. Babson gives assurance that everything possible will be done to make the water of the well fit fo ruse without boiling. The well is a great convenience to the people living near the central section of Brooklyn.

Orders for cord wood are now beng solicited from house to house in Danielson, something hereto unknown here. The energetic man who is offering the commodity drives in from his farm place a few miles out of Danielson with a load of wood and canvasses about the borough until he finds a customer. It is understood that he has been quite successful in doing this.

William Phillips, who hails from parts unknown, was having a nap for himself at the side of the highway just above the state police barracks on North Main street this morning when he was picked up by a state officer. Phillips was found to be intoxicated. He was not in condition to mind the cold nor the danger he was running of being struck by an automobile. Only recently released from the county jail at Brooklyn, Phillips wandered back here. He was in the police station this afternoon and will be in court Saturday morning.

A start was made in some of Danielson's stores this morning on the work of getting out Christmas goods and arranging them attractively. By the first of the week these displays will be practically complete in most of the stores here that specialize in Christmas things. Release of Christmas club money is being happily anticipated by hundreds of local people and others in nearby towns.

Generally, there is a quite cheerful attitude in Danielson as the Christmas season approaches and the forecast is that the holiday this year will have practically the amount of cheer as in the days of yore.

At the postoffice the signs advising people to Mail Early have been put up. The postoffice department again makes the usual suggestions about the careful wrapping and addressing of packages.

Killingly's schools will resume sessions Monday morning after the Thanksgiving recess, extending from Wednesday last. On December 19 the present and first term of 16 weeks of the current school year will close for the Christmas holidays, which will extend to December 29, when the second term of the year will begin. This second term will be one of eight weeks.

Considering expenses, from one angle and another, this viewpoint was expressed today: If there should be much heavy snow this winter the cost of its removal from highways by the town will bring another burden of expense in a year when the town's charity accounts are abnormally high. On the other hand, the money that would be paid for snow removal would largely go to persons with little or no reserve funds, thus relieving some of the pressure upon the town for aid. So it is regarded as a proposition that is just about as broad as it is long, insofar as town expenses are concerned.

The current Timely Farm Topic issued by County Agent Raymond E. Wing of the Windham County Farmers' association has to do with poultry feeding under artificial light. Practices along this line have become standardized and have been adopted by numbers of poultrymen in this territory. The lights are used to induce heavier consumption of food, for one thing. At this season of the year big poultry houses throughout the countryside are illuminated both morning and evening for greater or lesser periods of time, so the poultry keeps on working instead of roosting the time away.

The first chimney fire of the season was at the Joseph Lamoureaux house on Furnace street. There was no damage to the property. Firemen were out only a few minutes on the call.

Electric energy will be shut off in Danielson, Dayville, Goodyear, Hampton, Brooklyn and West Wauregan from 1:00 to 1:15 p. m., and from 4 to 4:05 p. m., on Sunday Nov. 30, in order to make necessary repairs. The Connecticut Light and Power Co.—Adv.

Misses Agnes and Isabelle Payne of Day street are visiting with relatives in New York over the week end.

Mrs. Hattie Paine and Mrs. William Young will be the hostesses when the members of the Wesleyan circle meet next Tuesday evening.

This afternoon members of the Missionary society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. Walter Rawson of Riverview.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, has made announcement of a meeting of the organization to be held with Wolf Den grange in Pomfret on December 6. Annual reports are to be made at this meeting.

Interest for the past six months will be added to our savings department accounts December 1st. Bring in your cash! The Windham County National bank.—Adv.

The temperature was down to 18 degrees in Danielson early this morning, and today, as a whole, rated the coldest of the season.

John Clair Minot, literary editor of the Boston Herald, is to address the members of the Killingly Woman's club next Wednesday afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church. His subject will be Books of the Day.

PUTNAM

POLICE STILL INVESTIGATING MYSTIFYING BURGLARIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 28—Local and state police are continuing their investigation of the series of attempted burglaries staged in the business section a week ago, but are meeting with little apparent success in establishing the identity of the lone burglar believed to be responsible for the breaks that have occurred from time to time for nearly a year past. On the day following the discovery of the breaks, police said that two people reported they had surprised the "lone wolf" when he was attempting to remove a screen door from the entrance to a lower Main street fruit store. It was believed this information would lead the investigators many steps nearer to the solution of the puzzling burglaries which have been discovered periodically at several Main street stores for the past several months. However no tangible results have been secured as yet, although police are quietly continuing their work in an effort to clear up the mysteries and put a permanent stop to the acts of the solitary prowler whose work has yet to yield him substantial revenue.

The condition of Myron Perry, son of Mrs. Edith Perry of Grove street was reported as considerably improved today by officials at the Day Kimball hospital where he is a patient.

Miss Ruth Bryden of the Willimantic normal school is spending the holidays at her home in Pomfret.

Efforts of the civic committee of the chamber of commerce, cooperating with Mayor Charles A. Richard to alleviate the unemployment situation are meeting with apparent success. This week a number of people throughout the city have communicated with the committee informing them of odd jobs they would like to have performed, resulting in the committee quickly assigning job seekers to the work.

Miss Elsie A. Gallant and Miss Marguerite Sherlock of the law offices of Terry and Geissler left Friday for a three day visit with friends in New York city.

WEDDINGS

Cooper-Smith

Miss Norma Majorie Smith of West Concord, Mass., on Thursday afternoon, Thanksgiving day, became the bride of John Merlin Cooper, of Hartford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Cooper of Oswego, N. Y. Miss Smith before her marriage had been engaged at the office of Dr. L. F. McKenna in this city as dental hygienist and is well known here.

The ceremony took place at three o'clock in the home of the bride's parents on 179 Commonwealth avenue, West Concord, in the presence of a small gathering of relatives and intimate friends. Rev. Olaf M. Johnson, pastor of the Evangelical Free church, Concord, officiated.

The double ring service was used. The bridal couple was unattended. A reception followed immediately after the wedding.

The bride who is widely known in Concord and in Putnam, was captain of the field hockey team when at Concord high school and played active roles in other school functions. She is a graduate of the Forsyth Dental school at Boston.

Mr. Cooper is manager of a large department store in Hartford.

Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will reside at 64 Washington street, Hartford, and will be at home after January 1.

State police of Danielson barracks have been conducting a campaign against drivers of overloaded trucks traveling over the state highways between New York and Boston and Worcester and New London. Today the officers hailed a number of vans onto the department scales at the intersection of the Boston and Providence roads and in a number of cases their check ups have resulted in the drivers and owners of the trucks being ordered into court.

As yet there has been no public accounts made of the action of the state commissioner of aviation to whose attention a report of the investigation of the airplane crash which took place at the town farm two weeks ago, was directed. The plane cracked up after a forced landing on the farm property had been necessitated when the fuel supply became exhausted during a passenger flight. Russell Green of Bethany, employed by the firm of Somer and Hill, was pilot of the craft.

Last night was said to have bees the coldest of the current season. Foreman Harry Gifford at the Andem Greenhouses on Farrows street, where timely thermometer recordings are part of the night watchman's duties, reported this morning that the low point reached by the mercury was 10 degrees. Unofficial reports from the rural districts said temperature readings at early hours this morning were even lower.

Lieut. Allen A. Thayer, U. S. army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer of King street, left today for New York city on the first leg of his trip to the Hawaiian Islands, where he is to begin a period of foreign service. For the past two months Lieut. Thayer has been on a furlough which he spent at his home here.

The Bulldogs went through the season without meeting defeat although they were held on tree occasions to scoreless ties.

HERBERT J. SMITH, LOCAL BUSINESS MAN, DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 28—Herbert J. Smith, son of former Mayor Lebbeus E. Smith, and well known Putnam business man, died at his home on Sunnyside at 4 o'clock this afternoon, following a five days' illness with pneumonia. He was in his 47th year.

Mr. Smith's death came as a distinct shock to his business associates and hundreds of friends throughout the county, who only yesterday had learned that his illness was of a serious nature. Mr. Smith was stricken Sunday with a slight cold, which later attained serious proportions and on Monday developed into pneumonia. During the early part of the week his condition grew gradually worse and Thursday night intimate friends said that only faint hope was held out for his recovery.

Herbert James Smith was born in Putnam on Dec. 9, 1883, the son of Lebbeus E. Smith and Sarah (James) Smith. He attended schools in this city and, following his graduation from Putnam high school in 1902, entered Princeton university, from where he was graduated four years later with a degree in civil engineering. Upon the completion of his college studies, Mr. Smith entered the government engineering service and was assigned to duty in Cuba with a detachment of harbor improvement engineers. On Oct. 17, 1908, Mr. Smith was united in marriage with Miss Mary Florence Holt, daughter of the late George W. Holt, prominent Putnam manufacturer. The wedding took place in Santiago, de Cuba.

Because of ill health Mr. Smith resigned from the service shortly after his marriage and returned to Putnam where he associated himself in business with his father. Later, he took over his father's business interests and on October 1, 1923, entered partnership with Leon N. Walker, of Thompson, effecting the establishment of the firm of Smith and Walker. Mr. Smith's interests were devoted solely to the management of the household furnishing department of the company. For a number of years, he served on the municipal board of water commissioners, this being the only public office held by him.

Upon the development of the situation pertaining to the reconstruction of the city water system, Mr. Smith shared the views of his brother commissioners, which differed from the proposals of the city government and in 1928, when the board found it impossible to continue in office under the existing circumstances, Mr. Smith tendered his resignation along with his fellow commissioners.

Besides his widow and father, Mr. Smith is survived by a sister, Mrs. Frederick Case, of Worcester, Mass.

Will Close Crossing

According to reports heard Friday the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad will close the crossing in Jewett City at the point where the one-time state highway crossed their tracks. With the opening of the bridge its crossing is legally eliminated, with the right remaining in the power of the railroad company to close it at their discretion. When this is accomplished there will be no grade crossing in Jewett City, that is public. This elimination will mark the discontinuance of a crossing that was established when the first right of way was granted, close to 100 years ago. It is believed that an actual impassable barrier is not contemplated at this point, but that with the erection of a legally constructed fence and notice the railroad's liability in case of accident, ceases. Of late, the crossing tenders have been on duty 24 hours in 3 shifts. Mr. Morgan who was stationed there several years has a like position in Danielson. One of the present tenders goes to Webster. Mr. Lucier a local man will be laid off with the railroad transferring Frank Moriarty to some other point.

CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN

The season has arrived for the sale of Christmas seals. That means that the task of financing 1,400 affiliated tuberculosis associations throughout the country is under way and that campaigns will be conducted in all communities.

It comes at a time when economic conditions are not good but, for that very reason, additional demands must be anticipated and the need of meeting them recognized. During a period of hardships tuberculosis gets an extra foothold. Thus, as has been said by President Hoover, it is one of the "most valuable services to mankind" and prevents and destroys "a disease which threatens millions of homes and weakens millions of children and youth of the nation."

Attention at this time is drawn by the local tuberculosis seal committee to the fact that every penny used in buying seals helps some unfortunate man, woman or child; that of every dollar five cents goes to the national organization, ten cents to the state tuberculosis committee from which the supplies are purchased and 85 cents remains with the local committee and is spent on Norwich residents only, in furnishing information to the ignorant, in providing milk for the undernourished, in giving clinical advice to the anxious and in providing nursing and sanatorium care for the needy.

Through the Christmas seals an opportunity is provided for everyone to participate in the raising of the funds with which to provide the above. Widespread interest exists in the cause, a general recognition prevails concerning the accomplishments that have been made in fighting tuberculosis, but there is likewise the outstanding fact before us that even though much has been and is being accomplished there still remains much to be done.

Regardless of the condtions, the fight against the white plague must go on relentlessly. It thrives when there is any let-up and when those making they fight relax. By large and small purchases of the seals, and with everyone participating as generously as possible, there need be no decrease in activity in fighting tuberculosis through such a fund in Norwich.

MAKE THEM FIREPROOF

Frequently it has been the case that the large loss of life among the inmates of public institutions where fires have occurred has furnished a strong argument for the replacement of such buildings with fireproof structures, and to construct new ones when necessary in such a manner that the danger from fire will be eliminated.

The helplessness of children in homes, the inability of the sick to escape, the handicaps of the aged and infirm and the position of prisoners all show the need of giving serious attention to construction work that will end the fear of fires and give a greater peace of mind to those responsible for such institutions as well as those who stay there.

But it isn't necessary for a large loss of life to occur before recognizing the advisability of such a protective move. The $800,000 loss from fire on the sixth floor of the administration building in the New Jersey state hospital lends new emphasis to it. There were no lives lost but the blaze was the third of a serious nature within two years, which supports the belief that there is a pyromaniac housed there. This is strengthened by the fact that a number of small fires have been discovered there.

To the New Jersey authorities it is made plain that in spite of the efforts made to establish safeguards against those very conditions and to prevent fires from taking place, they continue to break out, and with serious results. It is entirely possible that the institution is otherwise so modern in character that it is impossible to discard it and erect another, but there can be no mistaking the fact that when the time comes to build additions there can be no hesitation over the question of erecting fireproof buildings.

More and more is recognition being given to this necessity when such institutions are under consideration. Every possible safeguard needs to be thrown about them to prevent fires and to fight them, but there is nothing in the way of prevention like providing a structure that cannot be set afire or that will not burn if an accident occurs.

New Jersey's costly lesson will probably have important reactions. The person with a mania for setting fires needs to be discovered, but the importance of fireproof buildings cannot be overlooked.

FEEDING WHEAT

This country has been producing a great quantity of wheat, so much, in fact, that difficulty has been experienced in selling it and it has been urged upon the growers that they reduce their acreage.

In considering the problem of what to do with the grain already possessed, the suggestion has been advanced that it be fed to the cattle in place of corn, the contention being that greater profit would result from turning it into beef and into pork than would come from the sale just as grain. It has likewise been pointed out that those possessing wheat and no market for it would save money by feeding it to their livestock instead of trying to hang onto it and buy the other grain that would ordinarily be fed.

That some have responded to this idea is certain. How well it has worked is being studied in more than one center, but Purdue university, in Indiana, is one of the institutions where early returns are available. There the test was applied through the summer and fall to the feeding of wheat to swine. The wheat was coarsely ground and with it was fed tankage. This feeding was done while another group was being fed shelled corn and tankage and a third lot received shelled corn, coarsely ground wheat and tankage.

Following the slaughter, the animal husbandry department of the university reports: "The corn-fed hogs dressed 81.2 per cent; the wheat-fed hogs 81.9 per cent, and the hogs which had corn and wheat 81.3 per cent. The carcasses from the 56 corn-fed hogs graded 50 firm, three medium and three soft, while the 56 wheat-fed hogs graded 55 firm and one medium. Carcasses from 58 hogs fed on corn and wheat graded 57 firm and one medium."

The experiment makes it apparent that there is an advantage in the feeding of wheat to swine and that corn is not the only grain that will produce the best hogs. There are times, of course, when the feeding of wheat involves a much greater expenditure than the feeding of corn, but with the corn supply short and the wheat supply large, the wisdom of feeding cheap wheat instead of selling it at a great sacrifice and buying expensive corn is proved. Likewise the fact that it produces better hogs when used in combination, as well as alone, tells a story which swine raisers will not be slow to recognize.

WINTER DRIVING CONDITIONS

Along with the cold has come snow and ice. In some sections it has made the highways decidedly dangerous, taken motorists as well as others by surprise and resulted in piling up a large number of accidents and many fatalities. Six of the 14 that occurred in New England on the holiday have been attributed to the conditions of the highway.

Thus there comes a needless but pointed warning that the operation of motor vehicles for the next several months must be undertaken with full regard for the dangerous character of the highways after snow has fallen, if it has rained and the streets have become icy. It is no different than it has always been. Cars cannot be driven in icy highways with the same abandon that gets by under the most favorable conditions. There must be consideration for the character of the roadbed, the chances of skidding, the difficulty in stopping and the possibility that the other fellow is taking big chances.

Furthermore, the cold snap has served warning that proper attention must be given to see that all necessary equipment is carried in order to meet the requirements of sudden storms and changes in the temperature.

In highways where snow is falling and water is freezing there is contained in that very fact a warning to all drivers to take extra precautions. It is no time to try to speed, no time to crowd the other fellow, no time to take chances or [illegible] stunts, no time to hog the road, no time to disregard the rules of the highway.

Perhaps there were other fatalities on the holiday which were quite as needless as those which resulted from the condition of the roads, needless from the standpoint of the killed as well as those at the wheel of the auto, but conditions of the highway at any time must be taken into consideration and, certainly, bad conditions require careful driving. Furthermore, the same, or worse, conditions can be expected in the next few months.

THE KELLOGG AWARD

It is an important service that Frank B. Kellogg has rendered in this country as a legislator and as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Coolidge. It was the character of his work in the latter office that weighed strongly in his favor when it came to naming a successor to Charles E. Hughes as a member of the court of international justice. The ability of Mr. Kellogg was widely recognized and his selection for this important service was a fitting tribute to the man and his accomplishments.

When it came to awarding the Nobel peace prize for 1929 there was delay. Not until this time has the award for last year been made but that it should fall upon Mr. Kellogg creates no surprise here and probably not abroad. It might as well have been announced last year, but there has been an opportunity for studying the effects of his work in behalf of peace and the announcement at this time indicates that the decision has not been hastily made. Rather does it appear to be the result of long and careful deliberation.

Mr. Kellogg was most active and earnest in his efforts in behalf of the peace treaty that bears his name. He has already been brought into the world's eye because of the deliberations concerning it and the successful outcome. Great value is attached to it and good results are expected from it. Even though it is but one of the steps in a series, to get the nations to take it was a real accomplishment. We can well believe that it is an honor which Mr. Kellogg had not contemplated, but it displays recognition of a service that was rendered as the result of a conscientious administration of his office as well as the expression of his own belief.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Can any thoughtful person for a moment doubt that nature has many lessons in store for those who maintain the open mind? At the present time dead leaves are filling all the nooks and crevices on the surface of the ground. These leaves had their day and when the night came on as they were no longer needed the trees simply shed them. There was no sense in carrying baggage that was no longer of any service. The sumacs and the maples were among the first to send them scurrying to the four points of the compass. As their day was over, the night of life came when they became the sport of the winds. Those that are not quickly destroyed by the bonfire will more slowly, but none the less surely, be blotted out by the process of decomposition. This is a good illustration of all tangible things.

Is not this a good illustration of intangible things whose days of usefulness are over? Go into the public school room anywhere in the United States and tell me how many copies of Webster's Spelling Book you will find in use? or Mitchell's Geography? or Adam's Arithmetic? Probably not a copy in use. If you find any they will be kept for curiosity, the same as we find worthy old things in a museum. Now the tree shedding the leaves in the autumnal season that began to grow in the spring still lives, so the school that once used the splendid spelling book that bears the great name of Webster still lives. The principle of spelling, or of mathematics will not change as long as public schools endure, but the same text book will not thus exist, because better ones are always forthcoming. Next year there will be new leaves on the trees whose nature are like the old ones, but will be new leavees.

May I be allowed to carry this thought farther in the more important field of responsible action? Now the human body today is the same remarkable piece of machinery as it was long ago when it reached the end of its long development from lower forms of life. Now insanity is the same awful disease today that it was in prehistoric times, but we do not treat it in the same way. What should we think of a doctor in these times who should horsewhip a poor lunatic nearly to death to drive out the evil spirit or spirits he was supposed to possess? But this was done in former ages. It was once common to whip scholars in school for failing to get a lesson even when they did not know how. Boys and girls fail to get lessons now, but they are not whipped. They are now shown where they made their mistakes. The horsewhip is not a part of a school's furnishing today. It is one of the dead leaves that has fallen from the tree.

Another Thanksgiving has come and gone. If we look upon this day as an old and hardy tree, then the character of its celebration may be looked upon as the leaves that fall annually from it. No two Thanksgiving seasons in all our national history have had precisely the same ideas expressed. In early times if the autumnal crops were subnormal it was sometimes looked upon as an expression of an angry God because of the sins of the people. This year, however, the falling leaves have been hardly identified with those of some other hard years. Many crops this year have been far below the average, but has this partial failure of nature to produce in any way connected with the sins of the people, or is it more likely that the long-continued drought had much to do with it? Which of the two is the more rational theory?

Along many other lines we view the facts of life from a totally different standpoint than was formerly done, and as it seems to the writer, for more rationally. Many years ago here in New England an eminent divine had an acute attack of indigestion. He refused all medical aid because he thought it was a righteous act of God sent to him because he had somehow failed to do the divine will. For awhile he refused to be doctored because he had failed in some great duty. But when the case grew serious and when his sensible wife, with her eyes filled with tears, made it plain that his sickness was very clearly caused by overeating of a certain dish of which he was exceedingly fond. As he was in most things very sensible, at length it appealed to him that his wife was right and he no longer refused to be helped. Is it not more sensible to believe that God wants us to live than to die?

By the above words I would not be misunderstood as saying that man is always responsible for serious illness and death. But I would emphasize the fact that God does not inflict some terrible disease on a righteous man because, on account of some very natural limitation, he has committed some error. No human father would do that to his child, and much less would our heavenly Father who is perfect in love. There is one point, however, that we ought not to overlook, and that is the laws of health are inexorable. If a natural law is broken there will be a consequence. If a little child innocently puts his finger on a hot stove he will be burned. Many men today 60 years and over are hobbling around because they violated the laws of nature between 20 and 30. "God is never mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

In local communities as well as in the nation at large the main thought has recently been about the Thanksgiving idea. This spirit of Thanksgiving, however, is greatly modified by the living conditions in which we find ourselves. Some people may be pardoned if the impulse to give thanks this year is not very strong. A man, long out of work, with a large family on his hands to support, with no money coming in, and his small savings nearly gone, may be pardoned if he is not in the frame of mind to sing "the Hallelujah Chorus"! Even in such predicament one may find something to be thankful for. It has been said that nobody's condition in life is so bad that it might not possibly be worse. The man who sees before him the spectre of dire poverty is not so badly off as the man who is nearing the gallows!

In these hours of economic depression in which there has doubtless been much anxiety and certainly much actual want, there is surely dawning in the eastern sky faint streaks of morning light. The great economists with their educated vision see the dawn of a better day which is not revealed as yet to the rank and file. By comparison with the past of our economic life, they know the average lifetimes of a financial panic. They know that the lowest point was reached last July and while we shall not jump into a great boom of prosperity, they know that it is on the way. Now food and clothing are essential to life and these things no longer glut the market. Clothing must be produced and hence factories must be opened, and along other lines "the morning light is breaking."

One person in 3,000 in the United States is a "deaf-mute," that is, these individuals have never learned to speak because of serious deafness.

DR. BYRON SWEET, CLARENCE S. VERRILL, STRONG MEN OF EASTERN CONNECTICUT

At its current session the Jewett City Stovepipe club, according to the report of The Bulletin's correspondent, was moved to recall the feats of the late Daniel (Pet) Geer, a colored resident of Griswold who did such things as to lift a huge stone shoulder high that two laborers had been unable to roll up a pair of skids. Another Griswold man known far and wide for his strength was the late Dr. Byron Sweet, who, though born in Franklin and long a resident of Norwich, spent his last years in Jewett City. Concerning Dr. weeSt, The Bulletin of May 10, 1880, says:

Could Crush Raw Potatoes.

Dr. Byron Sweet, the Franklin bone-setter, is a broad-shouldered athlete about five feet eight inches in height, who is said to lift over twelve hundred weight. One of his feats of strength is to take raw potatoes in his hands and by an even pressure jam them to pomace.

As an instance of the recuperative powers shown by Dr. Sweet's heroic frame The Bulletin of Jan. 15, 1887, contains this entry:

Dr. Byron Sweet of this city, who recently broke his leg and set it with the help of Mrs. Sweet, was taken to Jewett City seven days after the accident to set a woman's hip, and performed the operation successfully.

Dr. Sweet's death was recorded in the Bulletin of Jan. 22, 1923, as follows:

Died from Multiple Neuritis.

Dr. John Byron Sweet, the noted bonesetter and well known citizen of New London county, died at 5.50 Sunday morning at his home on Brown avenue, Jewett City. He had been critically ill since Tuesday, death being caused by multiple neuritis.

He was a descendant of one of the oldest families of New England, and was the seventh son of a seventh son, a fact of which he often spoke. For more than 270 years the Sweet family has been gifted with the peculiar skill in bonesetting, so great that the fame of Dr. Sweet in his own locality equals that of any foreign specialist. His reputation was not confined to the New England states, although the greater number of his difficult operations and work have been done there, but be was well known also in the west.

Dr. Sweet was born May 16, 1854, in Franklin, Conn., the son of Dr. Stephen and Phebe Heath Sweet. He was educated in the local district schools and in Willimantic. He was reared to the practical work of the farm, and was early taught the principles of bonesetting by his skilled father, Dr. Stephen Sweet. He was an adept at 9 years of age.

After leaving the farm he lived in Norwich until 1890, with the exception of one year spent at Central Village. The year of 1890 he went to Griswold and combined agricultural and professional work on the farm where he lived until after his wife's death several months ago, when he moved to his home on Brown avenue, in Jewett City. He had an office in Norwich and at one time in Putnam.

Lived a Strenuous Life.

No man ever lived a more strenuous life than he. Days without number in connection with the demands made upon him in his profession has he kept up his systematic policies of modern farming. He was a live wire of the most approved sort. It was never too early or too late for him to take an hour's recreation at breaking a pair of unruly steers, stopping in between to set a broken arm or leg, and then take up the steer job again where he left off.

He was interested in town affairs, and was its democratic representative for a term, 1911-1913. He served as assessor 13 years. He was a creamery director, a member of Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F., and Undaunted lodge, No. 34, K. of P.

He was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Rogers of Franklin, who died in 1889. Two children were born to them—Stephen who died several years ago, and a daughter, Mrs. Herman Learned of Versailles. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Rathburn Lord, who died a year ago. He leaves his daughter and two grandchildren, Byron and Francis Sweet.

Dr. Sweet possessed a genial disposition and made hosts of friends everywhere. His death is a great loss to his profession.

He is survived by a daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Learned of Versailles, and two grandchildren, M. Byron Sweet, a pupil at Norwich Free Academy, and Frances Sweet, a student at Riverside grammar school. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Stella Sweet Perkins of Westbrook, Conn., and Mrs. Clara Home of New London. His son Stephen Sweet, died two years ago, and the young man's wife has been the home-maker for Dr. Sweet since his own wife's death a year ago, giving him the most devoted care, especially in his illness. William Lord is a stepson. Last summer Dr. Sweet engaged Merton Bugbee as his chauffeur and during the last few days the young man has scarcely left his side, doing everything in his power to aid the doctor.

Today (Monday) is the borough election in Jewett City and Dr. Sweet's name appears on both republican and democratic tickets as warden, a situation which is probably without parallel.

Norwich Free Academy's Strong Man.

Contemporary with Dr. Sweet was Clarence S. Verrill of Norwich who though younger than the herculean bone-setter nevertheless died before the other. On April 8, 1897, the Bulletin says of this Norwich boy:

The New Haven Leader of Wednesday said:

Yale has a strong man who has broken Chadwick's record. Chadwick was recently tried in the gymnasium according to the Harvard system of measurement, the object being to see whether he could approach the phenomenal record made by the Harvard champion, Lovering. Chadwick not only equaled but surpassed Lovering's record. The Yale scored 1,638 to the Harvard man's 1,623.

Chadwick's work was considered extraordinary, but since that time it has been broken by Clarence S. Verrill, '99, S. Verrill's performance is the more remarkable in that he is a man of only medium height and weight. His weight is about 150 and his height 5 feet 9 inches, while Chadwick tips the scales at over 190 and is 6 feet in height.

When the first attempts were made with the Harvard apparatus, about the middle of March, Verrill surprised the gymnasium officials by scoring 1,590 kilos in his first trials without any preliminary training. The results of the trial were made known then, but the name of the man was withheld. After that trial Verrill went through a thorough course of training preparatory to breaking the record.

Then, on April 2, Chadwick had his trial in which he established the new record of 1,638 kilos. This was a greater task for the freshman to undertake, but he was equal to it. In the trial which was given him shortly after Chadwick's, he succeeded in smashing all previous records.

Broke All College Records.

This trial was held last Friday and for some reason the officials at the gymnasium have been keeping it very quiet. The report of it, however, leaked out, and yesterday Dr. Anderson, the instructor, admitted that Verrill has surpassed Chadwick and now holds the intercollegiate strength record.

No official figure has been given out, but the folowing figures are as close as can be obtained at present:

This would give Verrill 29 kilos over Chadwick and 44 kilos over Lovering.

This feat ought to interest New Haven people, especially as the athlete who performed it is a New Haven boy, the son of Professor Verrill of Yale. Verrill is not fully grown and developed yet, and it would not be surprising if he put the record up several more notches before he completes his college course. Those who saw him make the trials of strength say that he went to every machine or strength tester that Chadwick had just left and bettered the record in every case, considerably chagrining the older athlete. Mr. Verrill is very modest over his achievement and seems hardly to realize that he is an intercollegiate champion.

Mr. Verrill was a student at the Free Academy for about a year, being a member of the scientific division of the class of '96. He was prominent in athletics while here and was a member of the school baseball nine.

Was Delicate in Childhood.

Clarence S. Verrill (Free Academy, '96), son of Prof. Verrill, the young Hercules of Yale, is the subject of a sketch in the Illustrated American of April 17. It is written by H. G. Watson, M. A., assistant in anthropometry at Yale, and is illustrated by three photographs of Mr. Verrill, showing his wonderful muscles. In speaking of Mr. Verrill in comparison with Chadwick, the writer says:

"Chadwick has always been a tower of strength and is well known in Yale athletics. He has played tackle on the football team for several seasons, and is one of Yale's best hammer throwers. So his strength, while remarkable is not as fascinating to those interested in physical training as the wonderful feats of Verrill, who was in his younger days a delicate child, but by constant training for the sake of health has developed into a man of muscle and strength, and is today a model of the Greek ideal and the strongest college student in America. Dr. Seaver, who is an authority on anthropometry and physical examination says that he has never measured a more symmetrically and beautifully developed man than Verrill."

Further along in the article, speaking of Mr. Verrill's motheds of training, Mr. Watson says: "His hobby is dumbbells, with which the day's training begins; chest weights are used and finally a two mile run is indulged in. Verrill is not a gymnast of much ability, but among his "stunts" are the front and back levers on the horizontal bar, the crucifix on the rings and the pull up with one hand twice in succession."

Died in Shipwreck.

Clarence Verrill's death was recorded in the Bulletin of Nov. 4, 1918:

Through a message received in New Haven, it became known last week that Clarence S. Verrill, son of A. E. Verrill, a professor emeritus of Yale college, was lost on the steamer Sophia, wrecked off British Columbia Oct. 26. He was a mining engineer returning from Alaska to his home in North Vancouver.

Mr. Verrill was of the Yale class of 1899 S., and while in college was rated as the champion strong man of all American universities. He long had been engaged in mine administration in the west. He married Miss Maltby of New Haven. His younger sister, Lavinia S. Verrill, a former Norwich Art school student, is the wife of S. Henry Howe of New York, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Howe of Norwich.

Next Monday's issue of The Bulletin will contain an account of J. F. Dickens, the Block Island strong man, and the Bitgood brothers of Voluntown, whose strength made them figures of national prominence.

YOUR HEALTH

Dental Health Service

By Frank A. Delabarre, D. D. S. Boston.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Dentistry has accepted the greater responsibilities and the new objective necessitated by the fact that infections in the mouth are often directly responsible for serious disease in other organs and tissues. Its object today is the maintenance of mouth health for the sake of it's influence on general health.

Our technical skill is admittedly high but the change in attitude necessitates radical changes in diagnosis and procedure; a diagnosis that weighs the causes and effects of disturbances of function in all organs of the body and a procedure more effective in preventing or controlling disease.

Heretofore attention has centered on control after the decay of the teeth has been unmistakable, but now we are thinking in terms of prevention. The old effort has proved to be ineffective in maintaining a high degree of health and efficiency of the mouth, as is evidenced by the number of fillings, crowns, bridges, or plates in the average mouth. The problem has been attacked from the wrong end. Repair is less desirable than prevention.

Can we today prevent decay which is the most common of all human ailments? Unfortunately we cannot, since its cause is not definitely known. Many of the contributing factors are recognized and yet the occurrence of decay has not been diminished.

There is, however, a new approach which has been proved to have the most effective control of decay yet devised, and which even carries a degree of prevention with it; "an approach which is logically applied before serious damage has been done: that is, dental health service for children.

Its principles have been unanimously accepted by organized dentistry in many states, by two National Dental associations and, also, by the International Dental Federation.

Quotations from their resolutions state:

"Prevention, to be effective must be applied early in the life of the individual and be systematic and periodic.

"That is the aim to attain prevention of systemic and dental disease.

"No defect is too slight to receive definite attention.

"The temporary teeth should receive as much care as the permanent ones in order to promote proper development of the jaws and head, and to maintain function.

"Particular attention should be given to developmental pits and fissures (i. e. defects in the enamel covering) whether decay is or is not present.

"The most effective dentistry that can be done for any individual is the service rendered between the second and fourteenth years of age."

Considerations of diet, faulty health habits, other physical defects, fatigue and many other factors that have an important influence on growth and development are included in the service.

The whole idea presents the best thought of our profession today. It is logical, practical and economically sound, and the child fortunate enough to receive such attention will escape to a large degree the unfortunate experiences that adults of today have undergone. Complete public co-operation, however, in rigidly conforming to the principles outlined, is essential to its success.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28— When Tyler Page, clerk of the house, came to making up his first informal roll of the house for the 72nd congress, the California delegation proved an easy task.

Despite a death in the group of incumbents during the campaign, the only change needed in the list as it stood for the 71st congress was the addition of "jr." after the name of Charles F. Curry. Another son and namesake has inherited his father's seat in the house.

Senate Sons

How many such cases there are in the new congress the Bystander has not had opportunity to discover. But over in the senate there is the personnel for a new society, the S. S. S. S. it might be called—the Society of the Senatorial Sons of Senators.

Senator Fred Hale of Maine, with not his father alone but a grandfather as well senators before him, would rate the presidency.

Young LaFollette of Wisconsin is eligible, of course, and in the November results two more sons of senators made the grade. They are John Bankhead of Alabama, of whose election Senator Heflin whom he displaces has still much to say, and Robert Carey of Wyoming.

The only daughter of a senator who might conceivably have challenged the purely stag character of this select group, Ruth Hanna McCormick, will not do so due to certain happenings out in Illinois, to something like 700,000 such happenings, to be more exact.

Carey's father was one of the first two senators to sit from Wyoming, the other being the late Senator Warren whose seat, vacated by death, Carey's son now comes to fill.

Sweep

When Mr. Page got down to fixing up the new congressional slate for Indiana, there was lots to do.

Six republican incumbents went down, leaving only four of the state's 13 representatives to the G. O. P. It was a notable sweep for the democrats, rivaled only by what happened in Kentucky, Missouri and Ohio.

You would think, with a situation like that not only in Indiana but in surrounding states as well, that Louis Ludlow, Indianapolis democrat who got into the house despite the Hoover landslide of 1928 from a normally republican district, would have had no fears this year.

His quarter century as a Washington political reporter ought to have made him an expert forecaster, it would seem.

But did it? Not at all. The story goes that he was in despair the day before election. That normal republican majority of 10,000 was a bad dream to him. It proved only a dream, for he rolled up about 32,000 over par this year.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Dreadful Night

Pity the trapped; their fate is plain;
Terrible fear and horrible pain.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Down the Laughing brook below the Smiling pool a dreadful thing had happened. A young muskrat, one of Jerry Muskrat's children, heedless and headstrong, had started to climb out of the water on an old log that lay partly in the water. There had been a snap, something had grabbed him by one of his fore legs, hurting terribly, and now was holding him prisoner. He had stepped in a steel trap.

At first he pulled with all his strength, pulled and pulled. It hurt terribly, but how else could he get away? Time and again he plunged from that log into the water, but in vain. It was well for him that the water was very shallow there. The boy who had set that trap was not a good trapper. In fact, he never had set traps before. He had set that trap too high on the log. Had he been an old trapper he would have placed that trap so that when a muskrat stepped in it and sprung it the little animal would at once plunge into deep water and there drown. But this trap was set where the water was not deep enough for this purpose. All the young muskrat could do was to flounder and splash about in it and finally crawl back up on the log to which the trap was fastened by a chain.

Sobbing under his breath he gnawed at that chain and gnawed at the trap. He knew not what to make of it when he found that his teeth, strong and sharp as they were, made not the slightest impression. This frightened him all the more. Here was something that try as he might he couldn't fight. The thing wouldn't fight back, but it did hold on. It held on as if it meant never to let go.

"It must be a trap. It must be one of those traps I was warned about," sobbed the young muskrat. "I didn't suppose anything could hold on so. I didn't suppose that anything could hurt so. What shall I do? What shall I do? What shall I do?"

There being no one there to answer that question, the young muskrat was no wiser than before. His leg was swollen around those cruel jaws where they bit into the flesh. It ached as no hurt he ever had had before had ever ached. But even worse was the terrible fear that gripped him. What was to become of him? Would he have to stay there until he starved to death? What if an enemy should come along and find him held fast there? At this thought he began struggling again and kept it up until his strength failed and he had to rest.

"It must be one of those traps I was warned about," sobbed the young muskrat.

It was a beautiful night. From high up among the twinkling stars Mistress Moon was flooding the green forest, the green meadows, the Laughing brook and the Smiling pool with soft silvery light. It was such a night as muskrats dearly love. But the young muskrat held fast to that log on the bank of the Laughing brook saw no beauty in it. To him it was a dreadful night. It was more dreadful than he had supposed anything could possibly be. Every minute was a minute of suffering. Every minute was a minute of terrible fear. Finally, every minute was a minute of hopelessness. Yes, sir, it was so. That young muskrat had reached a stage where he no longer had any hope. If he couldn't make that horrible trap let go he didn't believe any one else could.

He wished one of his brothers or sister or his father or mother would come along. It was awful to suffer all alone that way. Whenever he saw a shadow he crouched, fearful that it was Hooty the owl. Whenever a leaf rustled he was sure that Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote was coming to kill and eat him. Pain and terror were with him all the time. Oh, how he did wish then that he had heeded his father's advice and watched for traps. Had he been looking for it he would have seen this trap before he got into it. That he was caught was his own fault and he knew it. But that didn't help him any that dreadful night.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

OUR GOD AS A REWARDER

Among all the names and attributes of our Heavenly Father, that is a precious one in the eleventh chapter of the "Hebrews." We read that God is the "rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." God rewards labor. My friend, if you are not a Christian, I entreat you to put the divine promise to the test. Jesus Christ's invitation to you is "follow Me." He calls on you to forsake your darling sins and offers you pardon. He calls you to self-denial, and offers you peace of conscience. He calls you to His service, and offers you more solid joys than this world can give or take and useful life, and offers you grace sufficient for it. He calls to follow Him through sunshine or storm, up hills of difficulty and through some sharp temptations—to follow Him implicitly, gladly and heartily to the last hour of earth, and then in heaven you will acknowledge that the "God of all away. He calls you to a clean, pure, grace" is the eternal rewarder of all who obey Him.

HEART IS QUICK TO ADJUST BEAT IN EMERGENCIES

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The reputation of the human heart for being alert to meet emergencies is increased by discoveries of Dr. C. J. Wiggers, professor of physiology at Western Reserve university's medical school.

Contrary to current belief, the heart, if injured so a valve becomes leaky, compensates immediately for the leak, Professor Wiggers has found. On the very next beat its pumping has more force.

Current belief is that the heart requires years to develop compensation for a lesion, by enlarging.

After watching the heart's behavior for years, Professor Wiggers believes a person suffering from high blood pressure should not worry too much about it.

"The heart is analogous to a pumping station supplying a garden hose," he said. "If the opening at the nozzle of the hose is diminished, the pressure may be increased at the pumping station to keep up the flow of water.

"In a case of high blood pressure, the blood vessels the heart supplies have become reduced in size and the heart automatically increases its pressure in an effort to keep up a normal flow of blood."

Professor Wiggers referred to present research the world over to find a drug or tissue extract that would successfully lower blood pressure.

A lowered pressure, however, he said, diminishes the supply of blood to the heart, causing it to weaken and in some instances fail.

Hence, he said, it is fully as dangerous to diminish the pressure of the blood as to permit pressure to remain high.

A picture of the way the heart compensates is obtained by Professor Wiggers through use of an apparatus almost unique in this country.

It consists, roughly, of a manometer which can be inserted into the blood stream of an anesthetized animal and a tube which may cause injury to a heart valve.

Attached to the manometer is a mirror that reflects the motion of the heart beat onto a moving photographic film.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

The Collins Company, Collinsville.

There is probably no more interesting firm of tool and equipment manufacturers in the United States than that famous century-old firm, The Collins company, of Collinsville, manufacturers of Collins edge tool, cast steel plows, etc. In 1926 this famous concern celebrated its centenary, to commemmorate which they issued a most interesting booklet giving a brief account of the development of The Collins company in the manufacture of axes, machetes and edge tools. It seems from this most absorbing story that the firm of Collins and Co., was formed by two young brothers, Samuel W. Collins and David C. Collins, with their cousin, William Wells, who began making axes one hundred years ago, in South Canton, now Collinsville.

Axes of that day were crude and were generally hammered out by blacksmiths. They were sold unsharpened, and a really good axe was rare. A blacksmith, named Morgan, of Somers, bought his steel of Watkinson and Collins—David Collins' employers before he started in business on his own—and made axes which stood up under hard use and were largely sought. His undoubtedly suggested to David the idea of making axes wholesale. The old Humphrey grist mill, with its breast waterwheel, in South Canton, was for sale. Collins and Co. bought it and began to manufacture their axes in the old mill.

In those days hours of work were long and very little machinery was used. There was constant hauling and lifting, gripping of heavy tools and swinging of sledges. The powerful, accurate machines of today were only just arriving, in their first crude, bulky forms. Massive grindstones, now long ago replaced by swifter, keener wheels, were quarried at Bay de Chaleur, Nova Scotia. They were sent by ship to Long Island sound and up the Connecticut river to Hartford, then hauled by four and six ox teams over the hills to Canton. The stones were six feet in diameter and a foot thick and their weight may be judged from those dimensions. The company began to make axes with triphammers in 1828, each man forging and tempering about eight per day.

In 1833, however, a bad time faced the company. In September the Hartford banks demanded immediate payment of their plans and the company assigned. Mr. Collins says in his record: "Collins and Co. gave up every dollar they possessed, and with it, of course, went all their "great expectations," but they had the satisfaction of paying their debts in full." The event was not without its compensation for, in addition to the evidence of loyalty and good will among the men, the failure brought remarkable and unlooked for evidence of the popularity of Collins axes. Thinking they might not be able to get more of such quality, dealers bought all they could obtain and put up the prices. But in spite of this the goods sold rapidly and the demand increased so greatly that in the next year when the business was run for the creditors by James H. Wells, father of the young partner, the profits were $30,000. The failure, with the advertising it gave the firm, and the immediate perfecting in their own shop of machinery for forming and welding heads, gave the company an impetus which sent it forward as it had never gone before.

In 1845 the demand for axes was greater than could be supplied and in that year the company began to make machetes for the foreign trade. Men care not where a tool comes from if it is better than that which they possess, and doors had begun to open in all lands for Collins products. The foreign market as well as the domestic was learning that the name "Collins" meant dependability. That is what all workmen seek. Experience teaches them that anything else is costly.

In 1860, F. F. Smith, an ingenious western mechanic, came to the Collins works and described the kind of plough he thought was needed on the prairies. He believed that he could make a cast steel ploughshare, using a cast-iron mold. The Collins company gave him the opportunity to carry out his ideas. Presently he produced the beautifully curved steel ploughshare of today which turns the turf over smoothly and easily. Cast steel shares of medium weight but great strength, smooth as polished silver, came from the works of The Collins company and helped emancipate farming from its heaviest task.

It takes enormous power to operate the blowers, rolls, hammers and grinding wheels of the Collins shops. There are two dams at the works. The upper, at the plant, provides 1,000 horse power, and the other, a half-mile below, runs a hydro-electric plant developing 700 horsepower. Two steam plants furnish 800 horse power. All transmission is electric. The company controls a large storage reservoir in the town of Otis, Mass.

Suction blowers draw the swirling dust away from grinding wheels and the old time wheelbarrow method of starting material from shop to shop has given way to electric trucks. Conservation of energy is studied on all sides and the plant which in former days seemed to have reached its capacity for production, now turns out many more tools with far less wear on man-power. The Collins company's experience has spanned one of the most marvelous centuries in industrial development, from the days of bellows, forge, tongs and anvil, to the era of scientific exactness and titanic power.

"FARMER'S PALACE" NEAR MYSTIC IS COMPLETELY DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Nov. 28.—The summer residence of Samuel Doughty of New York city, situated on Darling hill, overlooking Long Island sound, on the state road from Stonington to Mystic, was burned to the ground Friday afternoon around 4 o'clock. The fire burned for three hours until, at 7 o'clock, the place was a complete ruin.

The loss was estimated at $25,000 but antique furniture valued at several thousand dollars was saved by the firemen and workmen who were closing the home up for the winter when the fire broke out. The workmen, headed by William R. Patterson, had built a fire in the fireplace and it is believed a defective flue allowed the flames to reach the roof, which was discovered on fire by William Patterson, Jr., son of the contractor in charge.

The Mystic fire department was called to assist the other companies at the scene. The firemen were successful in saving the other buildings.

The house was an old one and rebuilt by Henry Langworthy and called the Farmer's Palace, and after his death was occupied by his heirs, who later sold it to Mr. Doughty, who has since occupied it for a summer residence. Large, old, beautiful trees stood in front of the house and along the driveway.

The building, about 50 years old, was the scene, shortly after it was built, of the murder of Irving Langworthy. William Libby was sentenced to a life term in the state prison at Wethersfield for the crime.

SCOUTS LAY FOUNDATION FOR BUILDING OF CABIN

A dozen Boy Scouts and several Rover Scouts spent most of Friday at the new Boy Scout camp site on the Quinebaug river and accomplished considerable towards the construction of their cabin. During the morning Shepard B. Palmer made rough plans of the cabin which has been enlarged to the plan of a building 20 by 30 feet with a porch eight feet wide. The Scouts had to cut out another half dozen small trees and drive stakes and lay cord. With the use of a small compass the cabin as laid out is facing due southwest thereby assuring the evening sun for light and the gorgeous sunset view from over Bundy Hill.

During the day the Scouts carried a number of flat stones to the site and dug a trench about a foot deep to assure a solid base. The Rover Scouts cut a trail from the cabin down to the river and overlooking the mouth of the brook where a beautiful scene fitting for any artist makes master Scouts pause and exclaim, "What a brook!"

A fireplace was built by the Scouts and some took on the arduous task of pulling rusty nails out of 320 feet of flooring. According to the local Scout headquarters, recent contributions to the building of the cabin consist of four pairs of green shutters by Dr. W. T. Browne and Mrs. Browne, six double deck cots from Morris Sussman (making a total of 12 double deckers received). The Scout executive was also shown the two small houses, eight feet by ten, given by the City Gas & Light department, and expressed his pleasure at the gift.

Among some of the materials still needed for the cabin are: 600 feet of flooring, 900 feet of roofing, wood for the veranda, a mantel for the fireplace, and a dozen or more regular cot mattresses or straw ticks and beams for the roof.

Today (Saturday) the scoutmasters plan to come out in numbers and get the sill and joists laid and some flooring. The services of several masons for the building of the fire place will be needed within about a week or ten days and it is hoped that some of the local masons will volunteer to go out for one day to help out with this important work. According to the Scout headquarters, any mason so volunteering will have his food furnished and cooked by the hands of the Scouts. That should tempt any one to come out and help the Scouts build their cabin.

Norwich has never had a camp of its own. The Scouts and Scout leaders are looking forward to a great time ahead in building this one. Scoutmasters give on an average of four or five hours each week in volunteer work to help boys. The citizens of Norwich have a splendid opportunity to show that they appreciate their untiring efforts by helping them build a camp for their boys to hike to throughout the year.

At least 50 Scouts can be used today in the construction of the cabin, particularly in the carrying of stone for the fire place. A good wheelbarrow can be used. Other Scouts should bring along hammers to pull out nails from the flooring. Still others should bring along spades in order that a permanent latrine may be provided.

Scouts are asked to meet at Scout headquarters by 9:00 a. m., dressed in their warmest and prepared to hike to the camp. Tools will be carried out in a car.

SCOUTS TO MARCH TO SEE "DEERSLAYER" PICTURE

Sunday afternoon at 3.15 every Boy Scout troop in Norwich is to meet at the front entrance to the Thayer building in scout uniform and march to the Y. M. C. A. to see the picture of special interest to Boy Scouts called the "Deerslayer." Through the courtesy of the local "Y" the picture will be shown free but every scout is expected to bring a small gratuity for an offering.

Preceeding the picture a short synopsis of the life of James Fenimore Cooper will be shown. The picture is particularly appropriate for a deer was seen Thursday morning at the new camp site by Chief Sellman, but unlike the "Deerslayer" he tried to get a snapshot of it rather than to kill it; for there is a prize offered of a scout camera to the first scout who gets a picture of a deer at the new camp.

According to President H. D. Larrabee and Dr. R. R. Agnew, the new camp will be made a game sanctuary and no fire arms will be permitted and no hunters will be allowed to hunt the game. When the wild life learns that the scouts are its friends it will not run away but will frequent the camp grounds and make friendly advances to the scouts.

GODREAU BROUGHT BACK FROM MASSACHUSETTS TOWN

Andrew Godreau of Lisbon, liquor law violator, is incarcerated in the New London county jail on Cedar street, and will remain there until he works out a fine of $142.50 imposed upon him in justice court in Lisbon by Justice of the Peace Walter Drew. The accused was presented in court several days ago on two charges of violation of the liquor law, one count was thrown out and on the other he was fined.

A short time later Godreau had his belongings removed from his place in Lisbon and transported to Winchendon, Mass., with the idea of escaping payment of his fine. The authorities learned of his hasty retreat, and sought him out in the Massachusetts town. In which they were successful and his arrest followed Wednesday night. Godreau waived extradition and was brought back to Norwich, where he was locked up.

GARDNER LAKE HUNTERS BAG TWO FINE FOXES

As has been the custom for many years, residents of the Gardner Lake section held their annual turkey day fox hunt Thanksgiving morning, the huntsmen returning with two fine foxes, one a gray and the other a red. About 15 dogs participated in the chase which culminated at noon, when the huntsmen ejoyed a fine repast at the home of one of the members.

INSANE PRISONERS FROM WETHERSFIELD TO NORWICH

The removal of insane prisoners from Wethersfield state prison to a state hospital has been considered by the state prison board, the warden of the prison and the state board of finance and control for some time, and is now "in the works," it was revealed Friday by State Commissioner of Finance and Control Edward F. Hall.

The plan calls for the housing of state insane prisoners at the Connecticut state hospital at Norwich, it was explained by Commissioner Hall, the budget for the next biennial providing for the construction of a new building at Norwich for the employes of the state hospital, the building now being used by the employes being suited for conversion into quarters for the housing of insane prisoners.

The information relative to the plans for the future care of the insane prisoners at Wethersfield was obtained from Commissioner Hall when he was asked relative to the recommendations to be made by the board of directors of the prison that the insane prisoners be removed from the state prison at Wethersfield, a recommendation also contained in the report to be made to the governor by Warden Charles Reed.

"The removal of the insane prisoners from Wethersfield has been considered for some time," Commissioner Hall said Friday. "The prison authorities have long desired to have the prisoners who become insane following their commitment to prison, removed to some other state institution, but up to now we have had no facilities for giving them the proper care. With approval of the plan for the construction of a new building for employes at the state hospital at Norwich there will be available a building which can be utilized for the detention of the criminal insane, and it will then be possible to remove from Wethersfield the approximately 40 insane prisoners now held there. With the building of the new state hospital at Newtown and the removal to that hospital of other insane prisoners, the congestion at the other state hospitals will be relieved, and there will then be ample room at Norwich for the detention and care of the criminal insane."

The budget including the provision for a new building for hospital employes at Norwich will be submitted to the incoming general assembly for approval.

GIFTS TO W. J. FITZGERALD AT RICHMOND FOUNDRY

A fine brief case and bill fold were presented on Wednesday to William J. Fitzgerald by the men of the moulding department at the Richmond Radiator company for whom Daniel Foley, president of the Moulders' union, was spokesman in making the presentation.

Mr. Fitzgerald began employment with the Richmond company 27 years ago and for the last 15 years has been foundry superintendent. Mr. Foley referred to the many years in which they had enjoyed association with Mr. Fitzgerald and to his unfailing good judgment and fairness in the treatment of any friction which might have arisen, and went on to say that they were rejoicing that their superintendent was going on to higher places in the service of the community as state senator and they took pleasure in showing their appreciation of him in these gifts.

Senator-elect Fitzgerald accepted the gifts with suitable expression of his appreciation of pleasant relations which had always existed in the foundry.

APPLICATIONS GRANTED FOR GASOLINE STATIONS

At hearings held Friday morning in the mayor's office by the joint zoning board of appeals, two applications were granted for the locations of gasoline stations. There was no opposition and the board rendered decision without going into executive session.

One was to the Texas Co. for a station at West Main street and Falls avenue with four gasoline pumps and the other was to the Mexican Petroleum Co., at 418 North Main street, with three pumps.

Fire Chief Henry R. Taft, who was present at the hearing, inquired if the stations were to be built of fire-resisting material and it was stated that they were.

Fire Chief Taft, who is also fire marshal in the city, asked by the board as to his opinion on the proposed gasoline stations, stated that they would be a decided improvement over the present structures and that they would eliminate fire hazards in one sense, inasmuch as there was going to be an improvement all around.

First Selectman William S. Murray presided over the hearing while other members of the board present were Walter T. Camp, secretary; Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and Attorney Andrew B. Davies.

UNITY CLUB GIVES PLAY FOR THANKSGIVING SOCIAL

Members of the Unity club of the young people's department of the Central Baptist school furnished the entertainment for the Thanksgiving social Friday evening in the assembly hall of Bushnell chapel by an exceedingly clever rendering of a three act play, The Cross Roads Meetin' House.

The action of the play covered the experiences of a progressive young rural minister, whose attempt to establish a community house was met by the opposition of the squire. How the minister's humor and good will were too much for the opposition was capitally brought out by the well chosen members of the cast, who were costumed to fit their parts as follows:

J. Ogden Barnhart, cattle raiser
Ruth Brown
Jim Randall, farmer .. Beulah Rogers
Squire Morgan .... Elinor Harrington
Ezekiel Hoskins, slack farmer
Frances Bushnell
John Ryan, the minister,
Margaret Caswell
Jerry, country boy .. Marion Dennison
Aunt Liza Rhodes .. Helen Bellows
Miss Amelia Dyer, old maid
Doris Racine
Nelly Randall
Florence Bushnell Burke
Spencer Morgan, squire's son
Mary Hargreaves
The Sheriff ... Dorothy Blatherwick
Dick, boy .... Emiline Chapman
Lucile, girl .... Dorothy Packer

Miss Viola Hill and Miss Mildred Cass introduced the programme with two well rendered piano duets and a pretty feature introduced in the third act was a chorus number, The Little Brown Church in the Vale, which was given by the cast and all the other members of the club.

Mrs. D. A. Pitt, who is teacher of the club, was coach for the play and the stage managers were Gavin Pitt and Nelson Packer.

Fruit punch and wafers were served after the play.

COUNTY LEGION POSTS TO ACT ON NINE NTL. LEGISLATIVE PROPOSALS

Installation of the recently elected officers featured the opening meeting of the current year of the fifth district American Legion, at Union lodge hall, New London, Friday evening. There were 160 present including the Legionnaires and the district auxiliary members. Past District Commander Joseph Bellefleur, of this city, installed the new officers as follows:

Commander, Joseph Degange, New London; adjutant, Morgan Havens, New London; chaplain, Rev. Father Flynn, of Fishers Island; treasurer, William Lamphere, Mystic; W. G. Crosby, Old Lyme, sergeant at arms.

The newly installed officers then took the chairs. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as was the treasurer's report. On sick call and relief, two comrades were reported in government hospitals. A motion was adopted that the nine proposals of the Legion, which Ralph T. O'Neill, the national commander has precented to President Hoover be referred back to the posts in the county for action and recommendations. The proposals will be voted on at the next district meeting. The nine proposals are:

That legislation be enacted designed to level discrimination in our present laws which provide medical or money relief for disabled World war veterans, their widows and orphans.

That congress clarify those portions of the World War veterans' act which provide hospitalization for veterans so that there may be a stabilized and clearly understood policy for clinical relief, to the end that every possible veteran may be returned to health and productivity.

The creation of a veterans' committee in the senate, so that the veterans' problems may receive the careful study in the upper body to which they are entitled because of their intricacy and the annual expenditures involved.

That an increased appropriation be made for the Department of Labor's veterans' employment service, so that additional offices may be opened to provide employment for veterans.

The desirability of immediately bringing our naval establishment to the strength agreed upon by the terms of the London naval treaty.

That consideration be given to the adequacy of the army and national guard, and training for reserve officers and those eligible to citizens' military training camps.

The propriety of eliminating the average of the grade clause in the appropriation bills which set up the salaries of the classified service, in order to provide a more flexible promotion system in the executive department and independent establishments, for both veterans and nonveteran personnel

A reduction in interest rates to 4 per cent. on adjusted compensation loans

Any necessary appropriations to develop and accelerate construction of public works.

The Coast Guard band furnished music for dancing and light refreshments were enjoyed by all present.

It happened in the hat shop in the East Fifties. A young woman whose dress was distinguished by her flat heels and tailor-maid jacket was having a hard time selecting a hat, and was still dissatisfied after the exasperated clerk had brought out the entire stock. An acquaintance of mine, who was also trying on hats, heard her say:

"I want a hat that's mannish," she snapped.

"Yes, miss; how about this one?" the attendant replied bringing out the last of the assortment.

"Not mannish enough."

"But, miss," the other sighted wearily, "it's a man's hat."—Evening Sun.

NOTRE-DAME ARMY BATTLE HOLDS CHIEF INTEREST IN TODAY'S GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—A rough and rugged brace of tacklers, John J. Blizzard and Herman H. Zero, have decided to participate in the finishing flourishes of the college football season. They may be the deciding factors, doing as much damage as the opposition, in the few big games to be played in the frigid zone tomorrow.

Notre Dame and Army, the headline engagement of the day at Soldier field, Chicago, have had enough experience with handling frozen footballs on icy surfaces to make the best of conditions along the lake-front. They battled last year at the Yankee stadium in a temperature of 15 degrees above zero, the Irish romping off to a one touchdown victory on Jack Elder's 96-yard gallop with an intercepted pass.

If approximately 80,000 New Yorkers were sufficiently courageous then to brave the elements, packing the Yankee stadium, the assumption may be that the severe weather in the midwest will not keep many of the expected 125,000 customers from Soldier field tomorrow. It will be a new record if that many turn out.

Notre Dame still unbeaten, figures to repulse the Army's charge but it will be no great surprise if the Cadets turn in their best performance of the year and give the Irish a real tussle. West Point is one of the east's few undefeated teams and will toss the full power of its Warner wingback system against the Rockne shift.

Notre Dame-Army affair, annually one of the most colorful games on the gridiron list, shares the intersectional spotlight Saturday with two widely separated skirmishes. The new champions of the Pacific coast, Washington State, have come across country to play Villanova at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, while the east has commissioned Dartmouth to seek some sectional revenge against Stanford's Indians at Palo Alto, California.

These three contests dominate the day's activity. Three other intersection games involve Iowa State and Loyola at New Orleans, Temple and Drake at Philadelphia, and Georgetown and Detroit at Detroit. In addition the slate includes such hardy annuals as Holy Cross-Boston college at Fenway park, Boston, and Southern Methodist-Texas Christian at Dallas.

The east has two chances to break the spell of far western team supremacy, sustained pretty decisively for the past few years by Stanford, Oregon State, California and St. Mary's but there is not much more than an outside chance of anything being done about it tomorrow.

Dartmouth, unbeaten, and tied only by Yale, figures to have a better chance against Stanford than the four-time beaten Villanova eleven against Washington State's Cougars. College football is such, however, that the reverse may be the case by the time the points are totalled up tomorrow.

Dartmouth's offensive was not particularly impressive in its last few eastern games, whereas Stanford rebounded sharply to form after absorbing a beating from Southern California.

Despite freezing temperatures, probably 50,000 spectators will turn out to see the only team that has stopped the Southern California touchdown parade this season. Washington State has given some signs of losing the edge that marked its early charge toward the Pacific coast title but the Cougars figure to pack too much drive and power for Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova boys. If the eastern team gets anywhere, it probably will be through the air.

University of Texas has clinched the southwestern conference title but there are two arguments to be decided, nevertheless. Baylor plays Rice at Waco in addition to the Southern Methodist-Texas Christian fray. The only southern conference game brings Vanderbilt and Maryland together at Nashville.

CROWD OF 125,000 IS EXPECTED TO SEE NOTRE DAME

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—(AP)—The Rough Riders from Notre Dame, riding the tide of 17 straight conquests, will attempt to tame the unbroken Army Mule tomorrow before perhaps the largest assembly ever to witness a football game in America.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand spectators, and 2,000 more than the record crowd at the Notre Dame-University of Southern California game a year ago, were expected to crowd into Soldier field to witness the battle between the two undefeated teams.

It will be the seventeenth gridiron battle in 18 years between the two rivals, but more than football tradition rests behind it. The victor will remain in the waning struggle for mythical championship honors for 1930, the loser will experience the first blot of the campaign on its record and join the ranks of the defeated.

As the zero hour for the struggle approached, both teams anxiously studied the weather man's bulletins, the Army hoping for almost any kind of weather except a perfect football day and Notre Dame hoping for at least a hard field.

The last prediction today, however, promised temperatures above the freezing point and at least a light snowfall. If the prediction is correct, the teams will fight it out on a soggy field as the turf for the past two days has been frozen with the near zero weather. Such a playing condition would favor the heavy Army line and the many ploughing Cadet backs and handicap the fast charging Notre Dame ball carriers, upon whose speed Coach Knute Rockne depends.

"If the weather man has it right and the field is soft and uncertain the Cadets will beat us tomorrow," Rockne said tonight. "Such a condition would give them a big break while handicapping our light but speedy backfield. The Notre Dame backs need a firm turf to get away and to block effectively. It will be a tough fight under any conditions. The Army has a great ball club, powerful and smart. Added to that is the fact that the Army has had practically two weeks of rest while we haven't quite gotten over the shelling we received from Northwestern a week ago."

Major Ralph Sasse, head coach of the Cadets, said he knew the Rockne Rough Riders were the favorites and that their record entitled them to that respect, but added that the Cadets were all steamed up to give them the battle of the year.

"We're going into the game to win," Major Sasse said. "The boys are in great spirits."

From past performances and the type of opponents the two teams have met so far this season, Notre Dame rightfully ranked as the favorite. The Cadets haven't met opponents this fall with quite the football reputations that the "Fighting Irish" have and they have a tie with Yale to mar their record.

Both teams went through spirited, final workouts today. Down at South Bend, Rockne drilled his squad indoors on signals, blocking, passing and kicking. All the regulars reported they were in good physical condition again and ready to go. The Cadets went through a secret drill on Soldier field, brushing up the game's fundamentals.

STANFORD RULES AS FAVORITE OVER DARTMOUTH

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Dartmouth's Green Indians, 3,000 miles from their home base in quest of new football honors, will face Stanford's Red Indians here tomorrow in the first big intersectional contest on the Pacific coast this season.

One of the leading teams in the east, Dartmouth comes west with a record of no defeats and one scoreless tie—with Yale. Stanford's record, not so impressive, includes a scoreless tie with Minnesota and an overwhelming defeat by Southern California.

Records notwithstanding, the slow starting Stanford eleven is strongly favored in this section to take the measure of the squad from Hanover. Tardy in development, Stanford snapped out of its lethargy to score smashing victories over Washington and California.

Dartmouth has plenty of followers and none other than Coach Glenn "Pop" Warner of Stanford said recently the eastern team would win, largely through the advantage of a heavier line. However, there are some who believe Coach Warner was working a "psychology stunt" on his boys.

Coach Jack Cannell of Dartmouth has made no predictions, but from the barred gates of the stadium where the Green Indians worked out this week have come reports of vigorous practice in defense against Stanford's fake reverses and three-man lateral passes.

Concededly stronger on the line Dartmouth, however, probably cannot match the backfield combination that carries the colors of Stanford. Coach Warner has three sets of ball luggers, all interchangeable and most of them heavy.

Part of the proceeds will be turned over to help relieve unemployment in this section. With an advance sale of more than 25,000 tickets, those in charge look for an attendance exceeding 50,000 persons.

WILDCATS STRATEGY PROVED TO BE WONDERFUL ASSET

Sports Editor: This is no protest against the great Norwich Town Wildcats, but a little note of resentment against the way the game was printed in The Bulletin. It truly was a great victory, a terrific and overwhelming victory by a master football machine.

The Wildcats proved that strategy is a wonderful asset even in football. They kept the fans from their section of the city on the field throughout the game. It was rather puzzling, until the last quarter, why they were not put off the field, when Lavarge, crack backfield man, made a dazzling 78 yard run behind interference provided by some 50 fans. Of course they did not give him much interference aiding him only the first 25 yards but incidentally throwing off two tacklers and leaving him an open field.

The Thanksgiving day game was hard fought, by evenly matched teams, on a poor field and to all attending should have been a scoreless tie.

It was stated that rough tactics were employed by the L. H. A. C. Were any Wildcats knocked out? No! But Lizzio, star halfback was knocked out and Geoptert, quarterback, was taken out due to injuries received in scrimmage, both Laurel Hill men.

Had the L. H. A. C. as good interference as the Wildcats, the championship would have rested on other heads, but that was impossible as the fans from Laurel Hill sat in the grandstands.

So long Wildcats, some day we'll meet again.

ELEVEN TEAMS ENTERED FOR A. A. U. CROSS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—A record entry of eleven teams was announced today for the National A. A. U. cross country championship at Lincoln Park, Jersey City, Sunday afternoon.

The middle west will be represented by the University of Indiana, winner of the Big Ten championship last Saturday; and Michigan State Normal college of Ypsilanti, Mich. The Ypsilanti collegians are headed by Roger Arnett, one of the leading contenders for individual honors.

Other teams entered are the Dorchester club of Dorchester, Mass., defending champions; Meadowbrook club and Nativity Catholic club of Philadelphia; St. Joseph's Catholic club of Newark; Brooklyn Harriers; Good Shepherd A. C., New York A. C., and two teams from the Millrose A. A., New York.

YANKEES BUY BATTERY FROM BALTIMORE TEAM

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 28—(AP)—Jim Weaver, pitcher, who last season won 21 games for Baltimore of the International league, and his battery mate, Tom Padden, have been sold to the New York Yankees, George M. Weiss, general manager of the Orioles said today. The Orioles are to receive Bill Hopkins and Kenneth Holloway pitchers, and an unnamed player and an unannounced sum in cash for the Baltimore battery, Weiss said

[illegible] finale of the football season today we would pick Notre Dame to beat the Army 13 to 0, in a game played in extreme cold weather and on a hard-playing surface. Fumbles are apt to be very frequent, due to the cold. On the Pacific coast the battle between Darthmouth and Stamford should be considerably closer with Stanford winning 13 to 6. Washington State should take over Villanova by a good margin of about 26 to 6. Of course, as in all well regulated football games the unexpected may happen.

Those who cheered Fidel LaBarba to the echo a few short weeks ago in Madison Square Garden when he plastered the "Ebony Reed" did an about face last night and booed him when he held to save his eye from a battering. To the majority of the fans the bout between LaBarba and Taylor was a disappointing affair and the decision was by no means popular. Probably there was not one in the entire audience at the bout who would have done any different than LaBarba if they had been in the ring with a cut eye.

The day of the scientific boxer is fast waning. Today the boy in the ring has got to be a slugger or he doesn't draw a baker's dozen to his bouts. A fight crowd will go mad over two pork and beaners hammering each other in the ring while they will boo two clever boys boxing a scientific bout. The same holds true in baseball. The boys who bust them over the fence are the boys that capture the plaudits of the crowd while the batter of the Wee Willie Keeler type, who hits short and often, will go a whole season unnoticed. Brute strength rather than skill has caught the popular fancy within the past few years.

As we remarked in the preceding paragraph, the fans like the sluggers. Well, if that's the case, local fans will get plenty next Friday night at Taftville when Vic Darr and Al Koziol clash. If there ever was a slugging match this is going to be it. Koziol is going to kayo Darr if he can and Darr is going to flatten Koziol if he can, a trick he missed by a scant two seconds in the last bout. If this bout doesn't pack old Parish hall to the doors then the boxing game has certainly hit the same depression that business has.

Although this is not exactly sports we will tell it here for want of a better classification. The other night one of our pretty waitresses in a local restaurant had an evening off and in hopes of promoting a date said to a gentleman customer, "You are a salesman, aren't you?" "Yes," was the reply. "Well, what do you sell?" asked the pretty one. "Bridges," replied the salesman, who apparently had been asked the same question before. The conversation ended at that point.

PLENTY OF FOOTBALL ON THE AIR TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Two of the season's important intersectional football games — Army vs. Notre Dame, and Dartmouth vs. Stanford—will comprise radio's contribution to sport tomorrow.

The two networks, National and Columbia will report the Army-Notre Dame battle at Chicago and NBC will bring in the other contest from the Pacific coast.

Announcers for Army-Notre Dame will be Graham McNamee for NBC and Ted Husing for CBS. Two Pacific coast radio sportsmen, Jack Keogh and Don Thompson will be heard in the other broadcast.

The latest announced station list:

ALEXANDER TO TEACH BASKETBALL AT COLUMBIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 28.—Announcement was made here today that Louis A Alexander, coach of Connecticut Aggie's varsity basketball and baseball teams, has been appointed a member of the physical education department at Teacher's college, Columbia university, in New York city, where he will teach the basketball course for coaches during the six-weeks summer session next summer.

The appointment was made by Dr. J. F. Williams, head of the physical education department at Teacher's college and internationally known author of text-books on health and physical education. The appointment becomes effective next July.

Alexander is on sabbatical leave at the present time and is doing graduate work in physical education at Columbia university this semester. He will return to Connecticut Agricultural college in February to resume his duties as mentor of the basketball and baseball teams.

Alexander will be remembered as the captain of the Connecticut Aggie basketball team which was claimant of the New England championship in 1922. This team defeated, among others, that season, Harvard, Army, Brown and Springfield. Alexander played four years for the Aggies and was the first Nutmeg basketballer to be named on the All-New England team. Following his graduation in 1923 he was appointed coach of freshman teams. In 1927 he took over the coaching of varsity basketball and that year's team won the New England championship.

Students in the physical education department at Teacher's college come from practically every state in the Union and the appointment of a coach from a small college in New England is a tribute to the basketball played in this section of the country.
